Ottawa Couple Plans 40,000-mile Holiday

That's the kind of statement that raises eyebrows among people who know he and his wife are planning a 40,000-mile "tour of the Americas," including the first "total encircling" of South America by road.

But when the Irvine-Halliday leaves in November their four-wheel-drive pickup truck will be equipped with 300 pounds of spare parts, an electric winch, a radio transmitter, emergency rations and a machete.

It will also carry their two pre-school-age children.

When he talks about the 18-month journey, ranging from the tip of South America to Alaska, Mr. Irvine-Halliday exhausts to some trepidation.

"We're taking as many precautions as we can but still go there. The biggest precaution would be to stay in Ottawa.

"My biggest fear is anything happening to the children."

The 32-year-old electronics engineer and his 29-year-old wife are hoping their respective experiences as a mountaineer and nurse will help them through any difficulties encountered on the tricky South American leg of the trip.

"For between 4,000 and 5,000 of the 40,000 miles there are no roads, just tracks and bush roads. We'll have to cut down some trees and build some bridges."

Mr. Irvine-Halliday expects the journey across the adjacent countries of Guyana, Surinam and French Guiana, in the northeastern part of South America, to be one of the toughest parts of the trip.

"God willing," he says, the trip will be the first road crossing of the area by a single vehicle.

The tour of 13 South American countries "is about a year" will also be a first as far as he knows.

"We've written to National Geographic and they say to the best of their knowledge no one has completed this kind of circumnavigation by road."

From a mountaineer and experienced outdoors man one might expect a "because-it's-there" reply on asking Mr. Irvine-Halliday about his motivation for the trip.

But the Scottish-born adventurer has another answer, a double-barrelled response reflecting a newly-found patriotism and a long-term business outlook.

"Canada is our adopted country and we'd like this part of first to go to this country. We'd originally planned this sort of trip as the long trip back to Scotland but we've decided to remain in Ottawa indefinitely after we return."

The Irvine-Halliday have been in Canada almost four years but it was not until recently that they decided to stay here after their visit to the extremities of Tierra del Fuego, at the tip of South America, and Anchorage, Alaska.

About $6,000 worth of film is the biggest item in he $20,000 the Irvine-Halliday have sunk into the project. They hope to get enough footage to prepare some documentaries for educational television.

Mr. Irvine-Halliday wants to convert his experience into a career as a film producer while his wife, hoping to establish herself as a writer, will record their trip in a book.

Profit and loss cannot be forgotten. "Let's face it, this isn't an ego trip, it's a business."

One of their chief assets during the trip will be a powerful shortwave radio with which they hope to call Ottawa at least twice a week.

A special radio club, named the CANADAK Radio Club after their Canada-South America Expedition, and a 700-foot antenna have been set up to receive their transmissions.

"There are a lot of people here looking forward to this aspect of the trip. We'll try to make as many contacts as possible and get some South Americans speaking to Canadians."

The radio will also be useful in determining road and weather conditions ahead as well as providing a warning of any political unrest en route.

In addition to travelling through areas with no roads, or no roads that may be little more than the figment of a cartographer's imagination and crossing the 15,800-foot Pickle Pass in central Peru, the family will attempt on foot to reach the source of the Amazon River.

The truck, even with its four-wheel drive, winch and fuel capacity of more than 50 gallons, will be useless on this part of the trip, which Mr. Irvine-Halliday describes as a "30-to 35-mile hike through the mountains."

"I think we'll make it back, but we'll need a bit of luck."

Smaller Classes Urged

TORONTO (CP) — Metro Toronto school board is hoping for a smaller pupil-teacher ratio in elementary and secondary schools by next year. Top priority is to be given to improving the ratio in the board's 1974 school budget. A report is being compiled on class size and the quality of education for Education Minister Thomas Wells.

Caught Short

FROMU, England (CP) — Snooker player Ian Boarsman had only seconds to go before resuming a vital match when he got locked in the women's lavatory at a Somerset club. To save time he had dashed for the nearest toilet without checking the signs, but the key stuck and he had to call for help. He was released with 20 seconds to spare.

Beckwith Arsenal

Sgt. Frank Hayward (right) displays to newsmen an arsenal found in the custody of Byron De la Beckwith who was arrested in New Orleans Thursday. The arsenal included a dynamite bomb, a pistol, three rifles and the barrel of a .50-caliber machinegun. Trudeaus Relaxing

HONOLULU (AP) — Prime Minister Trudeau and his wife stopped here Wednesday night to relax at a Waikiki beach hotel before continuing home from their week-long trip to China.

Trudeau participated in negotiations on cultural, consular and medical exchanges with officials of the People's Republic of China. He will report Friday to the House of Commons in Ottawa, assistant press secretary Vic Chapman said.

Last Saturday, Trudeau signed a trade agreement in Peking, formalizing the earlier informal trade practice between the two countries, Chapman told reporters.

Chapman said specifics of agreements will be disclosed in Trudeau's address to the House of Commons.

Death May Come From 'Suffocation'

NEW YORK (AP) — The world may be destroyed again by flood. The world may be consumed in a cinder, by a vast atomic fireball.

But some students of our planet see a fate possibly even more imminent: The human race may simply be suffocated by increasing tidal waves of government forms.

Filling out forms has within the last half-century become perhaps the major nuisance of civilization. It is such an essential part of modern life it is surprising that no college gives an advanced course in how to do it.

These forms beset us at every step throughout our existence. In fact, there are only two major events in our lives at which we don't have to fill out a government form—birth and death. On these occasions the paperwork is done for us by grudging doctors whose signatures testify that we are legally alive or legally dead.

A child can also usually consult relatives or family friends to sign his baptismal certificate, but after that he is pretty much on his own.

You have to fill out a form to pay taxes.

You have to fill out a form to open a business.

You have to fill out a form to buy a house or a car.

You have to fill out a form to build an addition to your house.

You have to fill out a form to get married or divorced.

You have to fill out a form to get a welfare payment.

You have to fill out a form to vote, travel to another country, get into or out of the armed forces, drive a car or keep a dog within the limits of most cities.

And, following the example set by governments, other organizations now require the filling out of forms, so that:

You have to fill out a form to rent a tuxedo, join a country club, open a charge account, get a credit card, enter a college, obtain a library card, apply for a patent, become a hospital patient, make an insurance claim, apply for a job or donate your body to a medical school to escape funeral expenses.

Isn't there anything a man can do any more without having to fill out a form first?

Yes, he can rob a bank or steal an automobile.

But if he gets caught, he will find his adventures in filling out government forms are only beginning.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — If entertaining at home today you'd be wise to not invite your gabby pal who always dominates the conversation.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Avoid having words over a petty matter with an associate or one who is performing a service for you. It will only spoil a fun day.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — Make it a point to keep your money matters a secret today. You're likely to talk far too much to one you love socially.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — You'll do better in a face-to-face meeting for a serious discussion. The phone or mails aren't as effective.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — It's to your interest to discuss your problem today only with the person who could actually help you solve it. Your confidence won't be kept by others.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Entertainment you'll have to pay for will not give you half the satisfaction you'd get from just being among some good friends.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Continue to keep a regular eye on your important goals. Unexpected assistance will help make attainment easier.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — self-doubt is your biggest enemy today. Erase this from your mind. Proceed as if good things are going to happen. They will.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You've read someone wrong. He's really your friend. Something he will do today will prove it beyond a doubt.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — Much will be gained if you put your interests secondary. Be cooperative, for the help you give will turn out to be more beneficial for you than another.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — What you have to offer others by way of work or service will reap an unexpected harvest today. Make your best effort.

They Fly Out Of Rat Race

HALIFAX (CP) — Barnstorming was a popular pastime in the 1920s and '30s but a young Toronto couple have taken it up to get out of the urban rat race.

Glenn Norman, 34, a former news director at a Toronto television station, and his 31-year-old wife Michelle have been flying across Canada for the last year in a 1939 Gypsy Moth biplane.

"In the 1920s, barnstormers made a living of flying people around for what fares they could scrape up," Glenn said. "We had a friend who tried this type of life in 1936 and got hooked on it. Trouble is he took us with him."

Last year, they bought an old biplane and went barnstorming. "We'd land in a field and take people for a ride around their community for whatever money they could pay."

Johnston Shares Spotlight

McDonald Finds the Range

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Until Wednesday night, young Lanny McDonald had been having his problems living up to his surname MacDonald Lanny.

He had earned the epithet for his scoring exploits in the Western Canada Hockey League where he terrorized opposition goaltenders with his scoring prowess.

When Toronto Maple Leafs drafted him in the National Hockey League's amateur draft last summer, they felt that McDonald, a 22-goal man with Medicine Hat Tigers in 1972-73, would add some scoring punch to their lineup.

McDonald finally managed his first goal in NHL play Wednesday night and no doubt he will remember it for a long time.

McDonald whipped a shot past Montreal Canadiens goalie Michel Larocque with 2:17 left in the third period to snap a 3-3 tie and Toronto went on to the Montreal 5-3. It was the first victory for the Leafs at the Forum since Jan. 30, 1971.

Elsewhere in the league, Atlanta Flames scored two goals within 78 seconds in the first period en route to a 4-2 victory over Boston Bruins, New York Rangers blanked St. Louis Blues 4-0, Pittsburgh Penguins clipped Minnesota North Stars 4-3, Chicago Black Hawks slammed Vancouver Canucks 5-0 and it was Philadelphia Flyers 3, California Golden Seals 1.

McDonald, a six foot, 185-pound native of Hanna, Alta., had not been playing that well early in the game against Montreal. During the second period, coach Red Kelly decided to sit the youngster out in favor of Eddie The Entertainer Shack.

"I thought it was a good decision," said McDonald. "I wasn't playing that well at the time. Eddie went out there and got us going.

"I couldn't blame the coach for the move. If we are going to win, We are going to win as a team."

McDonald said he has had scoring chances in his first three games with the Leafs but found himself "shooting right at the goaltenders."

"Finally when you score a winning goal like that, it adds a lot of confidence. Last year I scored 20 goals in a bunch of goals and I expected to score here. I knew that I'd score if I kept on working."

McDonald had to share scoring the spotlight with goalie Ed Johnston who stopped 27 of Montreal's 30 shots.

"I felt good in there when we were having some trouble," Johnston noted coach Kelly. "I thought he really played well in the second period."

In Atlanta, Leon Rochefort and Curt Bennett beat Boston goalie Gilles Gilbert at 6:39 and 7:47 respectively in the first period sending the Flames to their first win over the Bruins.

Rochefort added another goal in the second period and Chuck Arnason, acquired from the Oakland organization last spring, scored the game winning goal at 12:52 of the final period.

In New York, Rod Gilbert benched for disciplinary reasons Sunday, scored his 371st NHL goal to move within one of the club record held by Andy Bathgate.

"You've got to play the game to score," Gilbert said after the game, an obvious reference to the benching for being late for a team meeting.

"I love my work. I love what I do and I don't like to miss games for any reason. There are no bad feelings now."

The North Stars got off to a good start in their game at Bloomington, Minn., with the Penguins. Bill Goldsworthy scored 30 seconds after the opening whistle but it was all downhill for Minnesota after that as they dropped their third game of the season. The North Stars, third in the NHL West last year, are eighth this season with one point in four games.

Goalie Tony Esposito recorded his second shutout in four games and Cliff Koroll and Dennis Hull scored twice as the Hawks defeated Vancouver. Ex-Canuck Dale Tallon got the first Chicago goal at 19:11 of the opening period.

Rick MacLeish scored a goal and added two assists to lead the Flyers to their fourth straight win. Joey Johnston scored for the Golden Seals in the second period, only the third goal against the Flyers this season.

League action resumes tonight with Minnesota visiting Detroit Red Wings, who are winless in four starts, while Buffalo Sabres play host to Los Angeles Kings.

2 SENT TO MINORS

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Goalie Ron Markew and centre Brian Marchinko of New York Islanders were sent to Fort Worth Wings of the Central Hockey League Wednesday. The National Hockey League club said Marchinko, a regular for the Islanders, was on loan to the Texas team for the balance of the season, subject to immediate recall.

A Boost for Jets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

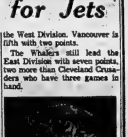
Bobby Hull finally knows what it feels like to win at Boston Garden, at least as a player-coach with Winnipeg Jets of the World Hockey Association.

"This game gives us a big boost," said Hull who picked up assist Wednesday night as the Jets defeated New England Whalers 3-1.

The Jets, who scored three unanswered goals in the third period, had lost six in a row on Boston ice—three league games and three in the playoffs last year.

In the other WHA game, Houston Aeros got two goals each from Mark Howe and Paul Hughes—his fifth and sixth—to whip Vancouver Blazers 7-2. The contest was played before 12,186 fans in Vancouver.

"We weren't really pointing for this game," Hull said. "But we had lost two on the road and knew we had to win this one to have any kind of a record starting out the season."



The Whalers took a 1-0 lead in the first period when Tommy Williams intercepted a pass and scored just 22 seconds after the opening faceoff.

However, Danny Johnson tied the score on a two-on-one break at 16:10 of the third period. Chris Bordeleau added another Winnipeg goal less than two minutes later and Norm Beaudin got the insurance marker into an empty net after the Whalers pulled goalie Al Smith.

It was the first defeat at home for the Whalers in their last 15 games, including competition last year.

The win lifted the Jets into a second-place tie with the Aeros and Edmonton Oilers, all with four points, and one behind Minnesota Fighting Saints in the West Division. Vancouver is fifth with two points.

The Whalers still lead the East Division with seven points, two more than Cleveland Crusaders who have three games in hand.

BOBBY HULL

In Vancouver, the Aeros led 4-0 after the first period and 6-0 at the end of the second.

Rookie goaltender Ron Grahame, 23, who played at Denver University last year, faced only 27 shots and gave up two goals to Danny Lawson, the WHA goal-scoring leader last season.

Mark Howe, 18, part of the father-sons combination which includes father Gordie, 45, and Marty, 19, also assisted on Gord Labossiere's goal in the first period. Gordie was also in on the play which gave the Aeros their 4-0 lead.

Knudson to Defend His Kaiser Open Title

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — George Knudson of Toronto opens defence of his Kaiser International open golf title today with high hopes for a career first, unusual health and a new diet.

The 72-hole test, offering $150,000 in total money with $30,000 to the winner, begins on two courses at the Silverado Country Club with the 36-year-old Winnipeg native seeking his eighth U.S. tour title.

"I've never successfully defended a title," Knudson said. "But I'm definitely affected by my surroundings.

"Certain golf courses, like Silverado, relax me. The good feeling I have about Silverado and the Kaiser should be to my benefit.

"I'll definitely be up. I'm ready to go. I know in my own mind how well I played here last year. That makes it easier to get the adrenalin flowing."

Knudson, a regular on the U.S. tour since 1961, had his best season last year—ninth more than $74,000 in prize money.

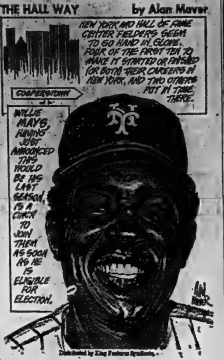
This season, however, he's been bothered by a variety of injuries and ailments. He's won only $25,894 and ranks 87th on the money list.

Chronic back trouble hampered him most of the season. He finally got that solved and had his season-high finish—fourth in the Greater Milwaukee Open. The next week he broke a bone in his right foot.

"My game is beginning to come around for the first time since I injured my foot," he said. "I'm hoping for my best week in some time. I played in Japan last week, and was pretty well pleased with the way I played."

And about the back and the diet?

"I've had no trouble with my back since I stopped eating meat block in May. No meat at all. I'm eating a lot of fish and Italian food, but no meat. And I've had no trouble with my back."



GEORGE KNUDSON

With most of the glamor names missing, Knudson was among a large group of likely contenders in a wide-open field.

The top six money-winners this year—Jack Nicklaus, Australian Bruce Crampton, Tom Weiskopf, Lee Trevino, Billy Casper and Lanny Wadkins—along with Arnold Palmer and South African Gary Player are skipping this event for one reason or another.

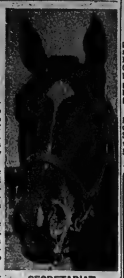
2 Greats Bow Out This Month

NEW YORK (AP) — Secretariat and Riva Ridge, who brought fame and fortune to Meadow Stable, will bow out of racing on the same weekend, Oct. 27-28, according to plans announced Wednesday by trainer Lucien Laurin.

Secretariat, the first Triple Crown winner in 25 years, will make his farewell at the Canadian International Championships at Woodbine race track in Toronto on Oct. 28.

Riva Ridge, who won the Kentucky Derby and Belmont Stakes in 1972, will bow out a day earlier, at the $100,000-added Jockey Club Gold Cup here at Aqueduct.

Secretariat will face a 1¼-mile test over grass and will be competing against three-year-olds and up.



If nine horses start, it will be worth $141,300, making it the richest race in Canada surpassing this year's Queen's Plate.

Coincidentally, Man O'War, considered the greatest horse of all time, finished up his career in Canada in a match race at Kenilworth Park in Windsor, Ont., in 1920, beating Sir Barton by seven lengths.

Secretariat, syndicated for $6.08 million, will be running in the native land of both Laurin, of Montreal, and his regular jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B. Two members of his syndicate, Jean Louis Levesque of Montreal and Taylor, also are Canadians.

Resignation

VANCOUVER (CP) — Tom Scallen resigned Wednesday as president of Northwest Sports Enterprises, owners of Vancouver Canucks in the National Hockey League.

Scallen, found guilty by the British Columbia Supreme Court in April of issuing a false prospectus and theft of $3 million, tendered his resignation to Oscar Dundell, Northwest Sports secretary.

Scallen was sentenced to four years in prison but is free on $50,000 bail while he appeals his conviction on the grounds that Mr. Justice Harry McKay of the B.C. Supreme Court erred in a lengthy address to the jury.

Coley Hall, Canuck's director, said Scallen was forced to resign under a new clause in the charter of Northwest Sports.

Cranmer Files Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Football Association that Cranmer is a free player. Dave Cranmer has filed agent in the CFL, and as he suit against British Columbia Lions and Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League for "conspiring" to prevent him from carrying out his profession as a professional football player."

The writ was filed in the Supreme Court of Ontario Thursday by Cranmer's lawyer, John Sopkina, a defensive halfback with Toronto Argonauts in 1965-67.

The writ also asks for a declaration that the Lions and Gaudaur conspired to induce Cranmer to breach a contract with the Lions by refusing to report to training camp.

The Ticats traded Cranmer to British Columbia for Canadian defensive back Dave Ridley. A dispute about moving expenses and salary led to the Lions placing him on the club's suspended list after their seventh game.

CFL bylaws provide that any player named on a club's reserve—including the injured reserve—and suspended list—as of Oct. 15 are not eligible to play for another CFL team for the balance of the 1972 season.

Home Sweet Home

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Chatham, playing in their home rink for the first time this season, defeated Michigan 8-1 in a Southern Ontario Junior Hockey League game Wednesday before 300 fans. It was the only scheduled game.

Steve Loman scored the lone Michigan marker.

Chatham had been unable to play on its home ice until now this season due to problems with the rink's floor.

China Visit Over

HONG KONG (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau flew out of China Wednesday, ending a seven-day visit which, he hopes, will usher in a new era of Canadian-Chinese relations.

The full effect of this first visit to China by a Canadian prime minister will take years to assess, but there is little doubt the leaders of both countries developed a far closer personal relationship as a result of the trip.

Trudeau comes home with a new bilateral trade agreement—similar to those signed with dozens of other countries—and verbal agreements to exchange delegations from a wide variety of fields. And in 11 hours of official talks with Premier Chou En-lai, along with even more time in an informal basis, the prime minister says he has established a more closer relationship and understanding than existed before.

He is not likely to forget being virtually engulfed in a sea of smiling faces as he moved through the jammed streets of China, particularly in the southern areas of Loyang, Cheng Chou and Kweilin where most of the populations had never before seen a foreign prime minister. Regardless of whether the crowds were organized for the occasion, their exuberance and personal excitement were impressive.

Officials accompanying Trudeau—there were more than 20—were delighted with the outcome. The agreement, providing "most-favored-nation" tariff treatment to goods exchanged between the two countries, doesn't automatically mean a boost in trade. But it may encourage an increase.

Trudeau said that when China imports industrial plants, it will "consider Canada as a source of supply" and when it decides to buy a complete synthetic rubber producing plant, "they would consider Canada first."

Trade between the two countries last year totalled $307 million, with Canadian exports to China accounting for $259 million. Wheat is, by far, Canada's greatest export. On this trip Trudeau discussed the possibility of expanding shipments in the areas of aluminum, woodpulp, potash, sulphur and nickel.

Highlight of Trip

Canada's Prime Minister Pierre E. Trudeau shakes hands with Mao Tse-tung, Communist party chief of the People's Republic of China, as the two met Saturday at Chungpahai Trudeau was on an official visit to China. (AP

Friend Sent to Zambia

OTTAWA (CP) — The man sent to Zambia to convey the deep concern over the shooting of two Canadian girls in May in was a close acquaintance of Zambian President Kenneth Kaunda, it was revealed officially Wednesday.

He was identified as Dr. William G. Phillips of Windsor, Ont., in a written reply tabled in the Commons by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp. Dr. Phillips was a former economic adviser to Kaunda under an agreement with the Canadian International Development Agency.

He was in Canada when news of the girls' deaths made headlines here.

Marian Drither and Christine Sinclair, two 19-year-old Ontario girls, were shot and killed while visiting the gorge of the Zambezi River.

CBC Reporters May Strike

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the Canadian Wire Service Guild said today 250 reporters and editors in CBC newsrooms across Canada voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to go on strike to back wage demands.

At a meeting last week with federal mediator R. G. Geddes, the union's bargaining committee agreed to accept the mediator's judgment. Mr. Basyovannisy said, but the CBC turned down the wage provisions of the proposed settlement.

P. A. Regehbof, CBC industrial relations officer, said the corporation is willing to continue meeting, but the mediator's report is unacceptable because it suggests wage increases of 18 per cent by 1975.

The CBC's final offer was a 6¼-per-cent increase in the first year of a two-year contract and 6¼-per-cent in the second year.

Tank Battles Rage at Suez

From AP-REUTER

Israel reported new tank battles on both sides of the Suez canal today and said its forces in the central sector of the Syrian front repulsed a combined attack by Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian infantry and tanks.

A communique said the Israeli forces on the Syrian front inflicted losses on the attackers but gave no details. There was no announcement from Damascus.

On the Suez canal front, the Israeli command said its forces continued their attack on the Egyptians in the Sinai Desert and around the bridgehead which Israel announced Thursday it had established on the west bank of the canal.

"In a series of battles being waged since this morning, dozens of enemy tanks, missile batteries and infantry deployments have been destroyed," the communique said.

"A group of foreign correspondents are visiting the Sinai battlefront today to prove that the Israeli claims are false," he said.

But the Egyptian command has issued no communique since Thursday afternoon.

On the diplomatic front, the authoritative Cairo newspaper Al Ahram reported that Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin had held five long meetings with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo in the last three days. The report gave no indication of what they said to each other, but it said Kosygin made two telephone calls to Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev during the stay.

Whether Kosygin was able to convince the Egyptian leader to stop fighting and start talking was so far unknown.

Sadat set his conditions to end the war in a public declaration last Tuesday.

He offered a ceasefire if Israel withdraws from the occupied Arab lands under international supervision and said Egypt would attend an international peace conference — presumably also attended by Israel — to consider a general peaceful settlement between the Arabs and Israelis.

Egypt's leading political commentator, Mohammed Heykal, warned in an article today against a ceasefire with Israel.

He said in his authoritative newspaper Al Ahram: "If fighting is stopped in the middle of the road, Israel will grasp the first opportunity after that to start a new war."

Israel reported that its forces in Sinai have broken through the Egyptian forces that crossed the Suez canal at the start of the war and opened a bridgehead on the west bank north of the Great Bitter Lake four days ago.

WARREN ALLMAND

Beef Up Pens

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is beefing up security arrangements in all maximum- and medium-security penitentiaries, Solicitor-General Warren Allmand announced Thursday.

The measures include the hiring of 200 additional correctional officers for prisoner security, he said in a prepared statement.

The measures come as the penitentiary service is experiencing a troubled year, largely because of a big increase in prison population.

During the year there have been reports of disturbances, particularly in maximum-security prisons. Last spring there was a riot at Kingston which embarrassed the service.

Mr. Allmand said a new position of deputy commissioner of penitentiaries will be created to deal specifically with security.

The new deputy commissioner will supervise and co-ordinate all aspects of security including increased perimeter security. He will be responsible for building design and preventative measures against disturbances and escapes.

The statement announced these specific measures:

—New towers in all medium-security prisons and at maximum-security institutions that do not have them already.

—Towers, to be manned 8 a.m. to midnight.

—Where not already provided, medium-security institutions will have second fences. Both fences will be lapped with barbed wire.

—The additional men will relieve basic staff as a insurrection- and living unit officers who have been providing additional security.

—Sixty-two relief positions will be added to permit replacement of staff involved in advance training.

There was no indication in the statement when the additional men will be hired, trained and ready for duty.

Oil Threat Issued

BEIRUT (AP) — Saudi Arabia says it is cutting-its oil production 10 per cent during October and November and may stop all shipments of Saudi oil to the United States unless the U.S. government stops shipping arms to Israel. . .

In a move likely to encourage more Arab countries to use oil as a foreign-policy weapon, the Middle East's largest oil producer said it will cut another five per cent of its production each month beginning November.

Earlier Thursday, Abu Dhabi, leader of the United Arab Emirates, announced it was cutting off all oil deliveries to the United States.

Saudi Arabia is third among U.S. foreign oil suppliers, trailing Canada and Venezuela. But the 18.76 million barrels of Saudi oil the United States now imports each month, and the 2.1 million barrels it gets from the United Arab Emirates, is only about five per cent of the nearly 400 million barrels of crude oil the United States currently processes each month.

Death Bill Unchanged

OTTAWA (CP) — Opponents of the death penalty won a major victory in the House of Commons Thursday night, defeating two attempts to toughen the government's proposed five-year renewal of the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

Replacing a similar ban that expired last December, the legislation would only third reading approval to complete its stormy journey through the House before going to the Senate for final approval and routine royal assent.

The margin of defeat surprised almost everyone including Solicitor-General Warren Allmand who expected a close vote in both cases.

MPs threw out by 113 to 78 an amendment by Albanie Morin (L—Louis Hebert) that would have extended the death penalty to murderers of rape and kidnap victims.

Minutes later, they rejected by 114 to 75 a proposal by Allan Lawrence (PC — Northumberland-Durham) to apply the death penalty in the cases of second-time murderers and killings associated with air piracy.

Mr. Allmand, long an abolitionist, emerged elated from the Commons, but told reporters the third-reading vote could be close.

Defeat at third reading would mean a return to 1961 Criminal Code amendments calling for the death penalty in all cases of premeditated murder.

CMHC Plans Land Banks

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. (CMHC) said Thursday the federal government intends to buy large tracts of land to put speculators out of business.

William Teron said the government plans to enter the field in a massive way until land costs are effectively stabilized.

Mr. Teron said 20,000 acres will have to be acquired around 19 major metropolitan areas within 15 years.

Breadwinners Mostly Work

THUNDER BAY (CP) — In the area that counts most, family-type income, Canada has full employment, says Manpower Minister Robert Andras.

For example, of 421,000 persons out of work last month only 2½ per cent of men over age 24, the group that includes the vast majority of family bread winners, were unemployed.

"This is generally regarded by economists as statistical evidence of full employment and suggests a tight labor market, or actual manpower shortages in some areas or occupations."

Emergency Oil Plan Disclosed

OTTAWA (CP) — No one knows if Canada will be caught in the Middle East oil squeeze but the government has contingency plans ready in case it happens, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

He made the disclosure in the Commons but gave few details, except to say that essential services such as thermal power plants will be favored over non-essential users if rationing becomes necessary.

Arab producers announced this week they will reduce crude oil supplies to nations considered friends of Israel or enemies of Arab nations.

It is unclear if Canada will be placed in either category by the oil-producing nations involved, Mr. Macdonald said. Government officials say they see no reason why Canada should be considered in one category or the other.

Consumers east of the Ottawa Valley rely solely on imported oil. They would have enough crude for about 45 days and enough heating oil for 100 days if supplies were shut off completely, he estimated.

About 25 per cent of all imported oil comes from the Middle East.

In the event of a serious supply interruption, Mr. Macdonald said there is no way crude from Alberta could be diverted to supply any more than a small part of needs east of the Ottawa Valley line.

This would require transportation system of rail tankers and trucks too vast to set up. It also would be difficult to break supply commitments to U.S. customers dependent on Canadian oil.

Hooker Loses Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — Xaviera Hollander, author of the book, The Happy Hooker, has lost her appeal against an immigration deportation order. Miss Hollander, 30-year-old author of the book detailing her life as a New York brothel keeper, had been ordered deported from Canada shortly after her arrival here last February. She announced that she will appeal Wednesday's decision to the Federal Court of Canada.

Convict Shot to Death

MALDEN CENTRE, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police continued scouring the countryside today near this village 10 miles south of Windsor for clues to the slaying of a prisoner who escaped from Collins Bay penitentiary Saturday.

The bullet-riddled body of Victor Joseph Martin, 41, one of four convicts who broke out of the Kingston-area penitentiary, was found Wednesday on the bank of a creek.

A provincial police spokesman, Insp. W. A. Smith, said Martin had been shot several times. Time of death is still unknown.

Martin, recently of the Tilbury, Ont., area but originally from Windsor, was serving five years and three months for discharging a firearm with intent to wound, parole forfeiture and attempted breaking, entering and theft.

He escaped Saturday with three other prisoners who cut their way into a large duct leading under the wall of the minimum-security institution and into a boiler room outside. Twelve hours later they overpowered two workers, stole keys to a car, credit-cards and about $5, and made their getaway.

Police said they are believed armed with knives and are considered dangerous.

Pooh-poohs Moira Pollution

TORONTO (CP) — Environment Minister James Auld told the legislative today that there was no evidence to show that arsenic concentrations in the drinking water of Hastings County had reached or exceeded the danger level.

"Arsenic con.amination in the Moira River basin has been a recognized fact since the early 1900s," said the minister.

He explained that arsenic compounds from a Deloro smelting company—about 30 miles upstream from Belleville—have been finding their way into the ground water table.

The minister said that Belleville General Hospital reported that there were 21 cases of stomach cancer treated in the three-year period ending in 1972. The figures for nearby Trenton indicate three cases a year.

"Combining these figures gives us an incidence of 8.3 cases per 100,000 population in the county. The provincial average is 8.8 cases per 100,000."

Beirut Raid Frees Hostages

BEIRUT (CP-AP) — Lebanese police and army commandos broke into the besieged Bank of American building today, killed at least two Arab guerrillas and rescued 34 hostages held for a $30-million ransom. A Winnipeg native was killed by the gunmen.

Police earlier had said there were 36 hostages in the building, but revised this figure to 35 after storming the bank. Thirty-two were Lebanese bank employees, two Japanese businessmen and the Winnipeg native, John Crawford Maxwell, 52.

He worked in Beirut for the Douglas Aircraft Corp. of Long Beach, Calif. A Douglas spokesman said Maxwell was originally from Winnipeg but was an American citizen.

Five gunmen had seized the bank building and the hostages Thursday morning. One was wounded critically and the other surrendered, Interior Minister Bahij Takieddin announced. The fifth guerrilla was wounded and captured Thursday afternoon.

The freed hostages, some of them wounded and spattered with blood, were led out of the bank building through a cordon of policemen and troops to ambulances that whisked them to a hospital.

Grist Mill Goes to Bulk

Thrasher Feeds, 338 Coleman Street, Belleville has moved with the times and in a business expansion program has installed new facilities to meet requirements for the growing bulk feed market.

"A lot of farmers are going to bulk feeding, said Harold Thrasher, owner of the mill on the Coleman Street milling firm, as he gave reasons for the expansion.

Bulk feeding of cattle is said other farm products is an efficiency move to save labor and costs. It means that milled feeds or mash are received and fed in bulk rather than handling them in bag lots.

Included in the bulk handling operation is a bucket elevator to hoist grain to the silos and a 12-ton capacity bulk truck to make pickup or deliveries. The truck is fitted with an auger-blower auger-blower to load and unload grain at the farm.

From the bulk truck the grain goes through a hammer mill for grinding, then is mixed with any required additives and elevated to the silos from where it is gravity fed back into the delivery vehicle.

If farmers bring their own bulk grain for grinding, the grists are kept separate, the same as in bag lots.

Trenton Water Study

PUC to Double Output

TRENTON — The Public Utilities Commission here Thursday moved to have a $4,500 filter plant study completed which could double the plant's water output and enhance the taste.

Gore and Storrie, Toronto consulting firm was one of three companies to bid for the study. Cost of the project itself is forecast between $40,000 and $50,000.

The $4,500 for the study — and a "no-cost-spending" clause — was approved for inclusion in the contract. PUC manager Doug Manley recommended that the commission approved would be necessary before the budget could be enlarged.

The planned work will include larger pumping facilities and changing the type of filters used in the operation.

Long delivery times for pumping equipment was a concern of the commission who unanimously supported getting the work done as quickly as possible.

In the event pumping equipment can't be delivered in time, the commission said other work should be completed as quickly as possible. Auxiliary pumping equipment already on site could help in the period of peak demand.

The PUC will be in immediate contact with the consultants in order to get work started as soon as possible. Completion date for the project is in 1975. Costs will be debentured.

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General John Yaremko announced Thursday the first increase in 12 years in coroners' fees.

Mr. Yaremko told the Ontario legislature the increases will be granted in two phases—the first at the beginning of next month, and the second on April 1, 1974.

Next month, the fee for investigations will rise to $77.50 from $25. The same increase apply for conducting inquests. A coroner's car mileage rate will also double, to 30 cents a mile from 15.

For presiding at the scene for the transfer of a corpse, the rate goes to $25 from $15. When more than one body must be transferred, the coroner will receive $10 for each additional body. He does not receive a fee for this service now.

Safety Stressed

PICTON — Safety off the job was the topic of guest speakers attending a meeting of the Prince Edward-Hastings section of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association here this week.

James Ives, Ministry of Natural Resources, Napanee, discussed safety in hunting and ice-fishing, noting the success of the province's Hunting Safety Program.

He remarked that, despite an increase in hunters, there were seven fewer hunting fatalities in 1968 than in 1962.

Constable Brian Turner, safety and information officer for the Belleville detachment, Ontario Provincial Police, discussed winter driving safety and snowmobile safety.

He advised snowmobilers to know the limitations of their machines and to be aware of local snowmobile bylaws.

The IAPA dinner meeting was held at the Picton Golf and Country Club.

'Crosscheck' Ends at CFB

TRENTON — Two Royal Air Force Hercules aircraft, returned for home in Britain this morning following a week of intensive operations with Canadian counterparts at CFB Trenton.

The joint exercises — Operation Crosscheck — included navigational exercises in Canada's north and Oasis Caper, the airborne deployment of Canadian troops in the southern California desert.

Thursday afternoon the final operation took place. Exercise Eagle Eye was the precision flying and bundy dropping portion of the week with Canadians competing against the British.

Aircraft had to drop bundles to an arranged time, shooting for the centre of the marker. Flying at 150 miles an hour, most scored only seconds early or late, missing the largest by a few feet.

The operation is performed each six months, rotating between Canada and Britain.

Teachers Quit Threat In Northumberland

COBOURG — Secondary school teachers in Northumberland-Durham County will tender resignations Nov. 20 unless school authorities reduce the size of classes.

Nearly 430 teachers are involved in the issue. They will also boycott all extra school activities starting Monday.

Most county schools now have classes ranging between 30 in technical shops and 35-40 in academic classes.

Last week the school board offered to reduce registrations to 28 for normal classes and 24 in the shops. The offer was rejected by teachers as they said the proposal contained a clause that stated if the offer was accepted, future class sizes could not longer be negotiated or arbitrated.

Coroners Will Get Increase

TORONTO (CP) — Solicitor-General John Yaremko announced Thursday the first increase in 12 years in coroners' fees.

Mr. Yaremko told the Ontario legislature the increases will be granted in two phases—the first at the beginning of next month, and the second on April 1, 1974.

Next month, the fee for investigations will rise to $77.50 from $25. The same increase apply for conducting inquests. A coroner's car mileage rate will also double, to 30 cents a mile from 15.

For presiding at the scene for the transfer of a corpse, the rate goes to $25 from $15. When more than one body must be transferred, the coroner will receive $10 for each additional body. He does not receive a fee for this service now.

A coroner will receive a new fee of $15 for the time he spends in excess of a half-hour in supervising the transfer of bodies from a death scene.

Next April 1, the fee for investigations and presiding at inquests will increase to $50.

Schools Dull

School in Canada? Man it's like Dullsville . . .

At least that is the uncomfortable impression gained from the story on the German exchange students here in Belleville.

Not only does it seem to be dull, or in any event lacking in extra-curricular recreational activity, but academically students here are about a year behind their German counterparts.

In languages alone the German teenagers came here with several years of compulsory English behind them, while the City of Belleville was obliged to fork out some $800 for a crash course in German for the local students going to Lahr, the city with which Belleville is twinned.

Again one wonders if students here would not benefit from a more teacher-dominated system, like that not only in Germany but in Britain and, we understand, the Scandinavian countries. For one thing it makes for tighter discipline and swifter academic progress. In other words, who needs student power? With the ball at the feet of both teachers and students there are bound to be foul-ups. If such reasoning is false then how come the Germans are ahead?

Yet, ironically, they say Canadian students are given more homework and there is not the same time for recreation as in Germany. There, with school starting at 7.45 a.m. and ending at noon or 1 p.m., afternoons are free.

As to the German students' observation that at home teachers are more interested in people and what the students are doing—outside school for instance — there may be some truth in this too. We have a teacher friend in Lubeck who often hikes off to Bavaria and the mountains with his students. Against that of course we can point here to recent Mediterranean educational tours involving both students and teachers.

One way or another though there are lessons to be learned from this. When the visitors say of the Canadian students' timetable: "It's so boring," it is time to sit up and take notice.

That Board

Picketers on Parliament Hill are a further sign of public disenchantment with Mrs. Beryl Plumptre and her Food Prices Review Board.

It is not only that Mrs. Plumptre's salary is a whopping $40,000 a year and that board members earn between $150 and $200 a day, but it must be asked if the board is accomplishing anything that could not be done by the existing army of bureaucrats supposedly serving the federal government.

True, there is evidence that meat prices have been declining, but this is probably due as much to public protests, not to say a natural leveling off, as to any action of the Review Board.

Is it not fair to say that the Food Prices Review Board is simply another expensive and unnecessary arm of a Government unable by itself to take corrective steps in situations such as this?

Time of Change

Autumn is reaching its peak and melancholy visitations of rain and forlorn skies are here. Soon the earth's sulkiness will be upon us, then the shivers of winter with renewed visual rickness and, if you are young enough, a measure of excitement and challenge. For increasing numbers it is the time of getting-away-from-it-all. For everyone it is change of one kind or another.

And the best of luck.

By PETER BUCKLEY

WASHINGTON (CP) — When it comes to protecting the life of the president of the United States, Congress seems to have always been to spare no expense.

But when "security" costs included extensive landscaping, fences and window boxes and outdoor lighting, even a backer for the ever-trustworthy and bigger windows for the den—all this for a home that is the president's private property—Congress was bound to get upset.

Both Democrats and Republicans are calling now for a new look at the question of unlimited spending of public money for the private homes of American presidents, or at least for more controls on such spending.

A House subcommittee has been holding public hearings into the use of public money for President Nixon's personal estates in San Clemente, Calif., and Key Biscayne, Fla., and at the same time they might have attracted considerable attention.

But at a time when the vice-president has just resigned under a cloud and the administration's ethical standards have been under attack for months, the subcommittee hearings have created little stir.

Testimony heard by the committee disclosed the federal government has been billed for $10.3 million to improve, maintain and operate Nixon's private homes and their surroundings in his seven years as president.

The figure does not include costs for the two Secret Service-owned residences at the president's disposition, the White House and the retreat at Camp David, Md. Operating costs for Camp David are reported to have quadrupled since Nixon took office, rising to an estimated $640,900 this year from 167,000 in 1968.

Jack Brooks, a Texas Democrat whose subcommittee has been looking into the expenditures, says the hearings have raised "serious questions of propriety" He wants changes made in the way such spending is handled.

At present, the Secret Service and the General Services Administration (GSA) are charged by law with protecting the president. The Secret Service generally decides what needs to be done and GSA pays contractors.

In the case of San Clemente, however, the subcommittee has learned that the president's personal lawyer and personal architect, Herbert Kalmbach and Hal Lynch, had ordered changes and additions then send the bills to the government.

When a senior GSA official insisted that the changes made for security at San Clemente and Key Biscayne had actually detracted from the value of the estates, Representative Brooks reported:

"Any time you want to decorate our property with all that money, you just come on down to Texas and do it."

Most presidents have kept and used private homes after they moved into the White House, Truman had the family home in Independence, Mo., Eisenhower the farm at Gettysburg, Pa., Kennedy the compound at Hyannisport, Mass., and Johnson the ranch in Texas.

All of these homes required extensive installations to protect the president, house his staff and maintain his communications.

But none apparently cost nearly as much in "security" as the Nixon homes. Nor did any of the earlier presidents match Nixon's penchant for travelling with retinue from one residence to another, in itself a costly procedure. During one 11-day period this summer, he moved 10 times.

Brooks is especially incensed by such extravagance. He says, Nixon "doesn't think we have enough money to help the poor, to help the elderly, to help housing programs, school milk programs for the children and other programs for the poor."

As the incidents surrounding the Watergate political espionage scandal are unpacked to bring return to simpler spending habits, so the disclosures about expenditures on the Nixon estates are likely to be followed by cuts on the taxpayer's responsibility for a presidential lifestyle.

"We need tighter procedures," says Representative Bob Bauman, Maryland Republican who participated in the subcommittee hearings.

"We also need to examine the question of how many private residences of the president the government should support."

Too Many Radio Commercials for Listener

A few words of constructive criticism can be helpful and as the saying goes, one is never too old to learn.

If CJBQ would start the newscast in time (as other stations do) instead of squeezing in more and more commercials in haphazard, things would look up and make everyone happy.

A further improvement would be if CJBQ put more news of international importance, we want to know what goes on in the world.

What we can do without is the kind of "news" we heard on the 7.30 p.m. local.

Those spicy little "pornos" travel fast around the world and when picked up in a two-second some excited broadcaster becomes a lecherous monster while choking with laughter.

Seven Per Cent Annual Increase for Defence

By STEPHEN SCOTT

OTTAWA (CP) — After living for years with tightened belts, some controversy and last-minute perfect morale, the armed forces appear to be entering a period of tranquility and relative prosperity.

This appears to be the outlook after Defence Minister James Richardson announced last week that the department budget will grow by seven per cent a year for the next five years.

The announcement follows recommendations from military chiefs on ways to bring the forces up to the standard they want.

The announcement actually puts an annual freeze on military spending, and although it is difficult to tell the effects of future inflation, senior forces personnel appear happy with the formula Mr. Richardson pushed through cabinet with some difficulty.

Mr. Richardson told a news conference last week that the cabinet tried to reduce the seven-per-cent annual increase that will take the defence budget up to about $3 billion a year in five years.

Armed forces officials, including Gen. A.z. Dextraze, chief of defence staff, now will be able to plan ahead for new equipment after almost five years of belt-tightening budgets. Gen. Dextraze, in an interview Monday, acknowledged that the morale of the 80,000-member force was affected during the austerity years.

Mr. Richardson emphasized during his announcement that the armed forces are entering a new era because of the new spending formula.

The new era includes such elementary things as making sure that the forces never lack ammunition stocks run down because of budget pinching.

The freeze also resulted in the forces running on rolling stock, such as trucks and jeeps, that should have "been retired years before.

Facilities at various bases and schools were run down or inadequate.

Privately, members of the forces said they were embarrassed when on exercises with allied services.

But, while Mr. Richardson may see a new era for the forces, George Ness, Conservative defence critic, says inflation will wipe out the increase and because of the additions imposing a spending restriction that is worse than a freeze.

Mr. Richardson has said he cannot be sure of the effect of future inflation, but that seven per cent compounded each year should be enough for the forces to cope with it.

Forces officials themselves express no serious concern over future inflation, saying they have taken account when considered how much a year they wanted.

Staggered Hours Concept Is Gaining Acceptance

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Many of you who are employed may find that in the not too distant future that you will have the choice of working staggered hours.

That is you may be able to opt to start work at various times say between 7.30 and 9.30 in the morning, and to quit at four, five or six o'clock.

As you may have read, Premier Davis has announced that government employees at the main parliament buildings, the 11,500 of them, are to go on the staggered hour system.

In putting this in motion it seems that the government not only has in mind giving a lead but that it may also—put on some pressure to see the system generally adopted.

The premier has already announced he will preside at a conference in the Toronto area to discuss the system.

This will result in Toronto employers seriously considering adopting the system if, once started here, it would soon move out into the province.

The point, of course, is to ease the demand on public transportation facilities, including highways and roads.

That's a facility we have to be built to handle peak load capacity.

If starting and finishing times can be spread over a period of hours this reduces the peak.

And less expensive public facilities can handle the demand with savings in capital costs, and wear and tear. Transit systems are concerned in operating costs also.

It is not clear whether employers and employees will go for it.

Insofar as employees are concerned, government employees, it seems, apparently favor it. They were consulted through their association and a survey.

The action here is not without its political implications.

The government is obviously touting on transportation as one of his big spending areas of public when he faces it in the next election.

In his speech he could tell them what he did "just last Friday."

Which is not to say that the approach is not good or that the premier doesn't sincerely believe in this transportation program. He does.

Ralph Stewart Chronicling Taxpayer Ripoffs in Book

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Little more than a year ago, Ralph Stewart, Liberal MP for the Timiskaming riding of Cochrane, declared:

"I think the government may be in for a surprise in the election, especially if there is danger — because people, the ordinary working taxpayer, the voter, the man down the street, have been getting pretty upset."

Most of the problem, he went on, was "the very philosophy of this government in not only subscribing to the crazy proposition that 'everybody is free to do his own thing,' but saying for its doing with tax funds, no matter how nutty or even perilous it may be."

The government was surprised by the election is being cut back from a comfortable majority that seems to be a certain 100 minority.

So how should next time around, whenever the election comes, possibly this Winter, certainly not later than Spring.

Nothing has changed, says Ralph Stewart.

"Driven by tiny minorities, the government still buys the 'anything goes time' and reserves the helpless taxpayer to pay for it," declares the Liberal MP who is chairman of the Commons Committee on Broadcasting and the Arts.

He has been putting it down in his still unfinished book he is writing "Stories of the Tax Rip-off" or, alternatively, "Ripped Off."

In it he is indicted the CBC, the Canada Council, the Secretary of State Department, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, National Health and Welfare, Public Works among other government agencies.

The CBC he quotes Prime Minister Trudeau as saying in the Commons about the separatism in the French network may still exist, it is not the problem that what is known as "The New Left" has become in the English network, he says.

National Health and Welfare and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation are condemn for "subsidizing with tax funds radical and revolutionary groups through the so-called "social stimulators," which is another word for "peace kids to do crazy stunts."

Last year he was complaining about the Canada Council funding Communists.

Now it is Canada Council executive coming before his Commons Committee on Broadcasting and the Arts, and testifying that it did not worry about who got its grants.

"The official told us," related Ralph Stewart, "that as far as the Canada Council and the Royal Standard, is flown only when the sovereign or personally represents it England, who was also king of the Immigrant Spots, never flew the Union Jack or the flag on the stamp should have been either the flag of Scotland or Andrew's banner or the original version of the Union Jack. But it's too late to make changes now.

It is also too late to do anything about the seven million stamps UN is stuck with. They were intended to honor Namibia (South West Africa) but the south African bloc at UN objects that the stamps of SWA on the stamp is white and insists that it should be black, as is most of the population. Are Namibia stamps red and China's yellow?

Stamp Error

Brantford Expositor.

One would think there is a limit to error on a postage stamp. But one eagle-eyed experts have pointed out a blooper on the recent B-cent commemorative stamp honoring of Scottish settlers, Pictou, N.S." This depicts the immigrants waking ashore while their ship lies in the bay.

This flag, one expert hastily explains, is the insignia of the Royal Standard, is flown only when the sovereign or personally represents it England, who was also king of the Immigrant Spots, never flew the Union Jack or the flag on the stamp should have been either the flag of Scotland or Andrew's banner or the original version of the Union Jack. But it's too late to make changes now.

Legislature Business

Property Tax Reforms Delayed 2 More Years

TORONTO (CP) — A volatile real-estate market has forced the Ontario government to delay its target date for property tax reforms by two years, Revenue Minister Allan Grossman told the legislature Thursday.

Mr. Grossman said the government had hoped to be ready to present municipalities with revised property assessments in the fall of 1974 that would take effect in tax rolls for the 1975 taxation year.

But the assessments won't be ready until 1976 for use in the 1977 taxation year, he said.

The reassessment program, taken over by the province from the municipalities last January, was aimed at eliminating discrepancies in taxes paid in different municipalities.

The task now has been completed, reassessing all properties at market value-the amount a property would bring on the open market by a willing seller to a willing buyer.

Mr. Grossman said the hope of achieving accurate market value assessments has been disrupted "by rapid price changes during the past year."

As a result, the assessment work already done by a team of 1,700 professionals is outdated "in realistic relationship to current values."

However, his ministry has agreed to provide market-value assessment rolls for Grey County and the Muskoka resort district by March, 1974, where he said local tax inequities make a two-year delay unworkable.

All other municipalities will receive more accurate information in 1974 rolls that will help them in tax-billing procedures, although property values will be out of line until the whole program is completed.

Mr. Grossman said the delay was necessary because the property tax reforms involve nearly $2 billion annually in property taxes, and $2.4 billion in provincial funds to local governments.

"In any case," he cannot improve the implications of dramatic changes in real-estate markets ins because we would like to meet deadlines arbitrarily set three years ago."

Free Drugs For Welfare

TORONTO (CP) — Family benefit recipients in Ontario might look forward to free prescription drugs through drug cards and an escalator clause linked to payments, Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services, said Thursday.

He told the legislature's social development committee that the ministry will recommend both measures for introduction in the coming year.

Under the mandatory drug card system, he said, recipients would present a card to a druggist for payment of prescriptions which would in turn be paid by the government.

Compensation Investigated

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario's ministry of community and social services will investigate how many persons are on welfare rolls because of reduced payments under the Workmen's Compensation Board.

Jack Martel (NDP—Sudbury East) told the Legislature's social development committee Thursday that many men are forced to turn to welfare when compensation payments are reduced because they are physically able to handle light work, but no work can be found.

Basford Parries Thrust

OTTAWA (CP) — Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford has parried a combined Conservative and New Democratic Party thrust aimed at setting a low ceiling on house-mortgage interest rates.

He told the Commons finance committee Thursday that there's a step might force up interest rates on other consumer loans and business and student loans.

The minister was being questioned on a proposed bill designed to encourage the flow of mortgage money for home purchasers.

The bill would set up a federal mortgage insurance corporation to buy and sell residential mortgages and make loans to private mortgage lenders for housing mortgages. It would also allow formation of special companies to help individuals and organizations to invest in mortgages.

Ed Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), the party's housing critic, pressed Mr. Basford to explain why the government will not make a decision that housing has a higher priority than other consumer loans and establish an interest-rate limit.

The urban affairs minister said that if financial institutions were told to set aside a certain portion of their funds for mortgages at low interest, they probably would raise rates in other areas.

Sinclair Stevens (PC—Yorkwoman, a lawyer and businessman, suggested the Bank of Canada could free certain reserves deposited by chartered banks for low-interest loans.

He said the chartered banks are required to place large reserves at no interest rate with the Bank of Canada.

Women Worse

TORONTO (CP) — A University of Toronto pharmacology professor said Thursday that women are more likely to suffer liver damage from heavy drinking than men. But Dr. Harold Kalant told international drug experts at a symposium sponsored by the Ontario Addiction Research Foundation and the federal health and welfare department that researchers do not know why this is so.

Mennonites Exempted

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill that would exempt religious objects from participating in the Canada Pension Plan was endorsed unanimously by the Commons health and welfare committee Thursday, and sent back to the Commons for final consideration.

More than 5,000 Older Order and Amish Mennonites in Ontario would qualify, as well as an unknown number of Hutterites.

A delegation from Ontario's Mennonite Central Committee told the Committee its objections were not financial but a "serious matter of conscience." Members of the sect refuse to accept old-age pensions or family allowances because they consider both programs insurance schemes.

McKeough Wants Record Straight

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Darcy McKeough has demanded that Liberal leadership candidate Eddie Sargent either back up charges made recently in Zurich, Ont., or apologize.

The minister rose in the legislature on a matter of privilege Thursday and made reference to published reports of last Friday that quoted Mr. Sargent's charges.

"In the article, the member for Grey-Bruce is reported as saying that I resigned from the cabinet last year to cover up a $1-million land scandal in London, Ont.

"Mr. Speaker, there is no truth in that charge," said McKeough.

Mr. Sargent's statement apparently was made at a Liberal leadership all-candidates meeting.

Mr. McKeough said the statement was both untrue and irresponsible, and said Mr. Sargent should either make the basis for the remarks known or apologize.

Mr. Sargent did not attend the legislature Thursday and Speaker Allan Reuter said the matter should wait until he returns.

Mr. Singer has already threatened to sue Mr. Sargent for separate remarks made at another all-candidates meeting.

The fiery Mr. Sargent is one of six men seeking the leadership of the provincial Liberal party. A leadership convention is scheduled for Toronto next week.

Mr. McKeough said Mr. Sargent's remarks had only baffled him but had upset his family and friends.

"He has a responsibility to bring forward any action of mine which he knows to be harmful to public interest," said the minister.

Mr. McKeough resigned from cabinet last year over a conflict of interest accusation involving a subdivision in his home town of Chatham.

Since then, he has rejoined the cabinet in another portfolio.

Railways Claim Non-ops Want Inflationary Wages

OTTAWA (CP) — Even if the demands of non-operating railway workers are reduced by two-thirds, such an award would be higher than settlements lawyers for the railway companies told federal arbitrator Mr. Justice Emmett Hall.

"The total represents a burden impossible for the companies to bear and it leaves you with no alternative but to reject many of the demands and to cut others down to reasonable, acceptable and manageable levels," Judge Hall was told.

Network Warned By Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Any use of a CTV network tape recording of a New Democratic Party caucus would be in contempt of Parliament, the television network has been warned by Commons Speaker Lucien Lamoureux.

The warning is contained in a letter Thursday from the Speaker to Ralph Hale, a CTV reporter, who placed an electronic bugging device in an NDP caucus room on Parliament Hill Wednesday.

Hale said Thursday one copy of the tape was made—about 30 minutes in total on two reels. Both reels were given to the NDP as ordered by the Commons Wednesday, it said.

The bugging device was monitored during the meeting on a radio receiver in a CTV truck behind the House of Commons.

The hearings into the demands of 150,000 non-ops are expected to end today. Next week Judge Hall will hear the case for 21,000 shopcraft workers.

The non-ops struck the railways in the summer but were ordered back to work by Parliament in a special session in which the workers were awarded an hourly increase of 54 cents. The special legislation also empowered Judge Hall to raise the award if he saw fit.

The non-ops who include clerks, porters and maintenance workers, had hourly wages of $3.54 when their last contract expired Dec. 31.

In final arguments before Judge Hall Wednesday, the union asked for increases totalling more than 30 per cent over the next two years. It asked for 60 cents an hour average in the first year and another 45 cents in the next year.

The union cited the need for cost-of-living increases, a share of national productivity and a catching-up factor for workers in similar jobs in other industries.

Toronto lawyer John Willston, appearing for the companies Thursday, rejected the union argument that railway workers have fallen behind others.

Their earnings have fully kept pace with those of workers in industry generally, earnings that reflect cost of living and productivity," he said.

"I'm not referring under the illusion that if we allow private industry carriers to develop a air - bus service between Montreal and Toronto, Air Canada would stop operating."

The hearings will resume Monday with Mr. Willston continuing his argument. Judge Hall will then hear the case for the railways which is expected to end today.

What A Way To Run A Railroad!

OTTAWA (CP) — Given a chance, private industry easily might succeed in rejuvenating Air Canada and Canadian National Railway service in certain areas, the Commons was told Thursday.

Jack Horner (PC—Crowfoot), speaking during second-reading debate on an annual bill to finance CNR and Air Canada capital spending, criticized the government-mandated transportation services as inefficient and expensive.

The CNR, he said, regularly puts out—without success—a turbo train for another try at a speedy service between Montreal and Toronto.

"The government under the illusion that if we allow private industry carriers to develop a air - bus service between Montreal and Toronto, Air Canada would stop operating."

Years of Service Honored At Dinner

"Yes, I'd live my life over again exactly the same way," says Delia Potter, who's being honored this evening by a dinner marking the 30 years she's been with the Children's Aid Society.

Before her affiliation with the CAS, she was 25 years in the mission field of the Free Methodist Church, working with children at church camps and in the know-city centre she helped found in Philadelphia.

Then in 1943 the illness of her parents caused her to move back to Canada and to buy a house in Stirling where she could care for them.

The big old house was just right for a brood of children too, decided Miss Potter. She called the Belleville CAS and asked if she could care for foster children.

Within no time she'd been sent a family of five, and then three more, and over the next few years she was mother to 23 children.

"It was wonderful," Miss Potter recalls.

In order to keep the home going she often had to go out to work at Sidney and other factories — to pay for extras such as roof repairs. During these periods, her sister Ada McCoy came to be with the children.

In 1950 the CAS brought her an eight-month old baby boy, named Ron, in a blue fur outfit. Although she had three other children at the time, somehow this one remembered.

From the time he could talk Ron would ask her, Mommy, I don't have to leave, do I?" as he saw his foster brothers and sisters eventually move to adopting homes.

"I never got used to seeing any of my children leave," says Miss Potter. "It was always hard to part with them. I used to hope that somehow Ron could stay with me.

Luck was with them. For when Ron was ten, the CAS director said it would be possible, although Miss Potter was single for her to adopt Ron as her own child.

Both she and Ron were happy beyond words, and were on, she remembers, for an enormous steak dinner to celebrate.

"Adopting my son has been the most important point in my life," Miss Potter says.

In 1959, after her parents' deaths, Miss Potter was asked to move to Belleville, to supervise a children's residence. Five years ago, when it passed 65, she managed to stop morning shift, make "breakfast and get everybody up for school," she says. "Then I straighten up, do washing and mending and generally while they're away. But the part of my work there I love the best is spending time with the children." The residence is a temporary home for children between the ages of seven and 16 who need to be removed from their usual surroundings. Sometimes emotionally disturbed, these children come from broken homes or intolerable family situations and require a great deal of love and understanding.

"What children need, more than anything, is to have someone listen and care," says Miss Potter.

"It's so easy to make a child happy," Miss Potter explains. "All it takes is love. A child will absorb all the love you can give."

"But nowaday," Miss Potter says, "children definitely have more problems, and arrive in the care of the CAS in a more disturbed state than they did ten, five or six years ago. Consequently, they are harder to discipline."

Nevertheless, she is enthusiastic about her work.

"I am always busy and never bored," she says, "spending my life with children as I have, I've never had time to be sick, feel sorry for myself, or find a husband.

"But I've kept happy and well — what more could you ask?"

Ann Landers

Travelling Tactics To Turn Off Talkers

Dear Ann Landers: I have a practical suggestion for the young lady who invariably finds herself seated next to a bore on a plane, train or bus. She says she has a "friendly" face and people just start conversations with her. She would love to check out the window, or daydream, or enjoy the pleasure of silence, but somehow she is seated next to these luminaries because some stranger is talking to her and she doesn't know how to turn him off.

A foreign language newspaper will provide her with the perfect escape. She should carry one in her purse at all times and practice saying, "No speak English." I have tried it and it works. The bore almost always moves and is off to find another victim.—Helpful Helga

Dear Helga: That gimmick might work for some, but it is entirely too corny for me. I carried a Spanish magazine on a plane, hoping to bone up for a visit to Puerto Rico. A gentleman spotted it and I was trapped. He talked my ear off — in Spanish, yet—all the way to San Juan!

Dear Ann Landers: Twenty years ago I married an only child. To his credit, he has provided a lovely home for his daughters and me. He doesn't drink or run around. He is decent and faithful. His only vice is that he never has time for us.

Since the beginning of our marriage my husband has involved himself in activities that pleased him—softball, fishing, hunting. He was never included. When the children were small I was blank at home.

I remember the time I pleaded with him, on a hot summer night, to take us for a ride and maybe buy us ice cream cones. He refused. I cried. My mother-in-law was there. She gave me a lecture on how men needed to be free to play ball and sports, with no criticism from their wives. Figure this ago I gave up begging for his time.

Last December my father-in-law died of a heart attack. My husband's tears were the first because her son doesn't have the time for. "Now that I am alone," she whines, "I need his love but he doesn't know if I am dead or alive."

I don't have the heart to remind my mother-in-law of her words of advice when I cried because her son didn't have time for me or his daughters. She raised him to be selfish and now she is reaping the bitter harvest. As for me, the pain is gone. I learned to be independent and the girls don't miss his company one bit.—Last Laugh But Not Least

Dear L.L.: This is no laughing matter, I feel sorry for your mother-in-law but even more sorry for her son. His marriage sounds like an empty shell and I bet his daughters won't give him standing room in a skunk cabin when he wants their company in later years.

Dear Ann Landers: I know you get letters from people that children should be told they are adopted. But my problem is different.

I was an unwed mother at 16. I died a paternity suit against the father. It is on record at City Hall. The rat skipped town and I haven't seen him since.

My daughter was a flower child when I married a wonderful guy. She is eight now and believes me when I tell her real father. Is it necessary that we tell her the truth? Several people in town know the story. What would it do to her if she should learn it elsewhere? Hurry your answer. We are.—Plus And Needles

Dear P and N: Tell the child the truth. It will be far less devastating than if she learns it later from an outsider. Have you written to me three years ago? I would have suggested it.

CAS Worker Delia Potter

Miss Potter, who has been associated with the Children's Aid Society for 30 years, is being honored this evening at a dinner in St. Thomas Parish Hall. Many of the children she cared for during the years will be present to pay their tribute.

Second Glance

By VIVA RICHMOND GRAHAM
A FAMILY AFFAIR IN AUSTRALIA

"Everyone was so friendly we wished we could stay longer. We had invitations to homes that it was impossible to honor with our time schedule."
— Reta Revoy.

On our desk this morning lies a mother's interesting account of a 22,000 mile plane trip to Bundaberg, Queensland, Australia to visit her son and his family, namely: Mr. and Mrs. Don Revoy and their children, Bradley, Janice and Cindy, who are former Bellevillians. The Revoy Construction Limited was at R.R.1, Foxboro.

At Brisbane, "... we were met by Don and he drove us the 300 miles to Bundaberg. (It takes as many letters to spell as it does Boomerang and they both mean the same thing, return). This was so we could see the rest of the country. The beauty and vastness made me feel ... says, in part, his mother, Mrs. Harry (Reta) Revoy, of Havelock, Ontario, who was accompanied by her daughter Helen and son-in-law Ken. Mr. and Mrs. Ken Campbell of Burlington, Ontario.

"What a welcome we received when we arrived at Don's and Donna's home. Their children had a huge welcome Grandma, Aunt Helen and Uncle Ken signs all over the house, and a huge welcome (family) cake and the largest bottle of champagne we have ever seen.

"Bundaberg is about the size of Belleville. It is surrounded by sugar cane fields and is the world centre for the manufacture of sugar cane self-propelled harvesters and exports them to all parts of the world. Since sugar is the main crop, there are also pineapple, avocado growers, a sugar refining, rum distilling, sea food processing, peanuts, cocoa and many other fruit and vegetable processing plants. In fact Bundaberg is the biggest district in Australia for growing and processing beans. 2,500 acres are grown yearly ... a spectacular scene is the burning of the sugar cane, when flames leap up to 40 feet high. This is to destroy the trash that would impede cutting. The flames only last a very few minutes ... when one crop of sugar cane is cut another crop is planted. The same with pineapple.

"Bundaberg with its palm lined streets, abundance of tropical trees, parks and gardens and churches is truly a beautiful city and within nine miles of the South Pacific Ocean. The city cooks with gas, glows with electriclight after dark. It is 97 percent severed and interwoven with good bitumen roads. Not nothing was ever so luxurious as your bath or shampoo. The town water supply drawn from underground sources is refreshingly (soft) and must be slightly a hardened before reticulation.

"Don's new building for his concrete aged roofing tile business was in the initial stages of construction with the the steel structure and bins awaiting to be erected. It is on two acres in the Industrial Park and was designed and planned by Don. His plans and design for a new type septic tank system was approved by and will be a major product in his new plant known as Revoy Pty. Ltd.

"The Revoys have bought a home with a large back lot, full of trees. To name a few: custard, apple, lemon, banana, avocado which were ripe. A Mandarin orange, a passion fruit vine, a grapefruit tree which they plan to pick at Christmas. They have two giant fan palms in the front yard, as well as roses and other lovely flowers.

In paying warm tribute to her daughter and son-in-law for their care of her on the trip, Mrs. Revoy, who is 70 years old, concludes:

"In another year or two, If Don don't get home for a visit, I intend to make another trip ... we two were there in August ... their winter, with temperatures in the high 70s and low 80s) ... — and next time stay longer.

"Don and Donna and children were their fondest regards to their many Belleville friends and although they have made many lovely friends in Bundaberg, never for a moment have they forgotten their friends back home in Canada."

Our appreciative readers share your family visit with much interest bound with sincere good wishes, Mrs. Revoy. Thank you for your delightful account.

Successful Living

Legs Too Thin? Try Exercise

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I weigh 98 pounds. I feel so self-conscious about my calves. My legs seem to go straight down from my knee to my ankle and I haven't any shape where I should have a calf.

I am skinny for my age (18) and when I put on any weight it goes to my thighs.

I read in your column a while ago about a girl who was satisfied with the results she got from a leaflet you had sent her. I think it was called "Chart For Curves."

Match Sick

Dear Match Sick: The curves will come — with time. Some people shoot up first and then round out. Others stay fat and short and then gradually put on the height. You come in the first lot.

With you the main thing seems to be to develop the muscles in your calves. Try jogging, either outdoors or in. If it has to be indoors, do on-the-spot running. Put each foot down 70 times per minute. And be sure to lift the foot six inches off the floor with each step.

The Chart For Curves would help too, since you do need to gain weight. Send 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope and it's yours.

Dear Doris: After reading the item in yesterday's "Terribly Hurt" I would like to correspond with her as I am in a similar condition. It would help so much to share our experiences with each other.

My husband is suffering a lot too on account of the way my family treats us, because we are the younger and by now I'm the same age as my late husband wrote her letter. So if you could please send me this lady's address I would be most grateful to you.

My husband and myself are at times so depressed about these circumstances that we don't know where to turn.

Wanting To Share.

Dear Wanting: Terribly Hurt wrote in about the way her older sisters are still making her feel around at 13. What a pity the same thing has been happening to you.

Even if I knew Terribly Hurt's address I could not give it as written they are press permission. Sorry.

Yet it is helpful when both of you write about your problems can share them, even by correspondence. I'm sure this second letter and writes in with her name and address so you can write to her direct on, you'll be hearing from me.

Home Canning Revived

EDMONTON (CP) — With skyrocketing food costs, many housewives are resorting to squeeze every cent out of their dollar by reviving the art of home canning, Linda St. Onge, nutritionist in the Alberta agriculture department, says calls requesting information on home canning are increasing. She says freezing is the safest method of preserving home-grown vegetables and fruits.

Nursing Head Visits Uruguay

OTTAWA (CP) — "The health problems of developing countries are often different from those in Canada, but Canadians can learn a lot from them," says Dr. Helen K. Mussallem, executive director of the Canadian Nurses' Association.

She recently returned from a five-week visit to Uruguay, one of several recent visits by the World Health Organization and the Pan-American Health Organization to help developing countries plan their nursing curriculum. She also has been to Venezuela, Cuba and Brasil.

She went to Montevideo at the request of Dr. Clotilde Terribly Hurt's address I could not of Uruguay's school of nursing, one of the two nursing institutions in the country.

"That's one of their problems right there," she said in an interview. "There are only two schools of nursing to serve a population of about three million people.

The school of nursing at the Uruguay university plans to increase its classes to graduate 100 students a year. Present classes number 30. Medical schools are graduating 300 to 500 doctors a year.

"They have about one nurse for every three or four doctors, the reverse of the situation in Canada."

Dr. Mussallem acted as a consultant to the Montevideo nursing faculty, helping to determine the philosophy behind planning for the curriculum.

The school was trying to recognize the health needs of the country — training the workers who could aid in solving such basic health problems as better water and sewage services, yet ensure that standards of teaching and nurse-training are acceptable to other countries.

"Another purpose was to help them draw up a study on career patterns, and a plan for ing out why students drop out of nursing school and why graduates drop out of nursing later."

This study also would try to find out whether the students are adequately prepared for their nursing positions.

Canadian nursing schools might learn from this, Dr. Mussallem said, "especially if they want to put emphasis on preventive medicine."

She said the influence of doctors has to be weighed, before they are asking for changes in the curriculum so that nurses will be better prepared to work in hospitals. However, this is not "where the action is."

Health professionals have to be more aware of developing the kind of worker who is right for the community, she said.

For Glamor Evening

Wispy cap is for evening glamor this fall. It is worn with matching boa by Albrizio.(CP Photo)

TORONTO (CP) — Hats are being worn with everything from the most casual clothes to elegant late-day costumes. The quilted cap is most popular complimenting the popular sweater look.

Since the range is from real sweaters to sweater dresses and coats, the hats are usually knitted. However, other hat fabrics are also in the sweater look category.

The turban finds great acceptance this fall and comes in every fabric from jersey to velvet. Other hat styles relate to the 1920s with snap brim fedoras, wide-brimmed gangster type and also cloches. New for this year is the hat-plus-scarf and hat-plus-banding. These contribute to the all-put-together look and this is a fall keynote.

Hair and wigs have a new look for fall. They are short and neat, easy to wear under hats, especially under the knit caps and turbans. The long shoulder length has given way to shorter turned-under page-boy bobs. Even newer is the short cut brushed up in almost a halo style.

Big Hats For Fall

Cloche (left) an important style for fall, has large brim and is in multi-color velvet design. It is worn with a matching bow tie. Knit hat (right) has a great swoop brim and is in forest green wool. It is worn with matching scarf.

Late Day Glamor

Matching Accessories

Matching accessories are popular this fall. On the left, a modified shako matches the fox shoulder bag with a chain shoulder strap. On the right, a cavelier hat and shoulder bag are in simulated spotted calf.

This wig in the classic page boy cut is the longest hair style for fall. Made of Monsanto modacrylic fibre it can be flipped up. (CP Photo)

Maracle — Pettifer

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Jackson of Forest Mills was the setting for the September wedding of their youngest daughter Judith Elaine to William Haydon Maracle.

Rev. R. Wilson of Selby United Church officiated at the service.

Attending the couple were Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sallans.

They now reside in Belleville.

Volunteers Needed

The Cheshire Home for handicapped adults needs volunteers who are interested in carpentry to help with some work at the residence during the week of October 22-27. Any handymen with a little spare time should call 962-1355.

Also needed, as soon as possible, is an at-home typist for the Legal Aid students who are preparing a law manual. If you'd like to volunteer your services for what will be an interesting job, phone Ruth Burrows at the Central Volunteer Bureau.

Sample Wedding

BUDAPEST (AP) — A sample wedding ceremony for a young local council official and his bride was staged recently in a rebuilt medieval knights' hall of Budapest's historic Buda Castle, now converted into a grand "wedding chamber" to add more glamor and solemnity to civil (non-religious) wedding ceremonies.

The sumptuously furnished baroque wedding chamber has wainscoted walls and is lit by a resplendent Venetian chandelier. Marble steps lead to the chamber, a fitting backdrop to wedding processions approaching for the supreme ceremony.

Laszlo Tordi, 24, wed Angela Szecsenyi, 20, in a ceremony Mendelssohn's Wedding March was a discreet background music while the registrar made a short speech calling on them to make each other happy, keep the family bonds intact and become good citizens of Hungary.

Tordi had till opportunity to give the chamber a tryout as he is a high official of the local council's planning section.

The new wedding chamber, outdoing the existing two by far in splendor, was inaugurated within the framework of the current 100th anniversary of the union of Buda and Pest into a single city and the capital of Hungary.

Every Beautyrest mattress has this hidden difference.

Individually pocketed coils for maximum comfort and support

In a Beautyrest, each coil is in its own individual pocket, not wired to its neighbour, so it can "give" or apply pressure individually, according to your anatomy. So they "give" under your shoulders and hips, without sagging everywhere else, and your spine remains straight.

Because a Beautyrest lasts so long, the few cents per night it costs will end up being a very good investment. Beautyrest . . . the mattress with the hidden difference that sets you up for tomorrow. For years and years and years.

FM Broadcasting Guidelines Set

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC) will open a public hearing here Oct. 29 to consider a new broadcasting policy for privately owned frequency modulated (FM) radio stations.

It wants FM stations to give listeners more programmes of a different sort than those broadcast by most privately owned standard or amplitude modulated (AM) stations.

FM stations put out a signal that can only be picked up by radio receivers equipped for FM. Generally, the FM signal is static-free, better suited for good music, especially in stereophonic sound.

All but three or four private FM stations in Canada are owned and operated as adjuncts to AM stations. The CRTC wants them to separate their program schedules and offer listeners distinct programming with more local talent employed.

The CRTC also is discussing with the publicly owned CBC a new program policy for both its AM and FM services. The commission last year rejected a CBC proposal to revise its programming on the basis of two services to try to raise its listener ratings. The CRTC feared the CBC only intended to copy the more popular private broadcaster style.

The CRTC says the FM band is not being put to its best use when FM stations carry programs virtually identical to those carried on AM radio.

"Nor is the programming on FM with background music and little else, however desirable economically, a responsible use of this valuable frequency spectrum. A clear, new role must be established for FM radio."

Before the CRTC was set up in 1968, the old Board of Broadcast Governors (BBG) required FM stations to devote 20 per cent of air time to the arts, letters and sciences.

But since then, few FM stations apart from the CBC's FM network have been clearly separated from AM counterparts. The CRTC has turned down many FM applications because they did not undertake to give listeners a significantly new or different program.

FM stations could carry concerts, and lively programs which could still a community need and attract big audiences, the CRTC says.

It would be no see more local talent employed in creating the selective trends and special interests of radio audiences.

There were 32 FM stations on the air at the end of March this year, of which 14 were CBC-owned. Thirty-five were in Ontario, 13 in Quebec and 17 in British Columbia, the rest spread thinly across the rest of Canada. But 61 new stations, or 48.1 per cent of Canadian homes by September, 1973, had radios with FM sets.

The CRTC proposes that all new radios receive both AM and FM, except possibly for the cheapest and smallest pocket transistors.

The CRTC also wants the stations to specialize their programming. However, should be at least one station on jointly-owned AM and FM stations, and they should not duplicate different content and presentation.

What the CRTC misses its final FM policy statement, it will expect stations to say during applications to renew licences and complete the change within one year. License renewals will be granted on the basis of a program schedule reflecting the new rules.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Back in the 1930s, Janet Gaynor won the first Academy Award for best actress in Seventh Heaven. But now she is feeling with films.

"I am not interested in today's movies," said the 66-year-old former star.

"There is no glamor, no fantasy, no romance in films anymore. Films show life the way it is—but people don't go to the movies to see life the way it is. They go to get away from it."

Miss Gaynor, who quit Hollywood in 1938 after 14 years, recalled:

"One of the reasons I quit was that I did want a little more freedom . . . spent years never asking anything because I had to sit with my back to the room in a restaurant. And in the days of the silents everybody wanted to touch you because they didn't think you were real."

ROME (Reuter) — Work on the film Moses, which was suspended over the outbreak of the Middle East war 10 days ago, has been resumed in Jerusalem, co-producer Vittorio Bonicelli said Monday.

The only change in shooting schedules was that sequences due in filmed scenes at Jericho, near the Israeli-Jordanian frontier, now would be shot in Jerusalem, he said.

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, in hospital since Monday with pneumonia, is "doing great and watching television," his father says.

"Elvis may be released from the hospital in three or four days because he is feeling much better. He is able to get up and walk around," Vernon Presley said Wednesday.

VAN NUYS, Calif. (AP) — A member of the Jackson 5 singing group pleaded not guilty Wednesday to charges of receiving stolen property.

Jackson was arrested April 13 with John Jackson, 22, a musician not related to the group, and Sanders (Bubba) Bracy, 24. They also pleaded not guilty.

The charges involve the alleged thefts of stereo and television sets from San Fernando Valley apartments.

Loriane Jackson was charged with two counts of receiving stolen property and John Jackson with one count. Bracy is charged with four counts of receiving stolen property and eight counts of burglary.

Ellis Votes To Retain Capital Punishment

OTTAWA — Government planning has been jeopardized public safety and failed penal reform, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, said Thursday.

Mr. Ellis changed his vote and joined opponents of the government's move to ban capital punishment.

The MP, who voted for the government's bill at its first two readings, said he has not changed his mind about the "futility" of capital punishment as a deterrent.

But the government has "blindly and foolishly ignored a major demand for reforming parole legislation and its penal system. Under the present situation benefits neither the public nor those in prison.

"We still find totally unrehabilitated criminals on the loose, either with the blessing . . . at times financed by, the government — or having escaped because of an incredibly inept administration of our penal institutions," said Mr. Ellis.

"There are still laws on the books which allow a man to kill two teenagers and get off with only a fine of $125 — accused impaired driving . . . was intoxicated and driving . . . If the man had soberly stopped the car and bludgeoned them to death, his fate would have been far different."

In voting against the bill Mr. Ellis said he was satisfied he was not endangering public safety. The government hasn't lived up to the terms of experimental legislation which banned the death penalty five years ago. Killing of police officers and prison guards was an exception to the ban.

"Since that time — in defiance of its own legislation, has not seen fit to carry out the death penalty. I see no imminent possibility of a reversal of their attitude," said Mr. Ellis.

The bill is similar to the experimental legislation, which could not be properly assessed since it was never fully imposed.

The experimental ban was also discriminatory, giving "supposed immunity" to those who carry firearms and none to those who did not".

The legislation did not protect the public from "disturbed persons with a tendency to kill" or alter the parole act.

Mr. Ellis said with more "compassion" and perhaps a new justice minister could still "clean up this sorry mess".

Legislation is needed to ensure the safety of the public "expect and deserve". New rehabilitation processes must be developed for those in prisons "that must be surely less costly than our present methods of incarceration."

The "humane" segregation of incorrigibles must also be achieved in institutions free of escapes and riots.

City Man Convicted Of Assault

Garry Lewis Keller, 19, of Tilbit, Belleville, was convicted of assault causing bodily harm in provincial court yesterday.

When he appeared before Judge J. L. Clendening yesterday, Keller pleaded not guilty to the charge. He told the court the other man had started the fight in the washroom and had injured his cheek when he fell down outside the hotel.

The case for the Crown, however, rested upon the contention that Keller had started to hit the other man after having taken his cigarettes in the washroom.

Special Crown Attorney George Bonn maintained that Keller had struck the gentleman's cigarettes, hit him and chased him out into the street. He said that Keller had chased his victim up Front Street and had ripped the shirt off his back, before police arrived at the scene.

In registering a conviction, Judge Clendenning said that he had "rejected completely" the evidence of the defence and regarded Keller's actions as an unprovoked attack. He remanded Keller, in custody, to Oct. 30 for sentencing, pending the preparation of a presentence report."

Youth Placed On Probation

A Belleville youth, Richard Norman Sweet, 17, of 328 North Front Street, received a suspended sentence and was placed on probation for 18 months yesterday, after he was convicted in provincial court of break and enter with intent to commit theft.

Arrested by police Oct. 11, Sweet was convicted of having broken into K-g's Gas Bar, 279 North Front Street, on the night of Oct. 10 with the intention of taking some motor oil.

Proposed Official Plan Back for Modification

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

The exact date Belleville residents will get a look at the city's draft official plan is still up in the air. Although the plan, charting the nature and form of future development within the city limits, has already been delayed several times to date, it is one step nearer to completion than in November when it will be made public.

Record made at a joint meeting of the Quinte Planning Board, the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee, and Belleville city council with representatives of Totten, Sims, Hubicki Associates, a Toronto consultant firm, have forced further study of several aspects of the plan.

Planning Director William Mahoney said the meeting presented the draft official plan, by means of a series of schematic maps and text, to the assembly last night. Questions were asked of the consultants in the city council chambers indicated two major areas of concern.

First, that provision be made in residential areas for adequate green space for tots, for playgrounds, or any area larger than that exclusively for recreational purposes.

Second, several city aldermen expressed their wish that any future land possibly could be zoned for apartments be looked at very much on the official plan in those areas marked low density residential.

Ald. Paul Russell objected to large areas on the official plan that did not show areas that would be zoned as of a greater density than a single family or triplex dwellings predominating. More detailed maps, he claimed, would let people know what they could expect in their area of residence.

Amendments to these wishes for further information, Mr. Ferguson said at the end of the three-hour meeting, his firm and the QPS professional staff would meet to discuss the apartment redevelopment designations of the Victoria, Foster Ward, Coleman, and Highland Ave. areas. However following such meetings with the staff, another meeting with those assembled last night would be necessary, Mr. Ferguson said. This would delay the draft official plan's presentation to various task forces and the public.

"Unless there's full agreement at the Quinte Planning Board and council level, then there's no point in going to the public," said Mr. Ferguson, referring to the differences of opinion expressed by councillors as to the desirability and/or location of highrise apartment buildings.

After agreement is reached, the QPS will present the plan and a recommendation officially to city council and the public.

Keeping Crossed Fingers

Family keeps crossed fingers as parents Mr. and Mrs. Lyle Sutherland seek new Local Initiatives Program $40,000 grant for projected helping students with learning disabilities. Mary Sutherland is surrounded by Kim, 12, Wendy, 8, Lyle Jr., 10. Even family dog, Happy, gets involved.

Project Help Seeking $40,000 LIP Assisstance

They've just applied for a Local Initiatives Program grant to renew, and expand, the program the Belleville couple involved last year to help youngsters with learning disabilities — and local school authorities cope with special education problems.

Lyle and Mary Sutherland are asking $40,000 from LIP to put 17 teachers' aides to work, helping youngsters who don't respond fully to the conventional system.

Their Project Help — its 1973 endeavors documented as a success in a report recently completed — works this way:

A student with learning disabilities is in obvious need of individual attention — and encouragement — for which a hard-pressed teacher may not have the time. A Project Help aide is assigned to work with the student separately and attempt to overcome the disability.

The Sutherlands — Lyle is principal of Sir Mackenzie Bovell public school, Mary, a one-time Montreal social worker — estimate about 20 per cent of the total school population has learning difficulties at some time or another.

The first time they crossed their fingers was with their first LIP submission late last year. An application proposal it asked $122,000 to employ 41 aides throughout 11 things county. LIP endorsed $28,000 and, the Sutherlands went ahead with 10 people in public schools grouped around Centennial Secondary School under the county's Associated School Group administrative grouping system.

However, it worked so well LIP granted another $4,000 in March, and an additional $5,000 in June to extend the program right to the school year's end.

Now the Sutherland's have recrossed their fingers — after having aided another area of need in their Project Help blueprint. This involves what Mary Sutherland calls the "disadvantaged child."

The term is not necessary an economic but broadly involves youngsters who may be experiencing education troubles because of personal problems. This include

But the success may not be easily defined. the need is insists Mary Sutherland.

She says the county school system could use 35 teachers' aides — if LIP would allow it. But that's just an astronomical figure to seek funding for."

The aides — officially termed para-professionals — have some measurable background in such projects. They've either had teaching or social service involvement or the education for it.

Such ranks are swelling again this year, believes Mrs. Sutherland.

At present, there appears a surfeit of people trained for social and school work — most of them university graduates, she says.

And some have already come forward and requested they be registered with Project Help for another try if it receives approval.

youngster from broken or problem homes, with unsettle newcomers to a community, in a middle modern society there are more adjustment problems for a youngster than in ofer-crowded," says Mary.

Children with such backgrounds will also be added to the list of those needing special attention under the new Project Care

The Sutherlands seem certain their program scored last school year. But success in such a project is easy to assess.

But they recount some examples that hint it reached goals:

—The boy who had always remained silently aloof in class, never uttering a word. Then came Project Help's individual attention. Suddenly, he began speaking out in class.

—Youngsters noted for lack of self-confidence and grouped into a drama class. They not only became

Festival Singers Captivate Audience

By FRANK MARTIN

On Wednesday evening Belleville played host to the internationally acclaimed Festival Singers of Toronto. The 36-voice mixed choir under the expert command of conductor Elmer Iseler, displayed throughout its performance the artistry that have earned it the accolades of audiences throughout North America and Europe.

The first half of the program was devoted to a liturgical mass by fifteenth century Flemish composer Hans Leo Hassler, alternating with twentieth century sacred composition by Orff Paynter, Stravinsky and Canada's own Healey Willan. Moving effortlessly back and forth through time, the choir displayed a Bandaid of excellence in near perfection as to make criticism an exercise in futility. Only in a slight faltering of resonance in the most brilliant first soprano passages did this instrument of God betray its humanity.

Following the intermission, conductor Iseler and the choir turned their attention to contemporary popular works by avant garde composers Thomsas Baker and Murray Schafer. In Baker's torn apart acting of Chinese love lyrics by the verse, the composer seeks to transmute words into sounds and sounds into words. The choir followed his instructions to the letter. Murray Schafer's Epitaph for Moonlight is not music in the strictest sense, but an exercise in sound as it is in the mould of Debussy's Clouds and Sirens. Schafer's unique choir sue has this could hope to master its complexity.

To conclude the program, conductor Iseler took the choir to merry old England courtesy of music laureate Vaughan Williams and a rollicking good time was had by all. With two mischievous encores the choir swiftly defied the cut of an audience that had the audacity to give them a standing ovation, and chuckling gleefully took their departure.

This is truly a magnificent choir, deeply devoted to its art form and yet obviously enjoying every minute of its performance. Co-sponsors, The Quinte Arts Council and the Stewart-Warner Corporation offered local music lovers the bargain of the year. As some empty seats in the auditorium bore mute testimony, many people passed up a memorable experience which could have been theirs had the services of Toronto ticket prices. Oh well, maybe next year things will change.

Hunter Bags Big Moose

PICTON — A Prince Edward County hunter, Clinton Green, of Salmon Point, bagged a 600-pound bull moose only three hours after the season opened.

Mr. Green and a companion, Norman Williams, were hunting south of Cochrane when the kill was made.

Mr. Green said that the moose carried a set of perfect antlers which he plans to have mounted as a souvenir of his trip north.

Seniors Reluctant To Admit Age

People are still inclined to feel embarrassed about their age, the Ministry of Natural Resources discovered in Hastings this year.

As a result, getting senior citizens to take advantage of a new program of free admission to the parks, required much tact by ministry staff.

Park supervisors say hundreds of elderly people have been told fully prices for admission and camping rather than admit to being 65 years — or over.

Parks staff, because of the program's newness — it was introduced during the past summer — found themselves repeatedly baffled, says a ministry official.

They couldn't ask the age of elderly people — who might have been unaware of the new program — for fear of giving offense.

In fact, several gate attendants at Presqu'ile and Prince Edward county parks, who watched the subject at the season started, "wound up with hot ears," says the official.

After that, it became policy to leave inquiries up to senior citizens.

Under the program, Canadian residents 65 years and over are issued special free permits if they have proof of age.

Statistics first showed many elderly using the parks might be only a trifle afraid about revealing how old they were.

It showed up plainly in the Quinte area — which has more provincial parks than other ministry districts.

Bob Davision, Outlet Park superintendent, noted the number of older people using the park seemed usual — but the special passes were being issued.

"One day a man admitted that he'd felt slightly embarrassed about asking for the pass, pulling out identification and holding people up. He didn't bother — and paid his money.

As the season ended earlier this month, statistics showed almost 678,000 regular customers in the park. Only less than 600 senior citizens took free day passes.

"I know there were some who didn't know about the program," said Mr. Davison. "But those are others who felt it was embarrassing and avoided it all by paying.

They simply advised elderly partygoers: "Say, if you know someone who is over 65 you might tell them about this new program.

For next summer, the ministry is considering posting signs at park entrances.

Investigation Continues

Police Chief Douglas Crabbe reported today that his department is continuing investigation in to the attack on a 16-year-old girl last Friday night near the intersection of Victoria Ave. and Chatham Street.

It was reported Saturday that the young girl was walking home around midnight when she was jumped from behind by a man who has been described as being approximately 30 years old and wearing a blue shirt of medium length.

The girl had been beaten about the face and head by her attacker and is reported to have suffered a broken jaw.

Police have received a "fair" response from their plea to anyone who might have been in the area at the time of the incident to phone police headquarters if they had any clues as to the man's identity.

Sentence Suspended

A Belleville man, Daniel Serson, 56, of 230 Coleman St., yesterday received a suspended sentence and was placed on probation for one year, after he was convicted in provincial court of having uttered a forged cheque.

Arrested by police Sept. 12, after he had cashed a blank cheque he had taken from his former landlady's apartment, Serson was brought to trial before Judge J. L. Clendenning. The cheque had been cashed for $200.

Serson pleaded guilty to the charge and was ordered to make restitution to the court for the amount outstanding from the incident.

Probation Broken, Jailed

Ray Kenneth Deshane, of 59 Dundas Street East, was sentenced to 10 days in jail after being convicted of breaking a probationary order imposed upon him for a previous conviction.

Appearing before Judge J. L. Clendenning, Deshane pleaded guilty to a charge of being away from his home between the hours of 12 and 5 a.m. — a contravention of the probationary order imposed upon him for a June 21 conviction of theft under $200.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendenning told Deshane that probation was a privilege granted to encourage rehabilitation. Its abuse could not be condoned, therefore, a prison term would have to act as a deterrent, he said.

Garden Club Tours Museum

Members of the Belleville Garden Club, prior to their regular monthly meeting this week, were given a special tour of Glanmore House, the Hastings County Museum on East Bridge Street.

The tour was in appreciation of the contribution toward landscaping the museum grounds. Members were favorably impressed by the fine restoration work done to the house and by the many interesting and valuable displays.

At the meeting, club member Harry Rose displayed a collection of dahlias from his garden and demonstrated how the tubers should be separated between growing seasons. Also on show were dishes of dahlias in his own garden as well as slides from the Dahlia Society.

Larry Johnson answered personal gardening questions and distributed door prizes which included a dahlia plant and tubers donated by Mr. Rose and potted mums.

Mrs. Bounter provided bunches of rosemary, thyme, fennel and basil from her herb garden for distribution to interested members.

In appreciation of her excellent work with the Junior Garden Club, Mrs. Vera Heimbach was presented with a gift from the society.

Ten-ton Roof Trusses On Their Way to Bath

And two of the trusses are jumbo sized, measuring 142 feet in length and 18 feet in depth.

Finkle Machine Ltd., 68 Dundas Street, has completed fabrication of the two 18-ton roof trusses and today they are being trucked 2-at-a-time before transportation to the cement plant site.

But the 142-foot trusses will not go to Bath in their present length. They will be dismantled into sections for easier transportation and then reassembled at the site.

Two other roof trusses, each 85 feet in length have already been delivered by the Belleville firm.

Mets' Superb Lefties Have A's Handcuffed

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Mets take a 3-2 World Series lead back to Oakland today, hoping to finish the shaking Athletics with the right-hand punch of ace Tom Seaver.

"Seaver's arm is fine," said Berra after the Mets won Game 5 with a 2-0 victory in New York. "Let's just say that it's a good chance that it might be Seaver".

The hard-throwing ace is the only right-hander among the Mets' starters, but it really doesn't matter which side they've been throwing from in this best-of-seven-game series.

Left-handers especially have been tough on the predominantly right-hand Oakland batting... order—and Thursday night's performance was a good example.

"We've got the best pitching in baseball," said Berra after the victory before a packed house of 54,817 at cold, wind-swept Shea Stadium. "That's what got us here in the first place."

It was apparent from the start that pitching would dominate Thursday night's game. Koosman and Oakland's Vida Blue were locked in a tense early struggle as the Mets took a 1-0 lead in the second inning on a double by flu-stricken Cleon Jones and a run-scoring single by John Milner.

The Mets had Blue on the ropes in the fourth when Rusty Staub and Jones singled to start the inning, but failed to deliver a knockout blow. Blue pitched out of the jam. He failed, however to survive the sixth, when the Mets scored their second run on a single by Jerry Grote and triple by Don Hahn.

"It was the most important bit of my life," said Hahn, who isn't normally known for game-winning hits. "It gave Jerry more of a cushion to work with."

That insurance run looked big in the ninth when Koosman got into trouble. In the seventh inning, he walked Gene Tenace and gave up a one-out double to Ray Fosse that put men on second and third.

It was time for McGraw.

"No one wants to leave a ball game," Koosman said, "and I was feeling pretty strong, too. But you can't knock Yogi's decision. He pitched great baseball for us the last two months."

McGraw came on the scene with his usual flourish, as house organist Jane Jarvis played lively Irish music for the entrance. The left-hander promptly walked pinch-hitter Deron Johnson on a 3-2 count to load the bases.

"I can't pitch well with nobody on base," said McGraw. "I have much better concentration with the bases loaded."

The crowd roared as New York's favorite relief pitcher got pinch-hitter Angel Mangual on a pop fly to shortstop Harrelson. Then the crowd went wild as McGraw got the dangerous Bert Campaneris on strikes.

"The strikeout pitch was just above the knees on the outside part of the plate," said McGraw. "I tried to make it look like a screwball. It went just where I wanted it, and he took it." McGraw walked three batters in the seventh and eighth innings and managed to struggle through despite the control problem.

"I pitched myself in the back side and I was all right from then on," McGraw said.

McGraw's daring fastball set the Athletics down 1-2-3 in the ninth. He finished on a high note, striking out the last two batters as the right field scoreboard flashed "TUG" in giant letters.

"The Mets' pitching is the best we've looked at this year," said manager Dick Williams of the Athletics. "I thought Blue pitched a hell of a game. Koosman and McGraw just pitched better."

Jones, twice a runner-up this year and winner of more than $90,000, held a single-stroke advantage over John Schlee, Rod Curl and Forrest Fezler, tied at 66.

Of the leaders, all but Schlee played the 6,818-yard South Course at the Silverado Country Club, the easier of the two layouts being used for the first two rounds of this tournament. Schlee, the Hawaiian Open champion, played the 6,819-yard north course. Both are par 72.

Father Fined For Assaulting Peewee Player

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — An irate father was convicted and fined $100 in provincial court Thursday for assaulting a 13-year-old baseball player because the boy struck out his son at a game June 24 in Paris, Ont.

Judge W. M. MacDonald, sentencing Murrey Daniels, 38, of Tillsonburg, Ont., said he was handing down a larger fine than usual because there has been an increasing number of incidents where persons assault others after sporting events.

"Parents are going to have to restrain themselves," he said.

Billie Davis of Paris said he ran into Daniels's son Steven, 12, a catcher for a Tillsonburg team, and was ejected from the game for elbowing.

Daniels, who pleaded not guilty, said he became angry and attempted to reprimand Davis for unsportsman-like behavior.

Two officials of the Paris team testified they grabbed Daniels and pulled him away from the boy.

TURCOTTE THROWN

NEW YORK (AP) — Jockey Ron Turcotte escaped serious injury at Aqueduct race track Thursday when his mount fell during the first race. Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., was riding Awaited Man, a four-year-old gelding, in the $75.00 claiming race and had the horse in the lead when the animal stumbled. Turcotte was thrown forward, landed hard on the track and did a complete somersault. He suffered abrasions of the forehead and a bruised neck.

Williams Denies Rumors

NEW YORK (AP) — Oakland Athletics owner Charles O. Finley says manager Dick Williams, reported to be planning to resign after the World Series, "has an iron-clad two-year contract."

But in baseball, unlike professional football, manager's contracts are no longer "iron-clad" if a man wants to move to another team.

"All Williams would have to do is resign," Kansas City Royals manager Jack McKeon said Thursday. McKeon, happy with the Royals, said after hearing the report of Williams' pending move to New York Yankees: "I don't doubt it."

Williams was still denying Thursday night that he'd quit Athletics before Tuesday night's World Series game here that he would resign—win or lose—after the World Series.

"Charlie hasn't asked me about the stories, because you've already denied it," Williams said. "The gossip has been going around for two weeks."

Several players have confirmed, however, that Williams told them he planned to resign. Second baseman Dick Green was the first to say it, explaining: "The news is all around the clubhouse."

Williams is in his third year as Oakland manager. The first two years Finley owned the Athletics, no manager lasted more than one full season.

"I don't stand in his way if the Yankees approach me and ask for permission to talk to Dick," the owner said.

CFL Prepares Defence

TORONTO (CP) — Commissioner Jake Gaudaur of the Canadian Football League said Thursday the league is prepared to defend its bylaws against a suit filed by player Dave Cranmer.

"In so far as I am aware, no court has found any aspect of the league's current contract or bylaws to be illegal in the past," Gaudaur said in a prepared statement.

"If it does in this instance, it goes without saying that any judged to be illegal will be changed but the league will be prepared to defend in court their intended purpose."

Gaudaur's statement came after reports Wednesday that Cranmer has filed suit in the Supreme Court of Ontario against Gaudaur and British Columbia Lions.

The suit, filed by lawyer John Sopinka, seeks a declaration that Cranmer is a free agent in the CFL and an injunction preventing Gaudaur and the Lions from interfering with his efforts to obtain employment in the CFL.

CFL bylaws provide that any player named on a club's roster—including injured, retired and suspended lists—as of Sept. 15, is not eligible to play for another CFL team this season.

Gaudaur's statement said that while neither he nor the league has been served with any formal notice, "it is presumed from correspondence that the basis of Dave Cranmer's complaint is that when he failed to report for practice, the B.C. club, acting under, a provision of the contract, suspended him."

"The league or the commissioner did not suspend the player and any time the B.C. club wants the suspension lifted, it can do so by advising the league office and it will forthwith comply."

Cranmer went to the Lions at the end of August in a trade from Hamilton Tiger-Cats who had acquired him in an earlier trade from Toronto Argonauts.

Flesch Rejoins Cats For Weekend Games

Belleville Bobcats got some good news this week as they head into an important Metro Junior B Hockey League home and home set with front running St. Michael's of Toronto.

Cats hope to get back on the winning track at the expense of the Toronto team and on deck to help the Belleville squad do just that will be defenceman Dave Flesch.

Injured in the home opener, a bruising effort against Pickering on October 7, Flesch has been on the sidelines ever since, waiting impatiently while a twisted knee came back to normal.

Coach Moe Runzer figures the return of Flesch to the lineup will timed perfectly. If the injured leg stands up, the steady defender will probably see plenty of work in tonight's game at Memorial Arena.

St. Michael's has a two-point lead over Markham in the battle for first place in the standings.

The Colleges crew has five wins and a tie in seven starts, for 11 points.

Cats have made only three league starts, winning a pair and losing one. Their four points give them a share of seventh place in the standings with Oshawa. The Oshawa club has two wins in six tries.

A winning effort on the weekend could boost Cats well up in the standings and they'd still have games in hand on most of the teams.

Teachers, Belvedere Pick Up QHL Wins

Barry Fryer fired two goals last night to lead the Teachers in their win over Bob's Dairy in Quinte Hockey League play. The Teachers downed the Dairymen by a 5-3 score, while in the other game, Belvedere edged Sharpcott 4-3.

Brian MacKenzie, Bruce Cameron, and George Sharpcott scored the other goals for the Teachers, while Sharpcott and MacKenzie drawing a pair of assists.

Ted Waite, John Chalmers, and Reid Mallory tallied goals in a losing cause for Bob's.

The four players scored for Belvedere in their win over Sharpcott were Gene French, Frank Pinder, Doug Hallam, and Rob Henderson all contributing.

Kevin Allen had two goals for Stinson's, with Al Walker adding the other marker. Andy Prudden collected two assists.

Peewees Win, Midgets Lose

Belleville teams split in Ontario Minor Hockey Association action last night, with the Dixie Lee Peewee Minors taking a 4-3 decision from the Trenton Peewee Minors, while the Blake Kerr Imperial Midget Majors fell to Oshawa in Triple A play by a score of 5-2.

2 Road Games for Eagles

Before returning home to the friendly confines of Memorial Arena where they host Barrie Flyers, Tuesday, October 23, Eagles are in Brantford tonight and visit Welland, Sunday.

Of their early showing, two wins in three starts, Eagles have league officials and the other teams in the grouping paying attention. The Belleville squad has impressed in all three outings.

Figures just released by league statistician Carl Fletcher of Cambridge show newcomer Wayne Welleslitting it off well in his new surroundings. The winger holds second place in the scoring race with seven points off four goals and three assists.

Weller trails Orillia's Grant Moore by one point. Moore has three goals and five assists for eight points but has played one more game than Lee Belleville sniper.

Al Ferguson, a veteran performer with Belleville senior teams, has shown he still has his scoring touch. His five goals are tops in the league.

Eagles are tied for third place with Barrie, two points back of Cambridge Hornets and four behind first place Orillia Terriers. The Belleville squad has a game in hand on these three teams.

CHSS Girls In Top Form

By SCOTT BERRY

MADOC — Centre Hastings Secondary School (CHSS) senior girls basketball team played host to Albert College of Belleville here last night and it was evident from the beginning that the home side was in winning form.

CHSS took the lead early and continued to pile up the points on the way to a convincing 39-14 victory.

The regular season is almost completed but it is quite obvious the CHSS girls take part in a number of exhibition games starting in the near future.

NICK LIBETT
Flicker of Hope

First Point for Wings In 4-4 Tie with Stars

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Nick Libett gave Detroit Red Wings a flicker of hope Thursday night.

But the National Hockey League club has an uphill climb in a battle for points, with two players trying to reduce their weight and one just being lonely.

Libett, 27-year-old left winger from Hamilton, scored his second goal of the night with 17:14 remaining and Detroit goalie Doug Grenier on the bench for an extra attacker, giving the Wings a 4-4 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

The draw, in Detroit, snapped a four-game losing streak for the Wings, who had matched their worst start in the club's 45-year history. The team previously lost four straight opening the 1957-58 season.

In Buffalo, Richard Martin scored his fifth goal and added two assists as the Sabres whipped Los Angeles Kings 6-2 in Thursday's only other game.

The Red Wings, outscored 21-9 in their first four games, want right winger Mickey Redmond, who scored 52 goals last season, to lose 12 pounds.

If the pounds aren't off, Garvin said, he'll fine Redmond "in proportion to his salary," reported to be about $200,000 a year.

Defenceman Rick Foley has been laboring for some time under a $25-a-day penalty, also trying to drop weight.

Garvin has other problems. Ron Stackhouse and Tord Lundstrom are sidelined with knee and shoulder injuries, respectively, and the coach says centre Marcel Dionne is so moody it's affecting his play.

"I can't seem to get anything out of him," Garvin said before the game. "I've tried. But he won't talk."

The Red Wings, eighth and last in the East Division, trailed the Stars 4-2 after two periods before Libett scored twice in the third. Jude Drouin paced Minnesota with a goal and two assists as the North Stars remained winless in the West with three tie and two ties.

The Sabres spotted the Kings a 1 - 0 lead early in the second period, but reared back with three goals in less than six minutes to take a 3-1 lead in the third.

The Sabres, tied for fourth with Montreal Canadiens in the East, also got goals from John Gould, Norm Gratton, Jim Lorentz, Gil Perreault and Rene Robert, while outshooting the Kings 35-26.

The Kings are winless after five games, with three defeats and two ties. They share sixth place with St. Louis Blues and Minnesota in the West.

Philadelphia Blazers, leading the West Division with an undefeated record of four wins, visit Vancouver Canucks in the only game tonight.

Jets Move to First in West

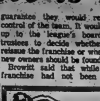
By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The future of the World Hockey Association's franchise in New York City appeared uncertain today after the league took over the operation of the financially-troubled Golden Blades.

James Brewitt, WHA administrator, said that the current owners "have until Monday to accomplish some physical things. No further action will be taken until then."

The Blades' woes came to light when the league was informed by team management that they could not issue pay cheques to the players Oct. 15, the first pay day of the regular season.

They still had not been paid when they took to the ice for their game against Winnipeg Jts in New York Thursday night. However, Brewitt issued league cheques to the players after they had dropped a 6-1 decision to the Jets in one of three games scheduled.



In other action, Quebec Nordiques dumped Toronto Toros 5-2 before 7,136 in Quebec City while in Los Angeles, it was Chicago Cougars 7, Los Angeles Sharks 2.

Brewitt said the league had been told the Blades' money trouble was temporary.

"But we don't go on a temporary basis," he noted. "Our obligation is to the players. They signed WHA contracts and we are here to see that they get paid."

Brewitt added that even if the team's present owners, get an infusion of money, there was no guarantee they would regain control of the team. It would be up to the league's board of trustees to decide whether to release the franchise or whether new owners should be found.

Brewitt said that while the franchise had not been formally retired, the league had taken over the players' contracts. He added he did not know if the franchises would continue in New York although he said he wanted a team in the city because "it's very important to the league."

Statistics Startling From Drowning Study

Each year there are about 1,200 deaths by drowning in Canada—about one-third as many as die in accidents.

About 85 per cent of the victims are male and the worst age group is 22 to 33.

The largest single cause of drowning, about 15.6 per cent, was failing from a stationary object.

Seven medical and law students worked on a study of drowning this summer under the auspices of a $18,000 Opportunities for Youth grant. Two of them spent two weeks in Ottawa studying in detail the statistics of 7,000 drownings in Canada in the last five years.

Joel Gobermen, project co-ordinator, considers himself a strong swimmer and has experience as a lifeguard.

"I would think it is reasonable that 1 could drown if my boat capsized 300 yards from shore", he said. "Yet statistics tell me I probably would."

Some of the statistics used in the study are the result of research done by Mr. Gobermen in Manitoba last summer.

"There were some bizarre drownings", he said. "More than one baby drowned in a diaper pail. The number of bathtub deaths was astonishing, too."

The group presented a report to Statistics Canada in September. It included a statistical picture of drownings as well as sections on medical and legal aspects.

Some of the items dealt with are the liability of lifeguards, a study of lifejacks and something Mr. Gobermen calls the "psychology of drowning."

He said people have told him of strange, almost euphoric feelings that accompany near-drowning.

The group interviewed people who have witnessed a drowning. Most of a drowning victim's actions come close to "drowning themselves.

Period-free Year Ends Fertility

By G. C. THOSTUSON MD

Dear Dr. Thostuson: I am 33 years old and haven't had a period for over six months. What are my chances of becoming pregnant? My husband and I had an experience a week ago which I fear could result in pregnancy.

Should I have a rabbit test to determine it? I hate to go in my own doctor, but she would die if I found I was going to have a baby—Mrs. R.C.H.

This is a question that comes up again and again and I'm glad to answer it again, to the extent that it is possible to answer.

The best answer that I—or any other doctor—can give to questions like this is: you can count yourself beyond chance of pregnancy when, at the age of menopause, you have not had a period for one year.

The closer you come to that one year without periods, the less chance of pregnancy.

In your case, I would say that the chances of pregnancy are so small that I wouldn't spend the money for a "rabbit test"—any of the other types of pregnancy test.

Absence of pregnancy after "more than six months" is very, very small, but not an absolute indication that a few more months you can not your mind at ease permanently.

Dear Dr. Thostuson: Will reversal disease cure itself? Why do some singers amount its most frequent victims? Who is it that gets the disease, the boy or the girl?—J.

Waiting for V.D. to "cure itself" is an invitation to the disease to do verious physical damage. Cured immediately, it does little if any harm, though.

Reason some singers are so often the victims is the result of varied factors: they are sexually active; they haven't bothered to find out the scientific facts about V.D. and how to avoid it; the "sexual beginners" too often are "caught" by unscrupulous older people who have "been around" and caught V.D.

Who gets V.D.? Either sex! That's like asking "Who gets colds, boys or girls?"—Like colds, one catches V.D. from somebody who already has it.

Cult Leader Guilty

DELAND, Fla. (AP) — A South Carolina teen-ager described as the high priest of a satanic cult was found guilty of first-degree murder Thursday in the torture slaying of Ross Michael Cochran.

The 17-member circuit court jury deliberated 3¼ hours before handing down the verdict against David Hester, 17, of Greenville.

The jury was scheduled to reconvene today to make a recommendation on a sentence of life or death. The state said it will seek the death penalty, which would be under a new law upheld by the state Supreme Court.

Hester was the first of six persons to be tried on first-degree murder charges in the death of Cochran, 17, of Fresno, Calif.

Police said Cochran was flogged with chains and clubbed with broken glass in a satanic ceremony in nearby Daytona Beach last April 27. Police said he was subsequently taken to a wooded area where he was clubbed to death.

Teamsters Want In

TORONTO (CP) — A spokesman for the International Brotherhood of Teamsters confirmed Thursday that the union has offered to renew its affiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC).

Senator Ed Lawson, Canadian international vice-president for the Teamsters, said the offer was made in Calgary last weekend as part of the union's attempt to merge with the United Brewery Workers.

The Teamsters were expelled from the CLC in 1958 in a conflict involving truck drivers for CP Rail.

Farmers Triple Output

TORONTO (CP) — High farm income and reasonable food prices for consumers are consistent, John Moles, general manager of the Royal Winter Fair, said Thursday.

He told a service club that strong farm prices coupled with increased productivity will mean more food for consumers and will bring down average unit food costs.

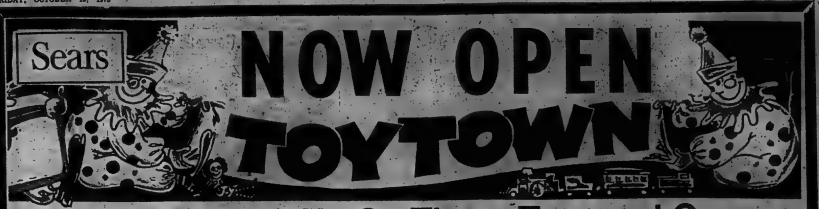
Mr. Moles said only 6.8 per cent of the Canadian population now is engaged in primary agriculture.

But "farmers have tripled their output per worker in the last 20 years," he said. "No other industry had made such rapid gains in efficiency and productivity."

Pogo Dead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Walt Kelly, 60, the cartoonist who made the Okefenokee Swamp famous in the daily strip "Pogo," died Thursday. Kelly, who wrote and drew the cartoon for almost a quarter-century, died of complications of diabetes. He was on a business trip when taken ill.

Builder Denies Links



TORONTO (CP) — One of the partners in a construction empire Thursday described as "wild" and "slanderous" statements in the Ontario legislature linking him to the Mafia and to violence in the industry.

Elvio Del Zotto, executive vice-president of his family's Del Zotto Enterprises Ltd., told the royal commission investigating crime in the province's construction trade, that he had closely questioned a business associate about reports that the associate was implicated in dynamitings but had received only denials.

The other man is contractor Ceslao Romanelli, who has been mentioned in commission evidence as a suspect and who was charged Tuesday on two counts of perjury as the result of his testimony before the commission. Mr. Romanelli has denied any complicity in violence.

NIZZA MONFERRATO, Italy (AP) — Paolo Porco, a 70-year-old farmer, refused an $84 payment from the government to compensate him for hailstorm damage to his crops. "I refused because the state is not responsible for the weather," Porco explained.

Haifa Refinery Hit by Syrians

DAMASCUS (Reuter) — The Syrian air force today bombed an oil refinery in the Israeli port of Haifa, a military spokesman announced.

The spokesman said the raid was in retaliation for Israel's bombing of Syrian economic targets.

Israeli jets bombed Syria's only oil refinery, at the central city of Homs, on two successive days in the first week of the Middle East war.

Officials said at the time that it would take years to put the $50-million plant back into operation.

A nearby power station, which produced one-fifth of Syria's electricity supply, also was destroyed in the same raids.

Other targets attacked by the Israelis were the Mediterranean oil terminals at Banias and Tartus. Oil shipments were halted at both ports.

Meanwhile, a Syrian minister told a news conference here today that the Israeli attacks had contributed to increasing the first crisis in Europe.

The bombing report from Damascus came as Israeli forces on the western side of the Suez canal said they were expanding their beachhead and had pushed 12 to 15 miles inside Egypt proper.

Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Dayan said in an interview broadcast today that the Israelis are trying to get behind the Egyptians in the Sinai on the eastern banks f the canal and force them to fight "on a front, that is not of their own choosing."

He said the Israeli spearhead in Egypt also is trying to knock out Egyptian anti-aircraft missile batteries to clear the air for Israeli planes.

Fighting raged along both sides of the canal Friday as Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin ended a four-day visit to Cairo and President Nixon dispatched State Secretary Henry Kissinger to Moscow at the Soviets' behest to discuss ways of ending the 15-day Middle East conflict.

Airliner Hijacked

TUCUMAN (Reuter) — An Argentine Airlines Boeing 727 aircraft with 68 persons aboard was hijacked today, apparently by three men and a woman, airport authorities said here.

The plane was on a flight from Buenos Aires to the northwest Argentine city of Salta when the hijackers seized it and ordered the captain to land at this city, 140 miles south of Salta.

They demanded it be refuelled for a flight to Lima, Peru, but Argentine air force authorities rejected the request.

The plane then took off again, and airport sources said it was heading for Salta, possibly on its way to Lima.

However, a spokesman for Argentine Airlines in Buenos Aires said the hijacked jet had bypassed Salta and appeared to be heading for Yacuiba, a town in southern Bolivia on the border with Argentina.

This was the farthest that its remaining fuel would permit it to fly, the spokesman said.

Congress Asked For Israel Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked the United States Congress to authorize $2.2 billion in emergency military aid to Israel to maintain the military balance in the Middle East.

Initial congressional reaction was largely favorable to the request but congressmen were silent on a companion request for an additional $250 million for Cambodia.

In a special message to Congress, President Nixon said Friday that U.S. arms shipment to Israel "is necessary to prevent the emergence of a substantial imbalance resulting from a one-sided resupply of Syria and Egypt by the Soviet Union."

Nixon said the U.S. government has committed materiel costing $825 million, including transportation, to replace heavy Israeli combat losses and "to maintain a balance of forces and thus achieve stability."

The United States is making every effort to promote a settlement of the Middle East conflict, but "prudent planning also requires us to prepare for a longer struggle."

As to Cambodia, Nixon asked Congress to add $200 million to his original budget request for $180 million in military assistance.

The Senate cut the $180 million request to $150 million in a foreign aid bill now pending in a House of Representatives Senate conference committee.

Nixon said government forces are using up ammunition at nearly $1 million a day and that failure to provide ammunition and military supplies "would deny the Cambodian armed forces the ability to defend themselves and their country."

The White House made it clear that most of the $2.2 billion sought for military equipment for Israel would be in the form of outright grants.

'Listener' Is Named For Tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has reluctantly yielded control in his battle to withhold the Watergate tapes but not enough to avoid a head-on collision with special prosecutor Archibald Cox.

In a statement issued at the White House Friday night, Nixon said he has agreed to let Senator John Stennis (Dem. Miss.) listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of a presidential summary of their contents.

Nixon said he personally will prepare the summary and it will be given to Judge John Sirica, the U.S. district court who ordered the president Aug. 29 to give the nine tapes subpoenaed by Cox to him and to the Senate Watergate committee.

Nixon said he will not ask the Supreme Court to review a Court of Appeals decision upholding Sirica's order and he directed Cox to halt efforts to enforce his subpoena.

Israel Claims Bridgehead Solid

BY THE ASSOCIATKD PRESS

Israel says it has expanded its bridgehead on the west bank of the Suez canal and moved 12 to 15 miles inside Egypt as vicious tank battles were reported Friday on both sides of the waterway.

On the diplomatic front, Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin ended a four-day visit to Cairo Friday and President Nixon dispatched State Secretary Henry Kissinger to Moscow Friday night at the Soviets' behest to discuss the Middle East conflict.

The Egyptian command monitored the effects of the Israeli force inside Egypt. But an Israeli spokesman said its units on the west bank have knocked out 10 Egyptian missile batteries and are "creating the necessary conditions for victory on this front."

The two sides exchanged artillery fire on both sides of the canal during the night, said an Israeli communique.

Meanwhile, Israel said Syrian, Iraqi and Jordanian armored units attacked positions in Syria Friday in an apparent effort to keep the pressure on along both fronts of the war. The Israelis said they held their ground about 19 miles inside Syria.

Although the Israelis have not revealed how many troops they sent across the Suez canal, U.S. sources in Washington placed the number at about 12,000 men including 200 tanks.

PQ Budget Target

MONTREAL (CP)—Fired-up financial critics for three Quebec political parties launched a concerted attack Friday night on the Parti Quebecois budget for an independent Quebec.

Finance Minister Raymond Garneau said an independent province would probably have a $2 billion deficit rather than the $181 million surplus the Parti Quebecois forecast. In a proposed budget for the first year of independence.

The Liberal cabinet minister led the attack on the budget during the four-party television debate. The Parti Quebecois was represented by Jacques Parizeau, its economic expert and architect of the budget.

Gas, Oil Prices Bound to Rise

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite a national price freeze, gasoline and heating oil prices in Quebec and the Atlantic provinces will rise again in the near future, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald indicated Friday.

He told a news conference that steadily-rising prices are an "inevitable evil" of soaring crude oil prices on the international market.

"I don't want prices to go up," he said.

But oil companies must pass cost increases on to the consumer if they are to obtain competitive and adequate oil supplies are to be guaranteed.

He refused to speculate how big the increases will be but said he expects to make a decision within the next few days on applications by eastern refineries to raise prices. Increases of four or five cen s per gallon of gasoline have been predicted by the end of the year.

An increase before Jan. 30 would break a five-month price freeze requested by the government in September as an anti-inflation measure. The freeze, while only a voluntary restraint, has been endorsed by all major oil companies.

If the government does not approve the applications, he said, there is no legal way to stop the companies from making them on their own.

He also hinted that price boosts may be in the offing for consumers west of the Ottawa Valley line whose needs are met by domestic oil from Alberta. Consumers east of the line rely totally on imported oil.

Rising interna ional prices, by forcing up costs in Eastern Canada, could open an unacceptably-wide price differential between eastern and western consumers, he said.

The government's goal is to establish a nation price system based on the price of imported crude at Montreal. Prices in all areas of the country would vary only with transportation costs.

When it called for the freeze, the government agreed to consider eastern increases justified by international price boosts, plus any national increases necessary to keep prices from getting too far out of line.

Repeating that the government has contingency plans ready in the event of an emergency, he said priority would go to essential users such as power plants.

Plans Ready

Energy Minister Donald MacDonald talked with reporters outside the Commons Thursday. Earlier, he told the House the government has contingency plans in case of an Arab shutoff of oil supplies. (CP Wirephoto)

Dayan Behind Lines

Israeli Defence Minister Moishe Dayan sips from a canteen during a visit with Israeli troops operating on the West side of the Suez Canal. Israeli officials said Dayan not only inspected the Israeli forces fighting behind Egyptian lines, but also "talked with Egyptian prisoners captured by the Israeli task force on Egyptian territory."

Hall Will Rule On Shopcrafts

OTTAWA (CP) — With arbitration hearings for 58,000 non-operating rail workers completed Thursday, the federal arbitrator, Mr. Justice Emmett Hall, will turn Monday to the contract dispute involving 22,000 shopcraft tradesmen.

Justice Hall, retired Supreme Court of Canada judge appointed to arbitrate the rail disputes, also will deal with a contract dispute involving 6,700 trainmen. Hearings for the latter group will begin Nov. 6 and end Nov. 9.

Because he must wait for a special pension-plan study before declaring final conclusions on the three disputes, it is expected to be several weeks before any arbitration award is made.

Arbitration was forced on the three groups of railway workers by Parliament Sept. 1 after strikes by non-ops disrupted rail traffic in July and August.

The strike-ending legislation gave minimum wage increases to three groups of workers.

The railways involved in the disputes included Canadian National Railways and CP Rail.

All Should Sell Speaker Asserts

"All of us should be selling something to ourselves, a product, the neighborhood, the community we live in or a club we belong to."

This is what members of the Sales and Ad Club were told yesterday by "Honest" Stan McBride, sheriff of Peterborough for the past 11 years and now in the two years since he was also active in the business community before entering politics.

"All of you have an image to maintain and you should be promoting it. We should all contribute to the overall image of the club we belong to," he told the group at its regular meeting in Quinte Room Hall.

Mr. McBride stressed the importance of selling and advertising in a community as well as an organization where the club is a part of what is packground can meet.

"Each is an organization (such as the Sales and Ad Club) where you can rub shoulders with your conferees, with your friends. It is a meeting between men and a common ground. It can be a great door-opener for you," said Mr. McBride.

"The community would be poorer without the Sales and Ad Club. The lifeblood of the community depends on selling and advertising. Everybody has to do their part selling Marcenka, Erie Kelley, Jack Tooth, Fraser Fuke, Al Bartley and Murray Campbell.

McBride was instrumental in Peterborough acquiring its Civic Arena.

"Anyone who gets through their teenage years without getting in trouble is doing good. It's fortunate when one becomes an adult without getting in some trouble.

Mr. McBride went on to explain the importance of education during today's life. It is more important to go to university. In my day, anyone who finished high school was considered an intellectual. Education can be expensive. It could lose the business and advertising men.

"But if a person is a dropout it is not the end of the world. Education doesn't mean Hall. Mr. McBride stressed the importance of night school.

He told the gathering his feelings when looking at the management appointments in the morning papers. He said the older we get the younger they look. They are handling responsibility at a much younger age. But the young can learn from the old," Honest Stan McBride.

Abandoned Plant: Part of the Past

Deloro: Smallest, and Likes It

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

And, for the most part, its 220 residents want to see it stay that way.

At least, villagers want to retain their own identity. They v:ew, with something less than favor, provincial pressures for municipal amalgamation and larger areas of administration.

They have nothing against Marmora and Lake, in which their village is situated. But they want to remain individualists — at least to the extent of running their own local government.

"We are happy the way we are," says Mrs. Bernice Young, village clerk-treasurer. "And until such time as we can't give our people what they deserve in the way of services and recreation we want to remain the way we are as an incorporated village."

She says the village enjoys a comparatively low tax rate and feels that with any amalgamation it could lose out in many advantages, including possible future provincial grants.

And with their own sewer and water system, mobile library and other recreational services, it appears that Deloro residents have something going for them.

One of the gray areas on which villagers have been unable to obtain a clear answer is whether following possible amalgamation they would be expected to help pay off any outside debentures.

At the present the village is debenture free.

A former, company owned mining municipality, the history of Deloro dates back to Hastings county gold rush days more than a century ago.

Soon the district came to be known as Deloro — the "Valley of Gold."

It's prosperity has varied.

Gold and arsenic were mined early in the century, until silver was found in Ontario's northlands at Cobalt — giving Deloro a new economic lease. A silver refinery was started, with arsenic as by product, by Deloro Mining and reduction company.

About 1914 the first commercially - produced cobalt metal led to production of stellite — cobalt allowyed with tungsten and chromium — a material much-sought in wartime. It's discovery coincided with World War I.

After the war, dwindling cobalt markets led to large layoffs.

Again fortune renewed the

QUINTE COUNTRY

Deloro lease. With northern silver mines closing in the late 1920, Deloro began processing ore stockpiles from the north. This kept the company operating until World War II, when cobalt demand again boomed.

In the Korean War, United States government contracts kept the plant operating at full strength until 1958. At its peak, Deloro had 600 workers, of whom about 100 lived in the village.

The plant closed in 1961. Nearly all buildings were razed and tons of arsenic refuse buried to prevent a health hazard. The chemical and research laboratory was moved to the Belleville plant of Deloro Stellite, a Deloro Smelting subsidiary.

But as a community Deloro was firmly established, despite the fits and starts of its economic career.

In 1916 the company had begun building homes for its workers. A public school was added. The community, administered by Marmora township, made a historic move: it sought to run its own affairs.

The 45 company houses at Deloro were sold — at rock-bottom prices. The purchasers included retired people and workers at nearby Marmoraton Mines or Marmora village.

Deloro as a mining municipality was dead. But the new homeowners were determined to see their village continue in its separate identity. They elected their first reeve and council and continued to send a representative to county council.

Despite the shutdown there are no vacant quarters in the village today.

The former company hospital is used as a private residence; the company guest house is now a rest home; the former village schoolhouse houses a special care unit for adults.

Ore-slag piles at the mine site have been a source of concern for Quinte-area environmentalists who have claimed arsenic seepage into the Moira River.

But Deloro residents are not alarmed. They note that the mine owners built a small plant with settling ponds to neutralize any arsen c run-off. Wildlife is present at the settling pond area and village children swim in the Moira near where the settling pond empties into the river.

Mr. Muriel Regan, the village volunteer librarian and lifetime area resident has a private well on her property which she uses for washing. She says it also tests okay.

"I get uptight about these arsenic stories and claims of possible stomach cancer," she says.

The village has an active social group, the Deloro Village Social Association. I sponsors Christmas parties for the children, a spring dance, and caters to banquets and other special events.

A recreation committee has provided a children's playground.

Late last December, the Village Social Association. It financial blow when its community hall, council chambers and library were destroyed by fire. .

Included in the loss were 3,500 library books.

But the village council, aided by a special community centre group decided to rebuild and construction was started on a new $40,000 structure to be completed in phases.

Former reeve Thomas Armstrong is the envy of the villagers who would like to see Deloro retain its separate identity.

He points to the comparatively low taxes which even with extra charges for sewer, water and hydro, make for low-lying costs compared to most other municipalities with the same services.

Librarian Mrs. W. Regan

Taxis: Weigh Consequences

By MARG HAYLOCK

PICTON —It's getting more and more difficult to stop and shop in Picton because of a lack of parking facilities. But town council has presented an original proposal to gain three additional prime slots.

Council, in its wisdom, has voted to abolish a Main Street taxi stand in front of the Royal Hotel, to clear the way for three more metered spaces. Cab drivers are incensed and have organized a petition against council's proposal.

Picton deputy-reeve Don Crookwright shares the cab drivers' dim view of putting the stand off Main Street. In council he pointed out the possible inconveniences of such a move.

His words fell on deaf ears as the proposal passed. It is slated to become effective at the close of 1975 and, if it does, the familiar call of "Taxi" will disappear from Main Street.

The present taxi stand in front of the Royal Hotel is convenient for patrons of the beverage room who may wish a ride home. One Picton merchant who operates a store near the hotel has observed that, if the taxis are forced to move, these patrons undoubtedly will trouble him for the use of his telephone to call a cab. He felt the stand was excellent protection against the drinking driver.

If a pedestrian calls a taxi from a Main Street pay phone he then must wait for it on the street, regardless of the elements. This can be an inconvenience in, cold, wet weather.

Council is right. Picton needs more parking but it also needs a Main Street cab stand. At least two parking slots in front of the Armory Mall have been designated as a delivery entrance. Why permit Mall merchants this convenience while saying "No" to taxi owners?

It is doubtful that three additional parking slots on Main Street would do much to alleviate parking problems. The rental from these unmetered areas now totals $80 per year per taxi. It is unlikely that, by metering the spaces, there would be a substantial increase in revenue.

Since the probable gain of council's proposal is slight it should be weighed carefully against what might be a considerable loss.

Belleville Conveyor Will Move Tar Sands

FORT MCMURRAY, Alta. — Stephens - Adamson Division of Borg-Warner (Canada) Ltd. of Belleville, is nearing completion a $2-million contract for a giant belt conveyor to be brought into operation at the end of this month by Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. at its Athabasca tar sands mine site near here.

The 1,746-foot-long unit will be the seventh and largest belt conveyor to be installed at the site and the second to be supplied by Stephens-Adamson.

It will raise 14,000 tons of excavated tar sands hourly through a series of buckets on excavators and connecting conveyor belts into the 125-foot high extraction plant. The tar sands, which are very sticky and adhesive in summer and contain large frozen lumps in winter, will be conveyed on a 42-inch wide belt at 1,800 feet a minute. The new equipment is designed to operate in temperatures ranging from 90 degrees to 60 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit). The Stephens-Adamson unit will be driven by two 400 horsepower electric motors in tandem.

Once inside the extraction plant the sands are processed to remove sand and water leaving an oily residue. Subsequent processing produces crude oil and such by-products as coke bitumen and sulphur. Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. has estimated that the reserves of recoverable oil contained in the tar sands of Northern Alberta are in excess of 300 billion barrels or nearly as much as the entire known world reserves of conventional oil.

Peaceful Evolution

Where Canada's Indian population is concerned their progress to-date has been one of slow evolution rather than revolution and it is probably as well that this is so.

But it is this slow pace in ensuring Indians their full rights and personal and collective fulfillment that is cause for concern. What is needed is continued peaceful progress, but with something of the drive and determination of revolution while avoiding the excesses that revolution can bring.

As it is, the Indians are so relatively few in number that revolution is out of the question, even if conditions justified it. Disturbing therefore were the events on the Caughnawaga Reserve in recent days. This is the reserve near Montreal where white residents were evicted and now there is tension arising from disposal of the homes. Probably it is no more than a storm in a teapot so to speak; nonetheless there are overtones of racism since it seems some whites remain on the reserve.

Let's hope things will settle down at Caughnawaga, which is home incidentally of the celebrated Kahn-Tineta Horn fashion model turned Indian rights campaigner. Ten years have past since Miss Horn first came to prominence as a virtually lone public advocate for her people. Many new voices have arisen since, some speaking with the proverbial forked tongues as Miss Horn herself frequently has done. Now with motherhood intervening, she seems to have dropped from public view.

The image and civil rights of Indians meanwhile are served well in Canada by such as live in our Quinte region, by Chief Hill and his Mohawks of the Tyendinaga reserve, where Indian traditions are kept alive and relations with the rest of the populace are good.

They are served also by new initiatives such as the recently-opened Woodland Indian Cultural Educational Centre in Brantford, which is dedicated to the revitalizing of history books to give a more accurate picture of the role of this band in North America.

Peace and prosperity and opportunities for complete self-fulfilment are what we wish these original inhabitants of Canada, as is the right of all citizens of this country.

Legendary Region

They are "banana republics" all right—the countries of Central America — but there is a lot more to them than just this one product.

There is even more to the processing of bananas for export than most of us imagine of, as witness William Kennedy's fascinating film Highway to Panama, this season's first in the Kiwanis travel series.

Here were the lush tropical vegetation and cracked volcanic mountainsides of legend, a Pacific coastline of consummate beauty where it touches El Salvador, and Spanish colonial architecture blending with ultra modern office blocks and churches.

Indians, in the marketplace and along country roads, we also associate with this region and Mr. Kennedy filmed one colorful band on islands off the Panamanian coast thought to have originated not in Soviet Asia but in the Malaysian peninsula some 4,000 years ago. Scenes too of the old and mysterious Mayan civilization.

Most interesting perhaps were the glimpses of the young Latins of European background, the well-groomed and well-mannered youngsters of a business college in Guatemala City for example who combine folk dancing in recreational periods with their studies. And the young men of an Agricultural College in Honduras who are helping to bring a region still relatively backward into the 20th century scheme of things.

Mr. Kennedy and his wife drove most of the way and in a few years time, with completion of the last section of the Inter-American highway through the Darien Gap, it will be possible to drive north of the Arctic Circle all the way to the tip of South America. An incredible prospect to be sure, and one that will open up more links in this fast shrinking world.

At Up To $60,000 A Year Salary By Next Year

The Tortuous Consultative Process Of The Bureaucracy

BY RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — With federal senior deputy ministers at Level Three scheduled to get an annual $60,000 next year, the interchange between top executives in the public service and in business and industry will be accelerated.

This system of "lend-lease" of manpower from the executive suite of private enterprise to public service was pioneered in the years of World War Two by the then Munitions and Supply Minister, the dynamic C. D. Howe.

He borrowed these "can-do" types with specialized industrial executive skills at a bargain basement $1-a-year to gear up Canada's war production.

He got them for the token $1-a-year because at public service salary levels he could not begin to pay them what they were worth.

And they responded out of patriotism, impelled both by the urge for national service and attraction of the excitement and satisfaction of personal involvement with the stimulating Clarence Decatur Howe, the great "get-it-done" expediter of wartime Ottawa.

They were known as directors general, and with Mr. Howe as their leader, transformed Canada in only a few high pressure years from basically an agricultural to an industrial economy.

Both C. D. Howe and the great and driving sense of urgency are long gone.

Coming to Ottawa now in this "executive exchange" with the government is an entirely different deal.

Industry posts some of its top men to the federal bureaucracy for a year or two-year tour of duty, not so much out of a sense of national service but to learn the ways of big government and how to get along with it.

For as government increasingly intrudes on the private sector, it becomes more and more of a necessity of business to have men who understand it and be understood.

That is how an industrial executive, currently working at a top administrative job in one of the Ottawa departmental headquarters offices the other day explained it.

He says he has found the transition demanding.

The pressure in the executive suites of Government Ottawa is to slow down and accommodate, he explains, to the slow, deliberate and time-consuming pace of the decision - by - committee process.

The conference, he finds, is the indispensable tool.

If there is a problem, the meeting is the place to find the solution.

And so his days are filled with meetings, mid-and.

He gets to see only a small, if important sector of what he suspects must be a continuing non-stop series of meetings at which Services, tiers of, in a sort of human capillary process from the lower exploratory to the upper decision - recommendation levels.

To him, it seems to take forever before a decision is reached.

Suppose, he said, you are on loan to Public Works or Supply and Services, two of the departments perhaps closer than most in their operations to business and industry.

He was at "another of those endless meetings," as he calls them, the other day.

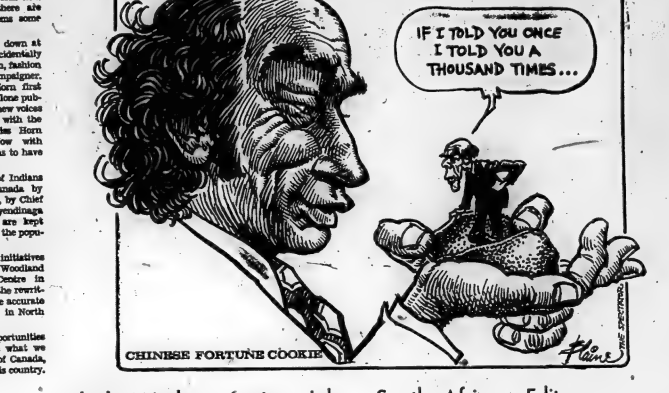
"The point of discussion was the price the department was going to have to pay to, well, let us call him a supplier.

"The objection had been raised that the price was $2,000 higher than somebody thought it should be.

"Involved altogether in the total project was something like $14 million.

"And here we were, 19 of us around a table, arguing about $2,000.

"I took a look around the table and figured up the salaries we were all getting.



"It meant we were wasting whole days — finally it turned out to be a day and a half, because we were called back into session later — 19 men, drawing perhaps an annual total $300,000, using all that time. That is where the waste is: time and talent."

In any ordinary business or industrial operation, he claims, a decision on a $2,000 possible overrun in a $14 million deal would have taken "somebody responsible" only a few minutes.

By next year, according to Prime Minister Trudeau's recent compilation for the Commons, there will be eight in the federal public service executive suite making up to $60,000; another 25 up to $50,000; a further 30 up to $45,000.

Altogether, polled the PM, 83 such mandarins.

Below this, descending echelons, in the hundreds, even perhaps the thousands, less senior, but still well - paid executives making the meeting a way of bureaucratic life.

Black Workers Losing Jobs – South African Editor

Companies in South Africa have been under pressure to raise the pay of black workers. Since 12 black miners were killed by police during a riot in recent weeks Press reaction around the world if anything has become even more adverse to South Africa and to the policies of apartheid — defined variously as racial discrimination or separate development. How do the South Africans view the issue of higher wages for non-whites? Here is some recent comment in The South African Financial Gazette by editor Hendrik Spruit.

The propaganda orgy aimed at stampeding employers into giving higher pay to Nonwhites irrespective of other considerations is having at least one of several sad repercussions which Gazette writers, treading a lonely path, forecast earlier this year.

Black workers are being fired. And businessmen, in their planning for the future, are considering more capital-intensive operations which will provide fewer jobs for low-paid employees.

So I was pleased to see in the annual report of the Industrial Development Corporation, released this week, a warning that: "Rising labor costs may stimulate attempts to achieve higher productivity, but insofar as this is achieved by way of a relatively higher capital input, it might jeopardize the general objective of increasing employment opportunities, especially for the Black."

Many argue that higher wages will jolt our industrialists out of their cheap labor mentality and that consequent fast-rising productivity will accelerate our economic growth rate, leading in time to the greater quantity of job opportunities that all agreed the country need.

But as Mr. Jan Klabbof, Chairman of the IDC, pointed out at a luncheon that kind of breakthrough could take 15 to 20 years to achieve. He and I both believe that we can't wait that long.

I prefer the strategy which has been and is being used so successfully in the economic miracle countries of the East — Japan, Taiwan, South Korea, Hong Kong — of providing jobs for everyone first, even at very low pay. The competitive advantages of these lands lead to rapid economic expansion, then as labor shortages appear, market forces spur incomes and living standards upwards.

Although there are no official figures on Black unemployment in South Africa, according to a recent Focus on Key Economic Issues by Mercbank, the percentage of economically active Blacks who were unemployed was 4.7 in 1946, 8.4 in 1960 and 11.1 in 1970. The proportion today can hardly be lower than in 1970.

And all the time more and more Blacks are flooding on to the labor market. Once again, there are no official figures. But between 1960 and 1970 the number of age groups as revealed by the 1970 population census, about 200,000 blacks have reached or will reach the age of 16 this year. Almost all the males and about one-third of the females can be assumed to have entered or be about to enter the labor force — say 250,000 people.

How many of those do you think we have provided jobs for? I frankly don't know. But I suspect that a substantial proportion will remain unemployed, or will be underemployed in the agricultural sector.

I would-rather see them all given useful jobs at R30 (Thirty Rand) a month, than only half of them at double that.

Liberal Leadership

A Bob Nixon With More Fire Could Be Winner

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bu'eau

TORONTO — If Robert Nixon could get mad and stay mad he probably wouldn't be any question about who the next Liberal leader would be—and perhaps the next premier.

Over the past while the house has seen Mr. Nixon mad on various occasions, particularly about the Ontario Hydro report. He comes across as quite a person, and a person the public never sees.

He is strong, definite and vital, with fire in his voice that commands attention. This is not the nice guy, but the determined battler and exciting man.

If he could carry this image before the public there is little question he would make it interest, but he doesn't seem able to do this.

Perhaps he can only reach a fast tempo in actual debate. Perhaps he feels it is not good politics to appear excited in public.

Whatever it is he is quite a different man outside the house than in it.

And you have to feel that the battling opposition leader in house sees would do much better than the cloistered and reasonable man the public sees, if he could only transfer him.

Incidentally in the present battle that has been occupying the house over the Hydro report there have been some interesting political played.

Government spokesmen led by Treasurer John White and Energy Minister Darcy McKeough have been trying to mount a counter-offensive by claiming that the opposition in its attack is simply out to get them, and the other to attack.

And so of course in attacking a government one attacks the people in it, and quite properly.

There is a line, of course. Malicious personal attack is outside the boundary. But if a man has shown weakness that affects his capacity to govern he is wide open for attack.

And in crying foul Mr. White and Mr. McKeough don't recognize this, though both are knowledgeable enough parliamentarians to know it.

Business college students, sales help in local stores and personnel of the RCAF at No. 2 R.D. combined their energies here Wednesday to alleviate acute shortage of labor at the Quinte Valley Canning factory, where hundreds of tons of corn would have spoiled but for their assistance.

Lifting of the quarantine at the Trenton Air Station, where airmen had been isolated in the district because of the threat of infantile paralysis, was responsible for the shortage of labor at the canning factory.

Picton lost the Ontario Intermediate B. baseball championship when defeated at Guelph by the Southampton Fishermen by a score of 8 to 7.

The game was played in crotched weather. Ken Colling, Sports Editor of the Ontario Intelligencer says: "Defeated but in no way disgraced is the team of the Vanover-managed crew." Thanks to the business and professional men of Prince Edward County for baseball also in Ontario were able to listen to a running radio account of the first half of the game given by Wes McKnight of radio station CFRB and to the second half which was described by Geo. At a meeting of the supporters of the City of hockey in Belleville, it was decided to request the city council to submit a by-law to the ratepayers at the coming municipal elections with the object of obtaining the sum of $25,000 to be used for the purpose of building a hockey arena. Ed Thomas will manage the Intermediate and Junior teams this season.

"And they feared exceedingly, and said one to another, What manner of man is this, that even the wind and the sea obey him?" Mark 4:41

We need to get this in our mind. "He is Master of everything", and when we put Him first nothing can hoss us around. "Greater is He that is in you than He that is in the world."

Break-in At Club

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

In reference to the letter signed "Observer" regarding the 17-year-old youth and companions, I would very much like to put the record straight. The 418 Wing was not purchased to be used for the health and recreation of today's youth. The 418 Wing is a Wing or Branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force Association, an Airforce Veteran's Club which reaches from coast to coast. It is similar to the other Veteran Clubs who, carry "a lavish stock, with a tempting variety of refreshments".

In reading this article one would almost think the writer is condoning a clear case of break, enter and theft, which was proven in a court of law.

We have in our organization a number of sins and objectives such as charitable work, helping in community programs and most certainly is behind any youth program, to be specific the minor soccer and the Cheshire Home.

In conclusion, I am utterly amazed that any law-abiding citizen would take this point of view, putting the blame on the victim so to speak. Is this what we are teaching our youth?

Bureau Praised

Editor,
The Intelligencer

While I believe it would be true to say that England is famous for its justice, it is probably less widely known that the protection of its laws reaches the individual through the services of its Citizens Advice Bureaus.

Established over 36 years ago, every town has one, and it is run on almost the same lines as that of Mr. Scriven's Bureau. In a town this size, ours is a first!

Human nature being what it is, the need is obvious. To grow at a calm we must grow as individuals and what better way than to offer help and support for a group dedicated to helping those who alone and un-aided, cannot help themselves.

WELL-WISHER

The Water We Drink

Editor,
The Intelligencer

I would like to reply to the letter of Mr. James M. Scriven: "Purification Plant Here Soon" and Dick Bond.

I heartily concur . . . it does need a plant for "purification."

We all know that the water we drink is tested regularly and is chemically fit to drink. Also, I accept without reservation that Mr. Scriven and his staff are fully competent in the operation of their plant and dedicated to doing a good job.

Probably the Belleville plant is one of the most up to date in the country and I am sure we all appreciate it. Right now it operates "24 hours a day, 365 days a year" and I hope 366 days each Leap year.

However, Mr. Scriven is sticking his head in the sand if he believes the chemically fit water that flows from the plant is acceptable as pleasant to drink, free of odor or free of taste. The water from my taps sometimes stinks and always tastes as if it had been used to wash the floor with before it left the tap.

It is a practice that has better than 200,000 fresh water lakes it is a sad commentary there that we feel we must drink to drink the water untreated.

Charismatic Movement Spreads Throughout Bible Belt in U.S.

By KATHRYN JOHNSON

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — The charismatic movement, which some ministers call "a gift of the Holy Spirit" and others, "the devil at work," is spreading in churches throughout the United States Bible belt.

The power to heal, to work miracles, to speak in the known tongues are gifts the "spirit people" believe proclaim the rebirth of Christianity.

The charismatic development, which takes its origin from the day of Pentecost in early Christianity, began in segments of mainline Protestantism about a decade ago and, most afterward, in Roman Catholicism.

In its spread into the South, it has sparked opposition, particularly from fundamentalists who accuse the charismatic renewal" with unambitious, sectarian "holy rollers."

At least three Baptist ministers in Georgia have been ousted or forced to resign from their churches because they supported the charismatic movement or prayed in unknown tongues.

Deacons in a Southern Baptist church in Atlanta recently stripped one of the church's members of every church office he held because he was leading a small group in speaking in tongues, in "convorcising demons," and teaching that Christ speaks to "genuine" Christians in an audible voice.

A prominent Methodist minister, however, calls the charismatic movement one of the major forces that will shape the church in the 21st century."

A number of monks at the Trappist Monastery of the Holy Ghost in Conyers, Ga., have embraced the movement. Several study groups in Atlanta composed of Lutherans, Baptists, Episcopalians and Catholics meet weekly for impromptu-songs, prayer and glossolalia—speaking in tongues.

"I really don't understand why there is such opposition except some people of our denomination think it's of the devil," said Rev. York Chambliss, former pastor of the First Baptist Church of Smyrna, Ga.

"I've been nonplussed by the opposition to the charismatic movement, when it's clearly given in the word of God, in the Scripture," said Chambliss, who recently resigned as pastor after having served 23 years.

Glossolalia, the Greek word for tongue, is the issue that creates the most tension among ardent fundamentalists.

Rev. Roy Pettway, an Episcopalian minister in Atlanta whose church is active in the charismatic movement, says glossolalia is "a simple yielding of our tongues to the Lord, letting the Holy Ghost praise the Lord, let the Holy Spirit pray through us."

Another theologian says the current glossolalia surge is "the unpaid bills of the church coming due." Church services are so sterile and the church "so professional, that the people are turning in desperation to such manifestations as speaking in tongues."

Rev. Ben Johnson, director of the Methodist Institute of Church Renewal, says the movement is growing in such proportions that it cannot be denied. The controversy, he said, arises "because there's no control placed on the Holy Spirit."

"Where do you go? Who can say you don't have a charismatic experience? What authority? Whatever the existing structure, that movement can roll over it like a bulldozer. Incredible," he said.

"It creates most controversy in an implied demand that other persons have the same kind of experience and make the same affirmations."

Johnson said the movement arises in part from the refusal of mainline denominations to allow enough emotion in services.

The liturgical denominations are more open to the movement, he added, because the structures of the Catholic, Lutheran and Episcopal churches are fairly secure. In churches where there is less control, many find the charismatic movement frightening.

Pilgrims Can See God In Nature

By Rev. Dr. Gordon C. Smith

One morning, more than 2,000 years ago, some villagers in Palestine started on their pilgrimage. They travelled on foot. Their goal was Jerusalem.

For centuries, devout Jews had been making the journey. As these folk went along, they sang pilgrim-songs traditional to their land.

One of the songs was reserved for use at a particular point. As the pilgrims finally neared the Holy City and caught sight of the hills on which it was built, they burst into Psalm 121.

The men in the company would sing, "Shall I lift up my eyes to the hills? From whence does my help come? Our help is it comes from the Lord, who made heaven and earth!"

The women and children would respond, "He will not let your foot be moved; he who keeps you will not slumber. Behold, He who keeps Israel will neither slumber nor sleep."

Now the structure of the song changed. The affirmations and responses became shorter.

The men would chant, "The Lord is your keeper; the Lord is your shade on your right hand." — women and children would reply, "The sun shall not smite you by day, nor the moon by night."

Then the men would resume. "The Lord will keep you from all evil; He will keep your life." Now everybody would unite in a climactic testimony. "The Lord will keep your going out and your coming in from this time forth and for evermore."

Man is the only animal who naturally looks upward. A pilgrim is mankind at his best. The wisest and most sensitive people see God through nature. They are inspired by the spiritual view that God will justify Himself.

The late Principal Robert C. Wallace of Queen's University described this pilgrim bard. Internationally honored geologist that he was, he wrote in the Queen's Quarterly a message that has become an abiding part of the university's literature. It was entitled, "As a Child Look Back."

"As a scientist," said Dr. Wallace, "I feel that there is a fascination in the whole processes, a power that gives the freedom of choice and an eternal hope. We call that power God."

He continued, "No one who truly loves nature can be satisfied that life is but a fluke. In the contemplation of the sunset or the storm, the splendor in the rock or the brilliance of the butterfly, the mind is caught up into a relationship that is beyond the world of passing forms. We reach out into the eternal."

Wallace of Queen's concluded: "On that basis, and on that basis only, can life have a meaning of which self-sacrifice is an that basis that men and women, weary with the burdens of their shoulder, find the strength to go on."

The pathfinders of our race remain people of pilgrim soul and song. They lift up their eyes to the hills. With insight and courage, faith and joy they journey towards the City of God. May you and I be with them.

Duplessis Subject Of New Musical

TORONTO (C) — The late Maurice Duplessis, the Quebec premier who held a tight rein on provincial politics for 18 years, will be the central figure in a new musical play by Toronto playwright Carol Bolt.

"He was such an overpowering figure," says Miss Bolt of the Union Nationale premier who died in 1959.

"Even his most ardent political enemies couldn't help but like him.

"I wanted someone who could be really heroic, if that doesn't sound too strange a way to describe someone who certainly didn't go around rescuing fair damsels."

Miss Bolt, 31, best known for documentaries, has chosen the 12-year legal battle of a Montreal restaurant owner with the Duplessis government as a focus for her play.

The premier personally ordered the 1946 cancellation of Frank Roncarelli's liquor license because the owner was posting bail for Jehovah's Witnesses arrested by police.

By the time the restaurant won his case, a dozen years had passed and his business was in ruins.

Church Accepts Credit

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic church here has started accepting credit cards in lieu of cash donations.

The Coronation of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church launched the plan Sunday as a means of boosting its income.

Paul Totaro, a member of the church's finance committee, said credit cards aid parishioners in budgeting fixed amounts for church contributions.

"A church can't survive on 50-cent checks and dimes, but often all that's left in people's pockets on a Sunday after a week of paying bills," he said.

With credit cards, many church members have begun making gifts of $15 to $30, Totaro said.

Rev. Eugene Raydan, pastor, said the credit cards help people include the church in their general array of financial responsibilities.

He said that in this way, people come to think of the church as a regular obligation, much like a grocery bill, telephone charge or bank payment.

Playing Is Learning At YMCA Nursery

A four-year-old is painting at an easel in a too-big smock.

A shout.

Teacher Teacher — he took my —

With the aid of eight Loyalist Early Childhood Education students, Mrs. Sutherland supervises some 40 three and four year olds in three nursery school groups.

Far more than just a pastime supervisor of children's play, Mrs. Sutherland works to make play time a learning time for the children.

"We're concerned with three areas of their development," she says.

"We'd like them to begin to understand who they are. When they ask themselves who am I we want the answer to be that they're worthwhile persons who have abilities"

"We want them to develop good relationships with others, too. And to learn that adults are people they can trust."

"Finally we want them to learn about the world they live in."

The children attend nursery school two or three days per week for two-and-a-half hour sessions.

Some parents utilize the time to participate in adult programs at the Y. While they're swimming and exercising, the kids are busy at a variety of tasks.

A make-believe house complete with kitchen is a good place for kids to play at roles, Mrs. Sutherland says, and to express feelings.

"We work for emotional development, too," she points out, "we want to learn to cope with frustration and express their feelings. I think its important if they can articulate how they feel."

"If one knocks down another's building block house, we try to help him understand how he feels — and deal with the fact that though he wants to hit, people aren't for hitting," she says.

"We teach the limits of social behaviour."

Climbers, balls, hoops and tumbling mats are all useful tools in developing large muscle co - ordination, Mrs. Sutherland says.

The nursery school room itself is designed so that the children can operate independently and so that they can be responsible for their play materials.

Shelves that house blocks and toys and other playthings are within easy reach for "putting away."

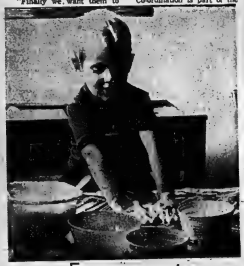
"We want them to discover on their own what they can do with particular media," Mrs. Sutherland says.



The nursery school classes, which still have a few openings for four year olds, cost $18 per month for three weekly sessions and $12 per month for two weekly sessions.

Below, both boys and girls play makes - believe housekeeping in a child-sized kitchen at the nursery school. Rolling out dough and cleaning up afterwards are equally shared tasks.

Successful Living

Loneliness Can Be Beaten

By DORIS CLARK

Growing pains are not easy to take. Who was it said that teen-age years were the best years of our lives?

These are the years when a sheltered child is supposed to become an independent adult. But many loving parents do considerable over - sheltering in the early years, and then considerable over - expecting when their offspring suddenly hit adulthood.

The ideal is for the transition to be gradual: From babyhood on, an individual should be challenged to try things appropriate to his age — or to make him stretch a little beyond that age, encouraging him to explore his enlarging world.

One young woman writes to me with a helpful word or two for those teen - agers who find themselves inadequate to college life away from home:

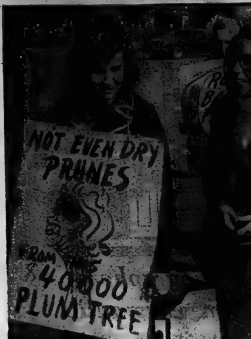
"About that girl who was 19 years old and had never had a boy friend. You advised her to join clubs at university. You forgot to mention something that is very important. Most universities have counselling services (usually referred to as "psych services") that can help enormously.

"The universities employ trained psychiatrists, psychologists and social workers to deal with any type of problem that students might encounter. (This service is included in the tuition fees one pays).

"Believe me — that girl could have been me — I have the same trouble. But last year (my first year at university) a friend told me about the counselling services

"It was hard at first to discuss my problems, but I found a sympathetic listener who could help me better than any friend or relative, simply because I could tell him things that I never would have dreamed of telling my parents. Parents are often too biased to admit their child does have problems!

"After three months of counselling I had more self - confidence than I had ever had before. I am on the right road at last. I am looking forward to resuming these sessions this semester. The counselling is strictly confidential, and no information can be released to anyone outside the counselor's office without the student's permission.



"I would also like to tell that girl that many guys are just as lonely and frustrated about the situation as the girls are.

"Another thing that a girl can do is to make a special effort to help someone else who has the same problems. Loneliness is not too difficult to recognize, and the person she helps will always be her friend."

Thank you! Miss Sophomore. It is hard for the folks at home to even dream of the loneliness or insecurity, or other hang-ups which their tender chick endures when he or she first leaves home. The psych services in our universities report crowded appointment schedules. No college student should hesitate to visit them when panic strikes.

Reasons Found For Rising Food Costs

TORONTO (CP) — The Consumers' Association of Canada has accused the federal government of contributing to food price increases.

"It would be unreasonable to suggest that the Canadian government could have prevented all increased food prices but it is entirely reasonable to expect the government not to add unjustifiable pressures," the association said in a brief prepared for presentation to Beryl Plumptre, chairman of the federal Food Prices Review Board.

Complaints by the association about federal policies included comments on allowing railway freight rates to increase and removal of wheat subsidies.

Removal of the wheat subsidy "is the face of world shortages of wheat aggravated an already unstenable situation. It was only after price increases on vital wheast products had occurred that the policy was reversed."

The brief cited the situation of hog raisers as an example of the problems that developed from export controls. Many farmers found hog raising no longer economically feasible because of limits on the market, but the federal government did not provide a subsidy or deficiency payment.

"This has been reflected in the increased slaughter of breeding sows, many of them pregnant. This can only mean fewer hogs, less pork and higher prices."

The 40,000-member association also criticized Ottawa for failing to implement measures to parents?

Ann Landers

"Just His Wife" Is Good Enough

Dear Ann Landers: Please forgive me for allowing some of the facts in this letter to disguise my identity, but I just can't give it to you straight.

My uncle was lieutenant governor of his state 13 years ago. Every time my husband is mentioned he says, "This is my wife, Gertrude. Her uncle was the lieutenant governor." Occasionally I catch a pained "so-what" look. I want to sink through the floor. I never did care for that introduction but my husband seems to think it's appropriate.

According to him generals, senators, governors and other VIPs retain their titles even though they are no longer in office. He says it is not only correct, but necessary. What about it, Ann? (P.S. I still don't like it.)—Just Plain Gertrude

Dear J.P.G.: It is appropriate (and pleasing, I'm sure) to call a retired officer "General" or use the title "Governor" "Senator" after the fact, but you are none of these, so why flaunt your husband dear, your uncle into the act? Does he feel you need a build-up? Or, does he need it?

Tell him, in no uncertain terms, that you are content to be just his wife and that's the way you want to be introduced.

Dear Ann Landers: Help! Please. What is the best method for a young married couple with a child to tell their parents on both sides to cool it? We don't want to seem unkind or ungrateful.

How many times a day should they phone? How many Sundays in a row should be devoted to parents?

There are distressing questions and we don't have the answers. Do you?—Had It In Ohio

Dear Ohio: No. Nobody has. It depends on a variety of things about which I know nothing. How often do they call? How long do they talk? Do they drop in uninvited? Do they invite you to their home or do they just come to yours? How long do they stay? Do they "take over" your child? Do you accept financial help from them? Expensive gifts? Fewers, such as "kidding," taking the child when you go away on weekends or vacations? Does your spouse like your parents? Are they demanding, boring, tiresome? Or are they good company?

Young married couple should sit down and think about these things and come up with a plan that makes sense to them.

And before you arrive at any conclusions, please remember this: You will never regret it if you put yourself out a little for your folks. Most parents here put themselves out a great deal for their children.

Safe Eating

TORONTO (CP) — One diet expert says he has diet recommended by the Ontario Milk Marketing Board is one of the safest ways of losing three pounds a week. This diet, based on milk, takes into consideration carbohydrates and proteins. Without these essential nutrients, dieting can become dangerous, the expert adds.

Box Office OK

STRATFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Stratford Festival Company ends its 1973 season Saturday with the satisfaction that despite criticism of its main attraction it weathered its box office difficulties.

The company, which will begin rehearsals early in January for a seven-week tour of Australia, had four production running in its main theatre on the banks of the Avon River here, plus five other productions in theatre facilities scattered around town.

The main attraction was Israeli actor Nahum Buchman in the title role of Shakespeare's Othello, which opened June 4 and closes Saturday night. Mr. Buchman, a native of Russia, had won prizes for playing Othello in Hebrew but had never played the role before in English and his troubles with the language damaged his performance.

Stratford officials said, however, that many visitors praised the production over-all and that the season would end with a 80-per-cent record of attendance for the seats available. In theatre circles, this is considered good and Stratford has been highly satisfied in earlier years with 83-per-cent attendance.

Stanfield Biographer Found Him Enigmatic

By JACK TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

In the opening chapter of his book, Stanfield, author Geoffrey Stevens describes the national Progressive Conservative leader as "the man nobody really knows." In the last chapter he writes of Mr. Stanfield at the outset of the 1972 election campaign: "Most of the people were still puzzled by him."

In the 300 pages between those two mentions of Robert L. Stanfield, the writer compiles a wealth of anecdotes and modern political history in what its publishers call as the first complete biography of the Tory leader.

The meticulously-researched book takes the Stanfield history back to 1855 when an ancestor arrived in Canada after an apprenticeship in the English textile centre of Bradford.

It ends with a quotation from a letter by Mr. Stanfield to Finlay MacDonald, his chief of staff during the 1972 election campaign, asking him to stay on and help with an expected new election:

"My own capacity for accepting madness is now substantially unlimited—after two years—and I may soon be ripe for the ultimate—trying to run this country—which you have almost achieved for me."

"I am not a Conservative and feel in no peril of ever becoming one. I do, however, like and respect Mr. Stanfield."

Sometimes the light is dim, G. S. Smith, who took over the premiership of Nova Scotia after Mr. Stanfield declared the federal field, was asked how he felt about the leader. His answer: "Can you define with exactitude why you fell in love with your wife?"

But Conservative Senator Grattan O'Leary calls him "the most liberal, humane and civilized mind on our political landscape."

One incident the author relates concerns a cliff hanger before the Conservative leadership convention in 1967. It was all set for Mr. Stanfield, then premier of Nova Scotia, to run.

Then Mr. Camp received a phone call—he felt he could not run.

He had a report from the treasury that indicated a shortfall in revenues, which meant there would be some sort of budgetary crisis in the province that might require a tax increase," Mr. Camp relates. "He had a minister who had been out drunk and he was going to have to fire him."

It was days before everything was straightened out and Mr. Stanfield agreed to become a leadership candidate.

Visit to Africa Good for Credits

TORONTO (CP) — A six-week adventure with a remote African tribe in Kenya has earned 32 York University students credits in their social science courses.

Studies ranged from soil erosion to witchcraft for the students, who mingled with farmers and townspeople of the Samburu tribe in the village 200 miles north of Nairobi, the capital.

A hunting lodge served as residence and lecture hall where the students heard visiting professors from Nairobi University and Canadians working on research projects in Kenya.

Wild animals wandered around their camp at night. An angry elephant once charged a Land Rover in which some of the students were riding and six suffered attacks of malaria.

"It's the most God-forsaken place I've ever seen," said psychology student Peter Hendrick. "But it's beautiful. The people are beautiful."

Little grows on the dry, rocky plains around Maralal, the students said. The Samburu keep goats and cattle and live almost entirely on milk.

"Once in a while they'd slaughter a goat or a cow and eat meat," said Alexandra Wilde, an anthropology student. "But their staple is milk. They all looked incredibly healthy to me—slim and tall."

Steven Samburu taped songs as the people came to their camp and Mary Wood did a comparative study of witchcraft practised by the Samburu and Kamba tribes.

"One woman was said to have power over storms and another removed thorns from feet by visible charms," Miss Wood said. "I saw some of it done and I think it worked."

David Reiser, a geography student who says he has done a lot of travelling, said the Kenya trip was unequalled.

"I've never had an experience like it," he said of the study tour which cost each student $900. "It really was incredible. The Western influence just wasn't there."

Irish Troubles Scripted

HOLLYWOOD (Reuter) — Actor-singer Richard Harris says he has completed a script on British "brutality" in Northern Ireland's internment camps but is holding up production of the film to see if new political steps there are successful.

"I'll wait and see if the new constitution works," Harris said in an interview Tuesday. "It would be bad to inflame the atmosphere while that is being tried."

The Irish-born Harris said: "I have written a script based on the actual documents of the Irish internees. It is an exposure of British Nazi-style brutalities in the north of Ireland which people are aware of but don't talk about and don't publicize."

Harris said his plea follows an Irish Republican Army (IRA) detainee through an internment camp.

He said he had seen torture marks, including burns, on IRA detainees.

Star of the film Camelot and recording star of the hit song MacArthur Park, Harris has this year seen a resurgence in his career with three films in production and the success of his record Jonathan Livingston Seagull.

He said the film he planned to have no difficulty would cost $600,000. And he is raising the money.

Grit Leadership I:

She's Toiling In Eastern Ridings

This is the weekend when campaigns for the Ontario Liberal leadership begin to have with homestretch frenzy.

As eastern Ontario campaign co-ordinator for one of the major leadership contestants seeking victory at next week's Toronto convention, Mrs. Berry has scanned the vast, demanding assignments in the race.

It's also fascinating.

For the young mother of two — who majored in political science — it's her first inside encounter with the realities of senior-government politics.

Mrs. Berry is one of four co-ordinators working across Ontario for Donald Deacon, MPP York Centre, one of the front-running challengers to party leader Robert Nixon.

It's her job to organize efforts of local Deacon supporters trying to sway party delegates to vote for their candidate.

As such she becomes the contact point for the campaign strategists and Liberal grassroots action in a region reaching from Quebec to the Ottawa River, south to Cornwall.

It's a sprawling territory made up of 41 provincial electoral ridings, with hundreds of delegates and teams of supporters to be lined up in the crucial votes for what is seen as a close contest.

Mrs. Berry spends most of her day on the phone in her Northwood Crescent home. But she also has some travelling to do, promoting Mr. Deacon at local Liberal meetings in the region, tracking information with campaign headquarters.

While the pace has been increasingly demanding, the political involvement has been exhilarating. What she lacks in "political experience she makes up in balanced by enthusiasm.

Her involvement started a couple of months ago when she was asked — as secretary of the provincial Hastings Liberal association — to introduce Mr. Deacon at a Tweed meeting. It was an opportunity to weigh the MPP's qualifications for leadership. Mrs. Berry decided he was the candidate to support.

Mr. Deacon's two main assets, she says, are party organization and getting political feedback back to communities — made sense to her.

"I'm just one of those impatient people that wants the party to get moving," she says.

Its political opponents think it's going nowhere before our eyes. It's going to take effort.

"I think imperative that decisions in local affairs be returned to communities, says Mrs. Berry. ... as she prepares for Toronto, and the culmination of two weeks-long effort.

Without community participation in decisions you have apathy," she adds. "It you have apathy, what happens to democracy?"

Grit Leadership II:

Quinte Organizers See "A Close Contest"

Charles Beles is supporting party leader Robert Nixon.

Jack Bush says he's not yet committed himself.

But there's one certainty shared by all three top Quinte-area Liberal organizers: Next week's provincial party leadership convention in Toronto will be a hard-won contest.

"It's going to be a real down-to-the-line fight," predicts Mr. Bush, Stirling-area contractor and president of the Quinte Riding Liberal Association. I don't think anyone has the convention sewn up."

Along with other area Liberals he believes the fight will finally taper to three challenges: Mr. Nixon, Norman Cafik, MP Ontario, and Donald Deacon, MPP York Centre.

Mr. Cunningham, federal candidate in two elections, is now president of Quinte District Liberals — an organization involving federal and provincial ridings in Hastings, Prince Edward and Northumberland counties — says there's no way of predicting the outcome.

In recent days he has been contacting party convention delegates in the Cobourg — Kingston region on Mr. Cafik's behalf. Mr. Cafik, who represents the Pickering area in Ottawa, was in Belleville to the campaign but has shown potential, says Mr. Cunningham.

There's no organizer without a chance. He could safely predict a straight three-way battle, but candidly believes the political veteran.

"It'll be a very close-run third ballot affair. I feel that the three major contenders, I'd told, a convention is good for the whole party."

Mr. Bates, Melrose farmer and past president of Hastings provincial riding Liberals, is supporting Mr. Deacon.

He's been criticized for not getting out in the ridings enough, but there's a limit to what the party can do.

Next week's convention is significant since it could also be choosing the next Ontario premier, said Mr. Bates.

But what happen in Toronto, at the convention, will decide who is the best leader," he added.

Civil Servants Stage Protest

About 50 civil servants demonstrated Friday dissatisfaction with the government's latest public service contract offer in Belleville Friday.

The protest was an orderly one-hour march in front of the federal building on Dundas Street during the workers' lunch hour. When the hour was up they went back to work.

The demonstrators, clerical workers, program administrators and regulatory workers — dissatisfied with a government pay increase offer of seven per cent over three years.

The offer is three per cent the first year, and two per cent for the other years.

Original demand of the bargaining agents for the public service was for 30 per cent a year.

The demonstration was planned to be as orderly and least disruptive as possible.

"We are not against government-time in my protest," said spokeswoman Ann Hadley, Local 112, Clerical and Regulatory Workers. "And we are not disrupting the duties (federal) departments.

"Our complaint is not against our employer (here in Belleville) but against the federal government," Ms. Ottawa. We hold no animosity toward our employers here.

"The federal government doesn't want to give us pay to keeping with the rise in the cost of living."

The dissatisfied workers claim that the government offer is not enough to match an eight per cent rise in the cost of living.

Fund At $40,000

The United Way campaign has had a reached more than 30 per cent of its $140,000 goal it was announced today.

Campaign chairman Mrs. Esther Dolan reported that contributions to date total $40,128.

So far, the industrial sector of the campaign has come up with the highest contribution total — $12,250. But, Mrs. Sisson noted, the response from the educational sector had been also active.

"The response has been just terrific," she said.

Special names section has months as of $5,844; public services federal, provincial and municipal employees, $5,000; professional sector $4,563, the financial sector, $5,697; commercial sector $5,767.

Officially this year's United Way campaign runs until the end of October. But, Mrs. Sisson said money would keep coming in throughout November.

She said there was some concern about contributions from the commercial sector which takes in small businesses.

But all businesses have been canvassed, but Mrs. Sisbon expressed hope that this sector would continue sending in money.

"We need their support," she said.

Northern Expands Jobs

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

Northern Electric Belleville's biggest industrial plant, is planning an expansion.

Not just in the workforce, but in working space as well. Already about 100 hourly-rated men and women workers have been hired at the Sidney Street plant; since the end of the 18-week strike, July 14.

This week-end, the company is busy moving equipment from the Sidney Street plant to the old Amplifone building on Dundas Street.

About 35 workers, mostly women, will start work there after most of the equipment has been set up. Another 30 workers will follow.

The supervisory personnel will continue as before with the Sidney Street department head and George Madden and Gary Kent, assistant managers.

The move to Amplifone will mean an increased total of working space for Northern Electric of about 15,000 square feet, 9,000 of it for manufacturing.

Manufactured at the Dundas Street plant will be key systems units, key systems panels and key telephone units.

"We are moving to the Amplifone plant to create more space to allow us to expand. The demand for certain types of systems has increased and we are expanding to satisfy that demand," there is a good demand for electronic PBXs (small switchboards)" said Jim Hennebery, plant manager.

The area vacated at Sidney Street will be used for assembly of printed circuit boards, fuses and data

The Dunsek Street building was occupied by the Unemployment Insurance Commission for files and clerical work before it moved out two or three weeks ago.

UIC's rent contract was to the end of this year. It was terminated at the end of September to allow Northern Electric to move in.

Northern Electric signed a two-year lease to rent the building with a year option to

"If we didn't get extra space when we did we would have had to move some of the jobs out of Belleville," said manufacturing manager Phil Gibbon. "We had to have a building right away and the UIC building was the one."

said Mr. Gibbon.

"We introduced our new electronic PBX last fall," said Mr. Hennebery. "It's doing well too. The market demand for systems is there. We manufacture them at this time," he said.

"Our plant on Sidney Street is full to capacity. Something had to give, so we moved after additional space," said Mr. Hennebery.

The Sidney Street plant which employs, about 1,220 people, has about 240,000 square feet space, with 170,000 for manufacturing.

It is expected that more workers will be moved to the Dundas Street plant once work picks up.

The equipment move to Dundas Street will take up all this weekend and part of next weekend.

Being moved will be testing machines, a skin-packing machine which wraps a unit in plastic, work benches and assembly tools and about 100 feet of conveyor belt.

The move is to be in smooth and least disruptive as possible. The only difference for workers is the disruption resume their jobs Monday in a new location.

Belleville woman Janette Berry has 41 constituencies to cover seeking convention delegates' votes for Liberal leadership bidder Donald Deacon. There are three others: Pendinnaga farmer Joe Hanley, delegate from Hastings.

Education Beat

Yes, Right Here In Belleville

By LENNY WILLIAMSON

She told of a little boy in Belleville assigned who was habitually beaten, underfed and dirty. And surprisingly, he had trouble learning and his principal got him referred to the hospital's child health clinic. The child's parents found counselling to talk to the principal and his secretary ran a shuttle service driving the child to hospital. He was diagnosed as hyperactive and medication was prescribed. But, mother refused to pick up the free medication at the hospital. The principal and secretary rose to the occasion again.

The Children's Aid Society was called in, but when a worker visited at the home, the father was abusive and threatening. Exit the Children's Aid.

A public health nurse befriended the child and made visits to his house, gone beyond the call of duty, as these nurses often do, helped the youngster with his reading. Unknown to the nurse, her visits aggravated the situation. The child's mother and older sister resented the extra attention the child had from the nurse. It all big happened in the city of Belleville, where, we are confident, no child goes hungry to bed at night, or can be wantonly abused.

This story may have a happy ending. The day after the teacher's report, the Children's Aid mustered its forces for another assault on the problem.

Before anyone gets the wrong idea, let it be perfectly clear we are not criticising any of the social agencies or services concerned with this case. There is a grey area in society into which social agencies are often prevented from exploring because of the strict limits placed on their activities by law and their constitutions.

Because of the restrictions placed on these agencies, there are still many hungry, neglected, disadvantaged children right here in our city — borderline cases that public assistance can't touch.

"You wouldn't believe how many there are," says one such student volunteer. "They never get enough to eat; they're always hungry; nobody ever combs their hair, they're dirty and ragged. You just want to gather them up and run away with them."

These are not so-called "welfare bums." These are defenceless children trapped in a situation not of their making, a situation they are powerless to change.

Perhaps there is a place for private intervention here. Perhaps it would involve wading in where angels fear to tread.

In every school neighborhood there are a few public-minded, combing his hair, seeing that he gets to appointments.

It can be argued that such intervention is dangerous. The wrong kind of meddlers could do more harm than good. The Good Samaritans might be jeopardy from angry parents. But a case like such child attends our schools we have a responsibility to take the risk.

The main difficulty is organizational — getting the right surrogate parents and putting them in touch with the right people in the right agencies.

But we owe it to these children, to the community, to their who would joyfully just gather them up and run away with them."

Rehabilitation Week

For this reason the week of October 22-27 has been set aside as Rehabilitation Week '73 at Belleville General Hospital.

Day sessions will be open only to nursing and paramedical personnel, members of allied professions and agencies. But all-night sessions will be open to the public.

Starting at 8 p.m. Monday at BGH's Education Hall and continuing at the same time each Friday night, the sessions will deal with a different subject each night.

There are: Monday — Care of the Injured; Tuesday — Care of the Disabled; Wednesday — Child Care; Thursday — Care of the Mentally Ill; Friday — Care of the Aged.

The closed day sessions which start at 8.30 a.m. will deal with the same areas: On Saturday, Oct. 27, a Careers Day has been arranged by the hospital in co-operation with Quinte Community Board of Education and Roman Catholic School Separate School Board.

The public sessions are free and last two hours. An open forum will provide an opportunity for local residents to question experts and offer ideas.

Those taking part are Dr. William Ghent, professor of surgery at Queen's University; Dr. H. A. Mustard, BGH surgeon; J. Prof Wills, General Motors vehicle safety engineer; Whipper Billy Watson, representing the Ontario Society for Crippled Children; Dr. Mercer Rang, a pediatric orthopaedic surgeon at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children.

As Mental Health Day, Oct. 25, coincides with Rehabilitation Week, a mental health program is being included. Participants will include Dr. R. B. Cann, BGH department of psychiatry director and nurses, social workers and psychologists.

Local Data Differs with Shulman's

Local medical officials Friday produced statistics which, in effect, challenge statements and date on deaths from cancer and respiratory ailments, linked to possible Belleville-area pollution by Dr. Morton Shulman.

But, at the same time, Dr. H. Lenk, health officer for Hastings and Prince Edward counties, cautioned against the rigid interpretation of all statistics for reliably defining local situations.

It is also impossible to statistically relate stomach cancer to arsenic contamination at this point in time, he said. There is no arsenic threat from the Moira River since no community directly uses the river for drinking water, said health officer.

Meantime, in Toronto, Dr. Shulman, New Democratic Party MPP for High Park, and Environment Minister James Auld challenged each other's date on Moira pollution and causes of stomach cancer in Hastings County.

The local statistics were researched by Dr. Lenk and Dr. R.G. Anderson, Belleville General Hospital medical director. They assembled their figures following a controversy fired after Dr. Shulman recently inspected areas of alleged river contamination.

This averaged at 82 per 100,000 against a provincial average of 142 and the 168.3 local attributed to Dr. Shulman.

There were seven deaths from stomach cancer, a ratio of 7.5 per 100,00, against a provincial average of 9.9 Dr. Shulman has "instanced the occurrence is high."

Pneumonia listed 23 — victims, or 34.5 per 100,000 against a provincial average of 21.1 and is attributed to Dr. Shulman.

Both local medical officials said their date was based on the Ontario Vital Statistics, a published record.

But much data is affected by many variables, both men said. Patients from elsewhere may die locally. The same holds for Bellevilians and county residents, whose fatal illnesses may be diagnosed in other community, but who may die in larger hospital centres.

In a small area, even a single statistic could alter the record, Dr. Lenk said.

"What we've done is try to produce statistics as good as possible from a source as reliable as you can find," said Dr. Anderson. "But you have to be awfully careful in interpreting the best data."

Dr. Lenk said it is not now possible to statistically link stomach cancer to arsenic contamination because such malignancies may take years to become manifest — and be discovered.

He did not believe the area had smog problems — which Dr. Shulman cited — respiratory ailments — comparable to those of larger centres.

"I am not sure we have more influenza or respiratory infections here than anywhere else," said the health officer.

Both officials were scheduled to present their findings to local environmentalists next Tuesday. But, they agreed to release them Friday after a request from Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Mayor Jeffrey said she was prompted by the fact the issue had again been publicized in the exchange between Dr. Shulman and Mr. Auld.

"Politicians have a responsibility to be using statistics in the way Dr. Shulman used them," said

Shulman Challenges Auld on Arsenic

TORONTO -- Dr. Morton Shulman (NDP-High Park) disagrees with environment minister James Auld on the extent and effects of arsenic levels in the Moira River basin.

Mr. Auld told the legislature Friday that samples taken from Moira River near Belleville "indicate improvement" and the figure is now 22 parts per million, but dropped to .94 p.p.m. this year, he reported.

He did indicate arsenic concentrations in the river were risen. A year ago, the reading was .06 at the High-way 7 station and now while this year they average .15 there.

Dr. Shulman told the Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer he learned from Mr. Auld's ministry earlier that two years the arsenic content in both bodies of water had "exactly doubled."

He also received figures from M. W. Harper, research officer with the health ministry, showing incidents of cancer and influenza in Hastings and Prince Edward counties provincial average.

Last year's totals show 168.3 persons per 100,000 with cancer in the two counties compared to 148.8 in Ontario. Presumed arsenic levels were found to occur nearly twice as often (49 per 100,000 persons compared to 28 provincially) in Hastings and Prince Edward.

Mr. Auld said, "in regard to the questions of arsenic concentrations having a causal effect in cancer of the stomach cases in the county the statistics indicates that this is not the case."

The Minister also stated there is no record of drinking water in Hastings County reaching the maximum level of 1 p.p.m. in arsenic content. Regarding health hazards to livestock at the land, he reported "there is no danger to human health from the consumption of meat products."

Mr. Auld said there were 30 cases of stomach cancer detected in Belleville and Trenton Hospitals over the last three years, about 15 percent below the provincial figure per capita.

Dr. Shulman said the minister's reference to those figures was misleading since many persons with stomach cancer are sent directly to Princess Margaret Hospital in Toronto.

Arsenic compounds in the river have been traced to a years-old smelter stockpile at Deseronto, Mr. Auld reported the company is scheduled to complete further improvements to his remedial treatment facilities this fall.

Justice: It Grinds Slowly

By COLIN BRUCE

Ontario's court system is looking more each day like a literary Dred's assembly line, with justice doled out by an overworked judge.

Anyone who has had the gumption to fight a traffic ticket and has gone to trial in court, will tell friends to pay the price and forget it. The principle it's usually not worth the wait.

Not to say you are guilty before tried, but by the time you tell the judge what happened you've had ample time to resent the bureaucracy of the system and the small's pace set by the presiding wheels of justice.

Like a relentless stream the cases come up, the Crown says a little and defence usually says more than a little then both parties argue what the judge breaks it up and another soul has had his say.

On and on it goes and pretty soon you begin asking yourself why you didn't pay the parking ticket and mark it up to experience or whatever.

Everything from traffic tickets to preliminary murder hearings are being put to the Judge while the throng of witnesses, accused, and a small force of police sit, practising aloofness and searching for a more comfortable seating posture.

There has to be a better and faster way. Like increasing appointing specific charges to special courts, hiring more judges or setting up courts without judges to handle day-to-day business. Hastings court rooms have a long way to go if they are to catch up to Henry's Dredd's for every two minutes.

Some judges will tell you, you can't grease the wheels of justice. For the investigation of crime, selling it all in a day's work; for the accused it's a hell of a day.

But if you're a witness, you are obliged to come and wait with the accused for your day's pay. For sitting in court, the witness fee is $4 a day if you're as badly off as the accused, you are compensated five cents a mile and $5 for the day.

By the time you pay the fine that parking ticket it doesn't matter, because you feel acquitted when the court officer lets you out of the room.

OAKLAND (AP) — Back home and backed against the wall, Oakland Athletics began their last stand today against New York Mets in the 1973 World Series.

"If we don't win Saturday, I said Oakland's Reggie Jackson. "Then we'll go to Shea Stadium or we'll get the small end of the pay checque."

Seaver and Hunter were matched in Game 3 at New York's Shea Stadium tonight at 8 p.m. Nearly 50,000 fans were expected to be on hand with the Mets holding a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven affair.

"They've got the big man going," said Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson about Seaver. "We've got to get to him or we'll get the small end of the pay cheques."

"They've got the big man going," said Oakland outfielder Reggie Jackson about Seaver. "We've got to get to him or we'll get the small end of the pay cheques."

"I'm not beaten yet," said Jackson, the American League's home run and RBI leader with 32 and 117 this season.

"And we were on hand to greet them as they came back after Thursday night's 2-1 win in the Mets' den.

"I'm glad we're back playing in Oakland," said Hunter. "The New York weather is something I'd like to do without when I'm pitching.

"When it dips into the 40s, you can't keep your hand off the mound. A few of the pitchers have had to leave the game in the late innings."

Not only were the Athletics annoyed by the weather in New York, they also were bothered by the Mets. New York went two of the three games in Shea Stadium's loo box.

"We've been dominated," said Oakland manager Dick Williams. "We got only three hits Thursday night. Tonight Wednesday. And we're a good hitting ball club.

"We've hit balls hard, but their defence is tremendous. Everytime I take batting practice stop scooping up the ball behind second base and throwing one of our guys out. They've scouted us tremendously well."

If Oakland wins today, the seventh and deciding contest will be played here Saturday with Jon Matlack of New York facing Ken Holtzman in a duel of left-handers.

As the Canadian Football Conference's Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts now share first place, one point ahead of Montreal Alouettes and two ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

The weekend could be sole possessor of first place in the Eastern Football Conference this weekend, but there's still 48 hours.

Montreal, at home to Winnipeg Blue Bombers Saturday can end the second place tie in the East with 13 points, one point behind Ottawa and Toronto, who meet in Ottawa Monday.

A Montreal win Saturday would give the Als sole possession of first place, but they'd have company as soon as the Ottawa - Toronto tie with a Montreal win, would leave the three clubs deadlocked for first place all of three points ahead of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, now relegated to fourth "cellar."

The real bead-to-bead test will come Monday in Ottawa.

Argo Coach John Rauch credits them with "an extremely strong defensive unit, a unit that can kill you quick or with ball control."

Canucks Display Muscles

By PAUL CARRAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Philadelphia Flyers felt bad, but Dave Schultz felt even worse.

The Flyers lost a hockey game, something every National Hockey League team can expect to do at least a few times a season, but Schultz lost a fight, something which rarely happens.

Canucks richly deserved the victory. Enthusiastic fans, matched them in hitting outside them 35-31 and even managed to outclass them in the fisticuffs department, something few NHL teams can claim.

It was a distinct reversal of form for the Canucks, who were not only thrashed on the scoreboard in five of the six games between the two teams last season, but were also physically manhandled.

But the Canucks added some size this season and it showed as they matched the Flyers in checking.

Brian McSheffrey and Jocelyn Guevremont, two second-year pro hockey goals as the Canucks overcame a first-period lead the Flyers had gained on the strength of Ross Lonsberry's goal.

But the biggest cheers of the night were reserved for Jerry (King Kong) Korab, acquired by the Canucks in the off season from Chicago Black Hawks.

Korab took on Schultz, heavyweight boxer of the Philadelphia squad, and thrashed the Philadelphia player soundly in a third-period fight.

The fans were excited and so were the Canucks. Even Richard Lemieux, more a skater than a fighter, caught the enthusiasm and took on Orest Kindrachuk in another battle in the third period won by the Philadelphia rookie to a draw.

Philadelphia Coach Fred Shero didn't like the loss, his club's first loser in three games they've played so far, but was even more concerned about a shoulder injury to defenceman Barry Ashbee.

"We think it might be a separated shoulder, or something even worse," said the Philadelphia coach.

"If he's lost for any length of time, that could really hurt. He's a good honest player, a hard worker who plays as well on the road as he does at home."

Shero wasn't pleased with his team's effort in the game.

Wood Gets A Chance

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan Roughriders head coach John Payne admits he's worried about Sunday's Western Football Conference encounter with Calgary, but it isn't because Jim Wood is making his debut as head coach of the Saskatoon club.

It's certain that coach-of-the-year awards will be furthest from both coaches' thinking as the Stamps invade Taylor Field in Regina.

Payne admits he's concerned about his club and while Wood hasn't said much, it will be understandable if the newly-appointed, temporary head coach of the Calgary squad has a few butterflies in his stomach.

It will be Wood's first appearance as coach of the Stamps after the team's four consecutive losses saw Jim Duncan demoted to a recruiter for the club. Wood failed to make the team as a player in 1959 and joined Calgary as an offensive coach this season after five years as head coach at New Mexico State.

In tonight's game, televised on the full CBC network, Clarke Stadium in Edmonton is expected to be full of flying footballs when the Eskimos meet the cellar-dwelling British Columbia Lions.

Lions are pinning their waning playoff hopes on the Mad Bomber, not a grenade-waving revolutionary or a trade from Winnipeg, but a second-string rookie quarterback named Karl Douglas.

Douglas has a penchant for touring the ball at every opportunity and he won't have much choice with the Lions' backfield, once considered the best in the league, tottering with injuries.

Buffalo at Chatham

OFF SABRES' STAFF

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — First Lt. Smith as physical training instructor for Buffalo Sabres and coach Joe Crozier has assumed those duties for the National Hockey League team. A disagreement on salary was given Friday as the reason for Atkins' departure. His physical training sessions were criticized by Sabres' officials for helping to get the club off to a fine start last season.

Casey Explains It

Good Pitching, No Hitters And You Have Miracles

OAKLAND (AP) — Old Casey Stengel loves New York Mets because he's on their payroll but he loves Yogi Berra for cause he's Yogi.

"If you had three mutts, Yogi wouldn't look good in any of them, like me," said crusty, 83-year-old baseball Methuselah. "Put a hat in his hand, he looks pretty well groomed."

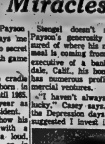
YOGI BERRA

World Series as manager of New York Yankees and first skipper of the fledgling and once-futile Mets, is watching every pitch in the 1973 Series between the Mets and Oakland Athletics.

Once manager of the old Oakland Oaks in the Pacific Coast League, the spry and garrulous octogenarian has no mixed loyalties in this World Series.



"Mrs. Payson (Joan Payson owner of the Mets) pays me good money so there's no secret but he loves Yogi Berra because he's Yogi.

"Then I looked for some other business investment. 'Everybody's got to have wings,' I decided." I said, So I became a shade factory. Then some Hindus guy invents Venetian blinds, and I go busted."

Saints Off and Running

By THE CANADIAN PRESS.

Minnesota Fighting Saints didn't waste any time during the off-season in a drive to improve their World Hockey Association team.

After all, the club just made the playoffs in 1972-73 after defeating Edmonton Oilers 4-2 in a sudden-death game for the fourth position.

With the addition this year of Mike Walton, Rick Smith and Steve Cardwell—former National Hockey League players—the Saints have become a powerful factor early this season.

They extended their undefeated streak over two wins and a tie—with a 1-0 triumph over New England Whalers in one of two games Friday night.

In the other game, Vancouver Canucks finally defeated the Flyers 3-1 after five straight exhibition losses.

Connelly, with three goals and four assists after four games, scored at 8:01 of the second period to break a pass from Bob Wellington. Connelly's goal was a shot that caught the right side of the net to beat goalie Bruce Landon.

Mike Walton, Bob's brother, then clicked on an assist on the play to give him five points this season, including two goals.

The Saints signed both Bob and Mike in June and did not disclose salaries. However, it was reported at the time that Mike—formerly with Boston Bruins of the NHL—would get a minimum of $440,000 for three years.

WHA Leaders

Minnesota's Jim Connelly scored the only goal of the game Friday night as the Fighting Saints shut out New England Whalers 1-0 and moved into a tie with the top second place in the World Hockey Association, scoring race, with three goals and four assists.

Knock Off Buzzers 6-4

Hustling Bobcats Put it Together

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

If you're over 16 years of age and you're a hockey fan at all you probably have no trouble recollecting Toronto Maple Leaf - Montreal Canadian dynasty that existed in the NHL in the early '60s. Likewise, you probably have no trouble recalling the rugged, highly competitive battles that took place between the Leafs and the Canadiens whenever the two met face-to-face somewhere.

That particular type of game occurred in Belleville last night when the Bobcats, took on the Metro Junior B League leading Saint Michael's Buzzers at the Memorial Arena.

Both teams skated onto the ice with a keen desire to win, and battled their way through 60 minutes of top calibre hockey. When it was over the Cats found themselves on top of an impressive 6-4 score.

This was the best game we've played this year," said Bobcat coach Moe Hunter. "We really worked as a team — offensively and defensively."

The Buzzers started the game by peppering Belleville goalie Bob Moore with shots very early. Moore however, wasn't about to allow any goals as he robbed the visitors from close range on two occasions in the first minute of play.

Barney Danson on the face of the Cats and dished out what was likely one of the hardest checks of the game to an unsuspecting Saint Michael's attacker. Danson wasn't alone in his efforts to counter-balance the Toronto onslaught as Mark Coates skated into the corner of the Buzzers end and belted another of the visitors' players.

At that point Belleville came to life and Jim Ranieri, the Toronto goalie, came under a barrage of Cats' shots.

The two teams completed the opening frame playing end-to-end hockey, checking each other heavily and attempting to get the first tally.

Dave Flesch, a stalwart on the Cats blue line, came up with the biggest defensive play of the match when he foiled a Buzzers breakaway. Flesch showed his speed as he skated from centre ice, stretched himself out on the surface and poke-checked Lawrie Munzzati from behind, half way through the first period.

As the first 20 minutes of play came to a close, in a scoreless tie, the two most outstanding figures on the ice proved to be the goalies as more stopped 15 shots and Ranieri 14. Both made some thereby unbelievable saves to keep their shotouts.

St. Mike's got the first break when they caught the Belleville defence out of position. Bob Nicholls stole the puck at his own blue line and passed it ahead to Brian Geary. Geary laid it across the ice to centre Paul Gardner who stepped over the Bobcats' line and fired a shot past Moore into the upper left hand corner to make the score 1-0.

A minute later, Andy Rickards worked himself in front of the visitors' net and banged home a rebound from Bob Edwards' point blast. Paul King also got an assist on the play.

Toronto went ahead for the last time in the game as Gardner potted the second of his four goal performance on a power play. Robin Mooney set the goal up as,befel the puck ahead to Gardner who split the Cats defence at the blue line and walked in on Moore.

At the 8:53 mark the Bobcats tied it up 3-2 when Paul King flipped a rebound over Ranieri. The Buzzers' goalie had come out of his net to try to smother the puck on a delayed penalty.

Less than 60 seconds later Norm Jones found the range as he gave Belleville the go ahead tally. Ranieri had done the splits to rob Jones of a goal just seconds before. Dave Flesch and Jim Richardson did the spade work on the power play marker.

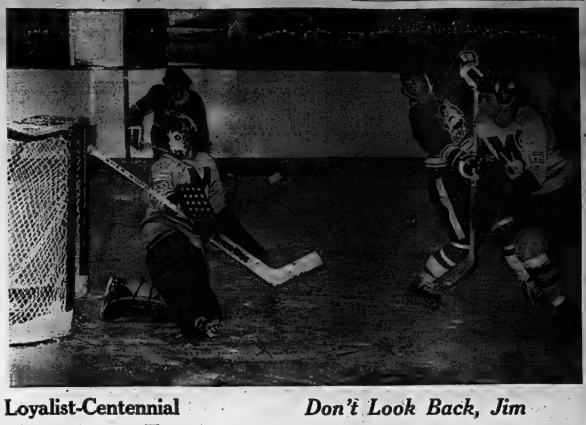
Coates rounded out the scoring for the middle period as he and Richardson combined at the 19:17 mark to put the Cats in front 4-2.

The locals put on a display of hockey shifty though out most of the period as the shots on goal indicated. Belleville outblasted the Buzzers 23-13.

Saint Mike's spent the first 13 minutes of the third frame buzzing around the Cats goal,

Gardner scored from Munzatti and Maroney at 1.38 and then at 9.29 he tallied to tie the game 4-4, unassisted.

Jim Richardson got Belleville's go ahead marker at 13:40 on a picturesque pass play from Coates and Jones. Richardson then scored the final goal of the game just 16 seconds later when he beat Ranieri on a breakaway. Holmes and Jones assisted.



Despite the relatively high scoring, the goalies of both teams were outstanding. Ranier blocked all but six of 32 Cats shots and Moore gave up only four out of 42.

Loyalist-Centennial Teams in 3-3 Tie

Loyalist Lancers hockey team, which was beaten out of the Ontario College Athletic Association playoffs by three points last year (only the top two teams in each division are allowed into the playoffs), played their first exhibition match of the 73-74 season last night and broke even with Centennial College, of Toronto, 3-3.

"I'm very happy with the outcome", said Lancers coach Bruce Cameron. "Centennial finished third in college hockey in Ontario last year."

Brian Moody tied the score up before the first period had ended as Centennial's Butch Callighen set him up.

Late in the opening frame tempers flared and majors were handed out to both sides. Over all, Toronto received 13 penalties while Loyalist got six.

With a two man advantage at the beginning of second period, it took the Lancers only 12 seconds to tally as Roantree fired home a wrist shot on a pass from Reid Mallory off a face off in the Toronto zone.

At the 6:36 mark, Callighen made things even again as he chalked up an unassisted marker.

The Lancers outplayed the visitors in the last frame despite the fact that Randy Hall of Centennial, scored at the 8:29 mark.

Dave Ferguson tied the score up for the Lancers at 18:43 of the final period on passes from Roantree and Wartman.

Cameron, who has not yet made all his cuts, played with four lines, six defencemen and two extras, while Toronto played with a regular team.

Tigers Cet By Saints

TRENTON — Neither the rain nor Quinte Secondary School Saints could stop the Trenton High School Tigers from moving into a second place tie in the A division of the senior high school football standings here Friday.

Tigers outscored Saints 19-6 in a rain-drenched contest to bring their season record to three wins, two losses, matching the mark of Centennial Secondary School Chargers. Moira Trojans boast a perfect 4-0 record at the top of the heap while Quinte is now 2-2. Belleville Collegiate Institute brings up the rear with no wins in four starts.

The teams battled through a scoreless first quarter but with seven minutes played in the second period, Tigers hit the scoreboard. Don Arms strong took a screen pass from quarterback Dave Lewis and went all the way for the major. Joe Norman added the convert for a 7-0 score.

About two minutes later, halfback Jacques Belanger courted the home team's second touchdown, on a running play from six yards out. Norman again connected on the extra point and it was 14-0.

On the last play of the half, Norman clicked on a 21-yard field goal to increase Tigers' lead to 17-0.

Tigers continued to add to their total when they added a safety touch in the second half. The two points completed the winners' scoring.

Saints refused to quit and were rewarded with time running out when Mike Martin bulled his way over the Tren on goal line from four yards out. The convert attempt was unsuccessful.

Foresters Welcome Eagles to Brantford

BRANTFORD (Special) — "We played poorly and Brantford came up with a solid game", said Belleville Screaming Eagles manager Ted Soules.

Those could honestly be the only words to use to describe up the Senior A contest last night in which the Eagles got while waiting for the winners. Dunc MacDonald added a pair and Bob Cunningham. Sandy Gow and Dave Johnson one each.

In other Senior A matches last night, Barrie blanked Cambridge 7-0, and Orillia walloped Welland 9-1.

Eagles are in Welland, Sunday.

Clyde Harris 61 times while Stan Woross had only to make 25 saves to record the shutout.

The Foresters chalked up four in the opening period, added two more in the middle frame and plugged in five in the final 20 minutes.

In other Senior A matches last night, Barrie blanked Cambridge 7-0, and Orillia walloped Welland 9-1.

Eagles are in Welland, Sunday.

Don't Look Back, Jim

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Sunday, Oct. 31

Aries (March 21-April 19) — This will be a very productive day for you if you concentrate on practical matters. You'll be tempted to play. Don't.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) — This would be a good time to visit with an older friend you haven't seen for awhile. She'll welcome company.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) — Serious matters that affect your family should only be discussed among yourselves today. Outsiders won't come from outsiders.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) — You need to be among people and not trying to catch up on tasks that you can do another time. Relax. Be sociable.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) — Conditions are stabilizing. This will add to your material security. The one weakness: a certain amount of impulsive wastefulness to be overcome.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) — Although you will be tempted to do otherwise, stand firm today on your ideals. The temptation offers an empty promise.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) — Do that weighty task today so one who interests quietly without calling too much attention to yourself. Talk after it's done.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — You can be of great service to a very close friend today. She needs encouragement. You're just the person to busy her up.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — You have some doubt about something that's important to your future. Analyze things carefully. You'll see fears are groundless.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) — Something that you and another have worked very hard to accumulate must be protected against one who wants it, but isn't willing to work along with you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — Once you decide upon something, stick to it. Self-doubts will creep in if you don't and nothing will be gained.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) — Friends won't be too eager to reach for the check. It would be wise to decide first how the bill will be divided.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) — Be extra considerate of persons you want to impress. Without intention, you could offend someone whose help you need.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) — Someone will be depending on you too heavily today. Much of what they ask they could do for themselves. Point this out.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) — This is not one of your better days for romance. One you care a great deal about will disappoint you.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) — A promise to you will be broken. Next time you'll know better than to rely upon something said to impress others.

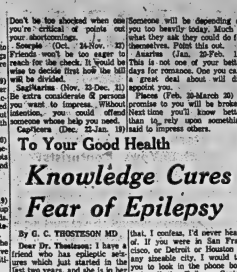
To Your Good Health

Knowledge Cures Fear of Epilepsy

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a friend who has epileptic seizures which just started in the last two years, and she is in her 40s.

It seems I am the one who usually is with her when she has one, and I am awfully interested in knowing more about epilepsy.



Is it at all possible for you to suggest a book I might purchase and read to learn more about it, for frankly the seizures scare me to death, too. — E.K.L.

Yes, epileptic seizures are frightening to see until you understand more about the disease and about the seizures. And you are very much on the right track when you want to learn more about it. Knowing the facts puts an end to the fear.

I note that although you read the San Francisco Chronicle you live in a place in Nevada-that, I confess, I'd never heard of. If you were in San Francisco, or Detroit or Houston or any sizable city, I would tell you to look in the phone book and call the Epilepsy Center, which would provide you with formation.

It still pays a clear understanding of epilepsy, and one reviewer remarked that it was just a good for adult medical as for children's needs.

It was published in 1972, written by Henry Baird, M.D., and is written in language that lay people can easily follow. (Some one has called Baird "the Dr. Spock of epilepsy.")

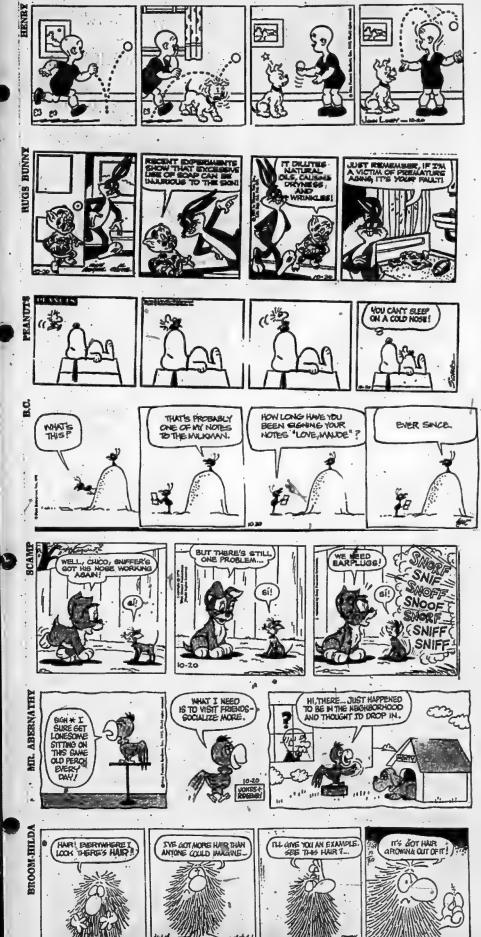
Opening lead — king of spades.

Here is a fine hand from a team of four match. At the first table the bidding went as shown and West led the king of spades. Declarer ruffed in dummy with the jack and played the king of trumps. East took the ace and returned a trump.

Declarer won the nine and ruffed his last spade. Now the contract assured if he could draw East's remaining trump, he played the AK of clubs, planning to ruff the third round of clubs.

Unfortunately, East ruffed the second club and South later went down one when he attempted a heart finesse.



The play started identically at the second table. Declarer ruffed the spade high and led the king of diamonds. East taking the ace and returning a trump.

Here, also, South ruffed a spade in dummy and cashed the ace of clubs — but then came a parting of the ways.

Declarer realized that he would be running an unnecessary risk by continuing the ruffing of clubs, since it was conceivable that East might ruff it. Accordingly, he led a low club from dummy on his third club, being perfectly willing to lose a club trick without a struggle in order to insure the contract.

West won the club with the six and led back the queen, but South was now home free. He ruffed the club return, drew East's last trump, and was then able to discard his fourth loser on the king of clubs to bring himself to eleven solid tricks.

Garbage Grab Concerns MPP

TORONTO (CP) — Murray Gaunt (L—Huron Bruce) charged in the Legislature Friday that a United States firm is fast creating a monopoly in the garbage disposal business in the Toronto area.

Mr. Gaunt said Waste Management Inc., with headquarters in Oakland, Ill., has acquired 50 firms in the U.S. and several companies in this area and is fast becoming a monopoly."

He said the firm has already purchased York Sanitation Co., Disposal Services Ltd., Superior Sand, Gravel and Supplies Ltd., all Toronto-area firms engaged in garbage disposal.

Environment Minister James Auld said he was not aware of the situation but his chief interest was "whether they do it efficiently and economically."

Prime Minister Receives Rare Praise

OTTAWA (CP) — A weary Prime Minister Trudeau sat on-key-faced in the Commons Friday, listening to rare praise from all opposition spokesmen who congratulated him on the success of his just-concluded China trip.

Praise mixed with a small amount of criticism came from the Conservatives, New Democrats and the Social Credit after Mr. Trudeau gave the House a report on the 10-day trip.

"I wish to say that I was heartened again and again by the genuine friendship extended toward Canada and Canadians by the leaders and people of China," said the prime minister.

"I am confident that the diversification and enjoyment of our new ties with China will not interfere with the long-standing friendly relations which we enjoy with those several countries with whom we have special ties.

"Nor will it detract from our efforts to seek, to our advantage, the easing of tensions and the increase of contacts with other parts of the world."

Mr. Trudeau, who returned from China at 2:40 a.m. EDT Friday, obviously was tired from his trip. He was seen to yawn a few times as he listened to the rave praise from opposition benches.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield, who took the opportunity to win the prime minister a belated happy 54th birthday, found only one thing to criticize.

He said the prime minister, whose birthday was Thursday, had not mentioned nuclear testing which is opposed strongly by Canada.

Later Mr. Trudeau, said in answer to a question from Claude Wagner (PC—St. Hyacinthe), that he had discussed nuclear testing with Chinese leaders but had not mentioned the Chinese tests specifically.

Real Caouette, Social Credit leader, said he welcomes Mr. Trudeau's accomplishments in China, but added he never will condone governments that take office by violence and refuse to give people freedom.

New Democrat Leader David Lewis said all Canadians recognize the role Mrs. Trudeau played in making the visit a success.

The two countries concluded a trade agreement during the visit, and reached accord on consular matters and on exchanges of visits.

Mr. Trudeau said the visit shows there is no doubt about the Liberal government wisdom in extending diplomatic relations to China three years ago.

Mr. Stanfield said the two countries have much to learn from each other. Relations with China were just beginning to develop and the timely visit of the prime minister had demonstrated that a friendly and constructive relationship was taking shape.

Mr. Lewis reminded the Commons the NDP advocated as early as 1930 that Canada recognize the Communist government in Peking.

New Law Promised On Pensions

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, has introduced amendments to the Pension Benefits Act which he says will provide additional protection to plan participants.

The amendments, he told the legislature Friday, will prevent any employer from using employee contributions for his own purposes. The money will be held in trust instead.

Also, Mr. Clement explained, the amendments, if approved, will provide that when an employee terminates employment and his pension benefit credit is less than the value of his contributions; the pension benefit will be increased to the value of his contributions.

Tweed

Tweed — Marie Ann Clemens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Clement, R.R. 4, Tweed graduated recently from the University of Guelph with a Bachelor of Science degree.

There were 29 entries in the Tweed Fall Fair Baby Show. Contestants came from as far away as Ottawa and Scarborough.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Young of Marlbank were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Holmes in Tweed.

Armand Lafarge of Tweed has been accepted as a cadet in York Regional Police Dept. in Newmarket.

Mushrooms Can Be Deadly

TORONTO (CP)— A University of Toronto botany professor has warned against a deadly species of mushrooms, common in this area, following the poisoning of two Barrie residents earlier this week.

Prof. J. F. Morgan-Jones identified the mushrooms that sent a Barrie father and his infant son, neither identified, to hospital with a mild case of poisoning as amanita muscaria, which have a reddish cap and a ring of tissue around the stem.

He said another member of the same species, amanita virosa, is far more deadly: "A little on the end of your finger — a forkful of amanita virosa — will kill."

Potter Vows Denturists 'Will Be Dealt With'

The minister was aware that denturists were publicly challenging the law by indicating they would not comply with it.

"The governments stand in this matter has already been stated," Dr. Potter said.

Mr. Lewis asked if he intended to prosecute these denturists.

"When the time comes we will certainly demonstrate how we will be prepared to do it," the minister said.

Dr. Potter said he didn't have any figures, but rejected Mr. Good's claim that many dentists are no longer providing low-cost dentures.

"I'm telling you," said Mr. Good. "It's a fact."

"You may be telling me, the minister retorted. "But I dont think you know what you're talking about."

Ceasefire Begins Today

News Briefs

LONDONDERRY (Reuter) — British troops used rubber bullets and tear gas to disperse a rioting crowd in the Roman Catholic Bogside area of Londonderry Sunday. Later, soldiers clashed with about 40 youths who were trying to build barricades across roads in the Catholic Creggan area of the city.

Osmond Fans Hurt

LONDON (AP) — A wall of a balcony for spectators collapsed at Heathrow Airport during the arrival of an American pop-singing group Sunday. At least 20 young girls were injured, none critically. An airport spokesman said the wall gave way under the pressure of thousands of teenagers screaming for the Osmond Brothers.

Try to Beat Clock

WASHINGTON (AP) — The prospect of widespread fuel shortages in the United States has given new currency to an old idea: year-round daylight time. But it's not likely anyone will be able to sell it in time for the coming winter. An extra hour of daylight at the end of the short winter days would cut down on the use of lighting — assisting in "substantial energy savings," says Rep. Silvio Conte, Rep. Mass., the latest legislative champion of year-round daylight time. But there are those, including the Nixon administration, who disagree, and the bill certainly will not be approved before clocks are set back one hour next Sunday morning.

Liz Boosts Fund

ROME (Reuter) — Elizabeth Taylor has collected about $140,000 at a special fund-raising dinner for Israeli war victims, friends said Saturday. The friends said between 30 and 40 persons attended the dinner Friday night.

Five Held Hostage

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Four guerrillas who hijacked an Argentine jetliner in a bid to get to Cuba threatened to begin killing their five hostages today unless they got a smaller plane to take them out of the country. Bolivian President Hugo Banzer refused the smaller plane but sent word to the terrorists that he would grant them the necessary papers to leave Cuba if they released the hostages. He said if they made any attempt against the lives of the hostages the hijackers would be killed.

Meany Leads Chorus

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (Reuter) — The AFL-CIO unanimously called today for President Nixon to resign or be impeached to preserve democracy in the United States and restore a fully functioning government. The resolution passed on a voice vote with no dissent, AFL-CIO President George Meany read the resolution to the 1,000 union delegates at the labor federation's convention here and drew "foot stamping and applause" at each mention of resignation or impeachment.

Israel and Egypt accepted a United Nations resolution calling for an in-place ceasefire in the Middle East today as the first step toward ending the Arab-Israeli war.

High sources in Amman said Jordan also would abide by the UN Security Council appeal for a halt to the fighting after 17 days of the fourth Middle East conflict since 1948.

The Syrians kept silent but were expected to follow Cairo's lead. Iraq, the other major Arab participant in the war, announced its refusal to abide by the UN resolution, but this was not expected to affect the truce efforts significantly.

UN officials at first said the ceasefire would start at 12:52 p.m. EDT. UN headquarters in New York later officially set the start at 12:50 p.m. That would be 6:50 p.m. in the Middle East.

In addition to a halt in the fighting, the resolution calls on the Arabs and Israelis for an immediate start toward implementation of the 1967 council resolution on the Middle East and immediate negotiations for a "just and durable peace in the Middle East."

The 1967 resolution calls for Israel to withdraw to "secure boundaries" from the Arab territories it occupied in the 1967 war. The Arabs insisted on that this means a withdrawal from all occupied territory, while the Israelis have made clear that they intend to hold on to certain areas that they consider necessary to give them secure boundaries.

The council action came after another day of hard tank fighting on both sides of the Suez canal and a Syrian report that Israel was trying to expand its lines in Syria to the Lebanese border.

Israeli officers said that their forces in the 17 days of fighting have taken 775 more square miles of Arab territory, including 475 square miles on the west bank of the Suez canal and 300 square miles in Syria.

ANWAR SADAT

Sadat Accepts

BULLETIN

CAIRO (AP) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat has accepted a United Nations resolution calling for a ceasefire beginning at 12:40 p.m. EDT today, Cairo radio announced.

Syria has made no comment, but was expected to follow Cairo's lead. Earlier, Iraq rejected the ceasefire proposal, citing its policy of "refusing negotiations, peace and recognition of the enemy." The Baghdad radio announcement said Iraq was not a party to the 1948 Arab-Israeli armistice or the 1967 ceasefire agreement.

Cairo radio said: "President Sadat, as supreme commander of the armed forces, has ordered the general command to cease fire at the deadline set by the UN Security Council provided the enemy abides by it."

After Guilty Plea

Rash of Dismissals Raises 'Impeach' Cry

WASHINGTON (CP) — Member of Congress, shocked and confused over President Nixon's sudden firing of his tough Watergate special prosecutor, were returning today to a Washington suddenly alive with talk of impeachment.

Both houses are in recess in observance of Veterans' Day and the rapidly developing crisis caught many legislators out of town.

However, a number of congressmen said they will introduce impeachment resolutions in the House of Representatives when it reconvenes Tuesday.

Among those out of town were a dozen members of the House, in Ankara for a NATO meeting. They were recalled hurriedly by telephone at the orders of Speaker Carl Albert.

These were the events which touched off the crisis:

Fired — Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox, Harvard law professor who has served under four presidents in special assignments and who vowed to pursue the Watergate case "wherever the trail might lead"—even into the White House.

Fired—William Ruckelshaus, deputy attorney-general, former head of the Environmental Protection Agency and one-time acting head of the FBI—the man who refused to fire Cox under presidential order.

Resigned — Attorney-General Elliot Richardson, former defence secretary and head of the department of health, education and welfare, who also refused to fire Cox.

Elevated — Solicitor-General Robert Bork, bearded former Yale law professor, the third in line in the justice department, Bork assumes the post of acting attorney-general.

Eight other members of the justice department staff and aides to Richardson and four members of Ruckelshaus's staff—quickly resigned. There were reports others might follow.

The train of events was set in motion Saturday, after Nixon came into direct confrontation with Cox.

Until this weekend, congressmen have been reluctant to face the prospect of impeachment. Now, the possibility is being discussed openly by such respected legislators as Senate Democratic Whip John McFall (Dem. Calif.), Representative B.F. Sisk (Dem. Calif.), Senator Edmund Muskie (Dem. Me.), and Senate Democratic Whip Robert Byrd (Dem. W.Va.).

The Democrats control both the House and the Senate.

Any impeachment proceedings must begin in the House of Representatives. A simple majority in favor would be enough to send the case to the Senate, sitting as a "jury" under Chief Justice Warren Burger.

A two-thirds majority is needed in the Senate to remove the president from office.

White House aides usually reticent to discuss presidential decisions, have spoken out in support of Nixon.

J. Fred Buzhardt, President Nixon's lawyer in charge of Watergate matters, said Sunday that talk of impeachment "will pretty much go away" when the president's position is fully understood.

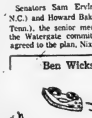
Special adviser Melvin Laird said he is confident Congress will take "a negative attitude" toward impeachment, at least until after Senator Sirenis has had a chance to review the controversial Watergate tapes.

Unreleased Tapes Crunch of Crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans already stunned by tales of wiretapping and burglaries, of "dirty tricks" and "plumbers units," found this weekend that the Watergate story still has the ability to shock.

In less than two days, the attorney-general resigned and the deputy attorney-general was fired; the special Watergate prosecutor was discharged after he clashed with President Nixon; and there were new cries for impeachment.

The first development came Friday night when Nixon promised a compromise on the release of White House tapes pertaining to the Watergate case and sought both by special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the Senate Watergate committee.



The president, calling the doctrine of executive privilege, previously had refused to give up the tapes, saying it was up to him to decide whether to release them.

Now, after mounting pressure for some sort of settlement, Nixon said he would prepare a summary of the tapes to give to Judge John Sirica of U.S. district court who had ordered the president to give him the nine tapes involved in the dispute.

The president said he had agreed to let U.S. Senator John Stennis (Dem. Miss.) listen to the tapes to verify the accuracy of the summary. At the same time, Nixon ordered Cox to halt his efforts to get the complete recordings.

Senators Sam Ervin (Dem. N.C.) and Howard Baker (Rep. Tenn.), the senior members of the Watergate committee, had agreed to the plan, Nixon said.

The Weather

Synopsis: A nearly stationary high pressure area is centred over southern New England, its influence extending inland across the Great Lakes. Skies will therefore be sunny over most of Ontario. In the far north where a series of very weak disturbances travel from west to east, some cloudiness will occur and the possibility of an isolated shower or thunderstorm exists.

Oil War Continues

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Arab oil war against the United States continued with Dubai, Kuwait, Qatar and Bahrain announcing they are cutting off oil shipments to the United States because of its support of Israel. This brought to eight the total of Arab oil producers banning exports to the United States.

Iraq also announced that it has nationalized Royal Dutch Shell's 23.75 per cent holding in the Basrah Petroleum Co. because of the Netherlands' support of Israel.

Spanish Water on Rise

MADRID (Reuter) — The known death toll after floods swept across a wide area of southeastern Spain reached 139 today, at least as many more missing and feared dead, officials said.

The officials could not confirm reports that more than 200 persons might have died in the disaster, and said the final toll would probably be more than 300.

The floods also killed more than 200,000 farm animals and caused extensive damage to 75,000 acres of agricultural land in the worst-hit area in Murcia province, officials said.

All Convicts Nabbed

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Three of four prisoners who escaped Oct. 13 from Collins Bay penitentiary near Kingston, Ont., were captured Sunday night in two police raids during which an officer was slightly wounded.

The bullet-riddled body of the fourth prisoner had been found Thursday in nearby Malden Centre.

Police said two constables and RCMP officers raided an apartment Sunday afternoon on a drug tip and found Larry Ross Walters, 27, of St. Catharines, Ont., and Frank S. Walters, 18, of Hagersville, Ont. The two are not related.

Acting on information received, police later raided a second Windsor residence and captured Stephen Cauper, 34, of Hungary, no Canadian address.

Authorities said Constable Paul Seguin was shot in the leg during a scuffle which preceded the arrest of the two Walters. He was treated in hospital and later released.

Police said Cauper offered no resistance when arrested.

Windsor Police Chief Gordon Preston said authorities also confiscated a gun which they believe was used to kill Vickie Joseph Martin, 41, the fourth escapee.

Martin's body was found Thursday wrapped in a bloodsoaked blanket on the east side of a creek, about 10 miles south of Windsor.

Authorities said no charges have been laid in connection with the slaying.

Ship Fire Claims 5 Lives

HALIFAX (CP) — Five men died and one was missing following a fire which ripped through the Liberian freighter Hygreen Sunday night while she was 400 miles southeast of here.

Forty-two men abandoned the freighter at midnight Sunday night and 36 were later picked up by the Hayes, a United States Navy oceanographic ship.

A spokesman for the air-sea rescue centre here said the Hayes was still searching early today for the missing men.

The Eurygenes, a 67,777-ton vessel was en route to London, England, from New York when fire broke out in three of her six holds. At last report she was still burning and drifting in the area.

The rescue centre said 31 men were picked up safely from one lifeboat shortly after they abandoned ship. A second lifeboat capsized, throwing 11 men into chilly Atlantic waters.

Five of the men were still alive when they were picked up four miles from the ship after drifting for almost three hours.

'Illness' Expected To Grip Many Nurses

HALIFAX (CP) — Illness and work urge to sleep was expected to grip about 23,000 federal government-employed nurses across the country at 8 a.m. local times today as the nurses vent their dissatisfaction with an arbitration board award.

"We had a nation-wide book up last Thursday and Friday and this is the action nurses decided to take," Mrs. Helen Martin, chairman of the department of nursery affairs nurse group committee at the Camp Hill Veterans Hospital here said today.

The nurses were awarded a two-year contract with their employer, Atlantic Region getting increases of 7.3 per cent the first year and 11 per cent the second. Those west of the Atlantic region were to get 13 per cent over two years in a contract retroactive to Jan. 1, 1973.

Fund Up to $19,000

DESERONTO — The Community Centre fund raising committee now has pledges and cash donations of $19,117.14.

Clarence Zieman, committee chairman reports that Napanee Arena was giving its old clock and timing device to Deseronto.

Mr. Zieman said whatever amount the size of the building could be varied according to the amount of money available.

Meantime, Mr. Zieman has given details of the project to the Deseronto Ratepayers' Association.

He noted 60 per cent of adults in Deseronto were on fixed incomes but that his group is responding well to fund canvassing.

He hoped by next fall there would be assured finances to carry the project through, but after arena construction the fund-raising committee should stay intact — raising resources to keep operating costs down.

While there was no reason why the arena could not break even the town will eventually have to provide some financing if Deseronto is to be a progressive community.

Good management is necessary and a committee should plan and run the operation like a business.

Citizens should also volunteer time to cut down on hiring paid labor.

Quinte, Moira Grads' Big Night Saturday

Graduates of two city high schools staged a two-front attack on the Ontario Scholarship Awards during graduation ceremonies this weekend. When the smoke cleared, there remained a total of 29 winners from Moira and Quinte Secondary Schools.

Both schools held their graduation exercises Friday night to the consternation of friends and relatives having a graduate in both of the schools.

The 19 honor graduates from Moira receive a scholarship of $100 while the 10 Quinte honor graduates receive a $100 scholarship. A student must obtain an average of at least 80 per cent on their best six papers written to qualify.

The awards were presented by the head of the home economics department, Mrs. Patricia Bennett, who retires this year.

The 10 graduates from Quinte Secondary School receiving Ontario Scholarships were: Susan Bennett, Stephen Clare, Debbie Ellis, Paul Friesen, George Ketcheson, Heather Melhorney, Sharon Moynes, Lynda Murray, Peter Nellis, and Graham Stratford.

They received their awards from Archibald Smith, chairman of the Hastings County Board of Education, who also brought greetings from the board.

Valedictorian for Quinte Secondary School, Fred Archer spoke for the 87 Year 5 graduates and the 165 Year 4 graduates.

In his speech he compared the journey of life to travelling through space on a spaceship, the Spaceship Earth with all of us the crew.

In this mission "which will take mankind to the far reaches of his mental physical and emotional capacities, there are two systems readily apparent," he said.

"The educational environment and the business world. Two systems, functioning independently, yet each requiring the other to survive. The business sphere needs the product of the educational system," he said.

"But due to the lack of an established information route, the product rarely arrives successful to the awaiting destination. If it arrives at all. An observer might call this part of the Spaceship Earth in-devoid of hope.

"One way of correcting this dilemma would be to incorporate the two systems, (the business and educational) or better, to construct a communication pathway. One way business provides the incentive ... by investing in people and the product the educational system provides the impetus for innovation in response to the needs of varied and developing minds, not standardized production."

In closing, he advised the graduating class to fasten their soul to a duty to capture youth and take an active role in piloting the Spaceship Earth.

As well as the presentation of the Ontario Scholarships a number of students received various other awards and trophies.

A total of 50 graduate students from Quinte Secondary received awards. Stephen Clare, a Year 5 graduate and Rowland Herr graduating from Year 4 received Quinte Secondary School Boat Scholarships of $200. each. These are awarded to students who obtain first class honor standing and continue their education.

Sharon Hymers received The Intelligencer Scholarship of $100, while the Hastings County Board of Education Award, recognizing proficiency throughout all grades, was awarded to Paul Friesen, a Year 5 graduate and Glenn Stratton, a Year 4 graduate.

Paul Friesen also received an award for finishing in the top 1% per cent of Ontario attempting a nation-wide physics test.

Donna Finnegan, a Year 5 graduate, received the Business Education Department Shorthand Prize for achieving a speed of 120 words a minute in Pitman shorthand. She also received the department's typewriting prize.

At Moira Secondary School, 29 students were the recipients of awards, trophies, prizes, and honor pins.

The Fred Mayer Award of $100 to the Year 5 student at Belleville attaining the highest aggregate on the number of papers required went to Brenda Scott who also acted as her school's valedictorian.

On behalf of Moira's 79 Level 5 graduates and 165 Level 4 graduates, she too compared life to taking a journey where experiences at school and friends made their play a very important role in a normal, total being.

The Intelligencer Scholarship of $100 as an outstanding student in Grade 13 English was won by Anne Brenton. Heather Smith, now attending Queen's, was awarded the Dr. E. Kennedy Medical Scholarship of $300. This award is presented by the Medical Health Association of the Belleville General Hospital.

The Outstanding Male Achievement Trophy was awarded to Gordon Hill, who also received an award for outstanding proficiency in the woodworking course.

Mark Graham received the Mathematics Association of America Prize awarded by the Canadian Institute of Actuaries to the student scoring highest in the annual actuaries competition.

Wiening and Strance scholarships to the universities they are now attending were Janice McAlpine, a $300 anniversary scholarship from Queen's, Lee Miller, a $400 Francis Lynch Scholarship from Carleton Phillip Rouse a $660 entrance scholarship from York University and, Rowland Tipper, winner of the Thomas L. Stanton Scholarship from the University of Western Ontario.

Motherly Pride

With the special pride only a mother can have upon seeing her son graduate from high school, Mrs. Helena Dodge gives a maternal kiss to her son, Danny. Danny was one of Moira Secondary School's 19 Ontario Scholarship winners. He was also the winner of a special electronics award for exceptional ability and work in electronics. Danny is now taking honor sciences at the University of Waterloo, specializing in physics.

Quinte Students Ready to Work

Quinte Secondary School students are ready to lend a helping hand to city householders with their fall cleanup chores.

They will be available Thursday, Oct. 25, to do household odd jobs, indoors and out. The money they make will go toward school clubs, sports and educational trips.

"The financial factor is up to the discretion of the employer," says the Student Parliament member responsible for extracurricular activities, Kenneth Joubrea.

Objective of the one-day campaign is $500.

But the Student Parliament has another purpose in addition to raising money. It wants to involve the students in a worth while community project.

"We feel it is important as students of Quinte to get the school involved in the community so people will be aware can choose the school at 862-1225 and ask for fall cleanup. Transportation has been arranged to take the students to the jobs.

Portable Meter Boon to Farmers

SASKATOON (CP) — The days of Prairie farmers chewing and spilling kernels of wheat in their fields to test whether the crop is ready for harvest may be numbered, thanks to an inventor at the University of Saskatchewan's engineering college.

George Dyck, 36, manager of the college's central shops, has developed a small moisture meter to make the test quickly and accurately.

Mr. Dyck, who has been at the university for 11 years, originally came from Russia in 1923, settling in the Hanley, Sask., district. "I was thinking before joining the university, but really I'm an inventor and have about 10 patents out—some good, some so so.

He worked on his moisture meter for about six years taking "a different approach to the problem from some other university people who were working on the same idea."

It had taken an estimated $10,000 to develop the unit which looks like a cross between a "flashlight and a thermos bottle. Development was aided by a grant from the Hanlelman Research Foundation and "Terry" been given about $4,000 in cold cash.

The meter has been tested in laboratories and eight prototype models now are being tested in the field by Saskatchewan farmers.

"Initial tests are encouraging and I should be able to make a decision on mass production within two months." Mr. Dyck said in an interview. He already has talked to interested manufacturers.

His estimates it will cost commercially for about $75.

The unit will save time during the busy harvest season eliminating the need for farmers to take samples of grain to the local elevator for testing.

Heavy financial losses can result from combining fields that are too wet. The price may be reduced on grain delivered to the elevator that contains more than 14.7 per cent moisture.

The meter weighs less than four pounds and requires no power supply. It also, in most cases, does not require use of a weigh scale.

The compression chamber, made of moulded plastic, is the instrument's main feature, the design overcoming the problem of obtaining uniform pressure throughout the sample of grain.

This is done by removing the effects of wall friction which would cause the pressure to be uneven and give an inaccurate reading.

"There's still a lot of work to be done, but if it is successful with wheat, perhaps it can be, and to test other grains that soften with moisture like barley, rapeseed and flax."

Patents have been applied for in Canada and the United States and one of the units will be taken to Australia this fall to obtain a patent in that country, Mr. Dyck also wants to see the unit patented in France.

"I'd like to get it patented in all grain-producing countries and have a particular interest in getting it patented in Russia," he said.

A new $160,000 bank building is to be erected at the corner of Front Street and Victoria Ave., on the site of King Sol store which was destroyed by fire seven months ago.

The Bank of Nova Scotia will occupy the one-storey building on its completion around the end of March next year.

Principals for the bank building are J. and M. Springer of Kingston with M. J. Finn of Peterborough as the general contractor. Excavation for the 88-by 58-foot structure has already commenced.

Bank of Nova Scotia manager Ray Tripp noted that next spring's move will be the third since the banking firm established in Belleville back in 1949.

The bank opened its first branch office at the corner of Front and McAnaney streets where Victoria and Grey Trust erected its new building some years ago.

A space lack at the present location at 383-85 Front Street is the reason for the new move which Mr. Tripp expected would be the last.

The bank business is currently being handled on two floors and management wants to return to a one-floor operation.

The new brick faced building to be occupied by the Bank of Nova Scotia will have a mezzanine floor for staff use and will have a staff and customer parking area.

Dislikes Ceiling

But Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture says that clamping a ceiling on farm income is not a just way to subsidize consumers.

Under the new subsidy plan, the farm price for milk will be frozen for one year. The subsidy will also cancel the three cents a quart increase that had been set for Oct. 1.

Mr. Hill said this move creates great concern on the part of the producer.

He asks what will happen next time the inflation rates remain the same and the government ends the subsidy.

"Does this mean that farmers must take a price reduction or will there be a sudden increase to consumers?"

Used Car Buyers Should Exercise Care

Question: I'm in the market for a used car. Some of my friends have told me real horror stories about the kind of "lemons" that are for sale. How can I be sure that I'm doing the right thing?

Answer: The Registrar of Motor Vehicle Dealers of the Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations offers the following car-buying suggestions that will increase your chances of making a successful purchase:

Select Your Dealer Carefully

Your choice of dealer can make or big difference in avoiding problems both during and after purchase. Therefore, take time to check out potential dealers carefully—talk to friends and associates who have personally done business with a dealer.

Don't go shopping until you have convinced yourself that you can afford to own another car, but be sure to do so some comparison shopping. Be cautious of high-pressure sales techniques and remember that the salesman's time is valuable and that you should bargain in good faith.

Examine Used Cars Carefully

A careful examination of a used car in the daylight is a must. Check for excessive wear and body damage. You should also insist on a road test that allows driving in different speed ranges and various kinds of road surfaces.

Don't let yourself be blinded by the reputation that a particular make or model of car has, either. Even a car that is well made when new can deteriorate mechanically over the years because of improper maintenance or downright neglect. Such a car could end up turning into a serious financial drain if repairs are constantly necessary.

Certificate of Mechanical Fitness

To help ensure that certain safety and mechanical problems do not exist, a Certificate of Mechanical Fitness is required for every used car sold in Ontario. Make sure that you get this certificate before you sign anything.

The only time that a certificate is not required is when a used vehicle is sold without license plates. In this case, an "unfit motor vehicle permit" must be produced. These cars cannot be driven—nor can license plates be bought for them —until the vehicle has been inspected and a Certificate of Mechanical Fitness has been issued and signed by a certified mechanic. Make sure that the mechanic is an owner or licensed employee of an automobile dealer or repair garage.

Unless you have a firm estimate of the costs of repairing an "unfit" car from a certified mechanic, however, it is unwise to buy an uncertified car with plans to have it brought up to a roadworthy standard.

Private Sales May Be Risky

Unlike the registered dealer, a person making a private sale has neither a licence to lose or a business reputation to protect. Care, therefore, should therefore be exercised when contemplating a private purchase.

In some cases, the private seller may even be posing as an "front" for a dealer who doesn't want to be responsible for selling the car. To guard against this, check the history of the automobile's registration with the Ontario Motor Vehicle Registration Branch, Parliament Buildings, Toronto. A telephone call to the previous owner may assist in appraising condition and mileage.

Remember too that many costly repairs can be avoided after you purchase if you have your car serviced regularly and follow the maintenance check list that is provided in your owner's manual.

A pamphlet on buying a car is available free of charge from the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations. If you are thinking about buying a car, write: Consumer Buy-Line, Ministry of Consumer & Commercial Relations, Queen's Park, Toronto, Ontario, for a copy.

Man Of Letters

Australians, often maligned as inhabitants of a cultural desert matching much of the topography of their vast land, and touchy as to their national identity and place in the world, need take second place to none.

Among their men of letters, the Australians now boast a Nobel prize winner. The news came in recent days with the award in the Literature category going to novelist Patrick White for a series of epic and experimental novels which the Swedish Academy said had given Australia a new voice in world literature.

We suspect there will now be a rush on White's seven novels in which the author, in the Academy's view, has "wrestled" with the English language to take it almost beyond the limits of its expressive power. There are writers like that, the late Malcolm Lowry with his Canadian and other writings, for one, but Australia's Patrick White clearly is in a class by himself.

Of particular interest to Quinte-area residents would be The Tree of Man, describing the life of a dairyman. Another work, named Voss, has a 19th century Australian setting, a recurring theme of Australia's comparatively recent history.

But the country is old enough to have given its ghosts and legends. One reviewed in a copy of the Bundaberg News-Mail (courtesy of Aussie exchange student Deborah Charters) is called Shudders and Shakes, compiled by Anne Bower Ingram.

Poet Henry Lawson, with his Robert Servicestyle verse, is another whose work transcends national boundaries, his Faces in the Street for one a poignant essay on the lonely metropolis everywhere. Some may recall a dramatic version of the poem on television which was screened by CBC some years ago.

Now the Queen and Prince Philip are in Australia and the occasion will be marked, among other things, by the opening of the Sydney opera house, a structure of eccentric design and enormous expense whose creation has lengthened into years. It could be the opera house of the Antipodes, a worthy stage for the likes of Joan Sutherland — another great name in the treasure house of the arts in Australia.

Drowning Toll

Back when the days were hot and humid and beaches and highways were busy in the way of summertime we had this to say, in part: "The greatest continuing tragedy of our society is the unnecessary loss of life among people of all ages, and particularly, it seems, among the young — to drowning, auto accidents, children running into the path of vehicles, fires — and so many of them preventable if only proper precautions had been taken."

Recent studies confirm this unfortunate trend, except that in the case of drowning young male adults come off worst. Each year there are about 1,000 deaths by drowning in Canada — about one third as many as the in traffic accidents (actually the latter gure is around 5,000 fatalities annually). he statistics come from the Opportunities or Youth survey of 7,000 drownings in Canda in the last seven years.

How many of these fatalities are due to ate or to carelessness, mishap is merely academic. By themselves the figures are incomparably saddening. The facts of the tudy however are of value in that the circumstances of the drownings were analyzed and such knowledge should contribe to the promotion of greater safety in he water.

Consider for instance that the greatest ingle cause of drowning, about 15.4 per ent, was falling from a stationary object — a fact that evidently puzzled project coordinator Jack Robertson, himself a strong swimmer. Incredible as it seemed at first to im, that he could drown if his boat capsized 300 yards from shore, Guberman acknowledges "statistics tell me I probably could."

Another disturbing fact: about 83 per ent of the victims are male and the worst ge group is 22 to 33.

If a partial sense of wider safety can e achieved from this study, it will have een well worth while. As it is, there is a ong way to go on the road to prevention.

Only Token Support For Arabs From Col. Khadafy

Libyan President's Influence Wanes In Middle East

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — In the Middle East war, where fierce fighting has fired a new spirit of confidence throughout most of the Arab world, some loss of prestige may be measured locally for a non-combatant, Libya's volatile President Moammar Khadafy.

Col. Khadafy, who only weeks ago seemed destined for a role of revered leadership among the Arabs, has watched his stature plummet steadily with every passing day in the current conflict.

While Syrians, Iraqis, Jordanians, Moroccans and Egyptians have surprised the world with the skill and versatility of their armed forces, Khadafy and the Libyans have languished in obscurity.

With the confidence of their Arab neighbors growing, Libya's contribution to the battle has been limited to a minimal amount of non-military assistance, mainly cash for weapons purchases.

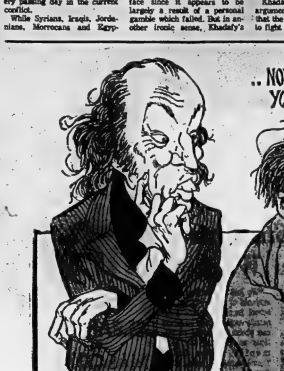
The president himself will likely have to bear responsibility for his country's loss of face since it appears to be largely a result of a personal gamble which failed. But in another ironic sense, Khadafy's policies may nevertheless account in some part for the timing of the Arab decision to attack Israel.

During the last couple of years Khadafy has emerged as the most outspoken champion of Arab unity, something that was notably lacking in the 1967 war against Israel.

He promoted himself as the most eligible leader of a unified Arab state and opened an intensive campaign for an initial federation of Libya and Egypt.

Khadafy's most compelling argument in this regard was that the Arabs could never hope to fight successfully against Israel without first achieving full union. The strength of this appeal gradually gave him the status of a crusading hero in the eyes of millions of Arabs.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, however, has never been enamored of Khadafy — his proposals and earlier this year he rebuffed the Libyan's call for immediate union, choosing to deal with the Israeli question first.



Khadafy then appears to have calculated that his best and safest course was to announce publicly that any move on Israel by individual Arab states would probably fail and that Libya would have no part, in any such campaign.

His expectation seems to have been that any Arab attackers would be disgraced again in defeat and that he would stand as the only untarnished leader capable of carrying out an organized program of unity.

While many more important factors undoubtedly influenced the original decision by Egypt and Syria to go to war, the challenge from Khadafy, most observers believe, must also have played a part.

His emergence had reached a level where it could no longer be ignored by the more traditional Arab national leaders and, since they had achieved a high degree of military skill anyway, the timing of their decision to fight may have partly reflected their concern at this.

Many observers now contend that, regardless of the war's eventual outcome, the Arabs will be generally regarded as having distinguished themselves as fighters and Khadafy's reputation will have been tarnished severely, even if he should later decide to make a token gesture of commitment some time in the battle, or to reduce oil supplies to the west.

Highway Toll Is Problem of Global Magnitude

Granby La Voix de l'Est: The number of those killed or injured on the highways is taking on alarming proportions around the world. They are not just killing each other in the United States and Canada.

The highways in Europe are even more fatal according to statistics from the United Nations, which is considering launching a worldwide campaign for highway safety.

Even in developing nations where the density of roads and cars is relatively low, the frequence of accidents is considerable and constantly increasing.

As for developed nations, the economic loss resulting from accidents is taking on alarming dimensions. Given the seriousness of the situation and the attention it is getting, experts have come to the point of considering the worldwide campaign to improve traffic safety.

And this campaign must give satisfactory results, otherwise the current tendency will continue and fatal accidents will multiply.

But how does one arrive at a solution when, for example, in America, fantastic sums are spent to modernize the highway systems and the traffic signals?

Driving permits should not be issued to a person whose highway history is already marked by numerous violations or who is already responsible for several fatal accidents. Of necessity, we must begin to exercise more severity.

The automobile manufacturers are constantly putting at the public's disposal powerful cars, often too powerful for the roads they are driven on.

If they are also driven by irresponsible drivers, one should not be surprised at the increase in accidents because, in these roads, these vehicles are rapidly transformed into murder weapons.

One should also remember that, just as it is illegal to kill people with firearms, it is also illegal to kill them at the wheel of a car.

London's Highgate Historic Cemetery Closed

Kingston Whig-Standard

The news that Highgate Cemetery in London has been closed to the public and is in an advanced state of decay (apart from the state of the inmates, that is) will bring sadness to anybody who has read at all widely in English literature and social history.

Highgate is the cemetery where Dante Gabriel Rossetti, for example, buried his wife Lizzie and later dug her up to retrieve some manuscript poems he had, in a moment of dramatic excess, placed beneath her long red hair to be buried with her. Amidst its unrivalled collection of crumbling mausoleums, family vaults with their coffins stacked visibly behind their rotting doors, are to be found the gravestones of some of the most famous names in the world. Karl Marx, for instance, lies in the old section of Highgate. Here too are the last resting places of Sir Rowland Hill, founder of the Penny Post and father of the modern mail service; and of Michael Faraday; and of a motley and fascinating collection of timeless celebrities.

The place is so spooky, so creepy, so deliciously ghoulish, spider-webbed, moss-grown and generally desiccated that it attracts from all over the world a rare and unending procession of vampire-hunters, ghost-fanciers, horror-movie crews and those who simply like to read the legends on gravestones and tombs. Under its yews and along its mouldering paths, there seems an ever-present chill and the ostended blackberries, angelic, display a wonderfully gruesome virility.

But old Highgate appears to be in jeopardy. They are whispering that its closing presages the arrival of the whole of this ruinowed City of the Dead, as it was called in Victorian times, in the interests of — yes, even here — in the interests of redevelopment. Land prices in London are going open higher. Demand is brisk. Land is scarce.

They may think of clearing old Highgate of its cemetery clutter and digging up its present tenants. But before they turn the bulldozers loose, let them remember that there is no edifice so firm and so well heated and air-conditioned that it will be proof against the chilly mists of Highgate. And let them remember that an awful site it had better be a cold-storage plant — or a morgue.

John Diefenbaker Amazes Parliament

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — A week after celebrating his seventy-eighth birthday, John Diefenbaker set out on an exhausting four-day excursion that could test the endurance of a man half his years.

On the Friday he added his flair for color and excitement to the Daily Question Period and sat through the afternoon debate until adjournment the day Parliament closed.

That evening he prepared those crazy bits-and-pieces of notes jotted down on scraps of paper for the many things he knew he would have to say next day and then took the late night Air Canada flight to Toronto.

Saturday morning at 10 o'clock he was off on a sentimental train journey, 280 miles to Owen Sound and back, in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the opening of the Toronto, Grey and Bruce Railway.

As the special train with 600 railway buffs aboard rolled through the country of his childhood, he glanced at those paper-scrap notes when answers, hundreds and at some places thousands of admirers threaded the trackside at Orangeville, Owen Sound, Chelsea and Palmerston.

This was a special train organized by the Upper Canada Railway Society, a nostalgic event, even without Diefenbaker aboard, since passenger service to Owen Sound was dropped three years ago.

But the presence of the tall, white-haired man in the sporty navy check suit made it even more special . . . holding court in the rear car, sipping tea, shaking hands, signing autographs, and relaying his audience, which thronged at every stop, with tales of politics, the campaigns of long ago, and world picture of the new from the top.

At Owen Sound the former prime minister's task was the driving of a golden spike into the track to secure an antique sledge hammer.

The train was immediately crow-barred up again, placed on a plush cushion and rushed off to the Owen Sound station.

Then Dief was off in an 85-mile-an-hour motorcade with a police escort to Neustadt, a tiny town where he was born in 1895.

Enroute he stopped at Chesley, a town of 1,700 which managed to turn out several thousands to greet him. There it was back aboard the train for more stops at more towns like whistle-stopping, the Old Chief said later — until the cry-baby arrival at Brampton to take a waiting cab to Toronto airport and catch the 11:15 flight to Ottawa.

But the Capital was forged in and after waiting nearly two hours for word of clearing that every cause, the Chief took off for Montreal, landing Dief at 1.30 on Sunday morning.

He hopped a bus for the 120-mile ride over the hazardous snow-lane goat-trail the Ontario government still calls a highway to Ottawa, and finally got to bed at 4.30.

Sunday afternoon he worked on a speech he was to make next day to a joint meeting of the Men's and Women's Canadian Clubs in Hamilton

And Sunday night he ripped off, to the south, for a very special piece he was doing for The Ottawa Journal in which he came up with that memorable line about Prime Minister Trudeau looking like "Pericles into a legislative slot machine into which a thousand nickels slip is dropped and out pops the legislation".

Monday he was up and onto the plane for Hamilton, putting the polishing touches to his speech to the Canadian Clubs enroute.

It was another big, busy day for the Old Chief, a topical speech on the Watergate and the Watergate scandal, a round of meeting old friends and greeting new, then back to the Capital.

Tuesday he shaped up his notes for his piece for The Journal, dictated eight bright and bouncy pages, ran over it with a friend editing, and giving it even more pace.

The rest of the day was catching up with four days' accumulation of mail — he gets letters literally by the hundreds daily — taking calls and callers and getting his gear together for three days of goose hunting in the cold and sleety wetlands of Northern Saskatchewan.

Strenuous, this perpetual motion life, this riding planes and buses into the very early morning hours, this non-stop work?

"Keeps me in shape," he snorts. "You only grow old sitting around and twiddling your thumbs. No twiddling and you feel like you can go on forever."

Nixon's Choice

Quebec Le Soleil: President Nixon's choice as vice-president is the Republican minority leader in the Senate, Gerald Ford, who succeeds the former vice-president, Spiro Agnew.

The man-is not totally unknown since his name was mentioned as a possible running mate in 1970.

He is described as a conservative, a moderate and an internationalist, which doubtless explains the president's personal choice. He is a native from Michigan, at the doorway to the Midwest, it goes without saying that he is not an isolationist.

It is also good without saying that it is a safe bet his nomination will be welcomed in the United States and in the world. We are also assured that he has always had cordial relations with Canada.

The post of vice-president has always been made in accordants happy. The job is often misunderstood and some have even suggested that he be replaced by a council of state, as used in France up to under the Fifth Republic.

But everyone realizes that the American presidential system can hardly abandon the vice-president halfway along the road. It is difficult to say whether the situation will change in coming years.

Community Services

Editor,
The Intelligencer

Mr. Wickson is on the right track when he proposes that not full time high salaried director is needed for the United Community Services.

I have maintained this all along, for a period of about two years now. It turned out that many of those who disregarded my attempted motion of non-confidence in Mr. Cooperman declared him viciously only some months later.

Again, I did not get any backing when I suggested that an ordinary friendly Belleville citizen be hired for the simple job at the UCS.

Then, three or four months later, somebody states what I have been saying all along. I hope that the donations to the United Appeal will come in faster than the decisions of the UCS board. If they could in at the same speed, it will be disastrous.

Farmers Are Worried About Supply of Oil

By ROBERT WHITELAW
Toronto Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — The general manager of the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair called on the federal government Thursday to remember the farm industry must have a continuous supply of oil.

John Moles, speaking to a luncheon meeting of the Toronto Rotary Club, departed from his prepared text on the purpose of the Royal Winter Fair and said oil is necessary to keep tractors, combines and wagons mobile.

He made the statement following a Toronto newspaper story which hinted at rationing for oil and gas supplies.

In his prepared speech he said the farm industry in Canada uses more horse power than Canadian industry. Farmers purchase nearly 30 per cent of fuel requirements of the country and nearly 40 per cent of the tires, iron, and steel.

Mr. Moles, in stressing the important position of the agribusiness, composed of farmers, food production, transportation, and marketing, marketing, employing about 35 per cent of the Canadian labor force.

Mr. Moles said statistics alone indicate agriculture is still the major industry in Canada.

"We have tripled our output per worker in Canadian agriculture in the last 20 years, and I challenge any major sector of the Canadian society to show a similar record," he said.

He said because of expanding markets — the increasing consumption of meat and other protein foods at home, and the rising demand for feed grains and proteins throughout the world means a chance to operate the agricultural machine at close to full capacity.

Strong prices and increased production will equal more income for farmers and more food for consumers, he said. He went on to say in the process of expanding agriculture to meet growing demands, farm productivity will bring down average unit food costs.

Mr. Moles said the goals of high farm income and reasonable food prices for Canadian consumers are entirely consistent.

Quinte Cuisine

Steve Forrester, one of the stars of the Belleville Theatre Guild's fall production Comedy Bizarre II, entertained the cast and crew at his home last Saturday after the final performance. Among the dishes Mr. Forrester served was this Cassoulet. His recipe, which makes at least 12 servings, is an easy way to earn your guests' applause.

Cassoulet

8 cups white beans
1½ lbs. salt pork
1 cup sliced onions
3½ lbs. boned pork
3½ lbs. boned lamb shoulder
2 cups minced onions bouquet garni
4 tbsp. tomato paste
4 cloves mashed garlic
2 bay leaves
¼ tsp. thyme
2 cups dry vermouth
3 cups beef bouillon
1 cup water
1½ lbs. hard spiced sausage
4 quarts water

Boil beans in six quarts of water for two minutes. Remove from heat and let soak one hour. Add salt pork, sliced onions and bouquet garni. Simmer slowly for one and a half hours, skimming occasionally. Add water if necessary. Season with salt to taste near end of cooking.

Roast pork to internal temperature of 175 degrees and remove.

Cut lamb into two-inch chunks and brown in hot oil. Then brown the bones from the boned lamb, and remove.

Brown onions lightly. Drain fat, and return meat and bones, stir in garlic, tomato paste, thyme, bay leaves, water vermouth and bouillon. Cover and simmer for one and a half hours. Discard bones and bay leaves, skim off fat and then season with salt and pepper to taste.

Cut salt pork into quarter-inch serving slices, and the roast pork into one and a half inch chunks. Arrange layers of beans in the bottom of a heavy large casserole. Cover with layers of lamb, pork, salt pork, sausage slices. Repeat layers of beans and meat, ending with sausage layer. Pour in leftover meat juices and enough bean liquid to cover the top layer of beans. Cover with crumbs, parsley and melted butter.

Bring to simmer on top of stove. Bake at 400 degrees for 20 minutes until crust forms. Break the crust into the beans, and repeat this process now and again during the final baking time of one hour. Leave the final crust, and serve.

Women Must Protest Injustices

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The chairman of the Federation of Business and Professional Women in Canada (FBPWC) urged women Wednesday to exert pressure on the federal government to "set up a female human rights commission."

Hilda Cryderman, said if the government does not act before the next election, the federation will set up its own commission and "expose all forms of discrimination throughout society."

She said the function of the Commission would be to represent all minority groups by making the Canadians Bill Rights a reality.

The bill prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, creed and sex," she said.

Miss Cryderman also demanded that the recent Royal Commission Report on the Status of Women be placed in the offices of the prime minister.

"The report is constantly being shuffled about and nothing is being done," she said.

She said the whole field of human rights must be reviewed by the prime minister.

"The faith of Canadian women in justice and equality was destroyed by the recent decision of the Supreme Court of Canada with regard to the Indian Act," she said.

Widows Increase, Elderly Women Outlive Spouses

OTTAWA (CP) — An increasing number of elderly women will outlive their husbands and find themselves with little to live for, a Hamilton professor suggested today.

Population projections for North America indicate that women over 65 years will outnumber men over 65 by a 3-2 ratio by 1985, Prof. Victor Marshall of McMaster University told the first biennial meeting of the Canadian Association of Gerontology.

A study he made indicated that the love and companionship of a spouse was the only reason many elderly persons had for living. The study was made in two Ontario senior citizens' homes.

In the study he found not a single elderly person willing, without qualification, to live to 100.

Ann Landers

The Facts About Welfare

Dear Ann Landers, I am 18 or years old. Dad died four years ago of cancer. There are five children in the family younger than I. My dad didn't belong to a union, he was self-employed and he had no social security, and his insurance just barely covered his medical bills. Three years ago Mom had to go on welfare.

When we buy groceries with stamps some folks in the store look at us as if we are taking money out of their pockets. Sure, people on welfare cost taxpayers money, but Dad paid his taxes when he was alive and Mom can't feed us kids on what she makes working in a bakery.

I read some facts about welfare in an article put out by The Committee on "Political Education. Every American should see it. You run the biggest billboard in America, Ann. Please print it.

Fact No. 1: People wind up on welfare not because they are cheats or loafers but because they are poor. They are poor not only in money, but in everything. They have had poor education, poor health care, a poor chance at decent employment and poor prospects for anything better.

Fact No. 2: Of the 15 million people on welfare, two million are aged, permanently disabled blind. Three million are mothers.

Fact No. 3: Nobody is getting rich on welfare. At best, it allows barebone living. Maximum payment for a family of four ranges from $700 a year in Mississippi to $3,900 in New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Connecticut.

Fact No. 4: Cheating on welfare is not rampant, but minimal. No program involving 15 million people can be completely free of fakers. Probably less lying and cheating goes on in the Welfare Department than in the Internal Revenue Department.

Fact No. 5: Welfare mothers are not having babies just to collect extra money. Nearly 70 per cent of all children on welfare are legitimate, according to H.E.W.

Fact No. 6: The welfare rolls are not made up mostly of blacks. More than 45 per cent of the welfare families are white, 43 per cent are black, the remaining are Orientals, American Indians and other ethnic groups.

I hope this will help to relieve the public's unclear to some misunderstanding.—You Might Need It

Dear Friend: Thank you for helping to educate millions of people today. I checked your facts with the Department of Health, Education and Welfare and they are correct.

Dear Ann Landers: Why are people so stupid? Why do they marry without the slightest thought to family background? Not only the physical health but the mental health of prospective husbands and wives should be carefully examined. Is there anything that can be done to smarten people up? Perhaps a course in genetics in our public schools might help. The ignorance along these lines is appalling. Comment, please.—Wanted: A Bit'ter World

Dear Wanted: The basis for most marriages is emotional, not rational. I know of no way to "smarten up" the emotions.

Logan Clendening said it best: "Men are not going to embrace genetic findings. They are going to embrace the first attractive, undiagnosed girl with limpid eyes and flashing teeth, despite the fact that her germ plasm could be reeking with cancer, hypertension, hemophilia, color blindness, hay fever and epilepsy."

Status of Women Under Scrutiny

TORONTO (CP) — The inaugural meeting of the Ontario Status of Women Council set up targets Thursday for immediate action and established committees to attend to special areas of future concern.

The 17-member council was appointed by the province to act as an advisory committee to report to Robert Welch, provincial secretary for social development. Mr. Welch agreed to meet once a month.

Jo Marrian, Laura Sabia of St. Catharines, has said she is not interested in a token committee and will resign if there are no results from the committee's work.

They agreed Thursday to ask that all provincial advertising needs for civil service positions should state the jobs are open to both men and women.

They will ask for a sub-committee meeting with Allan Leal, chairman of the Ontario Law Reform Commission, to find out at what stage the commission's work is on such laws as those affecting married women's property. The consensus was that council members would like to see the work moving faster. The commission was established in 1964.

They agreed that Bill Saskatley of Dryden should attend the Ontario Federation of Labor (OFL) convention in early November on their behalf to try and win some commitment to their cause from union leaders and to make OFL members aware of the council and its work.

A sub-committee will be talking to government and publishing officials who monitor text books and looking at their standards for de-stereotyping discrimination against women and try to stamp out sex-stereotyping.

In the morning session, Dr. Edward Stewart, deputy chairman in the department of education, told the council the province now has mechanisms to eliminate text books that show bias on any basis—sex, race, national origin or religion.

The council said it will write to the Royal Bank and to teacher organizations to protest the use in schools of a bank booklet that shows boys doing responsible jobs and girls serving coffee. The Ontario Committee on the Status of Women, a women's rights group, has already protested the booklet.

The council also agreed to write to all provincial institutes asking that they be given notice of studies and proposed legislation affecting women in order that they might have time to comment on them.

There are several such issues imminent, and it was agreed that committees and the council should move quickly to react on them.

There are proposed amendments to the Employment Standards Act which the council will study prior to their introduction in February.

They agreed that the meeting that special protective legislation for women, such as that requiring private transportation home for women working night shifts, should be done away with.

Correspondent Ends Career

FOAM LAKE, Sask. (C) — After 43 years sending news from small Saskatchewan towns to daily newspapers, Alberta Dunlop, 78, is ending her career as a correspondent.

"I enjoyed writing each and every story," she says.

Although no longer filing stories to Regina, Leader-Post, for which she has contributed for 40 years, she intends to continue reporting for the weekly Foam Lake Review. In the past, she has written for Winnipeg Free Press, Winnipeg Tribune, Saskatoon Star-Phoenix and a variety of weeklies.

"You will not get rich at this job, but you do meet the most amusing people," she said in an interview.

In the old days, she recalled, correspondents often received gifts instead of pay.

"I think I liked that system better."

One editor—a "tour old man"—surprised her by giving away half his farm.

Mrs. Dunlop, born Alberta Heseme at Brandon, Man., in 1895, first broke into print as Free Press correspondent for Ochre River. Earlier, she had a brief teaching career and married a teacher.

While moving from school to school, she always maintained her ties with journalism.

"Writing has been a tremendous interest in my life. Instead of wondering how I will get through the day, I'm always looking for interesting stories to write."

One of the most interesting stories she recalled was that of a man who disappeared in the Wishart district, south of Foam Lake.

The three days she accompanied police on their search until the man's body was found. She sees a changing attitude among small-town newspapers since she first began writing.

"The type of article being printed is changing in the past. Newspapers concerned themselves with where Mr. and Mrs. So-and-So had tea.

"There still is a certain amount of that, but generally newspapers have a wider outlook on news."

"Mrs. Dunlop has served this newspaper well for more than 40 years and has kept Foam Lake and her citizens in the public eye.

"Her spot-news reports have been fast and accurate and she has also submitted a variety of interesting, well-written and illustrated features from her community and the surrounding districts.

"I am certain her stories will be missed by our readers."

Wills Essential for Women

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I was just reading your column today regarding wills. You would be surprised how few people know how important wills are.

My husband keeps putting off making a will. We have three children, own our home. Insurance could be very important.

You also stress that a wife should have a will. Please send me some material we could have about it all. Enclosed please find 50 cents and a self-addressed envelope.—Interested

Dear Wife: Interested? Its essential! And you might remind your husband that "The road to perdition is paved with good intentions."

We put off matters of life and death, and why? Perhaps from a fear that the older fellow will think we are trying to push him into the grave.

Sometimes we put it off because we don't know how to go about it. The A.E.C. Article Guide, for which you have sent me 50 cents, will be a good starter.

Wives should indeed make wills. Look around you; look at your bank account; look at the gifts which you feel belong to you and think about the person who would prize each of your precious treasures; then say what you want, in your will.

This probably means making an appointment with a good lawyer, for both you and your husband, at a set date and within a set period of time. Suppose you promise yourself you will have it all done within the next month. Wouldn't that be an objective to aim for?

Dear Doris: So many people write to you with problems and you usually come up with an answer, but have you or anyone else an answer for how to cope with sheer loneliness?

Oh I know we are usually told to join clubs and church organizations, but this is not always the case. I find there is a different everyone's idea of seeing a little life. Here in Blankitown there is nothing really suitable for a 50-year-old lady (and a very young 50 at that). There is one club but if you ever visited it, you would agree there is nothing suitable for a lady. Have any of your readers a solution?

Lonely Too.

Dear Lonely: I agree that joining a club is not everybody's dish of tea. But you can't just sit at home and mope and feel the misery of other people and be anything but lonely, can you?

You need to take yourself in hand, one way or another. Perhaps for some the idea is to discover another human who needs you. I'm thinking of a handicapped person, or an underprivileged child who has no loving aunt to help by struggling and widowed mother, or a person in a hospital who needs letters written or would appreciate being read to occasionally.

I guess I am talking about volunteer work.

Do you know the neighbors on either side of you? Do you know the day-to-day problems of the elderly lady who lives up your street? You will have to take a plunge somewhere, to meet the need of someone else. Let's hear about it when you do.

Dear Doris: A friend of mine has two teen-age girls. The elder is quiet, good-natured, pretty, very studious. She helps with the housework, cooks and bakes.

The other one has her own way in everything. She is bossy, does not work, is not obliging, never wants to stay home with her brother, she smokes.

I am afraid the first one will develop an inferiority complex. Both are orphaned; in less than two years brother and father died suddenly. This has greatly impressed the elder.

A Friend

Dear Friend: Are you close enough to the mother to talk to her about this unfair situation? If not, befriend the older girl, and encourage her to take part in social activities. I'm betting she'll be a fine person once she is helped out of her shell. Both are showing inferiority feelings in opposite ways.

(Doris has studied human behavior and can shed light on your dilemma. Write to her, in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Quebec Voters Rally

MONTREAL (CP) — With Quebec's election day one week away, the Parti Quebecois and the Parti Creditiste gave large rallies in Montreal Sunday.

The Parti Quebecois packed the Montreal Forum with a huge go-go rally complete with rock band. Estimates of attendance ranged up to 18,000.

The Creditistes met in an east-end arena with a brass band on hand. Their attendance was about 6,000.

Such rallies cannot be considered a reliable guide to party strengths — particularly when, as was the case Sunday, many of those attending come from out of town.

Premier Robert Bourassa, meanwhile, campaigned with Jean Chretien, federal Indian affairs minister and the only federal minister so far to make public appearances in support of the provincial Liberals.

Mr. Bourassa told a meeting of 350 persons, in Grand'Mere, 90 miles northeast of Montreal, his Liberal government can provide Quebec with a coherent social system within economic federalism.

In Beloeil, near Montreal, Mr. Bourassa accused the Parti Quebecois of racism in its campaign to have persons struck off electoral lists.

The campaign came to light last week when Immigration Minister Jean Bienvenue said persons with non-French names were removed from voters' lists by Parti Quebecois workers who signed statements saying individuals were not entitled to vote.

Gabriel Loubier, Union Nationale leader, took a rest Saturday after encountering a strikers' picket line at a radio station where he was to participate in an "open-line" show. In addition, his voice was beginning to give out after two weeks of campaigning.

Mr. Loubier spoke hoarsely at rallies Sunday where he blamed the threat of separatism on Premier Bourassa and Prime Minister Trudeau.

"If Bourassa had had more guts, and if Trudeau had been less arrogant . . . maybe there would be no extremists in Quebec today," he told about 350 persons in Gentilly, 60 miles northeast of Montreal.

He charged that during the 1970 October crisis, the Liberals had "served as servile agents of a fundamentally foreign government which swooped on the chance to paralyze Quebec society and set up bogeyman images that still sow fear in Quebec.

"This featherweight government has never stopped acting as a branch office of the mother house on the other side of the Ottawa River," Mr. Levesque said.

Creditiste leader Yvon Dupuis, who appeared with Real Caouette, federal Social Credit leader, lashed out against public opinion polls which show the Creditistes as having only 8.7-per-cent support in the province.

He blasted "sociologists, political scientists, sexologists—the whole catalogue—manipulated by the old parties."

"In the Parti Creditiste, we don't have a motivation scientist and everyone is motivated. The real poll will be on Oct. 29 (election day)."

Fight Blight

SUMMERLAND, B.C. (CP) — Fruit farmers in the Okanagan Valley are planting a new type of cherry, called Sam. The new type is intended to combat cherry fruit fly, which spread over British Columbia last year. The new strain makes the leaves of trees change color when they catch the disease, allowing farmers to weed out diseased trees.

Austrian Camp Continues

VIENNA (AP) — Processing of Soviet Jews on their way to Israel through the Schoenau transit camp has continued without change since the Austrian government yielded to Arab terrorists it would close the facility, Jewish sources said Sunday.

Chancellor Bruno Kreisky pledged to close the camp in return for the release of four hostages held at Vienna airport by two Arab gunmen who rafted a rain carrying 37 Soviet Jews at the Austrian-Czechoslovak border Sept. 29.

But neither the government nor the Jewish Agency have said exactly when the camp would cease to function as a way station for Jewish transit passengers.

Board Lacks Energy

VANCOUVER (CP) — Progressive Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield said Sunday the federal government and the national energy board have not been sufficiently energetic in seeking a solution to the energy crisis facing British Columbia this year.

At a news conference following a two-day regional meeting of the Tory caucus, Mr. Stanfield said not enough is being done to meet a shortage of natural gas which has developed in the Westcoast Transmission system.

Because of operational difficulties in northern gas fields, Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. the only transporter of natural gas in B.C., has advised its customers that supplies will be cut back by a pro-rata basis this winter.

"I'm sure that members of our caucus will be going back to Ottawa to press the minister to show the necessary leadership," the PC leader said.

Hotel Fire Claims 5

VANCOUVER (CP) — An early-morning fire raced through the top floor of a downtown Commercial Hotel Sunday, leaving five men dead and one woman critically injured.

The fire, extinguished a little over an hour after it began, apparently started in a washroom or adjacent storage room and quickly engulfed the top fourth floor, blocking the stairway.

A fire department officer at the scene said at least two men died after jumping or falling out of the fourth-floor windows.

Several others dangling by their hands from window ledges on the top floor of the old brick building were urged to hang on until firemen could get to them with ladders. Blood stains from cut hands streaked the front of the hotel.

Names of the dead were not released.

In critical condition Sunday was Melodie Durant, 26, in satisfactory condition were Don Karchner, 36, Alex McKay, 80, and Paul Bruno, 62.

Dan Thargo, 34, whose room was on the third floor, said two men fell from window ledges just seconds before firemen arrived.

"The firemen got there 30 seconds too late to save Wally and Don," he said. "They were coming around the corner when Wally fell.

It was 2:30 a.m. by my watch when the alarm bell went off. People were running along the halls waking other people up. It was too long before the alarm was turned in.

"But the firemen sure worked fast as soon as they arrived. They saved two men trapped in their rooms at the back. One was hanging by his hands and the other had his legs and part of his body out the window."

It was estimated there were more than 40 persons in the hotel when the fire broke out. Many of those on the top floor were elderly. There were about 12 rooms on the floor.

Police said rooms in the hotel, on the edge of Vancouver's Gastown district, were generally occupied by transients.

The commercial was one of five hotels in the Gastown area recently cited by police as trouble spots. About a month ago, the manager of the five were ordered to appear before city council to show cause why their business licences should not be taken away after numerous police reports of under-age drinking, serving of liquor to intoxicated persons and frequent fights.

Derelicts Torched By Youths

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A homeless derelict died Sunday after he was doused with gasoline and set afire by four teen-agers who also set fire to a second man and tried to burn a third, police said.

Officers said Charles Scales, 38, was sleeping behind an abandoned building Saturday night when the youths, all apparently about 15, splashed gasoline over him and then threw matches on him.

Emmett Spratling, 53, who was sleeping at the rear of the building a few feet from Scales, told police the boys also threw gasoline on his head and set him ablaze. He beat out the flames and escaped serious injury.

Officers said the youths tried to set fire to an unidentified third man, who ran away.

Death Debate Drags

OTTAWA (CP) — The capital punishment debate drags into its final hours in the Commons today with abolitionists no more optimistic than before that they can prolong a partial ban on hanging.

Those working hard to gain passage of the government bill to provide another five-year period of limited use of the noose are discounting two, lopsided votes last week.

"Some people say we've got it made," said one. "Well we certainly haven't got it made."

Another said there is considerable work ahead to get out the abolitionist vote.

Both said there is a danger of complacency among abolitionist forces because of the defeat of two amendments that would have toughened the Bill that seeks to continue the limitation of hanging two murderers of on-duty policemen and prison guards.

The amendments, from Albanie Morin (L—Louis Hebert) and Allan Lawrence (PC—Northumberland-Durham), would mean a de- second - time murderers and persons who kill during air piracy, kidnapping and rape subject to capital punishment.

The amendments were defeated in free votes 115 to 78 and 114 to 79.

On the surface, those are comfortable enough majorities to cheer abolitionists, but supporters of the bill point to the more than 70 MPs absent, or abstaining. Some of those absent would have voted for the amendments and can be expected to vote against the bill.

Defeat of the bill means retention of hanging for all premeditated murders.

The abolitionist say that some reluctants voted against the amendments because they did not want the bill lengthened to make it acceptable to "pseudo-retentionists."

This refers to those who do not want to go all the way back to capital punishment but who find present bill too weak.

Ontario's Urban Transportation Program.

Dial a bus.

Not very long ago, the town of Pickering had a pretty specific problem.

No buses. No municipal transportation through the area, or to the Go Train to travel out of the area. People had to drive, or walk, or call cabs.

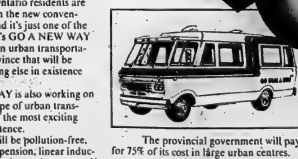
The Ontario Ministry of Transportation and Communications helped solve the problem by initiating what it hoped would be a prototype transit system for other municipalities.

They called it Dial a Bus.

And it worked, so well in fact it has been adopted in Stratford, Kingston, Ottawa, Bramalea and North Metro Toronto.

Even Regina, Victoria and a number of American cities have installed Dial a Bus systems patterned after ours.

How does Dial a Bus work?



Simple. If you live in an area served by Dial a Bus and you need transportation, phone your local dispatcher. He'll arrange for you to be picked up.

A bus will arrive right at your door and take you to the local commuter transfer point, to the local shopping plaza, or to some other point in your municipality.

Thousands of Ontario residents are already benefiting from the new convenience of Dial a Bus. And it's just one of the provincial government's GO A NEW WAY programmes to build an urban transportation system in this province that will be unsurpassed by anything else in existence today.

GO A NEW WAY is also working on GO URBAN, a new type of urban transportation that is one of the most exciting transit concepts in existence.

GO URBAN will be pollution-free, and have magnetic suspension, linear induction motors, silent operation and automated controls.

The provincial government will pay for 75% of its cost in large urban centres.

And the government will also pay for 75% of the cost to upgrade existing municipal transit systems with buses, streetcars, and support facilities like repair depots.

The whole point of GO A NEW WAY is to put people first and to offer them alternative ways to meet their urban transportation needs. Whether it's encouragement of staggered working hours, computer-controlled traffic, re-design of existing traffic facilities or area-wide transportation co-ordination studies, GO A NEW WAY will help with finances, research and resources.

GO A NEW WAY. It's proof that cities really can work for people.

Urban transportation will be one of the most significant challenges facing us all for years to come.

That's why the Government of Ontario developed GO A NEW WAY, a modern transportation program for the needs of Ontario communities.

The benefits of this program are available to any municipality in Ontario wishing to participate.

Another Win for the Bobcats

TORONTO (Special) — The Belleville Bobcats pick up their fourth victory in five starts here Sunday night, to launch Bt. Ilike's out of top position in the Metro Toronto Junior B standings.

Both teams came out fighting after the Bobcats' 6-4 win in Belleville on Friday night resulting in a total of 36 penalties including two 10 minute misconducts to the Cats, Mark Coates and Rob Freeman and a game misconduct later in the second period to Coates. Belleville accumulated 20 of the infractions.

It took a while for the teams to get on track but it was the Bobcats who struck first, late in the first frame.

At the 18:34 mark Norm Jones combined with Barney Holmes and Harold Roberts to make the score 1-0. Ten seconds later Jim Richardson poked one on passes from Coates and Holmes. Then, Kevin Joudrey blasted home a shot, unassisted, at 19:31.

Belleville came out flying at the start of the second and with just 2:01 gone Coates picked up a pass from Jones and capitalized to make it 3-0.

The middle period was somewhat disastrous from a penalty stand point as the Bobcats were assessed 11 minors plus the misconducts to Freeman and Coates. Toronto also got the majority of these penalties in the second as they received eight minors.

Mike Freedberg got the Buzzers on the scoreboard when he scored at 8:15. Paul Gardner and Brian Cleary did the spade work on that one.

A little over a minute later John Locke picked up an unassisted marker to make it 4-1.

Toronto scored three more times in the second to end the period just one goal behind the Bobcats at 5-4.

St. Mike's wasn't to be counted out as at the 2:33 mark Cleary tied the score at 5-5 on passes from Gardner and John Marvey.

Belleville didn't waste much time pulling back into the lead however, as Dave Taylor beat Ranieri

Joudrey tallied his second of the game to round out the scoring for both teams at 7-5.

His marker was also unassisted.

Goalie Bruce Clark, of the Bobcats, had a busy time as he had 31 Buzzers' shots fired at him, while Ranieri had 37 at the other end.

Belleville's next game will be at home Friday night when they take on Etobicoke.

All Eyes on the Puck

Wellington TV bantam defenceman Mark Riley (5) moves well into the Trenton zone for a shot on goal during exhibition game at Wellington Arena Sunday. Trenton's Pat Westfall (rear) and Rick Doucet only have eyes for the puck. Wellington posted a 6-3 win.

19 Groups Included In Rotary Skatathon

"Help young people help themselves; help Rotary help others."

This is the theme for the Rotary Club's second annual Skatathon, which will be held this year on November 8-9-10.

The Skatathon will be held at both city arenas, starting on Thursday, the 8th, and will continue through Friday night, and all day Saturday.

Some 19 groups are participating in the fund raising event this year, as opposed to 16 last year.

Among the groups participating are Belleville Minor Hockey, Softball, Minor Baseball, the Kinsmen Track and Field Club, The Quinte Figure Skating Club, Thurlow Minor Sports, the Belleville CGIT, the Junior Oddfellows, Belleville Guides, Brownies, Pubs and Sparks, the Quinte Secondary School Senior Basketball team, the Moira Science Club, the Trenton Midget Hockey All-stars, the Eastminster Hi-C group, the Rosamore Recreation Committee, Moira Secondary School Students' Council, the Belleville Archery Club, the Highlands of Hastings Pony Club, and the YMCA Leaders Corps.

Rotary officials are anticipating about 1,500 skaters to take part in the actual skating.

They are hoping to raise $25,000 for the project, $6,000 more than last year's $19,000 sum, according to Skatathon Chairman Brian Holmes.

As an added incentive to the skaters and organizers, prizes of NHL hockey tickets are offered to the top skaters and coaches.

The three top skaters will receive two tickets each in the National Hockey League Toronto-New York game on December 13.

As well, the top coaches of the teams will receive the same prize of a pair of tickets each. All the prizes include bus transportation to Toronto.

Lords Sweep Lancers In Exhibition Games

OSHAWA — (Special) — Bruce Cameron, coach of the Loyalist College Lancers hopes his players got the message here Saturday night.

Missing two key players, Lancers dropped a 6-3 Ontario Colleges Athletic Association exhibition hockey game to Durham College Lords.

"Our guys have to learn that when people are missing, the others have to work harder to make up the difference", coach Cameron observed.

After falling behind 2-0 in the first period, Lancers battled back to square things in the second with three goals but the home team wrapped it up with the only three counters of the final frame.

Chas Randalls led the winners with a pair of goals. Singles were supplied by Rennie Beauchamin, Tom Hendry, Hugh Weir and John Orlecki.

Barry Rountree, Dave Ferguson and Gord Johnston replied for Lancers. Johnston's goal came on a breakaway and noted the season at 3-3 in the scoring.

On the basketball front, Durham rolled to a sweep of exhibition contests with Loyalist, taking advantage of a shorthanded first half in which Lords held a 58-42 edge in scoring, to post a 96-80 win.

Rod Filler's 25-point effort led all scorers as he paced the Durham squad. Lords got 19 points from Dean Little and 17 were added by Chris Staeger.

Lancers' coach Rob Stinson is looking forward to a rematch between the two teams when Lords take part in the annual Loyalist Invitational Tournament January 5.

Welland Downs Eagles

WELLAND (Special — The Belleville Screaming Eagles went down to their third straight Senior A defeat Sunday night at the hands of the Welland Merchants by a score of 8-3.

The Eagles took a 1-0 lead at 5:15 of the first period as John McConnell fired a shot past Welland goaltender Sandy Hake, with assists from Al Ferguson and Charlie Coventry, but the lead was short-lived.

Welland came back with four straight goals within seven minutes to take a 4-1 lead at the end of the first period.

Welland came back out in the second period where they left off in the first three more goals to pit the game virtually on ice for the newest scoring team in the league.

Dean Menard scored on Belleville netminder Karl Bagnall with only 28 seconds gone in the second period to lead the way, with Jim Hocolik scoring at 8:33 and Millar adding his second of the night at 14:45.

Al Ferguson scored his sixth goal of the season in the third period as the teams exchanged goals to round out the scoring. Gerry Maney scored the final Welland goal.

Welland outshot the Eagles by a 49-33 margin, while the teams were even in penalties at seven minors each.

Eagles' next action is Tuesday night, as they take on the Barrie Flyers in an 8 p.m. contest at Memorial Arena in Belleville.

Major OMHA Teams Out of Win Column

The Belleville Lions Midget Majors dropped a pair of games on the weekend in OMHA Triple A play, losing to Oshawa on Saturday by a 7-3 count and to Peterborough Sunday by a 10-3 margin.

The scorers for Belleville on Saturday were Eric Sewell, Rick Barbeau, and Eddie Grills.

The Rollins' Construction Intermediate team also suffered the same fate in two exhibition games.

In a game Saturday, after leading 5-4 with only five minutes remaining, they ended up on the short end of an 8-5 score against Peterborough.

In a game played Sunday, the Ottawa Voyageurs outscored the Rollins team by a 5-3 count in Ottawa.

In Peterborough Sunday, Belleville Western Tire juveniles were handed 3-0 in a game described by Tiremen coach Bud Cowan as "very well played".

"Our guys are starting to come around and showing improvement each time out," advises Cowan.

Chris Longo, Gary Baldwin and Blaine LaRock took care of the Peterborough scoring.

Wellington Bantams Are Shaping Up Well

WELLINGTON — Five Ontario Minor Hockey Association Cram p ionship banners are displayed in the arena. Wellington juvenile teams have won all-Ontario "D" titles while peewee, bantam, and novice squads have also gone all the way.

On the bantam level, things look very good again this season. And the story could be the same in the other divisions.

The Wellington TV bantams, under coach Jim Dunlop and manager Mrs. Greer, showed plenty of promise here Sunday by turning back the Trenton Minor Hockey Association minor bantams, 6-3.

So far, coach Dunlop likes the looks of his bantam squad of 15.

"We've got 10 second year boys and the team appears to be shaping up quite well," says Dunlop.

Most of the boys were members of the peewee championship team in 1971-72.

Bob Snider and Rick Clark each scored twice in Sunday's exhibition win over Trenton.

Rick Dalnard and Terry Greer had the others.

Trophies for All-Ontario Finalists

A's Break Out of the Slump To Repeat as Champions

OAKLAND (AP) - Now you have to believe—in Oakland Athletics.

New York Mets coined the catch-phrase, "you gotta believe," but the Athletics made it unbelievable Sunday by winning the 1973 World Series.

Overcoming dissension, a murder threat to Reggie Jackson, and Jon Matlack, the Athletics won baseball's major league championship for the second straight year, beating the Mets 5-2 in the seventh game.

"We finally did everything together to win this thing," said Reggie Jackson, the most valuable player of the series, who hit a two-run homer in a four-run third inning and made a couple of splendid fielding plays Sunday.

The Athletics were rocked with internal unrest early in the Series after owner Charles O. Finley tried to put on the disabled list second baseman Mike Andrews, who made two errors in one game.

For six games, their usually explosive offense was muffled for the most part by the powerful, intense New York pitching staff.

Jackson was performing under hazardous conditions. His life had been threatened by a letter writer, who promised to murder him if he played in the Series. Jackson was protected by FBI men throughout the week.

And if all that wasn't enough, the Athletics had to face the Mets' most effective pitcher in the deciding game—Matlack.

The hard-throwing left-hander had given up only one earned run in more than three weeks and none in the National League playoff or the World Series.

"We went through the "entire year with only 24 players and still won the American League pennant," said Sal Bando, referring to the fact that Allan Lewis was used only as a running pinch-hitter this year. "Lewis' has speed, but heck, he never won any games for us."

The Athletics also overcame the benching of Joe Rudi early in the season.

"How can you bench a guy like that, no matter what he's hitting," said Bando. "He could be the best left fielder in baseball."

They were down to 22 players after Finley slapped Andrews' home to Boston for making two errors in last Sunday's 10-7 loss in the Meta.

Andrews eventually returned, but the situation became controversial that the Athletics showed open hostility—and even hatred—toward their maverick owner.

"We overcame a lot of pressure," said Bando. "How can you play baseball in a situation like that? We managed to, though. We're really a better team than we showed here. This series shouldn't have gone seven games—we should have won it earlier."

Before this 70th World Series started Billy Martin, who was picked to beat New York—a team that won the National League pennant with an astonishment of near-miraculous breaks and bounces.

The Mets took a 3-2 lead in the series as Jerry Koosman and Tug McGraw combined on a three-hit shutout in the fifth game. McGraw wrestled his way out of a bases-loaded, one-out situation in the seventh inning to save the game, 2-1.

That sent the series back to Oakland and the Athletics were on the verge of an unexpected knockout.

The Athletics faced Tom Seaver in Game No. 6, a pitcher whom Jackson described as "the best in baseball."

Jackson doubled home runs in the first and third against the New York ace and later scored another run as the Athletics tied the series at three games apiece with a 3-1 victory Saturday.

That set the stage for Sunday's deciding game, with probably $30,000 a man for the winning team riding on the outcome.

Matlack was just as tough as expected in the first two innings before the Athletics erupted with their four-run third—the first earned runs scored against the Mets' left-hander in 26 innings.

Rudi singled and after Bando made the second out, Jackson hit one out of sight into the right-center field bleachers for a 4-0 lead.

Oakland made it 5-0 in the fifth on Rudi's run-scoring hit.

After doubles by Felix Millan and Rusty Staub produced a New York run in the sixth inning, in came Rollie Fingers, and Tico's Donna was worth $118.60.

Square Angel's win earned $12,365, bringing her winnings for the season to $76,781. She has started 10 times and won the Fury Stakes and the Canadian Oaks.

New LPGA Rule

ATLANTA (AP) — E. M. (Bud) Erickson, executive director of the Ladies Professional Golf Association announced Saturday a new rule effective in 1974 designed to improve the performance of golfers on the tour.

Under the new plan, all members of the LPGA will have their playing status evaluated as of June 1, 1974, Erickson said.

Player performances from the start of the year will be closely checked under five categories: point performance average, past performance on the money, personal conduct, scoring average and position on the 1974 money list.

Players found not meeting sufficient standards will be advised by the LPGA of their status and will have until the end of the 1974 season to improve their position or face removal of their playing privileges on the tour, Erickson said.

Williams Goes Out With Another Winner

OAKLAND (AP) — Break up Oakland Athletics?

There wasn't even time to pose the question—first applied to a New York Yankees' baseball dynasty several decades ago.

The breakup of the Athletics, winners of their second straight major league championship, began minutes after they beat New York Mets 5-2 Sunday in the final game of the 1973 World Series.

"I think it's time to quit," said 32-year-old second baseman Dick Green.

His retirement announcement was overshadowed, of course, by manager Dick Williams' formal statement confirming that he is resigning from the team he led three years.

"I wish he wasn't leaving, but I understand," said Reggie Jackson, the outfielder chosen most valuable player in the Series.

Jackson and several other Oakland players made it clear that they think their manager resigned because he no longer could take the strain of working for owner Charles O. Finley.

California Angels' outfielder Frank Robinson, who managed Jackson on a winter league team two years ago, was mentioned as a possible candidate to succeed Williams.

"He's got too much class to manage for Finley," said Jackson.

The manager told the players he was leaving last week in New York, after Finley had attempted to remove, infielder Mike Andrews from the roster.

"I think he was trying to tell us he didn't like the way Mike was treated, either," said reliever David Knowles.

"I'd love to manage the Yankees," said the 44-year-old Williams.

"But, honestly, they haven't talked to me and I haven't talked to them."

Gaudaur Has Problem

Riders Alone In First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Weekend games in the Eastern Football Conference did nothing to settle final playoff positions, but one of them presented a lonely problem for Jake Gaudaur, Canadian Football League Commissioner, to unravel.

Montreal Alouettes defeated Winnipeg Blue Bombers 34-7 in Montreal Saturday and Ottawa Rough Riders edged Toronto Argonauts 20-19 Sunday in Ottawa.

Gaudaur's problem arose late in the second quarter in Montreal as the result of a field brawl that ended with Terry Evanseen and Johnny Rodgers of Montreal and Dale Potter and Bob McLaren of Winnipeg being ejected from the game.

At that point Winnipeg held a 7-3 lead on a fumble-recovery touchdown by Paul Williams and a convert by Don Jonas compared with a Montreal field goal by Don Sweet.

On the play after the brawl, Montreal scored a touchdown as Jimmy Jones, an import and alternate quarterback in an 8-a-side receiver, replaced Rodgers, also an import.

As designated import, Jones was only be changed freely with the starting quarterback. If he replaces at least one import that import is finished for the day.

Winnipeg coach Jim Spavital vehemently protested that as Jones could not replace Rodgers who had been ejected. He immediately protested the game to officials and generalmanager Karl Lunsford followed this up with an immediate letter protesting the subsequent outcome of the game to Gaudaur.

Fullback Steve Farrughelli eventually was pulled from the Montreal lineup and Jones was in for only the only play, but Winnipeg maintains all this has nothing to do with the rules violation on which the protest is based.

After the ejections, which cost Montreal two wide receivers and Winnipeg two linebackers the Alouettes went wild, scoring 34 unanswered points.

John Harvey, Peter Dalla Riva and Brian Jack scored offensive touchdowns for Montreal and Jim Nettles intercepted a Jonas pass for another. Sweet added eight field goal and four converts to round out the scoring.

Hot while the game in Montreal, played before just over 14,000 rain-soaked and chilled fans, became little more than a showcase for Montreal's offensive power, the game before 25,328 Ottawa fans was altogether different.

It didn't start out that way as quarterback Joe Theismann endeavored a fast 17-0 first-quarter lead for Toronto and appeared on his way to a runaway victory.

But as the game progressed, it became a brilliant battle of quarterbacks and a textbook display of hard-nosed defences.

Theismann built his lead on a four-yard pass to fullback Bill Symons and on a one-yard scoring run by Symons. Zenon Andrusyshyn added two converts, a field goal and two singles to this total.

Ottawa quarterback Jerry Keeling came back with a 18-yard pass to Rhome Nimo to the second quarter and a 17-yard pass to Hugh Oldham in the fourth period as setting up kicker Gerry Organ for two field tools — one from the Toronto 25-yard line on the last play of the game for the winning points.

But along the way Theismann completed 20 of 37 passes attempted for 211 net yards that included five to Eric Allen for 118 yards. He also sent the Argos 163 yards on the ground for a net total offence of 393 yards that included several time-consuming assaults.

All the same time, Keeling was hitting on 13 of 18 passes attempted for 310 net yards including 11 to Nimo for 169 yards. He used the ground game less, netting only 84 yards but getting 73 of these from fullback Jim Evenson on 14 carries.

The outcome of the two games set up a classic meeting next Sunday in Ottawa between the Alouettes and the Rough Riders in a game that could well decide the conference championship and even the crucial bye through the playoff semi-finals.

Starting at 3 p.m. EDT, that game is not scheduled for television broadcast.

An NFL First For Rams' Dryer

Los Angeles Rams have a new scoring threat as they prepare for next Sunday's battle against Minnesota Vikings. The threat is defensive end Fred Dryer.

That's right. Defensive end Fred Dryer.

Dryer became the first man in the history of the National Football League to record two safeties—fourth four points—when he dropped Green Bay quarterbacks Scott Hunter and Jim Del Gaizo in the end zone Sunday as the Rams beat the Packers 24-7 for their sixth straight win.

The victory for the Rams set the stage for the battle of unbeaten teams at Minnesota, National Conference Central leader, which ran its record to 6-0 by beating Philadelphia Eagles 29-21.

Playoff Spots Up for Grabs

By JOHN SHORT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Jack Abendschan of Saskatchewan Roughriders gets a look out of his job and his team-mates are glad he enjoys it.

The veteran import used his talented toe Sunday to produce 16 points as Saskatchewan battered Calgary Stampeders 34-7 in Regina to create another traffic jam in the struggle for playoff positions in the Western Football Conference.

Abendschan kicked four field goals, three converts and a single as Roughriders moved into a tie for first place with Edmonton Eskimos less than 24 hours after the Eskimos escaped with a 14-14 deadlock with British Columbia Lions.

The weekend's results left every club within reach of a playoff berth. The first-place battle between Edmonton and Saskatchewan is certain to be settled in Edmonton Nov. 4, the final day of the season.

Calgary was passed by the Lions for their deadlock before 30,000 fans in Edmonton ended their elimination. The Lions must win their two remaining games to capture first place and the final playoff spot now held by Calgary.

Winnipeg Blue Bombers lost an opportunity to take over third spot when they were trounced 34-7 in a Canadian Football League interlocking contest Saturday in Montreal. Calgary trails the co-leaders by two points but leads Winnipeg by one and British Columbia by two.

Calgary's only scoring was a 15-yard touchdown pass from Peter Liske to Mark Herman in the fourth quarter before 30,375 at Regina. Larry Robinson, converted. By that time Regina was in full command, primarily because of a 21-0 halftime lead.

George Reed, who piled up 93 yards rushing on 24 carries, featured one touchdown in a six-yard blast. Al Ford ran one yard for a major and Rick Eber added the other on a 26-yard heave from quarterback Ron Lancaster. All other points were contributed by Abendschan, his 10 field goals coming from distances of 19, 18, 14 and 42 yards.

Edmonton was fortunate to tie B.C. Garry Lefebvre who spends much of his spare time preaching as a member of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, caught a 43-yard scoring pass from Bruce Lemmerman with 32 seconds remaining in the game.

Lefebvre stepped into the open far behind the nearest defender and had time to secure the ball before he had to settle in his arms. Then he turned on the speed and scored easily.

Lemmerman, relieved briefly by Tom Wilkinson after Edmonton's attack bogged down, threw a seven-yard pass to Lefebvre and Dave Cutler, Edmonton's first touchdown. Dave Cutler completed the scoring.

Cutler, the league's leading scorer with 121 points, did not get a chance to try a field goal. He has tied the CFL record of 113 in a season set by Ted Groves of British Columbia.

Ivan MacMillan, who took over Gavala's job midway through the season, missed two field-goal attempts that could have given the Lions a victory, but he converted touchdowns by Johnny Munro and Jim Young.

McGovern's touchdown reception, one of five passes he caught during the game, pushed his lead in that department. He now has 1,038 yards on passes this season, the second in a row he has gone over the 1,000-yard mark.

Nicklaus Again

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus was named Professional Golfers' Association's Player of the Year for the second straight year Saturday.

It was the third time Nicklaus has been named Player of the Year. Ben Hogan has won the award most often, four times, and is the only other man to win it twice in a row, in 1950-51.

Clarke said Nicklaus' closest competitor for the honor was Tom Weiskopf.

Ali Batters Rudi Lubbers
JAKARTA (AP) — Muhammad Ali battered and bloodied Dutch heavyweight Rudi Lubbers Saturday night in scoring a unanimous 12-round decision over the former discotheque bouncer.
Ali had predicted Lubbers wouldn't last more than five rounds, but Lubbers stayed up and down, although blood flowed from his nose and his right eye was almost closed.
Judge Lim Ti Chang of Singapore scored the fight 60-45, Judge Sen Johannes of Indonesia scored it 59-53 and Judge Jo Schneider of West Germany made it 60-42, all for Ali. Referee Enrique Jimbers of the Philippines did not score the bout.
"Lubbers is a good fighter," said Ali. "I hit him with everything I could."
Asked why he did not throw many right-hand punches, Ali made a fist with the hand and said: "I have to save this for Joe Frazier."

Thomas Sharp In Habs' Win

By GLENN COLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

It was about 30 minutes before game time when Montreal Canadiens coach Scotty Bowman approached goaltender Wayne Thomas with the word that he would be starting for Montreal in Sunday's National Hockey League game against New York Rangers.

It came as a bit of a surprise for the sophomore goaltender who had been a spectator for Montreal's first four games while rookie Michel Larocque guarded the net.

And Thomas had plenty of work in his 1973-74 debut as the Rangers hurled 41 shots at him during the contest. The 26-year-old Ottawa native stopped all but two of them, helping Montreal to a 3-2 win over New York in one of five games.

Elsewhere, Gilbert Perreault scored at 16:56 of the third period to give Buffalo Sabres a 4-3 win over Toronto Maple Leafs, Boston Bruins hammered Pittsburgh Penguins 8-3, Detroit Red Wings clubbed California Golden Seals 11-3 and New York Islanders and Chicago Black Hawks battled to a 3-3 tie.

The one-goal loss for the Rangers was their seventh in as many nights to a Canadian-based club. Saturday night, Toronto nipped New York 3-2 in Maple Leaf Gardens while in other games, Atlanta Flames upset Montreal 4-2 at the Forum, Buffalo edged the Islanders 3-1, St. Louis Blues and Minnesota North Stars played to a 4-4 tie, Pittsburgh upended California 5-3 and Los Angeles Kings blanked Philadelphia Flyers 3-0 in a game which was refereed Lloyd Gilmour assess 131 minutes in penalties.

One of Gilmour's counterparts, Art Skov, engaged in a shouting match with Bowman several after the Montreal-Ranger game. Bowman was incensed at the referee for calling a five-minute high sticking major on Jim Roberts for high sticking stick. Vic Hadfield at 11:11 of the third period.

Roberts was so upset that he received a game misconduct and team-mate Frank Mahovlich was tagged with a misconduct when he berated Skov.

But that was the only sore point with Bowman as the Canadiens played their finest game of the season to bring their record to 3-2, leaving them in fifth place in the NHL's East. one point behind New York and two behind Boston, Buffalo and Toronto, who are jammed in a first-place tie.

Thomas was particularly sharp during the Rangers' powerplay as he was in the second period when he kicked out 18 New York shots.

Speedy Yvan Cournoyer scored once in the first period and once in the second to give Montreal a 2-0 lead, only to have New York tie the score on goals by Walter Tkaczuk and Bruce MacGregor.

MacGregor's goal came at 16:22 and 56 seconds later, defenceman Serge Savard scored his first goal of the season to provide Montreal with the lead again. It came during a Canadiens' power-play.

In Buffalo, Perreault's first goal of the season capped a three-goal Buffalo rally to stun the Leafs. Richard Martin and Normand Gratton connected with two goals in 41 seconds to tie the score, setting the stage for Perreault's winner, which tipped in off Leaf defenceman Bob Neely's stick.

The Leafs had appeared to be in command of the game as they put up a solid checking display in the first two periods.

Both the Sabres and the Leafs have 3-2 won-lost records.

Boston struck for three goals within 1:40 minutes late in the first period, added one in the second and sealed the game away with four in the third.

Bobby Orr scored his first two goals of the year to key the third-period rally. Phil Esposito, with his league-leading eighth goal, Dave Forbes, with his first NHL marker, Ken Hodge, John Bucyk, Rich Leduc and Fred O'Donnell were the other Boston scorers.

Blades Untracked — Finally

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Golden Blades finally hit the win column at the expense of Quebec Nordiques.

And right winger Tom Webster of New England Whalers having his troubles without centre Terry Caffery, finally got untracked against Toronto Toros.

The Blades, now being operated by the World Hockey Association because of financial difficulties, defeated the Nordiques 4-3 in one of six games Sunday. The win game after four defeats and two ties.

Webster scored two goals in the third period—his third and fourth of the year—to give the Whalers a 4-3 triumph over the Toros and keep New England in a first-place tie with Cleveland Crusaders in the East Division.

In other Sunday games, Edmonton Oilers defeated Chicago Cougars 4-1; Los Angeles Sharks downed Vancouver Blazers 4-1; Winnipeg Jets nipped Minnesota Fighting Saints 7-1 in overtime and Cleveland blanked Houston Aeros 2-0.

Saturday scores were: Vancouver 4, Chicago 3; Quebec 8, New York 1; and Cleveland 4, Toronto 4.

Norm Ferguson's first goal of the season midway through the third period gave the Blades their win. Serge Bernier got his first goal of the year for Quebec at 5:07 of the third period.

Webster hasn't been able to buy a goal, while New England coach Ron Ryan after the Whalers won their fourth game in eight starts. "He's so used to Terry Caffery feeding him the puck that nothing was going right for him."

Caffery tore ligaments in his knee before the season started and hasn't played a game. He was the league's top scorer last year with 39 goals and 61 assists.

Webster, playing on the same line with Caffery last year, had 25 goals and 45 assists in 1972-73, but was held to two goals and six assists before Sunday's game. Al Karlander, former National Hockey League player and now the centre for Webster, hasn't a point after eight games.

In Winnipeg, an overtime goal by Chris Bordeleau—his fourth of the year—led the Jets to victory. He beat goalie Mike Curran at 7:17 of the 10-minute, sudden-death period.

It was Minnesota's first defeat in five games and dropped the club to second place with seven points, one behind Winnipeg in the West Division.

Bobby Hull, his fourth, scored the other Winnipeg goal and Wayne Connelly, his fourth, replied for Minnesota—both in the first period.

Goaltender Jack Norris was outstanding in Edmonton, stopping 38 shots to lead the Oilers to their third win in four games. He lost his shutout with 11 seconds remaining when Duke Harris scored.

Five Goal Night For Doug Horbul

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It was just a Horbul night for Jacksonville Barons Sunday.

Doug Horbul, all American Hockey League rookie from Nokomis, Sask., scored five goals as his Providence Reds shellled the Barons 10-3 to move into sole possession of first place in the AHL's North Division.

Horbul, who managed only 15 goals with Omaha of the Central League last year, scored twice in the first period, once in the second and once in the third.

In Rochester, Murray Kuns scored one goal and set up another to lead the Americans to a 3-2 win over Baltimore Clippers in their home opener.

Larry McIlhop, and Doug Ferguson added the other Rochester markers while Dan McPherson and Marc DuFour tallied for Baltimore.

In Springfield, the Kings won their second game in as many starts by rolling up a 3-0 lead and holding off Hershey Bears 4-2 as rookie goalie Steve rezutned aside 37 shots.

Brian Erickson, Doug Buhr, Mark Heaslip and Wayne Chernecki divided the Springfield scoring while Robin Burns and Wayne Blanchin were the Hershey marksmen.

Nova Scotia Voyageurs have a chance to regain a share of first place in the North Division tonight when they play the Bears at Halifax.

On Saturday, Cincinnati Swords cut down Baltimore 5-2 to open up a four-point gap atop the South Division standings.

In the other Saturday contests, the Kings whipped Richmond Robins 7-1, the Bears beat the Barons 5-3 and New Haven Nighthawks defeated Virginia Wings 6-4.

'Limited' Procedures Unlikely Cancer Cure

NEW YORK (AP) — The American Cancer Society warned Sunday that surgical treatments of breast cancer that remove less than the entire breast have not been scientifically proved to be as effective as total removal.

Controversy has arisen over the surgical treatment of breast cancer, the cancer society said in its annual publication, "New Cancer Facts and Figures."

"A spate of articles in lay publications, mostly women's magazines with wide circulation, has stressed the right and privilege of patients to decide which treatment should be used," the society reported. "Frank has been on the question as to have a mastectomy or not."

In some cases the removal of the entire breast has been approached with emotionalism, the society said.

It said: "The American Cancer Society believes that the public should not be rushed into accepting limited procedures that are less fully proven than mastectomy."

There are various forms of mastectomy, depending on whether and to what degree underlying chest muscles, lymph nodes in the armpit or in the internal mammary chain of lymph nodes are removed along with the entire breast.

The limited procedures have a variety of names, including lumpectomy, local excision, partial mastectomy and tylectomy. In each instance, the tumor mass is removed with a varying amount of surrounding tissue, the cancer society said.

The society said: "The proven methods of therapy are highly effective 35-40 per cent survivals at five years—when diagnosis and treatment are achieved at an early stage."

About 35 per cent of patients, however, discover their cancers themselves by breast self-examination. Sixty per cent of these patients have cancers that have already spread to the lymph nodes in the armpit, a stage where the five-year survival rate is only 40 to 45 per cent.

The cancer society and the National Cancer Institute are sponsoring some 30 demonstration projects aimed at early detection.

Watergate Muddle

Casualty List Keeps Growing

—Jeb Stuart Magruder, the first administration official to resign over Watergate. He gave up a $36,000-a-year commerce department post on April 28 and has since admitted participating in the Watergate cover-up while he was President Nixon's deputy election campaign director.

—L. Patrick Gray, former acting FBI director. Gray resigned April 27 after it was disclosed he burned Watergate-related documents belonging to Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt.

H. R. Haldeman, former White House chief of staff, and John Ehrlichman, former domestic affairs adviser. Nixon announced the resignation of his two top aides on April 30 following allegations linking them to the cover-up.

—John Dean, former presidential counsel. Nixon fired Dean, announcing his departure on April 30. Dean later told the Senate Watergate committee that Nixon knew about the cover-up as long ago as September, 1972.

—Richard Kleindienst, former attorney-general. He resigned April 30, claiming persons with whom he had had "close personal and professional associations" might be implicated.

—Gordon Strachan, former staff assistant to Haldeman. He resigned as presidential counsel for the U.S. Information Office on April 30. Strachan had served as a liaison between Haldeman's office and the Nixon re-election committee.

—David Young, former presidential assistant to the domestic council that had been headed by Ehrlichman. Young, too, resigned April 30. He was one of the White House staff implicated in the break-in at the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist. Ellsberg was involved in the disclosure of the Pentagon papers relating to the Vietnam war.

—Robert Odle, former director of administration for the re-election committee. He was fired May 7 from his consultant's job at the agriculture department after being named by the General Accounting Office as one of several persons who handled unrecorded campaign funds.

—Egil Krogh, former Ehrlichman aide. Krogh resigned as transportation undersecretary May 8 after taking "full responsibility" for the Ellsberg break-in.

—J. Bradford Cook, former chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. Cook resigned this post for lowing a grand jury's report that he had altered a SEC complaint against financier Robert Vesco after discussions with Maurice Stans, the president's top fund raiser. Former counsel secretary Stans and former attorney-general John Mitchell are under indictment in connection with an illegal $200,000 campaign contribution from Vesco. Mitchell left his campaign post in 1972, citing personal reasons.

—John Caulfield, former White House aide. He resigned a treasury department post May 24 after testifying that he relayed an offer of clemency from "the highest levels of the White House" to Watergate conspirator James McCord.

—Richardson, former attorney-general. Resigned Oct. 20 after refusing to fire special Watergate prosecutor Cox.

—Ruckelshaus, former deputy attorney-general. Fired Oct. 20 by Nixon after he, too, refused to fire Cox after Richardson's resignation.

—Cox, former special Watergate prosecutor, Fired Oct. 20 by Nixon, through new Acting Atty.-Gen. Robert Bork, because he defied Nixon's order to him to abandon legal attempts to obtain the White House Watergate tapes.

Missed Personal Goal

WASHINGTON (AP) — When William Ruckelshaus was sworn in Sept. 26 as deputy attorney-general of the United States, he said, jokingly: "It's the first permanent job I've had in a while . . . I'm hoping against hope to hold onto it until Christmas."

More than two months before that deadline, he finds himself out of a job, along with Elliot Richardson who resigned as attorney-general, and Archibald Cox, who was fired as special Watergate prosecutor.

White House press secretary Ronald Ziegler said Ruckelshaus was fired after refusing to obey President Nixon's order to fire Cox.

Ruckelshaus has asserted his independence of the White House on earlier occasions, while moving around some of the government's top positions.

He served two years as the first administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency, where he proved both bold and independent. Winning a White House promise to keep its hands off his agency, he said that if he were pressured from the top, "I would resign rather than contravene the law or abjure my oath of office."

Nixon turned to Ruckelshaus to stifle over the FBI temporarily when Acting Director L. Patrick Gray became mired in the Watergate scandal. Within days, Ruckelshaus strode into the White House to recover some missing FBI files and vowed his agents would not overlook any lead, no matter where it pointed, in the Watergate investigation.

Accepting his fourth administration job as deputy attorney-general—he began as an assistant attorney-general—Ruckelshaus admitted he was disillusioned and disturbed by events in the Nixon government.

A native of Indiana, Ruckelshaus lost in a Senate bid in 1968 to Democrat Birch Bayh but many people think he may try again in 1976 against Vance Hartke, another Democrat.

He was born July 24, 1932, in Indianapolis, the son of John Ruckelshaus, a state legislator. He graduated from Princeton University in 1957 and Harvard Law School in 1960.

A few months ago, talking about the government, he said:

"What I think the government has to do, the people in government, is make it clear that we are going to be absolutely honest in our dealings. . . that we are not going to cut any corners whatsoever, we're not going to shade any of these decision in any way at all."

Nixon Puts in Oval Office Overtime

WASHINGTON (CP) — For the first time in more than six months, President Nixon spent an entire Sunday working at the White House.

The last time was April 15 when he received an intensive briefing on the rapidly-breaking Watergate scandal.

This time there were two topics—the firing of special prosecutor Archibald Cox and the efforts of Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, in Moscow for talks on the Middle East crisis.

There were no announcements as to what went on in the Oval Office, either during the morning session when Nixon met with top advisers or during the afternoon, when he worked alone.

Later, there was a brief announcement that the Moscow meetings had led to an agreement that would be put immediately before the Security Council of the United Nations.

Whether the president watched the carnival-like crowd carrying "impeach" signs outside along Pennsylvania Avenue as he worked inside, was not known. He should, however, have been able to hear the demonstrators at some point.

It was an orderly demonstration, with probably no more than 150 persons involved at any one time, and police took no action. But it was as noisy as it was orderly.

Some sources said part of the morning was taken up by the president and close advisers on the White House strategy to counter the growing speculation over the possible impeachment of the president. There was no announcement to this effect.

Outside, however, the word "impeach" glared from nearly all the signs carried by the pickets.

One read "Nixon can fire anyone—only the people can fire Nixon." The men carry-ing it shouted over and over: "Write your congressman."

An enterprising hawker in a straw boater set up a card table across the street and sold "Impeach Nixon" bumper cards printed in red, white and blue.

Girls were there like Miss America banners, they bristled across the backs of leather jackets. Some pickets waved them at passing cars.

Guards on the White House gatehouses watched through binoculars. There was little pro-Nixon sentiment in evidence.

MODEL RECORD

The longest run by a model train was in 1936 when an engine ran non-stop for four days and covered 153 miles. The run was equivalent, at scale, to 11,500 miles.

Welland Boy's Body Dug Up by Youths

WELLAND, Ont. (CP) — Police said Sunday they have no clues yet in the death of a 15-year-old Welland boy, whose badly decomposed, bullet-pierced body was found in a shallow grave Saturday.

The dead boy, Marcel Gallant, missing from his home here since June 22, was identified at a coroner's laboratory in Toronto and from a wallet and watch found on the body, police said.

Insp. William Murdock of the Niagara regional police said the body was discovered by four youths who found an unusual clearing in a wooded area about 750 feet behind a shopping plaza in the east end of the city.

The four youths became suspicious of a spot that seemed to have been dug recently and brought shovels to investigate. They found the fully clothed body and a jacket in the grave, between two and three feet deep.

Insp. Murdoch said the boy, one of four children of Gabriel and Justine Gallant, had two gunshot wounds in the upper part of his body, and his wallet contained a sum of money in addition to identification. A wrist watch also was found on the body.

There was no sign that the boy had been sexually assaulted, the inspector said.

Police across Canada were advised in June about the boy's disappearance, but thousands of teen-agers have been reported missing, police said.

The boy's grave was found only one mile from the home in which he lived with his parents and three brothers.

Anglicans Favor Females

OTTAWA (CP) — The Anglican Synod of Ottawa came out in favor of women in the priesthood Saturday despite opposition to the move.

A motion was defeated at a meeting asking the House of Bishops to reconsider an earlier recommendation by the General Synod of Canada.

The General Synod, an elected body of clergy and laymen, approved in principle last spring the idea of women in the priesthood.

The move was opposed in the Ottawa synod but the motion asking reconsideration was defeated by a 42-vote margin.

Fischer Waits For Challenge

MANILA (Reuter) — World chess champion Bobby Fischer of the United States said Sunday he has not stopped playing chess, and asked: "Why don't the Russians challenge me?"

Fischer, 30, came to the Philippines for the opening of an international chess tournament in nearby Quezon City.

Asked how long he thinks he will hold the title he wrested last year from Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union, Fischer said: "Oh, I'd like to hold it at least 10 years or so."

He added: "I'd like to mention about what people say that I'm afraid of playing, that I am afraid. . . Why don't the Russians challenge me? They can offer me a lot of money if they think they can beat me. I haven't heard a word from them."

He also denied press reports that he had lost interest in the game, is not keeping track of the latest style and not interested in defending his crown.

Asked who he thinks his most logical challenger is, Fischer said: "I think Spassky is still."

Drake to Sail Oceans Again

The Golden Hind attracts flotilla of boats as she proceeds under full sail before a light breeze off the shores of western England near Falmouth. The proud sailing ship is a replica of Sir Francis Drake's famous flagship in which the Elizabethan hero became the first Englishman to circumnavigate the world in a three-year voyage that started in 1577. The new Golden Hind owned by a consortium of businessmen, will be laid up over the winter and will sail across the Atlantic next year. (CP Photo)

Actor Loses Left Arm and Leg

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor James Stacy had just come out of surgery. "I remember shaking my head and saying, 'Oh, no! Oh, no!'"

"My feeling had always been that death I could take; being maimed was not part of my life plan. . . .

"I was lying there thinking about being a half-man, and I wondered what kind of person I would turn out to be. We all look for growth within, and I thought it might be an interesting experience. I decided I wanted to live so I could see what my life would be like."

Stacy, 36, who starred in the Lancer television series and played opposite Hayley Mills in Walt Disney's Summer Magic, was severely injured Sept. 20 when police said his motorcycle was struck head-on by a car.

Stacy's passenger, Clair Cox, 27, was killed. The driver of the car has been charged with felony manslaughter.

Stacy talked to reporters Friday for the first time since the accident.

As he lay on the pavement after the accident, Stacy said he knew his left leg was missing. "You can't get my leg back on, can't you?" he asked the paramedics. "Yes, don't worry," he was told.

Later, he was told that the leg had been severed in such a way that it could not be replaced. Not until later did he realize he had also lost his left arm.

He said he was told that because of his athletic background, he would have little trouble adapting to artificial limbs. And so he's planning his comeback as an actor.

Stacy, former husband of actress Kim Darby and Connie Stevens, said he hopes to leave the hospital next Tuesday and will start training immediately to use artificial limbs. He said he has already received "a lot of amputee scripts."

JERUSALEM (AP) — Canadian writer and folk singer Leonard Cohen has flown to Israel to entertain the troops during the Middle East war and "to make my modest contribution."

Cohen told reporters that in the past he has sided with the Arabs in their demands that Israel return territory taken in the 1967 war, but now he supports the Jewish state.

"I came to work in a kibbutz but they asked me to entertain instead," he said.

Israeli singer Esther Ofarim was also performing for the soldiers, as were conductor Zubin Mehta, violinist Isaac Stern and others.

LONDON (AP) — British singer Dorothy Squires was ordered Friday to stand trial on charges of paying the holiday travel expenses of a BBC producer to induce him to broadcast her recordings.

No date for her trial was set and she was released on £250 ($625) bail.

Miss Squires divorced wife of actor Roger Moore, is charged with paying the expenses of former BBC producer John Dabbs for holidays in Malta and Gibraltar.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A hightech hypnotist married to actress Lana Turner for three years has been told by an appellate court he has no claims Dante, who became Miss Turner's seventh husband in May, 1969.

The state court of appeals upheld Thursday a Superior Court ruling denying the community property claim by Dr. Ronald dissolved June 26, 1972.

Career Began in Bed

VICTORIA (CP) — When Al Power was about 20 he spent two years in bed because of illness and passed the time by reading every word of his father's 10-volume encyclopedia dictionary.

Today Mr. Power, 50, and his wife Elsie syndicate six crossword puzzles a week to 11 Canadian and 67 United States newspapers from Prince Edward Island to Victoria and California to New York.

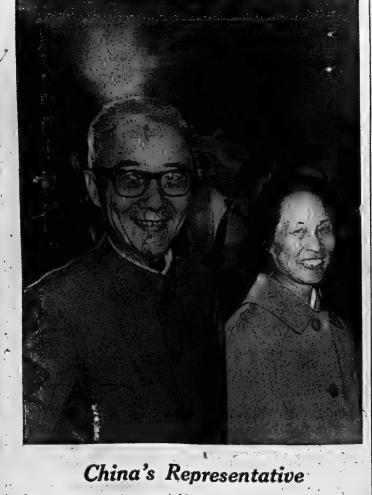
Mr. Power was born in Oak Bay, near Victoria, and went into an office-management career. Mrs. Power, a native of Scotland, met him on a blind date while they were both working in Vancouver. They were married two years later.

Mr. Power started making puzzles when he was a teenager but it wasn't until 1959, when he was an office manager in Los Angeles, that he decided to make them for a living.

"I thought there was a lot more money in it than there is," he says. "A lot of people think you're knocking off $25,000 a year because you've got a column in the paper."

It took about two years to learn how to construct a puzzle and another two years passed before he found syndication with Bell McClure, now part of United Features.

Crossword puzzled began in England in the 19th century as a children's game and became internationally popular in the 1920s when two young publishers named Simon and Schuster advertised them to get their business started.



It takes about six hours for the Powers to complete one puzzle and less than half that time is taken up by actual construction. Most of the time is spent choosing definitions and putting the finished product into proper form. Mrs. Power handles the basics there and her husband fills in the gaps.

Their basic source is a more than 1,500-page compilation of definitions which Mr. Power put together over a period of 11 months. It contains several definitions for each of about 60,000 words.

Webster's Third International is his most-used dictionary but he also has other dictionaries, almanacs, encyclopedias and other reference books.

Sometimes a puzzle-maker has to work backwards and his collection includes two backwards dictionaries.

Mr. Power's puzzles are 15 by 15 spaces and his syndicate has 78 standard forms, so each form appears once every four weeks. "Sled," "asset," and "ace" are among the words used most often.

Saturday's Answer

The canape method of bidding has many advantages, but — as with any style of bidding — it also has its disadvantages.

In canape, holding a two-suited hand, it is customary to bid the short suit ahead of the long suit. It follows from this that when the second suit is named later, the partner of the opening bidder knows that the is the opener's longer suit.

However, things sometimes go wrong when the canape user runs into an uncharted situation. Consider this deal from the match between Venezuela and Italy in the 1967 world championship.

Combined with the canape style, Belladonna, the Italian

Habit Not Likely Caused by Smoke

By G. C. THOSTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is it possible for a child to acquire the taste for nicotine from being exposed to cigarette smoke?

My grandson, now 16, has been around people who smoked from the day he was born. I have seen him as a child with smoke I could barely see through it when the boy was a baby.

Now he has a terrible cigarette habit and can't get along for more than a few hours without them. He won't eat, is thin and run down. I am wondering how we could break this habit.

There are times he bites and the younger brother cigarettes when they were very young.— Mrs. J.B.

The poor kid never had a chance, did he?

I like to argue with your use of the word "taste" unless you take it to mean the same as "habit." I have certainly never heard a smoker exult over the great taste of his or her cigarette—outside of the commercials.

So let's talk about the habit, not the taste.

The youngster saw cigarette smoking as a way of life and was psychologically prepared to become a smoker from an early age. It is known that kids from smoking homes are more apt to be smokers.

But even if he had survived the conditioning, he might well have been left with a more subtle heritage, the increased likelihood of getting certain respiratory ailments in later years, a fact brought out in studies on the subject.

Yes, his low appetite and "run down" state could be, and very probably is, related to his smoking.

Breaking the habit This, of course, can be tough. I can only suggest calling his attention to the physical disadvantages.

If he seems mature enough, you might even suggest he sign up for one of the anti-smoking clinics in your area.

But in answer to your main question, I would have to offer my opinion that it is doubtful that mere exposure to cigarette smoke would result in a physical addiction to nicotine.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Can sugar diabetes cause impotence in men? If so can it be treated? My husband and I are 35, have been married for 10 years and he has been impotent for three. He refuses to ask the doctor or talk about it. He says it can't be treated and diabetes is not the cause.—Mrs. B.R.W.

Impotence can be caused by diabetes but in my experience it usually affects older men, and your husband is only 35.

If diabetes is the cause, meticulous control of the diabetes (sugar level) is essential. But there are many other causes of impotence, some of them psychological, that other causes ought to be investigated, either by his doctor or via help from a psychiatrist.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My doctor whom I have doctored with for 10 years, has always been very good about telling me the truth about tests and X-rays. When I had an electrocardiogram, he said nothing about chronic ischemic heart disease.

But I have had angina pectoris for several years. What is the difference? I saw his report to Medicare.—Mrs. M.P.

You are making a mistake in thinking he has been holding back on what he tells you. You know you have angina pectoris. All he did was report to Medicare the technical term for the cause of the angina—restricted blood flow to the heart muscle. So resume your faith in your doctor.

The bidding:

1 ♦	Dble	Pass	2 ♥

East, opened the bidding with a diamond. Rossignol, playing with Berkin, overcalled with two clubs. This posed a difficult problem for Avarelli, who lacked the values for two notrump, could not afford to bid two diamonds with such weak trump support, and had much too much in high cards (10 points) to risk a pass.

Faced with this dilemma Avarelli chose to compromise with a double. Belzdonna had not reason to bid the double, and he passed. This did not turn out well when Rossignol made eight tricks for a score of 180 points.

East	South	West	North
1 ♥	2 ♣	2 ♥	Pass

No canape, no double, no problems. East got to four hearts, made the contract easily — losing a heart, a diamond and a club — and the Venezuela pair produced a net gain in the team of 600 points.

Tomorrow: Difficult decision.

Mideast Ceasefire Ignored

Fighting Worst Yet

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hard fighting continued today on both fronts of the Arab-Israeli war despite the ceasefire ordered by Israel and Egypt Monday night.

The military correspondent of Egypt's Middle East news agency reported that Egyptian and Israeli forces were "locked in the most vicious fighting since the outbreak of the war."

Israel accused the Egyptians of "incessant" ceasefire violations and said its forces in the southern sector of the Suez canal front have been ordered to continue fighting to counter Egyptian attacks in that area.

Egypt accused the Israelis of seizing new positions during the night, particularly on the west bank of the canal, and said that Israeli planes bombed and strafed the Egyptian forces. It said this "compels our forces to use force to strike at the Israeli forces in the positions occupied after the ceasefire."

Israel also reported a big air battle over the Syrian front and said its pilots shot down 19 Syrian planes during the morning. Syria said that its pilots tangled with an estimated 20 Israeli planes trying to bomb civilian targets around Damascus, forced them to drop their bombs in "barren mountainous areas" and shot down 11 of the Israeli raiders.

Syria also charged that Israeli planes and artillery attacked villages in the eastern foothills of Mount Hebron.

The Middle East news agency correspondent said the Egyptians among the Suez canal were attacking with hundreds of tanks, scores of mechanized infantry brigades and an "unprecedented" number of fighter-bombers.

"The combined operations are forcing the enemy to fall back in east while savage bombardment of enemy rear-areas on the west bank have reduced them to virtually nothing," he said.

An Egyptian military spokesman said that Israeli jets and tanks were carrying out "constant attacks on several sectors." The spokesman said: "Our forces have retaliated to these hostilities, and engagements still are under way."

Israel, meanwhile, reported that its planes were attacking Egyptian troops on both sides of the canal while its armored forces were hitting Egyptian positions on the west bank.

The ceasefire resolution said negotiations toward a lasting peace agreement should start "immediately and concurrently with the ceasefire . . . under appropriate auspices." A UN spokesman said the Security Council will determine the "appropriate auspices for the negotiations."

Bu there was no public move Monday to get peace talks under way. Sir Laurence McIntyre of Australia, the council chairman for October, said no council member has approached him about scheduling a meeting for today, and diplomats at UN headquarters did not expect a session until it was clear how the ceasefire was faring.

It's A Three Pack-a-day War

TEL AVIV (AP) — Premier Golda Meir has been sleeping less, worrying more and chain-smoking her usual three packs of cigarettes a day since Israel went to war 18 days ago.

She has spent the days and much of the nights of fighting in an unpretentious office in the defence ministry compound, getting home when she could to the two-family house she shares with her son in suburban Ramat Aviv.

Her only public appearances have been to visit wounded troops and thank U.S. pilots who flew in arms and other military equipment. Otherwise, as one observer put it, "she's playing general to the generals."

The grey-haired 75-year-old grandmother came from Jerusalem to spend Yom Kippur with her son Menachem, a cellist and the head of Tel Aviv University's Academy of Music, and his family.

Instead, she spend the most sacred Jewish holy day in the second-floor corner office at the defence ministry, making feverish preparations for the Arab attack that was developing.

Once war began, Mrs. Meir cancelled all appointments and cleared her schedule for military matters and the political and diplomatic discussions arising from the conflict.

"All her thoughts are with the war, and she keeps to the office because that's where she's most needed," says Lou Kadar, her old friend and assistant.

The premier has kept to her usual 7 a.m. wake time and breakfast with her son, daughter-in-law and three grandsons.

With her bodyguards, Mrs. Meir makes the five-minute drive to her office and the hours of reading reports, attending briefings and holding meetings begin. She likes to be home for lunch and a little rest, but the demands of running a war have often kept her in the office through lunch and dinner.

On normal days, Mrs. Meir gets home at 7 or 8 p.m., works on handicrafts or attends a concert if she has no official engagements. But Mrs. Kadar said she has worked often until 1 a.m. and once until 3 a.m. since the war started.

"She always has a late sleeper anyway," Mrs. Kadar said. "She doesn't like to go to bed."

In her free moments, Mrs. Meir tries to keep track of her family. Fifteen of them, including her granddaughter's husband, are in the army.

Alberta Seeking More Oil Control

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta has threatened to take greater control over its shipments of oil to the rest of Canada and the world as its next step in the raging energy battle.

The action, described in the legislature as an Alberta-first policy, would be the latest move in Alberta's fight with the federal government to control its oil resources.

Bill Dickie, provincial minister of mines and minerals, said Monday legislation "being looked at in the light of recent events" would give the province the power to determine how much crude oil could be exported to other parts of Canada and to other countries.

Premier Peter Lougheed told the legislature that even though Alberta is dissatisfied with the price it gets for crude oil, no action is being considered, for the present, that would halt oil exports from the province.

Horns Obey Demonstrators

WASHINGTON (AP) — For two days now, the quiet tranquility of the White House lawn has been shattered by passing motorists who are responding to demonstrators' signs that read: "Honk for impeachment."

And White House watchers say there is little doubt that President Nixon received an earful of blaring noise Monday when he strolled from the serenity of his Oval Office across the private street to his suite in the Executive Office Building.

Dutch Oil Embargoed

KUWAIT (Reuter) — The Persian Gulf state of Kuwait announced today an immediate embargo on oil exports to the Netherlands because of its Middle East policies.

Dutch imports from Kuwait account for about 11 per cent of Kuwait's production of three million barrels a day.

White House Lawyers Tell It to the Judge

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon's lawyers seek to convince Judge John Sirica to allow a United States senator do the job the judge wants to do himself: listen to the tapes of White House conversations about Watergate.

His answer may affect not only the tapes but also a wealth of other documents and evidence which an increasing number of published reports identify as being even more important than the tapes.

If Judge Sirica finds the Nixon proposal unacceptable, it will leave the president in a position of not complying with a court order and potentially open to a contempt-of-court charge.

At the request of special prosecutor Archibald Cox, he ordered Nixon Aug. 29 to give him the tapes of nine White House conversations during which the scandal was believed to have been discussed.

The judge wanted to decide what portions should be presented to a special grand jury investigating Watergate. The U.S. Court of Appeals upheld Sirica's ruling and gave Nixon until last Friday to comply.

Nixon has so far refused. Nor will he appeal the ruling to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The White House is expected to deliver a written statement today to the U.S. District Court where Sirica presides, announcing its proposal that Senator John Stennis, venerable Democrat from Mississippi, listen to the taped conversations and "authenticate" a report on them.

Nixon has offered to give the Stennis-approved report both to the courts and to Senator Sam Ervin's Watergate committee. The Senate committee has tentatively accepted, after being turned down earlier by the courts in its attempt to get the tapes.

Former Prosecutor Cox rejected the Nixon proposal partly because he felt it would also prevent him from obtaining other memoranda, notes and documents he requested from the White House.

Nixon Milked Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — New evidence has surfaced tying President Nixon to an alleged deal involving a pledge of $2 million in campaign money in exchange for administration favors for the dairy industry.

Investigative sources said Monday they have obtained a letter addressed to Nixon Dec. 26, 1970, reminding him of the industry's past support and telling him of the milk producer's need for immediate administration aid.

The letter was written, the sources said, by Pat Hillings of the Associated Milk Producers Inc., the major industry group.

The Associated Press has confirmed the letter's contents from four separate sources.

"The thrust of the letter was a request that the president approve new milk tariffs that the industry was interested in," one source said. "It pointed out that the industry had $2 million available for 1972 campaign aid for U.S. dairy farmers if necessary if they were to continue their support.

A month later, when the new Nixon budget was announced, proposed dairy subsidies rose nearly 19 per cent, compared with a slight increase for feedgrain subsidies and a major decrease in food-aid shipments, another method of government farm support.

The following March, however, three events occurred.

—On March 23, 1971, the first $10,000 contribution from milk producers was secretly delivered to a group of dummy campaign committees that later turned their holdings over to the Nixon re-election campaign.

—The following day, President Nixon and then-Agriculture Secretary Clifford Hardin met at the White House with 18 representatives of the dairy industry.

—On March 25, Hardin reversed a 13-day-old decision not to grant an increase in federal price supports for milk and announced approval of a 27-cents-a-hundredweight increase in support prices, claiming he had received new economic data.

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Sargent of Owen Sound announced today he was withdrawing from the race for the leadership of the Liberal party.

Airliner Crashes

RIO DE JANEIRO (Reuter) — A Brazilian airliner with a 65-passenger capacity belly-flopped into Rio bay on takeoff today. First reports said at least 25 persons were rescued and 10 remained aboard the partially-submerged aircraft. The reports said there is a possibility the 10 are still alive.

Prank Proves Fatal

TORONTO (CP) — Gordon MacNeil, 17, died Monday, five days after he was injured as he rode on top of an elevator as a prank. The Grade 10 student was injured in the elevator shaft of an apartment building when struck by the elevator's counter-weight.

'Aliens' Fined

JONESBORO, Ark. (AP) — Two men accused of impersonating visitors from outer space have been fined $2 each plus $24.80 in court costs on charges of malicious mischief. Stanley Ray Burdyshaw, 18, and William Don Wilson, 21, were arrested after about 20 motorists reported Sunday night seeing "little men in silver suits." State Trooper Daniel Oldham testified Monday the two were standing at the edge of the highway "covered from head to toe" with aluminum foil and jumping in front of cars.

Scandal Holiday Over

WASHINGTON (CP) — Congressional Democrats, in a tranquilizing weekend today to cope with the possibility of renewed President Nixon from office for his dismissal of special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Judge John Sirica, also back in Washington in his district court chambers, must weigh a request from the president's lawyers that Sirica accept a compromise proposal for handling several tapes of White House conversations about the Watergate scandal.

President Nixon spent the night at Camp David, Md., the rustic presidential retreat in the Catoctin Mountains, with his wife Pat. She was described by daughter Julie Eisenhower as being in good shape: "There is no desperation. There is no despair."

The president's popularity was apparently at a low ebb, however. An NBC-sponsored poll gave Nixon a 29-per-cent "unfavorable" rating, with 46 per cent of those polled favoring impeachment — twice the August figure. Nearly half said he should resign.

If Judge Sirica rules against the White House, he could find Nixon in contempt of court. Whether the courts could enforce a fine or jail term is an open question, but the contempt citation could be grounds for congressional action against Nixon.

Paper Pickup Will Resume

After being discontinued for the summer months, the city's waste paper reclamation project is to be on again.

No date for the resumption of pickups was set but city council Monday voted for the paper pickup program to be resumed.

The decision was taken following a report from City Manager Albert Elliott indicating that the city garbage collector, Quinte Sanitation, was prepared to pick up the paper and deliver it to Belleville Waste and Metal.

Following pickup and delivery of the paper, the city will provide an employee to mix the paper. Belleville Waste and Metal is unwilling to accept the paper unless it was properly mixed and Quinte Sanitation Service is unwilling to carry out the piling.

Alderman Jess Smith, chairman of the Quinte solid waste committee, commended the city manager for helping to solve the problem and also commended Gary Rock of PACE (People Against Contaminated Environment) for instituting the paper pickup and carrying it this far.

"People will be happy to know that the paper pickup is to be resumed," she said.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey noted that corrugated paper box material was in short supply and said local industrialists were finding it difficult to find necessary supplies.

Hydro Decision Early in 1974

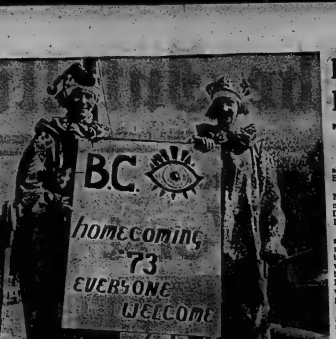
Quinte area residents will know by early in 1974 which of three 500 kilovolt bulk power transmission line corridors proposed by Ontario Hydro will make its way across the countryside north of Belleville.

At a conference on underground power transmission in Toronto Monday, Hydro revealed it expects to make a submission of its choice to the Solandt Commission in early December. After the provincially appointed watchdog of Hydro reviews the proposal, a new series of public hearings on the corridor is expected to begin in February.

Arthur Mosher, with Hydro's right-of-way department, said that along the 116 mile route from the Lennox Generating Station to Oshawa, there are no areas in which any length of line could be saved by going underground.

He said the most critical environmental features along the route, such as the crossing of the Trent River, are not considered to pose enough problems to rule out overhead lines.

Experts from Hydro, the United States and Britain's Central Electricity Generating Board spoke on the underground transmission line potential in Ontario. Prime requisite for underground cable, is a high population density to create a great demand for power.



Britain's Patrick Walsh said England and Wales have 837 inhabitants per square mile while Ontario has 22. Power requirements in the British Isles are about 24 times that of Ontario on such a per-square mile basis.

The demand for power in Ontario is not yet so great as to make the installation of underground lines feasible. Hydro estimates the cost of installation cost for a mile of line would be $4.5-million, or about 30 times that of constructing overhead lines.

Weaver Warns Trenton Council

Writ Threat Over Drainage

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Town businessman Gerald Weaver has given town council three weeks to see things his way before he takes the municipality to court.

Mr. Weaver in recent months charged the town was devaluing property he owns on the west side of Trenton through unchecked drainage from nearby developments.

The builder informed council it would be served with a writ calling not only for correction of the drainage problem but . $40,000 in damages.

The writ, will also call for, first, a temporary injunction to stop the drainage problem while the problem is before the court, and a further permanent injunction to put a complete end to it.

Council followed an earlier meeting with the builder, imported a Cranbrook specialist to look the situation over. But, according to comments in council last night, councillors were as confused about the situation afterwards as they had been before.

Mr. Weaver, seemingly sympathetic to the town, said he realized the cost of a court battle and urged that council and he solve the problem across the conference table. He gave the town three weeks.

Council on the other hand has undertaken to retain the services of a top Toronto municipal lawyer. The town clerk is expected to meet with him tomorrow.

Other town employees will further investigate the drainage problem and try to come up with an engineering answer.

Jets Always Ready For Suez Airlift

TRENTON — CFB Trenton Boeing 707s are ready any time to participate in the airlifting of 900 Canadian troops to the Middle East, a base spokesman said here today.

Capt. Bob Burke, base protocol officer, said no standing orders had been given Trenton aircraft to be on constant alert while the middle east situation was being monitored.

Meantime, Canadian Press reported also 30 Canadian soldiers are ready to go to the Middle East immediately if they are needed to bolster United Nations truce observer forces there, an armed forces spokesman said Monday.

Another 900 men, members of the first Airborne Regiment in Petawawa, are available for actual peacekeeping duties if requested, he added.

He gave the information in an interview after External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told the Commons the UN Truce Supervisory Organization (UNTSO) now has 28 Canadian participants, may be expanded for the new ceasefire.

Canada will look sympathetically at requests for more Canadians, he said.

The government was prepared to consider participation in a new UN peace force if it was asked to and if "we are satisfied we can play a useful role."

The armed forces spokesman said there are 30 men on permanent standby to take observer roles in the Middle East. They have received the necessary inoculations and can move rapidly, if needed.

Canadian participation in UNTSO has been in the Syrian sector.

The airborne regiment was created in 1970 to fulfil international roles that could come under the UN.

It has 900 men and support units, such as helicopters, bringing the force up to what were 1,100 and 1,200 men.

Suspended, Ignores It, Jailed

James Edmund Rice, 18, appeared before Judge J. L. Clendenning of the provincial court in Belleville and was sentenced to two months and one day after being convicted on five counts of driving while under suspension and on one count of failing to appear in court for a previous trial.

Rice, who had his licence suspended for a year in July of 1972, was stopped four times by police for driving his car between the period of February and June 1, the court was told. He was also involved in an accident while driving a motorcycle in April.

He pleaded guilty to all charges.

In passing sentence, Judge Clendeaning said he considered Rice's actions a "flagrant violation of the suspension order" which "verged on contempt of court".

He noted that he had the power to prohibit Rice from driving for up to five years but said he felt the prison term would serve as a deterrent to suspension.

Collins Bay Escapers Captured

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An attempted murder charge was laid Monday in provincial court against one of three prisoners who escaped from Collins Bay penitentiary earlier this month.

Larry Ross Walters, 27, of St. Thomas, Ont., was charged in the wounding of Windsor constable Paul Seguin, shot in the leg Sunday night during one of two police raids.

Walters, Stephen Cuper, 34, of Hungary and Frank E. Walters, 18, of Hagersville, Ont., were taken into custody in the raids by local police and the RCMP.

Joseph Martin, 41, a fourth road prisoner who escaped with the three men from Collins Bay, shot himself to death Sunday near Kingston, Oct. 13 was found fatally shot at nearby Malden Centre last Thursday.

In court Monday Larry Walters also charged with illegal possession of a pistol. A similar charge was laid against Cuper.

Walters, Cuper and Frank Walters no relation to Larry, also were charged with being at large. All three were remanded without bail to Oct. 24 and ordered to undergo psychiatric examination.

Twenty Hurt In School Bus

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — About 20 children were injured, some perhaps seriously, when a school bus and two other vehicles were involved in a collision today on a fog-shrouded highway.

Police said the bus, carrying children from Sandwich West school, a car and a garbage truck were involved in the collision.

The car burst into flames, and the back of the bus was scorched. The driver of the car escaped uninjured. First reports had indicated that the bus itself had burst into flames.

At least eight ambulances were sent to the scene to take the injured to area hospitals.

Police were unable immediately to give the extent of the injuries suffered by those in the school bus.

Children's Aid Work Up in Prince Edward

PICTON — Over-all work load of the Prince Edward Children's Aid Society is increasing despite a decrease in the number of youngsters in care.

In a release marking CAS Week, it is noted that at the close of September, there was a total of 74 open cases involving 223 children in their own homes and 49 in CAS care.

This compares with a total of 46 open cases involving 166 children for the same month in 1972.

The decrease in youngsters in care is attributed to the success of the agency's preventive work. Counsellors are able to help families in solving their difficulties without removing the child whenever possible.

Youngsters who must be removed are taken to foster homes where they are given help in rebuilding their lives. The CAS stresses the need to foster home "the backbone of our resources for children". There are more than 40 foster homes in Prince Edward and a need for many more. Many teenagers need this type of assistance.

Volunteers also help the CAS in the county by driving children and parents to counseling sessions, hospitals, and doctors' appointments. They also serve as babysitters and homemakers and do other chores that leave the social worker free to focus on the prevention of neglect and the protection of children. New volunteers are welcomed by the CAS.

In Prince Edward there were nine children on the adoption probation list at the close of September in comparison with 11 in 1972. Fewer infants now come into care with the CAS.

The annual cost per child for the CAS in Prince Edward is approximately $85 less than it is provincially, average although its per centage of teenagers in care as of March, 1972, was the highest in the province.

White Church Filmed for CBC

PICTON — Prince Edward County's historic White Chapel will be featured in an upcoming episode of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation's documentary series, This Land.

Film crews last weekend shot scenes of the interior and exterior of the frame church built in 1809. It is expected they will be used in a program to be broadcast on an 8 p.m.

The CBC crew also filmed scenes in Adolphustown last week.

The White Chapel was built by the Methodists on land donated by Hezekiah Dorland and has been maintained as a typical country church of the early nineteenth century. Once each year, on the first Sunday in June, an anniversary is held.

Environment Creates Six Mini-ministries

TORONTO (CP) — Six mini-ministries of the environment will be created under a new organizational set-up announced Monday by Environment Minister James Auld.

Mr. Auld told the legislature the centrepiece of the ministry's reorganization, to be completed by April 1, will be the creation of six regions across the province. The regions were announced as northwest, northeast, southwest, west-central, central and east.

They would seek to be in charge of a director, not yet named, and would be given authority to make many of the decisions now made by Mr. Auld or his Queen's Park staff.

Mr. Auld said later in an interview the new set-up is an effort to cut delays.

He said that when fully implemented, the new regional offices will reduce by 50 per cent the time it now takes for municipalities and industries to obtain permits and licences.

Mr. Auld said the new regional directors will be given authority to make decisions in such areas as sub-division applications.

Head office would only be called in when a complicated industrial project is involved, or on some project involving special expertise.

The changes are the result of proposals of an interministerial team that has been working since November, 1972, examining the role of the ministry.

Potter Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter said Monday in the Ontario legislature he had no complaints from people in the Kitchener-Waterloo area about the fact that six area psychiatrists are opting out of the Ontario Health Insurance Plan (OHIP).

Mr. Nixon, who introduced the matter, called Dr. Potter's explanation "inadequate."

Mr. Lewis called it "nonsense."

Mr. Nixon said the psychiatrists collectively planned to raise their rates from the OHIP payment of $27 an hour to $40 an hour.

NDP Claim:

Sandbanks Aided In Profits: Lewis

By JIM WATERS
Toronto Bureau of The Intelligencer

TORONTO — One of the reasons Lake Ontario Cement Company's profits doubled in the first nine months of this year compared to 1972 was the fact it was allowed to stockpile sand from the Sandbanks Provincial Park before the expropriation procedures were in progress, NDP Leader Stephen Lewis said Monday.

Mr. Lewis told The Intelligencer's Toronto Bureau the government's decision to take over Lake Ontario's lease on a section of the park was "clearly a scare campaign" which has not been properly followed through.

He said the company was able to extract a maximum amount of sand from the park when the Province's plans became known. He suggested the government should have frozen all operations there immediately after its announcement.

Attorney - General Dalton Bales, speaking in the Legislature that no money has yet been paid to Lake Ontario which had been leasing the portion of the park for 21 years. The site was leased after the provincial government reforested nearby company property.

"It is just a matter of finalization. Once the expropriation takes place the government then has control. The compensation has to be finalized and valuations paid," he said.

He added he was not aware what the government's latest offer to the company was on the one percent of the park occupied by Lake Ontario.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier said he was also unaware of the terms of the offer, but promised to report that information to the Legislature.

Local Snowmobilers Hear From Federation

A meeting sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs was held Saturday afternoon in Benson Hall here, with members of four snowmobile clubs in Prince Edward County attending.

Four members of the federation — Lloyd Wright and Vera Van Alstine of Port Sidney, Jim Williams of Lindsay and Morris Tendal of Brampton, attended the meeting to inform the snowmobilers about the federation.

Its purpose is to unite all snowmobilers into clubs and through these clubs into a body with a strong voice, and also to maintain a good public image by co-operating with Ontario law enforcement agencies.

Approximately 125 snowmobile clubs belong to the federation, based in Port Sidney.

Only one of the snowmobile clubs in Prince Edward — the Picton Bay Snow Riders, are members of the federation now. It is hoped that the other three, the North Channel, Bayshore and Millcreek Snowmobile Riders Clubs from Belleville will join soon.

The efforts of the federation among different clubs in Ontario in solving problems to government officials and to manufacturers, was discussed.

The 73 members of the federation present all over Ontario visited different snowmobile clubs to help them to solve any problems encountered and recruiting new members for the federation.

Looking for a new house? Then probably what you desire and the going price for such a dream house are mutually exclusive. There is no perfect house and very few families can afford everything they want. This means compromise.
You might have to trade off certain desirable features to get a house with other more important ones. For example you may find yourself giving up a short commuting distance to get a house with more land or vice versa. You could give up a family room, say, for a second bath — then add the family room you really want later on, when you can better afford it.
Make a list of your top priorities, such as location, schools, number of bedrooms. This will do double duty. It will steer you to the house that comes closest to what you want now, and one that will also satisfy your probable future needs.

The Main Chance

We have this little cameo at first hand from the passenger who witnessed it. The scene is Los Angeles airport and this traveller has taken her seat for a flight to London. Outside a Negro is loading boxes of food for the first-class passengers onto a conveyor. Suddenly he pauses, forages in one of the boxes and takes a bunch of grapes, then discards them for a larger bunch and settles down for a snack.

Well, I'm all right Jack and how are you today and okay ready for takeoff.

A sign of our times maybe, or of the inhuman difference from the dawn of history . . . Adam and Eve in the garden and the days as a youngster when you sneaked those apples from someone's orchard. An eye for the main chance. Or yet again, perhaps a symbol of the indifferent service and cold food the passenger experienced on this, one of the very best-known of U.S. and world airlines and with whom she was booked half-way around the globe.

But grapes . . . yes, that airport man had good taste at least and we have been reminded of this incident by an article in Hospital Administration Magazine on the relative merits of the so-called health foods and those bought in the supermarket or corner store.

Research conducted by the Faculty of Food Science at the University of Toronto, and presented to an Ontario Dietetic Association regional meeting revealed no significant difference in the major nutrients in bread, flour, rice, macaroni and cereal purchased in these respective establishments.

Again, the magazine points out, a microbiological analysis of the same products to determine purity and contamination revealed no significant difference in total micro-organisms between the two sources. However, the rice, oats and flour purchased in the health food stores gave positive results for coliform bacteria indicating possible contamination.

The university researchers point out further that a cost comparison, based on equal amounts of nutrients, revealed that on an average cereal products cost 25 per cent more in a health food store. In the case of produce and dairy products the difference is much greater.

Coming as they do from a responsible source these facts are significant. Nobody is suggesting that health food stores close their doors, but the information does contribute to consumer knowledge so that customers are better able to evaluate the situation for themselves.

Keep Them Clean

On the subject of food and health generally, a columnist for a Western Ontario newspaper has received a complaint from a housewife about dirty grocery and department storebaskets.

"The carts," she writes, "are often not only dirty but the baby seats are broken and the whole do not want to go the same way you do."

The lady goes on to suggest carts should be washed and repaired like any other facility in the establishment, such as floors and windows.

It is a good point.

Elevator Tragedy

Riding elevators roofs is said to be a common thing with youngsters in Toronto—in Regent Park section of the city at least. And this on the authority of the mother of one youth who indulges this latest "kicks" caper.

Now boys will be boys, and according to one youth this particular pastime is "easy," but when a 17-year-old fetches up in hospital in critical condition it is time to cry halt.

The youth had his head jammed between a counter-weight and the top of an elevator last week. Freed by firemen using hydraulic jacks, the teenager has brain, lung and heart damage.

We are left with the question, is there any way youngsters can be warned from themselves? Would driving a car at a heartstick speed, putting back too much alcohol, or playing crazy-mixed-up games like riding elevator roofs, our young people should know there are better paths in life.

Energy Board Ensures There Is Enough Fuel to Go Round

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

— Theme News Service

With winter just around the corner, Canadians can be assured that there will be enough heating fuels to go around.

To make doubly sure that the United States shortage of petroleum-based fuels won't create a crisis here, Canada's National Energy Board has placed controls on the export of propane, butane and heavy fuel oils.

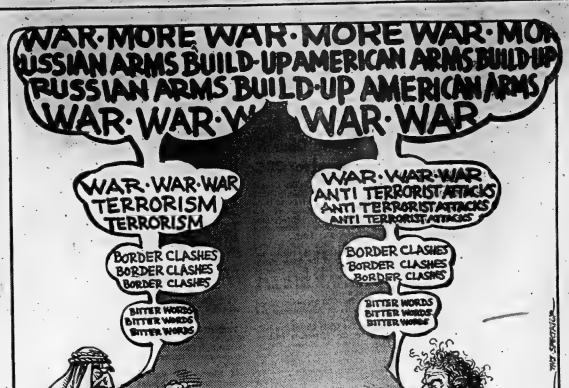
These had been the only petroleum products that were not under such controls. Now the entire range of Canadian fossil fuel products has been reserved for domestic use—none can be exported unless shown clearly to be in surplus.

It's good news that, despite the forecasts by the prophets of doom, our winter requirements have been so forthrightly protected by Ottawa early in the season.

The bad news will come with your first fuel bill. Prices of all forms of energy have risen substantially, reflecting a number of factors that, are thoroughly familiar by now—soaring world market prices resulting from actions taken by the Arab-dominated Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the rapidly escalating costs of developing new Canadian oil reserves, and the integrated oil companies' drive to maximize their return on investment.

If it's any comfort, remember that the rest of the world is caught in much the same price squeeze.

The Americans, in particular, have blundered into an energy crisis that defies any easy or early solution. They face not only higher fuel prices but real shortages that will again force schools and other public buildings to shut down for lack of heat.



Both the United States and Canada have been bountifully blessed with fossil fuels. But the Americans, who don't share our winter climate, have chosen to place higher priority on consumption of price and environment than on an assured fuel supply.

The result is that the United States has had regulations that keep natural gas prices low (but discourage the search for new reserves), and protected its landscape from construction of new oil refineries that would have alleviated its gasoline shortage.

Canada must learn from the American mistakes. Let's get off the collision course between ecology and energy, and force the stiff-necked antagonists on each side to bend a little in the common interest.

And in our zeal to control exports let's not forget that these export sales help to spread the industry's overhead and thus keep domestic prices more in line.

Finally, let's urge Energy Minister Donald Macdonald to hold his horses, and not halt Eastern Canada's long established Imports of Venezuelan and Middle Eastern crude oil simply to show the world that we can be self-sufficient.

South Vietnam Regime Propped Up By U.S. Dollars

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

If so much blood and treasure was expended in Vietnam to save South Vietnam from communism, then this colossal outlay of perhaps $200 billion from the United States in the war was for nothing.

The Republic of South Vietnam today is not Communist, that's true. Instead it is a repressive police state where civil liberties are largely non-existent, where thousands of political prisoners linger in harsh jails and where the press says what it is told or else.

The latest revelation of continued United States assistance to a former ally and police state is the way in which President Thieu's national police have been funded by U.S. foreign aid since 1967, up to $133 million.

The Paris truce agreement last January called for the withdrawal of U.S. advisers to the South Vietnamese military and para-military forces. It also called for a Vietnamese one-to-one replacement formula for worn-out U.S. military equipment at the time of the truce.

With a greed for new gadgets these exceeded only by Latin American and African military establishments, the South Vietnam national police, 70 per cent larger than they were in 1968, are "wearing out" equipment faster than the Americans said.

Funds have even been supplied for a police computer data-gathering system on the country's 11.5 million people, about 80 per cent of whom are now recorded on sophisticated police records.

All this in the South East Asian country whose salvation from the Communist invasion was to make it a beacon for democracy and goodness knows what else in South East Asia.

The truth is South Vietnam has always been a repressive nation. Its presidents breaking few opposition, its armed forces bloated by U.S. equipment, its senior officers corrupted by power and U.S. dollars.

Until its equipment becomes obsolete or presumably irreplacable from American sources, the South Vietnamese air force can be called the largest in Asia after Communist China and the Soviet Union. Its police and intelligence services are exceeded only by South Korea.

In that country, also fought over 20 years ago in defence of it from falling into the hands of the North Korean Communists, the state intelligence service developed with C.I.A. assistance has become the model of an anti-Christian and fundamentalist military personality.

Like the neighboring Philippines Republic, President Marcos has developed a highly repressive measures to maintain domestic order and prevent a situation from arising.

This country, highly-Americanized from its long years as a spoiled child of the west and then other unsavory examples of non-Communist Asian allies of the West in South East Asia.

Successor nations of the British Empire in South East Asia have done better where personal freedoms and a smooth social order are concerned. We forget that Communist infiltration of the emerging post-war new nations of South East Asia began in Malaysia, in the late 1940s. The British stopped the Communists, persuaded them to abandon the new life of a new Asian nation.

Singapore, a genuine city state, also fares political and social repression, but not on the scale of American Asian allies. Among all the failures in the Vietnamese war it did not win, perhaps the worst is the failure of these Asian nations to show even a small amount of Western democratic method.

It took the worst Asian war in modern times to show absorption wasn't going to happen.

Radio Fan 'Disoriented'

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

What are the strange Muzak-type strains issuing from CJBQ these days?

All 6 and 7,000 violins recorded in marble halls, in slow three-quarter time, are inappropriate. And where are the familiar whistlesome which heralded my afternoon — like progress through my morning chores? I am completely disoriented!

I used to be able to delude myself into believing that Tom Hookings really cared about my sleepless night, the egg that rolled off the stove and the dough that failed to rise. I am sure that I shall never establish the same rapport with the charming and urbane Mr. Maloney, who is preoccupied with climbing those Golden Stairs, drifting down the beautiful Blue Danube or frolicking with those ladies from Maxim's.

All of a sudden having a strong preference for the classics, I need a Neil Diamond and a Tom Jones to walk beside me and the pipes and drums of the Black Watch to precede me over the threshold of the unknown days.

I miss the cracker-barrel, the spittoon — the old shoe. Turn to A.M. you say? Well, you see my kitchen-radio is just F.M. Switch on the stereo? You forget — the master of the house is still sleeping! I feel discriminated against!

Property Sales To Foreigners At Issue

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I take issue with proposals, put forward with increasing force in recent months, to restrict or prohibit the sale of private property to non-residents of Canada — particularly with citizens of the United States.

My argument is that the facts of the situation don't warrant such contemplated restrictions, and that there would be grave economic consequences if they were put into effect.

I believe that any attempt, to impose restriction on or ban the sale to foreigners of private lands in Ontario represents an insidious challenge to fundamental freedoms.

Sadly, the whole issue of 'foreign ownership has become a political catch-all.

I suspect that if the nationalists took the trouble to compile statistics on the foreign ownership of land they would find themselves championing a non-cause.

Perhaps the best way to keep the issue in perspective is to remember that nearly 89 per cent of Ontario is still in public hands, to remember that Ontario alone has 25,000 lakes, to remember that of the 240 million acres of land in this province only 29 million acres is privately owned and to remember that all the land owned by non-Government is suitable for recreation and very little ever developed for that purpose.

The Federal Government, which already controls some of the most magnificent recreational areas in the continent, is expanding its national parklands year by year.

In other words, the Federal and Provincial governments are at last beginning to show some foresight about the future protection of the interests of Canadians.

Arguments that governments would lose environmental and land-use control over property if it passed into foreign ownership are, of course, ridiculous. Private lands, no matter who owns them, are subject to as many controls in the interests of the public.

It's hard to see just what could be gained by restricting the sale of land, it's extremely easy to see what would be lost.

To begin with, real estate values throughout the province would be defined. Discriminatory regulations would not only exclude foreign investment but also discourage Canadian buyers. Why buy land that it will be hard to dispose of it as I please? What if my only surviving relatives are foreign citizens?

Nationalists are quick to point out that such countries as Sweden and New Zealand already have restrictions on the sale of land to foreigners. That's true. But they are small countries with unique land problems. Ontario has a large land area with a relatively small population. Objective comparisons between ourselves and any of those countries is next to impossible.

For the life of me, I what the nationalists do not acknowledge is the many benefits that the many countries where Canadians can freely buy real estate. Canadian nationals have extensive holdings in California, Florida, the Caribbean Islands, and Spain. If we prevent Americans from buying land there, retaliation could hit the U.S. as a whole or by individuals who own land beyond the realms of possibility.

No Winter Works Program

By DON O'HEARN
Ontario's Park Bureau

TORONTO — Labor Minister John White has announced that unseasonal conditions drastically change there will be a winter works program this year.

Employment, he said, was expected that the program wasn't needed, and unless there was a drastic increase in unemployment it would be dead for this year.

It is many years now since we haven't had a winter works program, under which the province and the federal government have heavily subsidized special projects of local governments.

The programs were started in the fifties and have been with us ever since, but since that time, they are now no customary thing. Most municipal ties probably will object to them being withdrawn.

But overall Mr. White would seem to have taken a good step. The employment situation in the province generally is good.

In August the unemployment figure was getting down to where they per cent and for Ontario that is pretty well full employment under any one's system of economics.

Then, as Mr. White pointed out in discussing his announcement, in unemployment insurance there now is a vehicle available that takes care of the bulk of the legitimately unemployed.

And while some good work was done under the winter program, such as the building of new local parks, there is little question that because of the nature of the work and the work force engaged in it, the projects didn't represent full value.

The Liberals did have a suggestion that there were areas in the province where unemployment was very high and that some special provision should be made for them.

This would seem to have considerable validity.

While rejected it, however, saying that there were other assistance programs to handle regional problems.

What he probably had most in mind was that any such special programs would prove politically very hard to handle.

If some municipalities were getting assistance and others weren't there inevitably would be protests.

So better to have none at all. Politically.

Legislature Roundup

Psychology For Drivers?

TORONTO (CP) — A Liberal party back-bencher has proposed legislation to set tougher standards for school bus drivers and their vehicles.

Jack Riddell (C.—Huron) said Monday more than half a million Ontario children travel to school by bus and his private member's bill is aimed at ensuring they get there safely.

Mr. Riddell said bus drivers, in addition to having a chauffeur's licence, should be required to take a defensive driving course and pass a test in practical child psychology.

"A school bus operator's licence should be renewed each year and his knowledge tested before granting a renewal," said Mr. Riddell.

He said because of the responsibility that goes with the job of school bus driver, the selection of candidates should be guided by legislation.

Ian Deans (NDP—Wentworth) praised Mr. Riddell for the intent of his legislation but questioned its necessity.

He said government has the power in its regulations now to enforce everything Mr. Riddell called for.

Gas Cost Stays Same

TORONTO (CP) — An attempt by the New Democratic Party to restructure the gasoline tax legislation and give price parity to northern drivers was defeated Monday in the legislature.

The government turned back an amendment by Melville Germa (NDP—Sudbury) 55 to 28 on a recorded vote.

Mr. Germa said northern residents have a just cause for complaint because in his area gas costs 68 cents a gallon and farther north a consumer can pay $1.03 a gallon.

He suggested, during 'committee debate of the government, gas tax legislation, that the provincial tax be readjusted in the north to effect a price parity between south and south.

The government's Gasoline Tax Act sets provincial tax at 19 cents a gallon.

Gordon Walker (PC—London North), guiding the legislation through the committee stage in his capacity as parliamentary assistant to the revenue minister, said the proposed change was a policy matter. It would not be proper to deal with it unless the provincial treasurer had made suggestions to alter it in the budget.

Mr. Walker said revenue from the gasoline sales tax in 1973-74 was estimated at $462 million, up about $34 million from 1972-73.

Youth To Meet

TORONTO (CP) — A conference to give Canada's youth a chance to talk about their problems, particularly on the employment scene, will be held here Nov. 6-9.

The conference was announced Monday in the legislature by Margaret Birch, minister without portfolio in charge of Ontario's youth secretariat.

Want Hospital Strikes

TORONTO (CP) — The New Democratic Party has called for the repeal of legislation that bilds hospital workers to compulsory arbitration and denies them the right to strike.

Ted Bounsall (NDP—Windsor West) the party's labor critic, predicted in an interview outside the legislature there will be hospital strikes this year because of poverty pay in hospitals.

He said despite the illegality of such strikes, poor wages had created a tense and bitter situation in many hospitals.

By returning free, collective bargaining, he said, the strike situation might be averted.

In the legislature, during debate of the labor ministry's estimates, Mr. Bounsall said thousands of hospital workers in the province are paid below the poverty level.

Hospital workers, he said, sometimes earn up to 60 per cent less than municipal workers doing similar jobs.

Under compulsory arbitration salaries tended to be compared with salary awards in other hospitals rather than realistic salary scales outside of the hospital community, he said.

Yaremko Apologizes

Mr. Yaremko said he wanted to offer his apology and voluntarily withdraw the words "because you subscribe to the ideology of communists."

Firms Show Patriotism

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian-owned mining firms are more likely than foreign-owned companies to set up fabrication plants in Canada, says a report tabled Monday in the legislature.

The study at Ontario's mining industry by the Toronto consulting firm of Kates, Peat, Marwick and Co. of Toronto was conducted for the select committee on economic and cultural nationalism.

Committee chairman Russell Rowe (PC—Northumberland) who tabled the report, said it did not purport to be a comprehensive survey of the industry.

However, in its examination of an industry that accounted for 32,000 jobs in Ontario during 1971, the team studied five unidentified firms of varying sizes.

"Two of the firms can reasonably be classified as Canadian-owned and controlled," it said. "One company is largely owned and controlled, the remaining [two companies are in a grey area as regards both ownership and control."

Both Canadian-owned firms "outstanding and refining all of their output in Canada, the report said. One of the foreign-owned firms did likewise, "while the other international firm refined none of its output in Canada."

Indifferent To Adoption

TORONTO (CP) — New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said Monday the child welfare branch of the ministry of community and social services has shown "insensitivity and general indifference" toward people in Ontario wishing to adopt children of war-torn countries.

Mr. Lewis told a legislature committee studying the ministry's estimates that concerned attempts by Canadians there were viewed with suspicion by child welfare officials.

He cited three case histories of people wishing to adopt children from Vietnam and Bangladesh and said he had 12 or 15 others of "sensitive feeling people" who have had numerous roadblocks placed in the way of their adoption efforts.

Nixon Contends Pensions Bad Deal

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Nixon charged Monday in the legislature that municipal employees in Ontario are getting a bad deal on the investment of their retirement funds.

Mr. Nixon said $154 million in municipal employees' retirement system money will be invested on Dec. 31, 1973, in debentures of the government of Ontario for a period of 40 years, paying between five and 6½ per cent.

The Liberal leader suggested that premium payments from the pension money are being standing of the province rather than help the municipal employees.

He said as government policy stands now, pension improvements come "as a matter of largesse from the government who operates the pension programmes."

New Democratic Party Leader Stephen Lewis said it had been authoritatively predicted that the loss to municipal employees by way of retirement benefits will be about $400 million if the present interest rates apply over the 40-year debentures.

Vernon Singer (L—Toronto Downsview) said it appeared that the beneficiaries of the pension plan were going to have less money available to them than if their money had been invested elsewhere at the current market rate which is upwards from 6½ per cent.

Premier William Davis told the legislature that he would have a statement on the matter by the end of the week.

Mayor Challenges Women 'Educate Young About Us'

Mayor Robin Jeffrey challenged the women of Alpha Delta Kappa on Saturday to influence young people's opinions about the roles of men and women.

She was speaking at the sorority's Founders' Day Service at the Four Seasons Hotel, hosted by the local Lambda chapter and attended by four sister chapters from Toronto.

Since Alpha Delta Kappa members are all educators, they are in an ideal position to eliminate the sex stereotyping that has continued to exist in our education system, she said.

A former home economics teacher herself, Mayor Jeffrey pointed out that textbooks often discriminate against women to less than subtle ways.

In a study done of Alberta texts, she said it was noted that girls appeared in only four of 41 stories, and then only as silly young things who make mistakes and must be bailed by boys.

In other texts, the traditional family is portrayed with the father and boys doing all the interesting things, while the mother and daughters are confined to the house and yard in passive, less productive and less adventurous roles.

Young children adopt a view of women as wives, mothers, nurses or teachers, all occupations in which they care for babies, patients or students. Men, on the other hand, have dominant positions, status, and are assisted by subservient female "helpers".

The vision that women have of themselves as secondary creatures has been reinforced by this male-oriented propaganda, Mayor Jeffrey said, but there are other sources for the stereotyping as well.

Religion has defined women as the second sex ever since Eve was created from Adam's rib. But, Mayor Jeffrey noted, the second reference to creation in Genesis names man and woman as equal in the sight of God and in their position over the animals, a passage that has been studiously ignored by men.

Literature is responsible for perpetuating the image of women as less able, less intelligent than men. From contemporary psychiatry, under the control of Sigmund Freud's theories, treats women as inferior beings who have problems only because they wish they were men.

Finally, said Mayor Jeffrey, our culture continues to harp on buy clothes and cosmetics in order to achieve the false standards of beauty personified by "Miss America" contestants.

Qualities such as intelligence, sincerity, talent or originality are seldom encouraged in women by society, she said. The stereotyping of women in television commercials as happy little housewives is a male ploy to keep women in a second-class role.

In fact, one out of three women work, making up a third of the total Canadian work force. Unfortunately, a jobs does not bring with it liberation from inequality.

Injustice towards women, in the types of work available and in the salaries paid, are slowly being corrected by the government directed by recommendations from the Royal Commission on the Status of women.

But even this is not enough, Mayor Jeffrey said, for women are not equally represented in either provincial or federal parliaments, and have little control over governmental decisions.

Social pressures and their own feelings of inadequacy and guilt at leaving home keep women from entering political activity that in fact they are well suited for. If is is wrong for women to be away from the family in order to be in politics, then it is also wrong for men, Mayor Jeffrey stated.

Only by direct action will women today prepare a better world for their daughters, she said. Women must share the burden of responsibility and become involved in political processes.

Although she has not encountered much prejudice herself, she recognizes its destructive force, and urged her audience to do everything in their power to hasten the end of inequality.

Mayor Jeffrey's speech came at the end of a day that included a service and singsong in the morning, and a buffet luncheon at noon.

The Alpha Delta Kappa sorority is part of an international organization whose members have been recognized for outstanding leadership in the teaching profession.

At the Founders' Day program held by Alpha Delta Kappa sorority Saturday, local Lambda chapter president Fay Burnett chatted before hearty with guest speaker Robin Jeffrey, and visiting provincial president Veronica Coyle of, Iota Chapter, Amherstburg.

Askey — Holmes

The September double-ring wedding of Bonnie Ellen Holmes and Bruce Elvin Lewis Askey in Bridge Street United Church was performed by Reverend George Ward.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Holmes of Cooper, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Alex Vanderveek, of R.R. 5, Trenton, and the late Elvin George Askey.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white crepe satin gown trimmed with oval lace on the bodice and empire waist. The flowing train was trimmed with lace, and the full sleeves were gathered to rows of the same lace forming wide cuffs. Her four-tiered veil fell from a floral headband, and she carried a cascade of pink roses and fern arranged around a white orchid.

Janice Webster of Ottawa attended as matron of honor in a blue and white chiffon-over-taffeta gown. She wore a white picture hat with blue trim, and carried a basket of white mums and fern surrounding a pink mum.

The flower girl, Patricia Chumbley, was dressed identically to the matron of honor and carried a matching bouquet.

Gerald Jenkinson was best man. Ring bearer was David Chumbley.

The ushers were the bride's brother Bill Holmes of Roslin, and James Chumbley, the groom's brother-in-law.

At the reception held at the Club Canara, a special toast was made to the bride's parents who celebrated their 30th wedding anniversary that day.

Mr. and Mrs. Askey honeymooned in Hawaii, and then moved to 98 Rowe Street, Oshawa.

ACW Dissolve Only at Top Women Told

Local Anglican Church Women's groups should not be concerned about their status, said Diocesan President Diane Maybee recently.

At the Deanery meeting for the Hastings area at St. John's Anglican Parish in Madoc, Mrs. Maybee cleared up the confusion about the rumor that all ACW groups are disbanding.

Mrs. Maybee pointed out that there are three levels of government in the Anglican church — the Dominion, the Diocesan and the Parish levels. The misunderstanding occurred when a change was made at the Dominion level of the ACW.

Some time ago the decision was made to integrate the ACW into the government of the church in order that they have more opportunity to present their views effectively and to carry out their ideas. Women will no longer be considered a separate part of the church.

Although the change was made at the over-all Canadian level, the choice to follow was left to the individual Diocesan and Parish levels at their discretion. The women's groups at these levels will continue in the same body but with a different structure.

The role of women in society has changed tremendously since the ACW was formed, Mrs. Maybee said, and the time has come to make changes.

However, she assured those present that the help and support that local ACW groups have been accustomed to receiving from the federal level is still there.

"This change of structure is merely testing the validity of what we are doing," said Mrs. Maybee. "There will always be ACW groups as long as I can see."

People and Events

The Deseronto United Church Women met recently for a program about local history. Old-time songs were sung, and old photographs were on display, as well as some baby pictures of U.C.W. members. The next meeting will be November 8, at which Ronald Boyce will present a travelogue on his recent trip to Europe.

For 45 years Mr. and Mrs. Golliher farmed north-west of Norwood. When they decided to retire they were unable to find a place in Norwood to live so they chose Marmora, moving here in December of 1968.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID COFFEY

Coffey — Smith

St. Thomas Anglican Church was the setting for the September marriage of Janice Elizabeth Smith to David Paul Coffey.

Rev. Peter Tett officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T.E. Smith, and the groom is the son of Mr. R.K. Coffey, of Brighton.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk tulle over sharkskin with a high mandarin collar and sheer full-banded sleeves. The front and back bodice was trimmed with guipure lace, and the full skirt with attached train was accented with the same lace. Her four-tier veil edged in daisy lace fell from a cap of lace, seed pearls and satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay of white mums, pink roses and baby's breath.

The groom's sister, Janice Cozens, was maid of honor in a pink and mauve floral printed gown with puffed sleeves trimmed in mauve velvet. Her wide-brimmed mauve hat was also trimmed with velvet, and she carried white and mauve mums intertwined with pink and mauve ribbon.

Karen Crook, cousin of the bride, and Lorna Savage and Nora Kiley were bridesmaids in gowns identical to the maid of honor's. They wore pink hats with pink velvet trim, and carried pink and white mums.

The bride's cousin, Julie Howes and Caroline Tett, were flower girls in gowns similar in a style to the bridesmaids'. One gown was pink and the other was mauve, and both were trimmed with lace. The flower girls carried baskets of white and mauve mums, pink carnations and baby's breath.

The best man, Rob Webster was assisted by ushers Eric Coffey, brother of the groom, Robert Baxter, and Kevin Smith, the bride's brother.

They will reside at 14 Forin Street.

Abortion: Once in a Lifetime Agony

OTTAWA (CP) — The decision to have an abortion is an agonizing one that few women can undergo to repeat, says Lore Perron, national director of a pregnancy distress service.

"Few, very few, are repeaters," says Mrs. Perron. "It's a once-in-a-lifetime thing because the emotional strain is so great.

"No woman makes such a decision lightly."

She and her co-workers at Arcal, the Association for Review of Canadian Criminal Laws, have counselled more than 1,000 women. They dismiss reports that some women consider abortion a method of birth control and have had several.

"It's bogeyash," says Niki Bergan. "Sure, it happens occasionally, maybe three times in a thousand."

But for the normal, healthy woman, "once is more than enough," says Mrs. Perron. "They just wish it never had to happen at all."

Every woman—not to mention the husband or other male involved—who perhaps a family of younger girls—has to go through a difficult emotional experience while making the decision, she said.

There is anxiety over whether it is right or whether they should keep bearing the baby. They have to face numerous individual problems, including family finances.

"We see a lot of married women with families. They have three children already and another one would really strain the finances. Such women feel a commitment to the children already existing."

About one-half the women who come to the Arcal clinic here are Roman Catholic, she said. These also have religious feelings they must resolve.

"The counsellors don't try to make the decision. All we do is try to see whether the woman can live with the decision she has made. We must make as sure as possible she won't fall apart."

Mrs. Perron said that in most of the thousand women she has seen personally the pregnancy was "an accident."

"It annoys me when parliamentarians say there is no need for a woman to have an unwanted pregnancy. No contraceptive is 100-per-cent perfect.

"As well, the ignorance about fact and about pregnancy is appalling. A lot of women simply don't know how not to get pregnant."

Mrs. Perron said this ignorance of human and mechanical failure, about 20 per cent don't know.

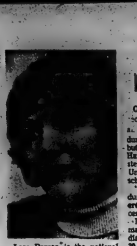
"When you have a woman who has been trying birth control and now she's pregnant, how do you do?"

In Canada, the social pressures against abortion often add to the woman's distress, Mrs. Perron said. Even the need to have her case presented to a committee of three people at a hospital is distressing and time-consuming.

Abortions are safest if done before 12 weeks, she said. It often takes four weeks before the woman knows she's pregnant, then another four to see a doctor, get the pregnancy confirmed and get herself ready to make a decision whether to keep the baby.

That leaves just four weeks to find a hospital and a doctor to do an abortion.

Many hospitals are "regressing" about doing abortions; she said. For one thing, they usually have to be treated as emergency surgery, which disrupts operating-room schedules.



Because of problems in Ontario, Arcal often sends those who can afford it to New York.

"It's so much quicker. They have some good, clean clinics—licensed ones—where they do nothing else and so they do it well. They have good doctors who take all the possible precautions, such as blood tests, as a matter of routine. But you can't do that on a Saturday, it's usually within the 12-week period and safer."

"Abortion isn't the answer; education is. But you can't stick your head in the sand and ignore the real problems that exist while you get education programs in schools running clinics going.

"You have to help those who need your help now."

Not as Simple as Extraction

OTTAWA (CP) — Some people believe that having an abortion is as simple a procedure as having teeth removed but this is not true, says Dr. Harry Cronin, professor of obstetrics and gynecology at the University of Ottawa Medical school.

"It's still a surgical procedure and it should be considered as such," he told a recent medical meeting.

"Because of an increased demand for abortions in Canadian hospitals—there were 39,098in 1972 compared with about 5,500 in 1967 before abortion laws were changed—many women get the idea that it is a safe, simple procedure.

Dr. Cronin says that, when handled properly it is safe and simple, "but it must be handled properly."

Statistics on deaths from abortions vary from country to country with Britain reporting about 22 for every 100,000 cases and Japan 4.1.

These variations may represent different statistical methods and probably some nonreporting because of a lack of follow-up on patients after they have undergone it in a clinic, Dr. Cronin said. As well, statistics on deaths are reported to some extent the degree of skill of the surgeons and the facilities available for safe operations.

Statistics Canada figures for 1972 show there were 38,3 923 abortions in Canada and six reported deaths.

However, it is not clear whether the deaths include women who had abortions in another country and died in Canada after their return.

Dr. Cronin expressed concern about "out-of-town abortions," where a woman cannot get the operation performed here, flies to New York and then returns with complications.

Record large studies indicate that about 17 per cent of women have some complication after an abortion, he said.

The most dangerous are uterine perforation (where the womb is punctured by a device during surgery, but without symptoms, and may heal spontaneously or have a weak wall), infections, postoperative bleeding and hemorrhaging, possible sterility and complications during the next pregnancy if there is an Rh blood factor and blood tests were not done.

Dr. Cronin said that almost every study now shows there is no permanent psychiatric damage to normal, non-psychotic women. There may be mild depression and guilt feelings if the woman does not get proper counselling.

The depression is usually severe among women refused an abortion, he said. And the guilt feelings usually are worse in women whose family insisted on the abortion.

Death of the mother is much more common when an abortion is performed late during pregnancy. Complications increase with the length of pregnancy, too.

One major study showed that only 7.4 women in every 100,000 abortions died when surgery was done before the 13th week of pregnancy, compared with 180,000 abortions after 13 weeks.

Another study showed a death rate of 1.2 per 100,000 before 10 weeks and 97 per 100,000 after 16 weeks.

Abortion death rates are lower than those for compared with 22.7 deaths per 100,000 cases of pregnancy and childbirth.

However, Dr. Ozoni said deaths from abortion in Britain were 22 for every 100,000 cases, compared with 24 from pregnancy complications and childbirth.

If abortions are to be done, he said, every possible safeguard must be taken.

Ideally, surgery should be done before the 10th week.

There should be counselling services but no delays in processing cases and there should be special facilities and qualified specialists.

"There's too much of this business of squeezing the procedure in. . . . Perhaps it could be arranged that clinics are held in hospital operating rooms, with special staffs, during the weekends."

There should be all the blood tests and physical examinations that would be done before any surgery. Omission of these tests was dangerous.

But Dr. Ozoni believes the real answer is better birth control information.

"Abortion is a rescue operation. There's too much emphasis on the safety of abortion and not enough on the dangers. There's too much emphasis on the dangers of birth control and not enough on the safety."

Ann Landers

Son's Girl Moved In

Dear Ann Landers: My 18-year-old son is unusually bright. He's in his third year at engineering school. When he came home for summer vacation I was delighted at the thought of having young people around the house again. After a few weeks it dawned on me that this room (whom he had been dating frequently) literally moved in with us.

Last week I got up at 3:00 a.m. for a drink of water and found them lying on the couch together looking at TV. A few days later when I was fixing breakfast, she popped out of our daughter's empty room, cheerful and unembarrassed. I asked, "Did you sleep here last night?" She replied, "Yes, but my mother doesn't mind so long as she knows I am."

This morning when I returned from shopping I found her seated at the kitchen table, hair in curlers, removing her nail polish and making herself very much at home. That scene was too much. With an undisguised edge to my voice, I suggested that she "move the manicure paraphernalia elsewhere."

She promptly informed me son that I had been rude to her and he let me have it with both barrels. I am now in the doghouse and find myself mysteriously on the defensive. What's the difference if a woman avoids intercourse during the time when she usually releases the egg, about 14 days before her menstrual period. At other times she is considered safe. But one gynecologist advises that "couples who practice this method are usually called parents."

Before politicians decide abortion laws are too liberal, they should be certain that everyone knows how to prevent unwanted pregnancies and that contraceptive methods are freely available to everyone," said Mrs. Perron.

"But we'll need these educational programs for a whole generation before we start denying women a way out. The present educational programs just aren't stopping unwanted pregnancies. Just look at the numbers of girls coming to the clinics."

Mrs. Perron said they also see a large number of women who have had their birth control method fail. Either because of human error or mechanical failure, about 20 per cent don't work.

"When you have a woman who has been trying birth control and now she's pregnant, how do you do?"

In Canada, the social pressures against abortion often add to the woman's distress, Mrs. Perron said. Even the need to have her case presented to a committee of three people at a hospital is distressing and time-consuming.

Successful Living

Lifesaver Praised

Dear Miss Clark: May I refer to your letter of July 19th addressed to the Department of the Secretary of State about Kimberly Adkins who rescued a small child from a water-filled ditch in Oberstrum, Ontario, on March 8th, 1972.

I am delighted to see from the newspaper accompanying your letter that Kimberly Adkins was warmly commended for her prompt action by the local community and by the child's family. It is clear that her competence as a swimmer and the training she has received in lifesaving gave her the confidence and the skill to undertake this rescue.

Kimberly Adkins' action was thoroughly praiseworthy but there appears to be no evidence that the circumstances constituted a serious threat to her own life and the case would not, therefore, meet the criteria for the award of a Canadian decoration for bravery.

Your thoughtfulness in bringing the matter to our attention is greatly appreciated. I enclose a copy of a brochure on Canada's new Decorations for Bravery. — Asst. Secretary to the Governor General

Dear Secretary: Thank you. Not only were the Adkins family and friends deeply grateful; Kimberly's action was reported in the Canadian Red Cross Magazine, and 15 or 20 Canadian newspapers.

Her father tells me she is a extraordinary child, always concerned about the other fellow and forgetful of herself in trying to help. He has seen her suddenly run back when she has been with her family walking along the street, to assist an old lady who was having trouble getting a door open.

I talked to Kim herself about the incident in Austria and she said that if help had not come along, she knew how to give artificial respiration even while the boy was still in the water. The main difficulty from her point of view was that she was cold when she got back out of the water that her legs were shivering.

Dear Abby

Dear Abby: Re your reply to "Zapped In Scarsdale" who asked how to tell the young lady whether she "popped out" of your daughter's room that she was not at liberty to spend the night with her because even though her mother didn't mind, you did.

The only way you can regain control of this bizarre situation is to have a long talk with your son, outline the house rules and insist that he abide by them.

Dear Ann Landers: In your column which I enjoy in the Memphis Commercial Appeal, a provocative question from one of your female readers caught my eye. I think I have an answer for her that was better than yours.

The reader asked, "Do Scots ever wear anything under their kilts?" According to my grandmother, they do—ever since Queen Victoria reviewed the troops on a windy day.

How do you like that one?—Old-Timer

Dear O.T.: I love it! Thanks for my laugh for the day.

City's Sprinkler Bylaw Said First in Province

In what was termed pioneer legislation for Ontario, the city of Belleville will call for sprinkler systems to be provided for all new residential buildings with a floor area of 4,000 square feet or with a height of five storeys and over.

First and second readings for the amending bylaw were given by city council Monday at its regular meeting.

The bylaw calls for sprinkler systems to be installed in all future nursing homes, hotels, senior citizen apartment buildings or commercial buildings which there are residential units.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey said the bylaw amendment was written following numerous consultations about building safety with Fire Chief Lee Culhane and his department inspectors.

She termed the bylaw a great step forward for the city.

City Manager Albert E. Elliott said the Belleville bylaw requiring sprinkler systems in residential buildings was the first in the province.

The bylaw was given only two readings Monday so as to allow "input" from commercial builders before its final passing.

Although the bylaw requires that all future residential buildings be equipped with sprinkler systems, this does not apply to the new senior citizen apartment structure proposed for construction on West Bridge Street across from the fairgrounds.

Plans for this structure were completed by the Ontario Housing Corporation and approved by city council before the new bylaw was written.

Autumn Solitude

Now that the sunny days of Indian Summer are upon us again, it is a good time to enjoy the last few warm days left this year. The weather man is predicting more of the same, at least for as more days. With the trees a riot of blazing color and the air crisp and invigorating, it is also a good time for reflection. At Panter Park, Robert Waters of Trenton, a communications art student at Loyalist College, finds a park bench and a guitar make good company as he strums quietly to himself.

Fencing Policy Questioned

Belleville is still in the fencing business and Alderman Ben Corke would like to know how far the city is going to go.

Council Monday voted to install 500 feet of chain-link fencing to enclose a walkway from Gilbert to Lemoine Street at a cost of approximately $3,000.

The walkway is used by children going to classes at Parkdale Public School and Mayor Robin Jeffrey said she had received a complaint from an area resident that they were encroaching on private property.

She said the city had a duty to erect fencing to protect private property whether or not it was occupied.

But Alderman Corke stated to know how many more walkways the city was going to fence.

"Are we going to fence the sidewalks to keep dogs off lawns" he asked.

In the past several years, council has voted to fence several walkways in the city.

Alderman Paul Russell noted that in new subdivisions the policy is to request developers to provide such fencing.

$2,000 Voted for Harbor Docks

Inability of the Harbor Improvement Committee to obtain all the materials required for the construction of floating docks for the Victoria Park area cost the city $2,000 in lost dock rental during the past boating season.

That is the amount required by the committee to complete construction of the docks and Monday, following lengthy discussion, city council voted the $2,000.

Council earlier in the year voted $3,000 for construction of the docks which, with anticipated revenue, was felt sufficient to complete the work.

But Alderman Stu Meeks told council that it had been impossible to obtain all the necessary materials and the docks could not be completed for installation this year.

"If we had not been held up for materials we would not have been back to council for more money," he said.

But even at the estimated $5,000 cost for the docks, Alderman Meeks said the city was getting a real bargain.

Much of the materials had been "scrounged" he said, while long hours of volunteer work had also gone into the project.

He estimated that if the dock construction had been tendered in the normal fashion, the project would have cost between $20,000 and $25,000. The docks will provide accommodation for up to 40 boats, on the west side of Victoria Park.

But before council voted the additional $2,000 several members wanted some assurance the final costs of the project would not go over $5,000 and that the installation would fit in with the overall concept for waterfront development.

Alderman Ben Corke said he would like to see a consultant's concept plan for waterfront development before voting any more money on the floating docks.

Alderman Paul Russel made it clear he was not criticizing the harbor improvement committee in any way but noted it was normal city procedure to obtain firm cost estimates before embarking on a project.

To a question from Alderman Dr. John Stock, Ald. Meeks said the additional $2,000 would provide for the installation of a temporary breakwater to protect moored boats.

In the end council voted the additional $2,000 to come out of the city's contingency fund.

A condition of approval, however, is that the installation be based on a concept acceptable to the city manager and professional staff.

Party Promises Safe Halloween

The menace of urban living is getting through to parents as Halloween approaches.

Three women at St. Michael's Church have decided to do something about it and get children off the streets Oct. 31.

"It's just not safe," says Mrs. Judy O'Neill.

So Mrs. O'Neill and two other women who work at St. Michael's Rectory are organizing a Family Halloween Fun Night in Nicholson Catholic College gym on Saturday, Oct. 27.

The non-profit venture will feature games and amusements for all ages and prizes for all categories. All proceeds from the pennies charged for some activities will be donated to the Cheshire Home.

The fun night was instituted last year by Mrs. O'Neill, Miss Dora Vogt and Mrs. Co Vogt. Parents reported that children who attended the fun night didn't miss the annual Halloween shell-out they had been accustomed to.

"We hope other churches and organizations will pick up the idea and get the kids off the streets," says Mrs. O'Neill.

The fun goes on from 7 to 9 p.m. Saturday and people of all faiths are welcome at the Nicholson gym.

Rehabilitation Week

'Epidemic' of Accidents Blamed on Government

Governments came in for a few verbal blasts last night regarding the 'epidemic' increase of motor vehicle accidents in Canada.

Dr. William Ghent, professor of surgery at Queen's University, told a group attending a public presentation on The Hazardous Highway that the government should be doing more to enforce seat and shoulder belt legislation, improve the safety of rural roads, improve driver education and tighten up the registration of licences to novice drivers.

This was the first of five public presentations presented nightly this week at 8 in the Education Hall of Belleville General Hospital as part of Rehabilitation Week '73. About 40 attended last night's two-hour session.

"Unless we do something to stop the mounting toll of accidents, in 10 years every hospital bed in Canada will be filled with victims of motor vehicle accidents."

Dr. Ghent said that accidents are caused by the interaction of three variables, the driver, his vehicle and the environment. "And of these the most important is the driver," he said. "He is to blame for 70 per cent of all accidents."

"Most accidents are preventable. We have to look at the problem and see what can be done," he said. "Where there is a cause, there is a remedy."

Dr. Ghent thinks the condition of most of our rural roads is an insult to the intellect of the taxpayer.

Dr. Ghent also thinks the government should do more to ensure that legislation concerning the wearing of seat belts and other forms of restraints be enforced as enforcement has been shown to work in Australia.

He also thought the government should be stricter as far as automobile advertisements are concerned. Citing an example, he said that when he was tested for his licence, the maximum speed limit was about 40 and there weren't many freeways. Now it's a different situation," he said.

Driver education also came in for a few raps. J. Paul Wills, vehicle safety engineer at General Motors of Canada, said too much emphasis is placed during driver testing on learning how to parallel park rather than learning how to handle yourself in an emergency.

He says that they've got bumpers that can withstand a 5 m.p.h. impact and drivers bump into the other cars all he wants while parking."

Mr. Wills also discussed the role of air bags as one means of cutting down injury during an accident. Through the use of driver dummies, he represent people involved in accidents, visual evidence was given showing how air bags can save lives, along with other properly worn restraints.

He said that chances are 60 per cent better of being less badly injured in an accident when seat restraints are used.

Dr. Ghent also said the attitude of the average person toward accidents is a factor in their increase.

"In 1971, 5,600 Canadians were killed in motor vehicle accidents, while 190,000 were injured," said Dr. Ghent. "Of those injured, 5 per cent will never return to normal life again.

"The chances are that one of every 10 Canadians will be involved in a motor vehicle accident. It's time to stop thinking in our easy-going attitude. If as many people died in accidents were killed in an epidemic, this would not be allowed to happen." he said.

Part of the problem also lies in motor vehicle registrations.

"This year registrations were increased 5 per cent, collisions increased 13.3 per cent, injuries 12.4 per cent and deaths 8.3 per cent. Something must be done to prevent the rising toll of accidents."

Later, in a question - and - answer period which followed the two presentations, it was asked if there was such a thing as a bad driver. Said Dr. Ghent, "There is really a bad driver, just someone who needs to be trained, not educated, in emergency procedures such as skids, and blowouts, which account for 1 per cent of all accidents."

In Belleville last year, there were four fatalities, 350 injuries, 819 reportable accidents and more than half a million dollars in damages caused by the misuse of the motor vehicle.

As Dr. Ghent puts it: "The best accident is the one you survived but one you avoided."

Air Search For Two Will Resume

TRENTON — Search and rescue aircraft from CFB Trenton will resume the hunt for two civilian fliers missing in the Minden area, since mid-September.

The search will be resumed once autumn leafs have fallen from the dense forestland, hopefully improving visibility from the air.

The two men, Amadeo Sista, Niagara Falls, Ont., and Ronald Barrow, Detroit, Mich., were seeking suitable hunting sites from the air when their single - engine plane disappeared on mid-September.

The search was hampered because no flight plan was filed, said air search officials here.

Cash Stolen

Belleville police are investigating a break - in which netted thieves between $100 and $200 during the weekend.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the theft of an unknown quantity of cash, from the home of E. D. McDavitt at 187 Stanley St., was reported to police late yesterday.

The thieves forced entry into the house and stole the money from a purse and a pair of trousers sometime between 6 p.m. Sunday and 6 p.m. Monday, he said.

Pensioners Get Grant

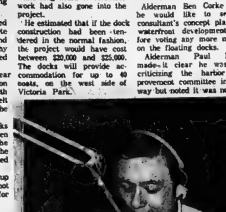
Belleville Pensioners Concerned group has been awarded some $2,500 by the federal government to set up a senior citizens' counselling service.

Glynne Jones, president of the organization receives formal approval of the program this morning following earlier reports yesterday.

The counselling service is designed to "help the older people with problems," said Mr. Jones. The correspondence said the group should receive the money soon to begin the program sponsored by New Horizons, a $10-million federal scheme designed specifically for the aged.

The counselling service will operate from the offices of the United Community Service, five hours a day, two days a week. The project secretary will be the only employee, the rest will be volunteers.

Mr. Jones said the executive of his group will meet this coming week to prepare the program's agenda. The scheme with its $2,500 budget is expected to continue for 18 months.



School Bus Kills Man In Thurlow

A Foxboro man was killed yesterday afternoon when he was struck by a school bus, at the junction of Highway 14 and the Fourth Concession Road in Thurlow Township.

Dead is Ray Arnold Buchanan, 56, of RR1, Foxboro.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that Mr. Buchanan was killed when he ran into the path of an empty school bus driven by Tony Albert Barkema, 44, of RR5, Belleville, as it proceeded south along Highway 14 around 4:55 p.m.

Mr. Buchanan was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Dr. William Hipwell.

Walkathon Pledges Half In

Half the pledges made for the Quinte Kiwanis Club Walkathon on September 22 have been collected. This accounts for a total so far of about $2,000 for continuation of the club's swim program at the Black Hawk Pool.

President of the club, Clint Vader, said he was pleased with the response shown so far with many sponsors paying their pledges for a full 20-mile walk, although rain forced it to end at the seven mile mark for most.

Of about 300 people who started out, five made it to the end.

Sponsors who still owe pledge money and walkers who have yet to turn in their money are urged to do so as quickly as possible. The money should be turned into any branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Frank Tate On Executive

A superintendent with Hastings county board of education has been elected to the professional board governing educational administrators in Ontario.

Frank Tate, superintendent in charge of associate school groups in Centre Hastings and North Hastings, has become one of 15 members of the executive of the Ontario Association of Educational and Administrative Officials, top educational organization in the province.

Alarm Box

Monday, Oct. 22, 7:53 p.m., garbage fire at the rear of Loblaws, Pinnacle St., no damage.

DJ and Singer Spin Platter

Harold Tompkins, radio station CJBQ disc jockey is one of those promoting the new record just cut by Belleville singer Ken Stapley Jr. for Sparkle Records. The record company was formed to promote local country and western performers. Ken has written one of the songs he sings on the 45 rpm record.

Hopes High for Record

The Quinte District's first legal recording company has just produced a record it predicts will be a hit.

The voice on the record is that of Ken Stapley Jr., singing his own composition, Words Don't Have a Meaning, and a Ben Kerr song, Forgive Me, Diane.

The 18-year-old Belleville singer and guitar player is the son of Ken Stapley, who will Jack McCann, celebrated Trent Valley Jamboree.

He has been playing and singing since he was four, when he began on a ukelele, and his new record has brought him an offer to headline the Oshawa Jamboree.

The record is the first pressing of his father's company, Sparkle Records, an organization formed to give local singers a chance at the big time.

"Out of the hundreds who have appeared at the jamboree, there must have been about 12 who could have a record company going," says Ken, Sr. "We need a chance from here."

The recording was done by Noah Productions in Trenton, making the disc a 100 per cent Quinte product. Backing up Ken Jr. are Tibor Csaszar playing the organ and singing harmony, and Robert Perry, playing drums.

To be played on Canadian radio stations and sold publically, records must be made under the auspices of the American Federation of Musicians. Mr. Stapley's company is believed to be the first in eastern Ontario to enjoy that status and he is now plugging Sparkle Records at CJBQ, CKFM in Toronto, CKWS in Kingston, CHEX in Peterborough and CHOO in Ajax. Next step is finding a distributor.

At least 1,500 copies of a 45 rpm record must be sold to break even, says Mr. Stapley.

The company will follow up its first record with another featuring Ken Jr. Mr. Stapley has his eye on a 13-year-old Glen Miller girl, Jeanie May Collar, for another record.

Ken Jr. hopes his record will be the beginning of a career in music. His style is middle-of-the-road, between rock and country music, with the occasional excursion into slow ballads.

Mets and Athletics Set 21 Series Marks

NEW YORK (AP) — Eight individual and 13 team records were set during the 1973 World Series between the Oakland Athletics and New York Mets, with Oakland relief pitcher Darold Knowles establishing four of the marks.

Knowles set a record for most games by a pitcher in one series, pitching in all seven games for the A's. Seven games were also a record for most games in a fielding position by a pitcher and for most consecutive games by a pitcher in his series.

He also set a record for most World Series saves, lifetime four.

Don Hahn and Jerry Grote of the New York Mets set two records apiece.

Hahn set a record for most at-bats in one game, coming to the plate seven times in the second game of the series Oct. 14. That was the game won by the Mets 10-7, in 12 innings. The seven times at bat were also a record for an extra-inning game.

Grote had 71 chances in the field, most for a catcher in one series. He recorded 67 put outs, also a record for a catcher.

Gene Tenace of Oakland tied a record set by Babe Ruth by drawing 11 walks in the series. Last year, Tenace tied another of Ruth's records, slugging four home runs in the 1972 series against Cincinnati.

Reggie Jackson of Oakland and Rusty Staub of New York tied the World Series record for total bases in a game, 18. Jackson had four hr's in the 12-inning second game, while Staub—playing despite a torn right shoulder—rapped out four hits in Game No. 4.

In addition to the 21 records set, 18 individual records and 19 team records were tied.

Hundreds of Fans Greet Secretariat

TORONTO (CP) — It's been said that nothing disturbs a veteran racegoer. Major upsets in stakes races, tidal waves—even the arrival at a big horse doesn't faze a veteran racegoer.

Secretariat is different.

The Big Red Machine arrived at Woodbine Monday afternoon and several hundred of his fans were on hand to greet him.

"He shipped beautifully," said trainer Lucien Laurin, who accompanied Secretariat on the flight from New York. "This is a different place for him but he's settled down right away."

Secretariat is expected to run next Sunday in the $125,000-added Canadian International Championship Stakes. The championship is at a mile and five-eighths.

Secretariat has started 11 times this year and won eight races. He's finished second twice and third once and earned $767,640.

Plans call for Secretariat to gallop over Woodbine's Marshall turf course today and Wednesday.

If Secretariat handles the Woodbine turf to Laurin's satisfaction and starts in the Canadian International Championship, it will be his last race. He's been syndicated for a record $6,080,000 and will stand at stud at Claiborne Farm in Kentucky, beginning next spring.

Toronto High On List For Baseball Expansion

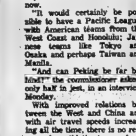
NEW YORK (AP) — It is October, 1984. The opening game of the World Series matches the Peking Reds and the New York Yankees.

Preposterous. Not at all, says baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

Kuhn says he expects more expansion in the next few years, and he'd like to see Japanese teams in the majors now.

"It would certainly be possible to have a Pacific League, with American clubs from the West Coast and Honolulu; Japanese teams like Tokyo and Osaka and perhaps Taiwan and Manila.

"And can Peking be far behind?" the commissioner asked, only half in jest, in an interview Monday.



With improved relations between the West and China and with air travel speeds increasing all the time, there is no reason why athletic teams from the Orient could not enter into regular competition with the Western Hemisphere teams.

Kuhn said baseball is on the verge of expansion. He mentioned such cities as Toronto, Seattle, New Orleans and Mexico City as prime candidates.

"We'd like to be playing in Mexico City and Toronto right now. There is no reason why not."

Travel is virtually no problem. The flying time from Seattle to Tokyo is less than six hours. West Coast major league teams already are flying more than five hours to get to the East Coast.

Japanese baseball is well developed and well supported. A number of American ex-major leaguers are playing for Japanese teams. As far as is known, the sport has not been introduced in China. Taiwan has an extensive program, and the Taiwan entry in the Little League baseball series has won two straight titles.

BOWIE KUHN

Proposes Formation Of Permanent Team

OTTAWA (CP) — An opposition MP proposed Monday that a permanent Team Canada be established to represent the country in international hockey competitions.

Joe Hueglin (PC—Niagara Falls) told the Commons the government could start the team by setting up a national endowment fund and by inviting Canadians to make tax-deductible contributions.

Jim Fleming (L—York West) said the spirit of the proposal is fine, but professional hockey teams would be unwilling to let their best players go.

Denis Ethier (L—Glengarry-Prescott-Russell) said the proposal would bring government and private enterprise into competition at an unwelcome level.

A motion by Mr. Hueglin, outlining his suggestion and calling for government consideration, was talked out without coming to a vote in the hour allotted for private members' business.

"Let's try that pass play they're interrupted in the huddle routine, Coach. They'll never suspect it works."

Muscle Power for NHL Teams

NEW YORK (CP) — St. Louis Blues were going to launch Battleship Kelly when the time was right. But he didn't throw a punch.

The Blues had won only once in New York in seven National Hockey League seasons, and thought a little muscle at the right time just might shake up the team enough to take New York Rangers.

John Robert Kelly, a 27-year-old rookie with he Blues, has muscle, lots of it. He's a fill-in who rides shotgun on any line that may be short.

Nobody can say where Kelly got his nickname, but the club says it is appropriate.

"He just seems to get into fights," said a St. Louis executive.

Ranger coach Larry Popein said smart players avoid fights and to prove his point New York blanked St. Louis 4-0 Oct. 10.

Battleship was as punchless as his team. But he did display a nifty pair of elbows.

Muscle power worked for New York Golden Blades at the World Hockey Association. They brought up three players who can hit and won their first game of the season Sunday.

One of them, Ted Scharf, didn't last a half-game. But he — two fights, drew three — makers and was thrown out of the game.

"If I acted the same way on the street, I'd be in jail," Scharf said after the Blades beat Quebec 4-3. "The guys told me after the second fight to just leave my gloves at the penalty box and save time. I seemed to give the club a lift."

It needs it. The club was so broke the WHA took over the franchise. Managing director Jerry Dulba said he had to lay off $2,000 of his own for meal money.

Battleship Kelly is older than most rookies after spending five seasons in the minors. He joined some illustrious bonfires on the Blues this season.

For company, he has Steve Durbano and Bob and Barclay Plager.

Barclay says willingness to fight made it more frustrating when winning. Otherwise, "everyone will be taking a shot at you."

Bob Plager admits he was a street brawler at 17 and fought "in the ice everywhere from Quebec to Vancouver."

Battleship Kelly, six-foot-two and 185 pounds, is a left winger who scored 27 goals for Rochester last season and led the American Hockey League in penalties with 206 minutes.

Coach Jack Bownass, Oshawa, Ont., of his main claim to success so far appears to be two decisions he holds over the NHL's most penalized player, Dave Schultz of Philadelphia Flyers. They clashed in a pre-season game.

Blonde Ken Nystrom of New York Islanders is another player who figures his finest will be made in the NHL.

Nystrom, 6-foot-1 and 195 pounds, and Gary Howatt, only 5-9 and 170, came to the Islanders from New Haven late last season.

Two weeks ago, Nystrom roughed Brad Park out of the Rangers.

"I just wanted to show him I wouldn't back down," Nystrom said.

If Nystrom scored his first NHL goal against Chicago Black Hawks Sunday night in a 4-4 tie.

Bob was born in Stockholm, but his family moved to Hinton, Alta., when he was four. It's a paper mill town and "It hasn't produced a rink about 1," Nystrom recalls.

Later the family moved to Montreal, P.C. One of Nystrom's team-mates, Bert Marshall, also is from Kamloops. Lundstedt operates a hockey school there in the off-season.

Battleship Kelly will be in action tonight when the Blues play host to Boston Bruins in one of three games. Other games have Minnesota North Stars at Toronto Maple Leafs and Atlanta Flames at Vancouver Canucks.

Gold Medal Winner

MEXICO CITY (P) — Dr. Jules Sobrian, a physician from Ormenee, Ont., won his first gold medal in international competition Monday when he scored a 546 in the free skated private members' business.

Dr. Sobrian, 36, missed 56 times out of a possible 600, but it was enough to beat United States Army Sgt. Hershel An-derson of Grace City, Tenn., who finished with a 543. Santiago Trompeta, Cuba, took the bronze medal with a 542.

Canada did not enter the team free pistol competition which was taken by the USA with 2,167 points.

Dr. Sobrian, who shoots as a hobby, was 28 points away from the world mark set in 1969 by Gregory Kosnych of the Soviet Union.

Brewers And Angels In Trade

ANAHEIM (AP) — California Angels announced Monday that pitcher Clyde Wright has been traded to Milwaukee Brewers in a 10-player deal that brings Brewers catcher Ellie Rodriguez to the Angels.

Other Angels going to Milwaukee are veteran relief pitcher Steve Barber, outfielder Ken Berry, catcher Art Kusnyer and infielder Jim Lonborg.

Wright, 30, holds the Angels' pitching records for victories with 87. His 23-12 mark in 1970 was also a club record. He slipped to an 11-19 mark in 1973, earned-run-average mark in 1973.

Rodriguez, 27, had a .269 batting average this year, with no home runs but 31 runs batted in.

Whalers Top Blades

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

One couldn't blame New England Whalers if they fired a few shots at goalie Joe Junkin from their own end Monday night.

It was that kind of a night for the 27-year-old netminder who gave up goals from 80, 40 and 30 feet as the Whalers took a 4-1 victory over New York Golden Blades.

The win, before 4,297 fans in Boston Garden, enabled the Whalers to take over sole possession of first place in the East Division with 11 points, two more than idle Cleveland Crusaders.

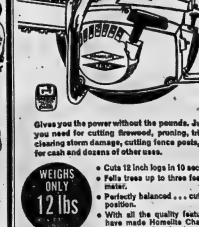
The Blades remained in a tie with Toronto for second. Toros in the East, both with four points.

Hugh Harris opened the scoring with his second goal, a 35-foot drive that eluded Junkin in the first period. Less than three minutes later, Paul Hurley beat Junkin with an 80-foot shot.

Brad Selwood increased New England's lead to 3-0 on a 45-foot drive early in the second and John French got the final goal for the winners on a power play.

ROY EDWARDS

Seclusion For Goalie



DETROIT (AP) — The threat of being upstaged by a rookie apparently has caused Detroit Red Wings goalie Roy Edwards to go into seclusion.

The Red Wings announced Monday that Edwards has been granted a leave of absence by the National Hockey League club.

The 36-year-old veteran of 15 seasons in professional hockey told the club he wants to have time to "think things over," team spokesman said.

Edwards was lured out of retirement by Red Wings' general manager Ned Harkness the day after Season opened. He turned in an outstanding 12-game performance, allowing an average of 2.63 goals a game and tying for the league shutout lead with six.

But this season he has been playing in the shadow of rookie goalie Doug Grant, last season's Player of the Year in the American Hockey League.

Eagles Add Four Players For Game with Barrie

Belleville Screaming Eagles got the Christmas spirit early this year. In their last two Ontario Hockey Association Senior A outings, Eagles showed their generosity by allowing Brantford Foresters and then Welland Merchants to log their first league wins of the season.

But now, team officials are hoping the club's penchant for gift giving is over. An attitude more in keeping with the Scrooge aspect of the Christmas season ... without the late change of heart ... is expected from the Belleville players.

After back-to-back road games in Brantford and Welland last weekend, team officials were on the road again Monday night. And this time, they figure the trip was more than worthwhile.

Club publicity man Dave Lucas announced this morning that as a result of a visit to Peterborough last night, Eagles will have Lorne O'Donnell, Greg Marchen, Ken Knapton and Bobby Taylor in the lineup for tonight's game with Barrie Flyers at Memorial Arena.

All four players are seasoned Senior A competitors and each should make his presence felt. They are not new to senior hockey in Belleville, having played with the Quintes last season.

Marchen is being counted on to shore up the defence. He is the second defenceman to sign with the club in the last few days. Earlier Terry Horrigan, a 5-foot-11, 185 lb. resident of Peterborough joined the Eagles camp with left winger Ron Riley.

Horrigan has had Junior A experience with the Peterborough Petes. Riley was with Ottawa Nats of the World Hockey Association last season. A 26-year-old, Riley is a 6-foot, 187 lb. sharpshooter.

A win for Eagles tonight would bring their record to a respectable 2-3, good for third place in the six-team grouping.

Nesterovski Top Scorer

BCI Senior Wanderers' forward Charlie Nesterovski (dark uniform) stations himself in front of the Centre Hastings goal in last night's play between BCI and Madoc. Nesterovski was in position twice last night as he fired a pair of goals in leading his team to a 5-3 victory over Madoc. They were his 13th and 14th goals of the season, good enough to gain the scoring championship.

Doctors Upset Milers

The Doctors kept their undefeated record in the Gas House Hockey League intact last night as they upset Golden Mile 4-1 in one of four games played. The Doctors now have four wins against no losses, good for first place in the 11-team league.

In other games, Mead Johnson topped Ames Intelligencer 5-2, Stanley Structures edged Fraser and O'Neil 4-3, and Consolidation dropped a 5-2 decision to the Yardmen.

Bruce Insley, Jim Jones, Hyalie Bryant and Ken Bertrand all scored for the Doctors in their win over Golden Mile, while John Chambers added a pair of assists.

Ralph Boomhower scored the only goal for the Milers, with Carl Bonnerworth and Brian Smith drawing assists.

Mike Hanna had the hat trick for Meads, with single markers going to Ron Rowbottom and Ray Summers. Keith Park had three assists.

Rob Turner, Ron Garvin and Dave Millar scored for Stanley Structures, while Vaughn Cunningham added another hat trick in open Fraser and O'Neil goal for the fourth marker.

Bill Lynch and Bruce Farrow scored for Ames.

Five players shared in the Yardmen scoring in their victory over Consolidation with Steve Deveau, Harold Isenbaert, Hugh Hoarle, Chick Kemp and Jim Blatchford all adding a marker.

Allan Genereaux and Rick Feran scored for Consolidation, with Tom Bellil and Keith McConnell adding a pair of assists.

Minor Hockey Setup Continues to Grow

WELLINGTON — The minor hockey program around these parts is grow in this village and the prospects of adding championship banners to the five that already adorn the arena appear to be extremist.

Registrations for minor hockey have doubled from five years ago and this time around, 210 youngsters are taking part, an increase of 30 over 1972-73.

Most of the men serving on the minor hockey executive also help out as coaches and manager. The association includes leagues for atoms, novice, peewee, bantam, midget and juvenile teams in its operation. And all divisions have scored in Ontario Minor Hockey Association (OMHA) representatives.

Association president Jim Dunlop coaches the Wellington TV and Appliances OMHA bantams while secretary Al Ackley doubles as manager of the Dale Cleave Construction peewees. Mac Greer is the bantam manager and Glenn McConkey coaches the peewees.

Rounding out the OMHA teams are the Stuart's Sport Shop juveniles, Quinte Meats midgets, Lake Ontario Cement Atoms and the Legion novices.

While the OMHA squads are busy during the regular season with playing dates in centres like Stirling, Tweed, Campbellford, Frankford, Brighton and Bancroft, the house league teams take over the arena every Saturday.

Other Wellington Minor Hockey Association officials are Bill Greer, vice-president; Dick Foster, treasurer, and directors Joe Karas and Ralph Mountenay.

Persons who book ice time usually end up talking to Herman Courneyea who handles a variety of duties at the arena but who prefers to be known as "the caretaker."

BCI Wanderers Chalk Up No. 6

The BCI Senior Wanderers moved another step straight victory this season in High School Soccer action last night as they defeated the Centre Hastings Seniors 5-3 to a game played at Zwicker's Island. The BCI Juniors also took their contest with a 4-1 win over the Madoc School.

In senior play, BCI completely outplayed the visiting team, reaching up a three goal lead at the half.

A Madoc foul in the penalty area resulted in another BCI score, as Charlie Nesterovski fired the ball into the lower right hand corner of the net on the resulting penalty kick.

Just before the half ended, Nesterovski scored again, this time on a pass from Gary Adams. The goal was Nesterovski's second of the game, the sixth consecutive time this season he has scored at least two goals in a game.

He has 14 for the season to win the senior championship, and set a new record in May of Quinte play.

Late in the second half, Peter Crawford scored his first goal of the season on a pass from Nesterovski, to give BCI a four goal lead.

The BCI Juniors grabbed a share of first place with Moira with their win over Madoc. Bill Caswell opened the scoring for Madoc at the 15 minute mark, but Ringano Mutwiwi tied the game before the half expired.

In the second half, BCI Juniors defended the Trent Manor, Gord Van Vliet, and another Mutwiwi to wrap up the victory.

BCI and Moira Juniors will meet in a sudden death game Wednesday at OSD to decide the first place finishers, with both ending the season with nine points.

The league playoffs open Thursday in both divisions, with Trenton taking on BCI at Zwick's Island, and Madoc meeting Bayside in the senior semi-finals.

In the junior contests, the winner of Wednesday's sudden death game will meet Centennial, while the loser will play Trenton, at the loser's field.

And a true measure of value

The Olympique that made that odyssey 5 years ago is the same basic machine that you can buy at your Ski-Doo dealer's this year. Except for one thing. We've had all that time to make it even better.

The machine you're looking for has been around for a long time. It's called Olympique. And of the million snowmobiles Ski-Doo has made, it accounts for about one out-of three.

That adds up to a lot of Olympique sleds. And a lot of experience at making them reliable.

Reliability is standard equipment

For years, Olympique has had a reputation among snowmobilers as the standard of reliability against which all other machines were measured. For a very good reason. You could count on it not to let you down when the going got tough.

A true story of toughness

It was because of that reputation that Olympique became involved in perhaps the most punishing ride ever to test a snowmobile. The Expedition to the North Pole.

In the Arctic Spring of 1968, four Olympique machines, loaded down with men and supplies, set out to battle through deep snow, jagged ice and temperatures as low as 62 degrees below zero.

And we have. There's a deep profile rubber track reinforced with nylon fibre and embedded steel rods. A new comfort seat made from a 3-layer sandwich of foams. Easy-access cowlings.

An air-intake silencer. A choice of 6 models including electric start, all with ruggedly-built, finely-tuned Rotax engines. And a full, one-year warranty.

Blanda, Turner Stage A Duel

DENVER (AP) — Denver Broncos, who have died by the field goal twice this season, seemed to live with it Monday night as the Jim Turner-George Blanda kicking duel ended in a standoff.

Turner's third field goal of the second half, a 32-yarder with three seconds to play, enabled Denver to salvage a 16-16 tie with the former Oakland Raiders in a National Football League game.

Blanda, 46, also had three successful boots, and his final one, from 42 yards out with 28 seconds left, appeared to have won it for the Raiders.

Denver had lost to San Francisco 30-24 and to Kansas City 16-14 earlier this season on fourth quarter field goals by the opposition. It looked like more of the same until Charley Johnson moved the Broncos 53 yards on three plays to the Raider 32-yard line, setting up Turner's final kick.

"You can't take anything away from George's kick," Turner said, "but as soon as he hit it we felt we could get it right back."

The deadlock dropped the Raiders into a first-place tie with Kansas City in the American Conference's Western Division. Both clubs have 3-3-1 records. Denver stayed in contention with its 3-2-2 mark.

"We still haven't quite turned the corner, but we're right at the corner," said coach John Ralston, whose Denver team never has finished above .500 in its 9-year history. "Tonight's game had to be uplifting at this time.

"We developed poise and confidence by coming back, first down 20-7, then down 23-16."

After safety Bill Thompson raced 60 yards with an Oakland fumble in the first quarter, Denver had to bounce back from a 13-7 deficit—as Blanda kicked two field goals and Mike Siani hauled in a scoring pass from Ken Stabler in the second quarter. The touchdown play covered 30 yards.

Stabler and wide receiver Fred "Biletnikoff picked the Broncos sore defense to pieces. Stabler hit on 16 of 34 passes for 293 yards and two touchdowns, and Biletnikoff caught eight of them for 118 yards.

"Biletnikoff is fantastic," Ralston said. "We tried all week to practice defending him, but he came up with moves tonight that we hadn't seen before. He's a great one."

QUEBEC SIGNS BALON

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Les Nordiques have signed left winger Dave Balon to a World Hockey Association contract, the club announced Monday. Balon, 35, veteran of more than 900 National Hockey League games, played last season with Vancouver Canucks.

Tips From the Top for Peewees

Wellington Minor Hockey Association teams are busy preparing for Ontario Minor Hockey Association - (OMHA) games. The Dale peewee North Stars are no exception. Coach Glenn McConkey (left) and team manager Al Jelley have some tips for players Dave Cleave (second from left) a defenceman and Glen McQuaid, a centre. Wellington teams got the season started November 2 when they play host to Stirling OMHA representatives. Also included in the grouping with Wellington are Bancroft, Brighton, Tweed, Campbellford, Colborne, Madoc, Marmora and Frankford.

Jack Abendschan On His Own Kick

TORONTO (CP) Playing along with Ron Lancaster and George Reed, Jack Abendschan tends to be overlooked in the offences that guarantee Saskatchewan Rough Riders...

Each time Lancaster or Reed pass or carry the ball, a Canadian Football League career record is broken.

Abendschan, who has never completed a pass or scored a touchdown, contributes the methodical routine of kicking points for the Riders.

Last weekend, the place-kicking guard became the CFL's third highest scorer. His talented right toe has notched 773 points, leaving him behind only kickers Larry Robinson of Calgary Stampeders (936) and Tommy Joe Coffey of Toronto Argonauts (871).

Abendschan's 1973 production of 32 converts, 22 field goals and seven singles for 103 points is second to 124 points by Edmonton Eskimos' Dave Cutler in the Western Conference scoring race.

Pro and Amateur Basketball Catching On

TORONTO — Bill Ballard the young, ambitious vice-president of Maple Leaf Gardens, continues the popularity of basketball one way.

John Sexsmith, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association, is another who is doing the sport's acceptance in another manner.

But both men agree the game invented by a Canadian, James Naismith, in Springfield, Mass., 82 years ago is finally beginning to blossom in a country far more receptive and conducive to hockey as a cold weather pastime.

Enthusiasm is high at both ends of the country, perhaps a shade behind on the Prairies, and particularly strong in the cities of Ontario and Quebec. Restless points out, while hockey was conceived on the frozen ponds, basketball has developed on gymnasium floors and asphalt playgrounds.

Ballard is courting the National Basketball Association which he hopes will conclude, after 10 games at the Gardens this season, Toronto and surrounding area can support big-time basketball. An experiment in the NBA's 1972-73 season, 1968, with Toronto Huskies, a fifth - place team, failed dismally, but Ballard sees no reason why the reception won't be far warmer the second time around.

"Sure, hockey is number one as Toronto is the fall and winter. But there are many fans who can't get into Leaf games. The NBA gives them something major league to watch. I'm sure it will be met with proper exposure be said.

Buffalo Braves, struggling to make money in another hockey town, are playing 10 games at the Gardens. Their 8,313 yearly - sexy-town average game against Milwaukee Bucks, attracted 8,500 fans — more than the average Buffalo turnout a year ago.

Ballard, who conducts his business affairs while attending hockey, expects 8,000 a game would be enough for a professional basketball club to break even. If the Harlem splashed Braves do that well here, he will probably approach the league for an expansion franchise. He figures it will cost between $4 million and $5 million.

"The idea of going out and spending incredible amounts of money for a franchise and then having it go up in your face doesn't make sense to me," he said.

"I was offered an existing ABA (American Basketball Association) team for free. Charlie Finley said he'd give it to me. He wanted to sell me his baseball team (Oakland) and said I could have his basketball team (Memphis) for nothing as part of the deal. But great powers don't look up for that."

Professional basketball's invasion into Canada in the past has constituted only brief stopovers. Local promoters have brought both NBA and ABA teams into Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens. Regular season games have also been played in Montreal and Vancouver where the neighboring Seattle Supersonics attracted generous interest a few years back.

But the paucity of attractive metropolises south of the border may be nearing the saturation point where basketball is concerned. Particularly considering wrestling, to NBA officials, is the sampling of interest — similar to Toronto's experimental — in the urban centres of Quebec and the Maritime provinces.

From an amateur standpoint, the game dominated by seven-footers is growing in acceptance by leaps and bounds in the eastern sector of Canada.

"The take-off there has been really phenomenal", Retsine reports from his office in Ottawa. "Especially in Nova Scotia and Newfoundland."

The two provinces have recently hired provincial coaches — Frank Baldwin in Nova Scotia and Ed Brown, coach at Memorial University as well, in Newfoundland. The head coach concept has already spurred the growth of the game in Quebec and British Columbia.

"Manitoba, Ontario and Saskatchewan are looking very strongly. We'll soon have seven people in the provinces working full-time as coaches," said Retsine.

The big thing with basketball is the inexpensiveness of the game. Obviously a pair of sneakers for a kid are less expensive than a pair of skates. Plus you don't need your own basketball, while you need sticks for hockey and they're always breaking.

Retsine estimates the number of participants in Canadian basketball, both in school and other competition, at 250,000. Three years ago, the number was a little over half that total.

In the province of Quebec, there were 40 people playing mini-basketball two seasons ago. There will be 10,000 this season," he said.

Mini basketball is a scaled down version of the game with lower baskets, a smaller ball and shorter playing time. It is basically played by seven to 12-year-olds who were once frustrated and turned off early by their inability to dribble and score.

Buoyed by Canada's recent success at the student games in Moscow (a fourth - place finish compared to 14th three years ago), the CABA is initiating a switch-over to international rules beginning with 14-year-olds and under this winter.

"Contrary to hockey, international basketball is a much rougher game than we see in North America", said Retsine. "There's more pushing, shoving and bumping under the basket."

The CABA, which will shortly become known as Basketball Canada, is also seeking to hire a national women's coach. Instrumental to the game's progression so far has been the appointment of Jack Donohue, Milwaukee's or Buck Kareem Abdul-Jabber's coach in high school, as technical director and coach of the national men's team.

Pickett the Choice

SASKATOON (CP) — College football fans here have no doubt who is going to be the next winner of the Hec Creighton Trophy presented each year to the outstanding college football player.

They choice is 23-year-old Dave Pickett, quarterback for University of Saskatchewan Huskies and holder of every game, season and career passing record at the university.

"If he's not the best college quarterback in Canada, there's no jibilee," says University of Alberta coach Jim Donley.

Donley gave that assessment after a game against Saskatchewan during which Pickett completed 20 of 43 pass attempts for a total 341 yards gained through the air. Saskatchewan won 40-28.

Before this season, Saskatchewan had little success against Western Intercollegiate Football League teams like Alberta, whose Golden Bears are defending national champions.

But for four weeks running the unbeaten Huskies have been rated No. 1 team in the country.

Huskies have beaten both Alberta and Manitoba — another former college bowl winner — with fourth-quarter comebacks directed by Pickett.

During his first five games, Pickett has had 111 completions out of 174 tries, with only three interceptions.

His total aerial gain is 1,868 yards—an average of almost 240 a game—and he has thrown 13 touchdown passes.

Success is not new for him. In 1968 and 1969 he led Saskatoon Hilltops to the national junior football title.

Marmora Personals

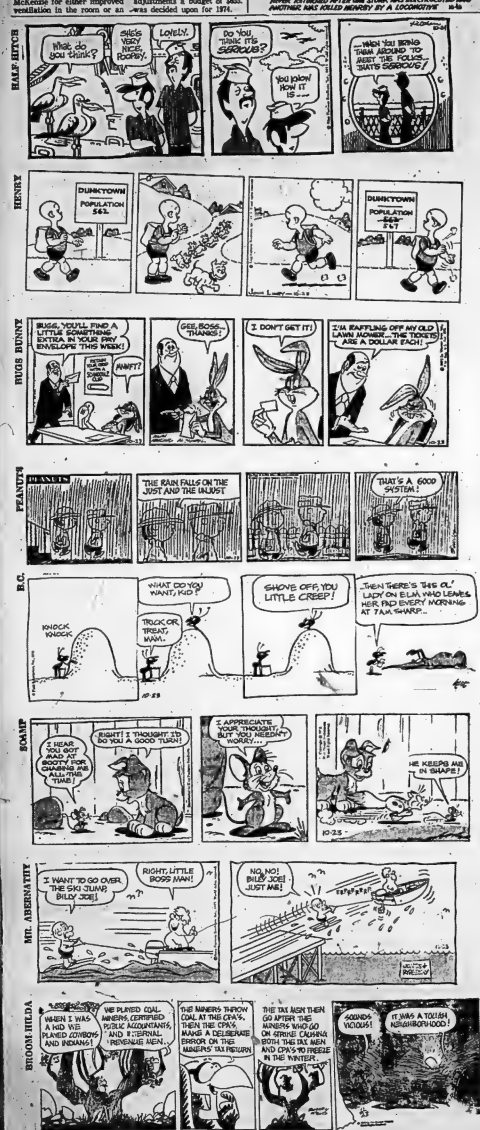
Mrs. Edith Wisti, president, reported that one family had been assisted with bedding and clothing following the loss by fire of their home in Madoc township. A thank-you letter was sent to Tom Cassidy, owner of Cassidy's Furniture and Funeral Home, for his assistance in providing mattresses.



Joan Cuphoard chairman Jean Hanley reported a pair of crutches had been donated by Mrs. Stewart Hardy. Mrs. Hanley voiced her concern about the lack of ventilation in the loan cupboard room at the Town Hall which she felt could result in mould forming on equipment. The problem was discussed and it was decided to consult property chairman William McKenzie for either improved ventilation in the room or an alternative location.

Blood donor chairman Bernice Smith reported on the success of the Tri-Town blood donor clinics at the 4 Centre Hastings Secondary School in June. She said a letter from the supervisor of blood donor clinics at Red Cross headquarters stated he was pleased with the turnout of donors and expressed the hope that another could be held here again soon. A poll of Marmora branch members indicated their willingness to assist at another clinic.

Red Cross water safety films were shown at the elementary schools in June. Mrs. Killian said, and water safety calendars have been given to the schools for distribution in classrooms. The three winners of a poster contest at the beach were awarded shirts with a water safety emblem.

After some discussion and adjustments a budget of $825. was decided upon for 1974.

Pablo Casals Dead

SAN JUAN (AP) — Tributes poured in today acclaiming the greatness of Pablo Casals, the cellist and humanitarian who died Monday at 96.

He was to be buried this afternoon in a black granite vault less than a block from his home here in this Puerto Rican city.

Casals, who for the last 35 years used his musical talents in a protest against tyranny and a campaign for peace, died after three weeks in Auxilio Mutuo Hospital. He was taken to hospital after a heart seizure, but doctors said he also suffered from chronic bronchitis, a kidney failure and circulatory ailments.

He was the foremost cellist of the 20th century and a superlative performer into his 90s. In recent years he won new honors as a conductor.

"Sometimes I feel like a boy," Casals once said. "Music does that. I can never play the same piece twice in the same way. Each time it is new."

Pablo Casals was one of the greatest musicians of all time and the greatest cellist," said Eugene Ormandy, the music director of the Philadelphia Orchestra. "His love of people was probably the reason for his rich and long life."

Mstislav Rostropovich of the Soviet Union, considered Casals's successor as the world's No. 1 cellist, said: "I have lost not only a great teacher but a true friend. I feel a great personal brief."

Born Dec. 29, 1876, in Vendrell, in the fiercely independent part of Spain known as Catalonia," Casals played before Spanish royalty before he reached the age of 15. He was solo cellist for the Paris Opera while still a teen-ager.

He returned to Spain in the 1920s to conduct his own orchestra, but was driven abroad by Francisco Franco's overthrow of the republican government in the Spanish Civil War.

"At that time I vowed I would not play in those countries which recognized Franco Spain or in any other country where basic human freedoms are denied," Casals, a fervent anti-Fascist, said later.

He returned in 1958 for a concert at United Nations headquarters in New York, and in the succeeding years performed frequently in the United States and Europe.

He moved to Puerto Rico in 1956. Two years later, at the age of 80, he married his pupil, 30-year-old Marsha Meriaxen. It was Casal's fourth marriage and her first. She was at his bedside when he died.

In Spain, Casals's death was received with deep regret in music circles.

"It is painful that a universal Spaniard has to die out of his home, for questions that concern neither culture nor the arts," said composer Cristobal Halffter in Madrid.

Press Council Handles Two Cases

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Press Council refused to hear a complaint of discrimination put forward by a Toronto homosexual periodical and has rejected a complaint by a citizen over an alleged inaccurate and misleading newspaper story.

In a news release Monday, the council said it had decided against hearing a complaint by the periodical Body Politic over a refusal by the Windsor Star to publish a classified advertisement for the magazine.

The council upheld a similar complaint by Body Politic against the Toronto Star last April and said the Star decision followed a general policy that identical complaints not be heard if an adjudication has already been issued.

Since the April decision, the ad had been submitted to some of the other eight newspapers that set up the voluntary council last year.

Some had printed the ad.

The council also rejected a complaint by Bert Stollard of Toronto against a Toronto Star story Sept. 5, 1972, about affairs in the borough of York.

Without giving details, the council said "Mr. Stollard did not substantiate his accusation of inaccuracy and misrepresentation in the story."

The Star argued that the reporting was accurate. Mr. Stollard's dispute was with borough officials quoted in the story and not the newspaper.

Other newspaper members of the council include the Ottawa Citizen, Hamilton Spectator, Brantford Expositor, Kitchener-Waterloo Record, London Free Press and Owen Sound Sun-Times. Together, they have more than half the province's daily newspaper circulation.

Ontario Asks Cable Control

TORONTO (CP) — Communications Minister Gordon Carton said Monday Ontario wants effective control over cable communications within the province and he suggested the province may seek the right to license cable companies.

Mr. Carton said Ontario may seek the right to appoint a member to the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

Trial Moves Over Ocean

TORONTO (CP) — A war crimes trial moved from West Germany to Toronto Monday to hear evidence against a man, who was allegedly a senior Gestapo officer in Poland during the Second World War.

Gerhard Kaschmieder is on trial in Traunstein, Bavaria, for his alleged role in the mass executions and brutality at the Majdanek concentration camp near Starachowice, Poland.

The entire court—three judges, six jurors and prosecution and defence lawyers—now has moved into the West German consulate here to receive testimony from persons who, for illness or other reasons, prefer to give evidence in Canada.

Senator Stennis Hears All

WASHINGTON (CP) — The man chosen by President Nixon to monitor the controversial White House tapes is a senator with a reputation for personal integrity and a Democrat whose policies have often coincided with those of his Republican president.

John Stennis, 72, courtly and somewhat frail, only recently returned to Capitol Hill after taking two bullets in the stomach during a holdup eight months ago.

In accepting the assignment, he said:

"My job is merely to verify the contents of the tapes as they relate to Watergate, under a procedure to be worked out by me.

"In this connection, I have made no previous promise of any kind, but I have had an absolute promise of a free hand in the handling of the entire problem."

This Mississippi legislator with the booming voice thus will become privy to White House secrets that not even the courts have been able to pry out of the president.

His career in politics began in 1928. The last 35 years has been served in the Senate where he is, seventh in seniority among his 99 colleagues. He is chairman of the powerful armed services committee and the ranking member of the appropriations committee. He is a conservative Southerner.

Stennis was among the few to seek the censure of the late Senator Joseph McCarthy (Rep Wis.) during the 1950s.

Higher Food Prices Justified: Otto Lang

WINNIPEG (CP) — Recent increases in the cost of food were necessary to give farmers a decent return for their labors after five years of depressed prices and frustration throughout rural Canada, Otto Lang said Monday.

Mr. Lang, minister responsible for the Canadian wheat board, also said it would be tragic if workers in non-agricultural sectors of the economy conceded out these increases with wage increases of their own.

Farmers will probably receive a record $3 billion to $3.7 billion for their crops this year, a figure twice as high as last year's, Mr. Lang told the opening session of a world grain seminar.

He predicted increased international production of grains by the end of the decade and a rebuilding of inventories now at their lowest levels in years.

"We can also foresee supplies of grain reaching some new peaks from time to time with new pressures for low prices and at least one major downturn in prices before 1980."

Products such as soybeans are likely to play an increasing role in meeting world protein needs, he said, and the Canadian government is working with the provinces and industry with plans to establish a protein, oil and starch pilot plant in Saskatoon in the near future.

Boys Charged

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Police said three boys, two aged 13 and one 12, were charged with first-degree murder Monday in the death of a homeless derelict who was sprinkled with lighter fluid and set on fire.

Officers said the children also were charged with two counts of assault with intent to commit murder for allegedly setting fire to two other men in an alley behind an abandoned building Saturday night.

Crown Appeals Sentence

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — The Crown has appealed the sentence given a nearby Hagersville man for beating and terrorizing members of his family.

Ronald Powless, 32, was sentenced Oct. 5 to three years in penitentiary for having sexual intercourse with a female under 14 years of age.

He also was sentenced to an additional nine months be three months of assaulting his wife and children.

Assistant Crown attorney Keith Swanson, who announced the appeal Monday, said at the time of sentencing that he believes he given life imprisonment for the sex conviction and five years on each of the assault charges.

Powless pleaded guilty in July to assaulting his 15-year-old daughter, Leona Marie Powless, by hitting her on the head with a wooden chair. She told the court that Powless then refused to allow her to go to hospital for treatment of a cut head, burned her with a cigarette, strapped her with a belt and threatened her with a pistol.

Nurses Take 'Ill'

Protesting what they called an unfavorable arbitration award from their employer, hundreds of nurses at federal institutions booked off sick or held "case analysis" sessions Monday.

Some of the 2,000 nurses were, however, providing emergency service.

Helen Martin, a spokesman for Halifax nurses involved, said the actions would probably continue until the end of the week unless the federal authorities provide an opportunity for renegotiation of the contract.

Mrs. Martin, Halifax chairman of the veterans affairs subgroup of the Professional Institute of the Public Service, said the nurses will discuss today what steps could be taken next week.

The displeasure with the arbitration report was displayed in major centres from Halifax to Vancouver. The main complaint centred on the arbitrator's decision which did not give the nurses parity with their provincially-employed counterparts in a number of areas.

Most of the federal nurses work in veterans hospitals.

The award, made by Arbitrator Rene Lippe, gives the nurses between $100 and $1,491 a year less than provincial nurses.

Spotting Speeders

Constable Brian Drah of the Vancouver police department is ready to pounce on speeders as he eyes digital dial of new motorcycle - mounted radar unit. Police Traffic Superintendent Doug McRae says $1,500 units mobility has proved great success. He says he would like to buy eight of the units.

Little Federal Sympathy for Municipalities

EDMONTON (CP) — A major clash looks likely over revenue-sharing among different levels of government.

A federal position paper on public finance for presentation at the national tri-level conference today shows little sympathy for demands for more federal tax money for municipalities.

The strong federal position casts doubt on prospects for a national inquiry on revenue-sharing suggested by the municipalities Monday at the opening session of the federal-provincial-municipal conference.

Ontario and Manitoba support revenue-sharing proposals but other provinces are more reluctant.

Ron Basford, federal urban affair minister, agreed to study the inquiry proposal with municipal and provincial representatives. The results of their discussions were to be announced at today's session on public finance.

Mr. Basford said in an interview later that he would support establishing a group to examine municipal financial problems, but he opposed a review of revenue-sharing arrangements.

Earlier, the federal government seized the spotlight with its proposals in urban transportation and housing.

Mr. Basford announced that the government plans to establish a national transportation development corporation in consultation with the provinces. It would aid development and marketing of urban transit systems in Canada and abroad.

He also said long-awaited railway relocation legislation will be introduced in the Commons in mid-November. Under the bill, the government would assume 90 per cent of the costs to the railways of moving downtown rail lines to the fringes of cities.

On housing, he outlined measures to spur assembly of large tracts of land to reduce land costs.

Among these was a proposal to allow provinces and municipalities to defer interest on land-assembly loans until the land is marketed. Top priority in federal spending would be given to lands that can be brought quickly on the market.

Mr. Basford said he hopes to introduce new legislation next year that would expand federal aid for sewage treatment and collection projects.

The federal proposals were welcomed by the municipalities but they demanded consultation as the new programs were implemented.

The provinces were critical of some aspects of federal efforts in housing and transportation.

The federal position on revenue-sharing runs counter to stands taken by Ontario and Manitoba as well as the municipal delegation. The municipalities and their provincial supporters say that their responsibilities are growing more quickly than their revenue sources. Ontario says in a position paper that the province has reached the limit of tax reforms aimed at shifting provincial money to local government.

The municipal paper on finance argues that property tax revenue increases more slowly than income tax revenue, and municipalities must depend on conditional grants from higher levels of government to make ends meet.

Battle of Budget Warms Up in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — The already-heated battle of the budget warmed up another few degrees Monday as both the Liberals and Parti Quebecois prepared to release documents they said back their respective stands on the feasibility of Quebec independence.

Premier Robert Bourassa told an election meeting the Parti Quebecois budget, for an independent Quebec under-estimated by more than two per cent the percentage of federal spending in the province.

In 1971-72, the province received nearly 26 per cent of federal spending, not 22.4 per cent as the Parti Quebecois's proposed budget claims, he told a Quebec City election meeting.

A Parti Quebecois spokesman here said party leader Rene Levesque and economic adviser Jacques Parizeau would release at a news conference today a government document dealing with foreign investment in Quebec.

The document was prepared for the industry and commerce department the spokesman said, but never was made public. It would have "very considerable" bearing on the Parti Quebecois budget, fiscal point so far in the campaign for the Oct. 29 Quebec general election.

Speaking in Causapscal, 300 miles northeast of Quebec City, Union Nationale leader Gabriel Loubier said a vote for the Liberals is a vote "for the slavery of Quebec under the central government, . . . under the arrogance of Prime Minister Trudeau."

Yvon Dupuis was campaigning in St. Jean riding, south of Montreal, where he is attempting to win a seat in the Quebec national assembly.

Between Bourassa and Mr. Levesue continued their running battle which has been the main issue in the campaign since the election was called Sept. 22.

Mr. Bourassa said a document on the economics of federalism will be released as soon as possible in response to challenges by Mr. Levesue, who said the government was hiding documents concerning the costs and benefits of federalism.

Of total federal spending in 1971-72 of $18.130 billion, Mr. Bourassa said $4.723 billion was spent in Quebec.

The fact that the PQ was out by more than two per cent on this figure is only one of the shortcomings in that party's budget that will be shown up by the document, Mr. Bourassa said.

Meanwhile, Mr. Levesque told more than 1,500 University of Montreal students his party must take power if either this or the following election.

Retail Beef Prices Not Keeping Pace

TOONTO (CP) — A survey of five major food chains here has indicated that the retail price of beef has dropped only 16 per cent since late August while the wholesale price has decreased about 11 per cent in the same period.

Federal department of agriculture figures show that the Toronto supermarket chains saw their cost of beef carcasses drop to $82.65 a hundredweight last week from $100.32 Aug. 29.

However, the survey noted the retail weighted average cost of a cut of beef dropped only to $1.36 from $1.46 a pound in the same period.

And the Canadian Cattlemen's Association is concerned about the discrepancy.

Charles Gracey, association president, said in an interview retail prices were resulting in lower consumption as the number of animals on farms increases.

There might be a buildup of cattle, oversupply, and then a drop in price, he said. But he added that wide swings in prices cause inefficiencies in farmer planning that result in higher prices in the long run.

Supermarket spokesmen say most of the extra margin since August has gone toward restoring profits lost when wholesale beef prices hit record highs last summer.

Hull Man Charged

OTTAWA (CP) — A man who allegedly roughed up a security guard in the House of Commons Saturday has been charged with common assault.

Andre Madore of Hull was charged after a man entered the Parliament Buildings with a tour and refused to leave.

A scuffle ensued and a member of the Commons protective staff was kicked and received a cut on the arm.

Madore is being held in custody pending a mental examination.

Housing Authority Not Integrating Force

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario Housing Authority is not pushing hard enough to integrate public housing into the community, delegates to the conference of the Association of Ontario Housing Authorities said Monday.

London Mayor Jane Bigelow said public housing units tend to be concentrated on the periphery of communities because of lower land costs there.

This put people who could least afford transportation at a distance from shopping, educational and recreational facilities and effectively isolated them from the "mainstream of community life."

Resulting financial and social costs outweighted the initial savings of lower land costs.

Public housing units should be scattered within the core area of municipalities so that tenants could be integrated into the community, she said.

Logging Favored

NORTH BAY (CP) — The director of the Ontario Forest Industries Association said Wednesday he hopes the province extends its Algonquin park timber regulation program to other provincial parks.

Speaking to a service club here, Ewen Cameron of Ottawa criticized "vociferous groups which try to limit the use of provincial parks for the benefit of the new."

The vote of the province in permitting timbering to continue in the park under a government agency "vindicates our contention that recreation and logging can go hand in hand," said Mr. Caldwell.

Another Plea Made For Jailed Smuggler

OTTAWA (CP) — A Conservative MP marked what he says is the 10th anniversary of the imprisonment of a Canadian in Cuba today by pleading for the man's release.

Tom Cossitt (Leeds) cabled his plea to Cuban Premier Fidel Castro for release of Ronald Patrick Lippert, 40, of Kitchener, jailed for 30 years on arms-smuggling charges.

Canada has made official inquiries about the man over the years and Mr. Cossitt has interrupted to have the government seek Lippert's release.

Railway Bill Chugs Along

OTTAWA (CP) — Rob an MP from a region outside the central Canada industrial area and he will complain about rail service.

He will talk of discriminatory freight rates, lack of boxcars, poor road beds and rotten service.

Probably he also will lament what he calls downgrading of passenger service and, if he is a New Democrat, he almost certainly will mention pensions and wages.

So it was in the Commons Monday as MPs, one after another, registered complaints and reiterated arguments as the [illegible]-attended House dragged through another day on the CNR financing bill.

Debate will continue today on the bill to authorize the Crown-owned railway to make capital expenditures of $225.5 million this year and up to $75 million during the first half of next year. The bill also provides for loans to Air Canada.

The bill has been before the Commons off and on since last spring. It is expected to get second reading today and to be sent to committee for detailed study.

Monday, the House heard complaints about rail service in southwestern and Northern Ontario, northern Saskatchewan and the West generally.

John Rodrigues (NDP—Nickel Belt) suggested the government spend $5 billion to straighten rail lines. He said some rails originally were laid beside lakes so steam engines could get water, but that no longer is necessary.

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) and Elias Nesdoly (NDP—Meadow Lake) criticized CN for selling the Bessborough Hotel in Saskatoon.

Don Blenkarn (PC—Peel South) took some roughhouse swings at directors of the railway as well as those of Air Canada, saying they should be summoned before the Commons transport committee to explain their entire policy structures.

And Mr. Nesdoly questioned construction of the 1,800-foot CN Tower in Toronto, to be the tallest structure in the world.

Mr. Blenkarn asked why the CN should be building this "tower of babble" when railway improvements are needed throughout the country.

Mr. Nesdoly said the tower money should be used to acquire boxcars and to improve tracks.

Hanging Vote Wednesday

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons will vote at 2:45 p.m. Wednesday on whether to renew a five-year partial ban on capital punishment.

Leaders of all parties in the House agreed to the time at a conference Monday. A [illegible] hours after the capital punish- ment debate ended.

The vote, fourth in the Commons this year on the government's capital punishment bill, will be free, meaning there is no party guidance.

At least 16 MPs will be absent for the vote, they are attending NATO parliamentary meeting in Turkey.

Pension Payments Higher

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to allow Canada Pension Plan payments to increase with annual rises in the cost of living was introduced in the Commons Monday by Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde.

Bill C-34 would remove the two-per-cent limit now imposed on annual pension increases, basing increases on the Consumer Price Index.

It also contains a catch-up clause which will make cost-of-living adjustments retroactive to 1967, the year the recipients first started receiving benefits.

That clause would make up the difference between the actual cost-of-living increases during that period and the two-per-cent increase to which the plan has been restricted.

Welfare department officials say the catch-up clause will mean increases of at least eight per cent for people who started receiving benefits in 1972. There will be a maximum increase of 28 per cent for those who have been receiving benefits since 1967.

The bill also increases annual maximum pensionable earnings to $6,000 in 1974 and $7,200 in 1975, from $5,600 this year.

Nixon Promises Tapes to Judge

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, reported contemplating on Middle East developments, cancelled plans for a television address tonight on the Watergate issue and instead scheduled a broadcast news conference for 9 p.m. EDT Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's promise to surrender nine Watergate tapes has blunted an impeachment initiative, but it has not silenced calls for a new special prosecutor.

He was expected to appeal for national unity in the wake of Tuesday's startling about-face when he surprised even his closest advisers by deciding to obey a federal appeals court order on the tapes.

Meanwhile, the House of Representatives continued today a preliminary impeachment inquiry, begun just before Nixon's lawyers announced that the tapes would be given to a federal judge.

House leaders said the inquiry will continue at least until the effects of Nixon's action be come known.

It was clear, however, that initial reaction to the president's reversal was favorable.

"Thank God," said Senator Barry Goldwater (Rep. Ariz.).

"I'm glad it came to pass."

Predicts U.S. Oil Expansion

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Energy Minister Darcy McKeough predicted Tuesday that the oil crisis brought about by the Middle East war will result in an all-out United States commitment to develop its own safe sources of energy supplies.

He also warned Arab oil states, in a speech to the annual conference of the Ontario Petroleum Institute here that U.S. technology eventually will succeed in releasing the U.S. from its dependence for energy on foreign sources.

Arab countries announced a policy last week to reduce exports to countries supporting Israel in the war.

"I do not believe that it is ever wise to harass your major customer," Mr. McKeough said of the oil cutbacks which he said were aimed at the U.S. not Canada "although we are in the line of fire."

The hard fact is that the United States has a proven track record when it comes to scientific and technological accomplishments, and I will venture, to project that the events of recent days . . . will result in a thrust in the direction of the development of domestic U.S. energy resources that will eclipse any national commitment we have seen in any western democratic nation, other than in the case of a major and direct involvement in war."

The minister said the restrictions shouldn't have much implication to the U.S. and Canadian economies and "if it doesn't go on too long, it serves primarily as a grim warning."

In a separate speech Tuesday to the Toronto Junior Board of Trade, Mr. McKeough said there appears to be strong arguments in favor of creating a national oil company.

"If our free enterprise businessmen won't take these risks, then maybe we'd better go for a national oil company."

He said such a venture could involve the participation of the federal and provincial governments, and private investors, or businessmen.

Pollution Not All Bad!

OTTAWA (CP) — All of the effects of pollution aren't bad, an official of Ontario Hydro told the national energy board Tuesday.

Donald Gillies, senior meteorologist and an air pollution-control expert with Hydro, noted, as an example, that paint companies and their employees benefit when pollution forces home owners to paint their houses more often.

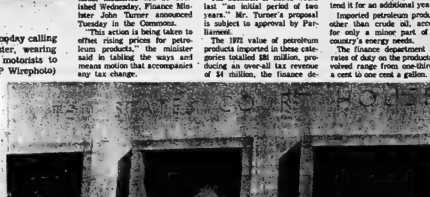
Import Duties Removed

OTTAWA (CP) — All import duties on gasoline, light heating oils, diesel fuel, aviation fuel and feedstocks for petrochemical industries will be abolished Wednesday, Finance Minister John Turner announced Tuesday in the Commons.

"This action is being taken to offset rising prices for petroleum products," the minister said in tabling the ways and means motion that accompanies any tax change.



"Savings resulting from elimination of the duties should be of benefit to consumers," he said.

The 1972 value of petroleum products imported in these categories totalled $81 million, producing an over-all tax revenue of $4 million, the finance department said.

Heavy fuel oils already come into the country duty-free under a measure adopted earlier but scheduled to expire June 30, 1974, Mr. Turner proposes to extend it for an additional year.

Imported petroleum products other than crude oil, account for only a minor part of the country's energy needs.

The finance department said rates of duty on the products involved range from one-third of a cent to one cent a gallon.

Ceasefire Shattered By Renewed Fighting

From AP-REUTERS

Israel said today renewed fighting had broken out on the Sinai front despite a second United Nations-imposed ceasefire.

A Tel Aviv communique said its forces had shot down 15 Egyptian planes since the ceasefire deadline, previously accepted by both Israel and Egypt.

Both Egypt and Israel had ordered their troops to stop fighting late Monday afternoon in response to a UN Security Council ceasefire resolution adopted early Monday. But hard fighting continued Tuesday on both the Egyptian and Syrian fronts, and the Security Council issued another ceasefire appeal Tuesday afternoon.

The second resolution urged the Arabs and Israelis to return to the positions they held at the time of the first ceasefire and also asked UN observers who have been along the Israeli frontiers since the 1967 war be sent to the battle fronts.

The Israeli command said Maj.-Gen. Ensio P. H. Siilasvuo of Finland, the chief of the UN truce observers, made contact with Defence Minister Moshe Dayan early today and Dayan asked him to transmit a proposal to Cairo for a 7 a.m. ceasefire.

Israel said the Egyptians' affirmative response was received at 5:45 a.m., an hour and 15 minutes before the ceasefire hour.

Moments after announcing the truce, Israel reported that the Israeli's fighting between the first and second ceasefire its troops extended their beachhead on the west bank of the Suez canal down to Port Suez, at the southern end of the canal, and on to Adabiya, 11 miles south of Suez on the coast, south of Suez on the coast.

The Israelis said this advance surrounded the Egyptian 3rd Army east of the canal and cut all communication routes between Port Suez and Cairo.

Israeli press reports said 28,000 Egyptian troops and 300 tanks were caught in the encirclement.

The Israeli report was denied by Egypt, which said in a communique that Israeli attempts to cut the roads between Cairo and Suez had been beaten back.

The Egyptian statement said the Israeli assaults were made after the agreed upon time for the new ceasefire.

Forecast Says Fog Here Until Thursday

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Quinte drivers took the cautious way to work this morning, poking along through the worst blanket of fog to settle on the bay area this year.

Commuter traffic between Belleville and Trenton was reduced to a snail's pace on some sections of Highway 2 today and according to weather forecasters at CFB Trenton they'll be driving as slowly tomorrow.

The fog, which reduced visibility to only several feet this morning, is expected to return this evening and prevail through Thursday morning.

Forecasters predict there should be some improvement by Friday and the weekend.

Despite the treacherous driving conditions, area detachments of the Ontario Provincial Police reported no accidents overnight, a sharp contrast to the fog of 10 days ago which brought a rash of motor vehicle accidents around the Quinte area.

The Weather

Synopsis: The weather across Ontario is split along a line extending from Sault Ste. Marie to Ottawa. North of this line it will remain mainly cloudy today and Thursday with some showers. Ex-crooks For Cops?

TORONTO (CP) — Regulations for hiring policemen in Ontario may be too stringent, Solicitor-General John Yaremko told the legislature Tuesday.

"In the past, requirements for admission to work within the police force have been altogether strict," he said.

He was replying to a question from Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East), who asked if he agreed with Leo Seguin, Ottawa's chief of police, who suggested ex-criminals should be hired by police forces.

Mr. Yaremko said he wouldn't comment one way or the other.

But, he said, there might be some area between the old regulations, the non-forgiving attitudes of the past, and Chief Seguin's position that might be more desirable when hiring policemen.

Three Saw Stabbing

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Crown Attorney John Sampson told a 23-man jury Monday that at least three prisoners witnessed the fatal stabbing of a fellow convict at Collins Bay penitentiary last March.

Mr. Sampson was speaking during the second day of the murder trial of Curtis Agawa, 23, and Leo Mallett, 24, charged with the slaying of Terrance Landry, 27, of Sarnia, Ont.

He said witnesses saw Agawa hold Landry while Mallett plunged a knife into his chest several times. When Landry fell to the floor, Agawa was alleged to have taken the knife and stabbed him several more times.

Witnesses also saw Mallett leave the blood-stained cell and later wash himself, the Crown attorney said, adding that one of the accused was seen plotting the murder weapon in a paper bag and depositing it at the end of the range of cells.

Couples' Museum Work Noted at Wellington

WELLINGTON — Wellington residents for 21 years, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Nind were honored recently by friends and neighbors at a farewell party in the town hall.

The Ninds, who have now moved to Belleville, were active for many years at the village museum where Mrs. Nind served as curator. Her applecraft became one of the most unusual items on display in the building.

Mrs. Nind also is a charter member of the Women's Progressive Conservative Association and has been active in the Women's Institute.

Mrs. Cecil Insley, on behalf of Wellington residents, presented the popular couple with gifts for their new home. Joseph Karaz spoke of the Nind's contribution to their community on behalf of village council and workers at the museum also extended gratitude.

Rudolph-maker Needed

Santa Claus' sleigh has been hauled out of storage. His reindeer, though minus a few antlers, are ready to make their appointed rounds come Dec. 1.

Preparations for the Santa Claus Parade in Belleville are proceeding at a quickened pace with the approach of December and Christmas.

Don Keller, Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee float chairman, will soon begin work on the float that St. Nick and his helpers will ride through the city streets.

In surveying the work that needs to be done on the float, Mr. Keller said a lot of thinking will have to be done before the first nail is pounded into the wood, or the first paintbrush used.

"I used to stand down there on Front St.," he said, "and not realize the amount of work that was involved in putting on the parade. I know now. On Parade Day, for example, we start to bring down the floats at 8 a.m. and finish by 4 a.m.

Although most of the painting will be done at the main collection point at Ben Bleecker Auditorium, structural work on Santa's float will be done at facilities Mr. Keller has provided on Cloverleaf Dr.

The parade committee will be providing the materials while Mr. Keller provides the labor. Some of his employees will be spending part of their working day rebuilding parts of the float.

"The sleigh will be moved forward, thus allowing about two feet of the float to be dropped off. The reindeer will be refurbished with paper mache patchwork. Some necessary reupholstery will also be done. This year, the float will be wired for sound with a permanent amplification system in it. In previous years, the microphone wiring and speakers were installed before the parade and removed afterward.

Someone to create a paper mache Rudolph, the Red-Nosed Reindeer, is still being sought. Mr. Keller said it would be possible to include it on the front of the float.

Santa's Dears Are Checked

Don Keller checks the antlers on the reindeer pulling Santa Claus's sleigh mounted on the float used in Belleville's annual parade Dec. 1. Antlers, deer, and the float's body are in need of general repair this year said Mr. Keller Tuesday. Later inspecting the float recently hauled out of storage. The float committee chairman will be doing the actual labor on the float while the Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee is providing the materials for the resurrection.

Small Business Operators Get Advice at Seminar

Local small businessmen were given a one-day seminar yesterday on the best way to get the most out of their businesses.

The seminar was aimed solely for those owning or managing small businesses or hoping to do so or to expand their present ones. It was put on by the Industrial Development Bank in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce.

A total of 33 businessmen registered for the, seminar, which consisted of examples, a case history and making recommendations on how to manage it better. A discussion period was held as well.

Mrs. Loretto Beninger, who runs the La Belle Fontaine Manor on Sidney Street, was one local businesswoman attending the seminar. Having run a 40-unit apartment for three years since the death of her husband, Mrs. Beninger said she derived a lot out of the seminar.

"For one thing I learned a lot about bookkeeping. It's amazing how simple it really is. Things were brought to mind that I didn't know about. Profit and loss statements were looked at," said Mrs. Beninger.

"Also I didn't know that depreciation of business could be carried over from the first year to other years. I hope now to approach the IDB for a loan when I expand my business."

Ed Duddle, manager of the Industrial Development Bank in Kingston — there is none in Belleville — said he was pleased with the results of the seminar. He said the seminar will be one of a series in a continuing program. We have plans to return to Belleville on an annual basis with different subjects to be presented in different ways," said Mr. Duddle.

Dick Lumbers, president of the Chamber of Commerce, also organized the seminar, said his reaction to the seminar was "terrific". He hopes such a program continues on a more regular basis.

Also attending the business world is Brian Crawford, who together with Wayne Edwards, runs Edwards Cartage. Brian says business is fine right now but they wanted a chance to pick up concerning ideas from other businessmen and learn something from them.

"I got a lot out of it. I found the seminar very interesting," said Brian.

As a former teacher, business, dealing with marketing and managing at Loyalist College. He was at the seminar to see what the IDB is doing, since he teaches subjects in business. He thinks the seminar accomplished what it set out to do.

The Industrial Development Bank, formed in Canada in 1944, was set up to provide help, either through advice or a loan, to small businesses wishing to start up or expand.

Parade Contributions Beginning to Roll In

Letters have gone out from the Quinte Santa Claus Parade Committee to various service clubs and women's auxiliary groups asking for money to help finance the arrival of St. Nick in Belleville Dec. 1.

Two municipalities have already contributed funds to the committee. Belleville donated $750 while Ameliasburg Township gave $100. The Kiwanis Club of Belleville donated $50.

Further help has come from the Kinsmen Club. As it has done in previous years, the club will pay half of the cost for some 8,000 red and green striped candy canes. It will also help in distributing them to children on the day of the parade.

John Leward, committee chairman, said today that requests to Belleville businesses have not yet been mailed, but that they will be within two weeks. The committee is getting ready for Dog Day, Nov. 16-17, said Mr. Leward. A supervisor for the award judges is still being sought.

Robin Reggie, band and majorette committee chairman, said that about 20 be contacted two weeks ago have responded to the parade committee's request for participation Dec. 1. The Quinte Loyalist Association Pipe Band and the Trenton Citizens Band have indicated they will march in front of Santa Claus.

Trenton Shrinkage

Surplus Down to $9,900

TRENTON — The town budget surplus that drew criticism from ratepayers in the year is beginning to dwindle, according to figures released by the town treasury.

Excess supplementary taxes in 1972 contributed some $232,000 to this year's municipal surplus. This raised eyebrows as why the town had increased its millrate, instead of neutralizing the surplus and passing it on as a saving to ratepayers.

During this fiscal year the town experienced a total excess revenue of $55,897.

The cost of a number of unscheduled projects by August reduced this surplus to slightly better than $20,000. Much of the surplus was eaten up the loose ends in the completion of the new municipal offices.

This week the surplus figure is $9,940 following payment of a $13,000 grant to the Trent Conservation Authority, extra tree cutting operations and more extras to the municipal offices costing $3,500.

According to town treasurer Brian Fagan, unless any more unforeseen extras come along, the town should be able to retain this present surplus until at least Dec. 31. By then, the 1974 budget will become effective.

Earlier this week at a council meeting, Councillor Bob Patrick queried where the money was coming from to renovate the old offices as he read the figures of the shrinking surplus. The existing offices need considerable work before the Quinte Planning Board takes them over.

Councillor Patrick was told the town has applied for federal-provincial Initiative Program funding from the federal government to cover at least the labor costs and if this funding was not available the bill could be written into the coming year's budget.

Sandbanks Offer: Government Silent

TORONTO (CP) — Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier refused in the legislature Tuesday to discuss what the province is offering Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. for expropriating sand dunes in the Sandbanks Provincial Park area of Prince Edward county.

Mr. Bernier said negotiations were continuing with the company on the 15.6 - acre site which became a cause celebre for naturalists. The company, under an agreement with the government, was removing some of the sand.

"The company is ripping you off and you are taking it," Stephen Lewis, leader of the New Democrats, told Mr. Bernier in the legislature Tuesday.

Mr. Bernier declined to answer when Mr. Lewis asked him how much the province and it may well be government had offered to settle the contract with the company.

He said the government had retained counsel and was briefing him on the situation.

"The negotiations will continue ... we're dealing with a very delicate matter at the moment and it may well be it will go to the Land Compensation Board for settlement," Mr. Bernier said.

"The matter of compensation is discussed and it will go through the proper channels."

Now the Students Protest

BRIGHTON — Mass student walkouts affected all of Northumberland Durham high schools yesterday as students protested loss of extra - curricular activities.

These activities were nullified this week as teachers — in an attempt to negotiate contract negotiations — refused any voluntary work including supervision of school clubs and teams.

Brian Todd, principal of East Northumberland Secondary School, said today work-to-rule or resignations were the only other two methods available to protesting teachers. The contract for teachers in the United Counties ran out Aug. 31.

Yesterday and the seven major high schools in the area were affected with student walkouts which were particularly heavy in the Port Hope area.

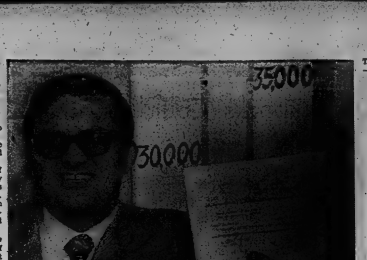
Teachers have refused to volunteer any time before or after school taking away extra curricular activities including athletics and drama.

"I don't think they (students) are accomplishing anything by walking out," said Mr. Todd. "They don't understand the situation. They are just frustrated."

He didn't think such mass walkouts might help negotiating problems.

"The trustees might not like these tactics and dig their heels in and fight harder over the negotiations," said Mr. Todd.

According to Mr. Todd, "the right to negotiate working conditions" is a prime concern in the new contract.



Safety Study For Centre

PICTON — Prince Edward County council has approved a grant of more than $3,000 toward an engineering study of the structural safety of the Picton Centre.

The decision was prompted after the finance and personnel committee examined tenders for a new roof for the centre. One contractor had suggested that the building might not be capable of carrying a new, heavier roof.

Reeve Robert Boyce, finance and personnel committee chairman, said that possibly through a study report the new roof could cost less than present estimates indicate.

The present roof is riddled with rust.

Clarence Zieman and Pledge

Deseronto Arena Fund Is $25,000

Today, the Deseronto Community Centre fund has reached the $25,000 mark in its bid to raise $100,000 for an arena now confidently predicted for operation in two years.

The paper was a pledge from Ideal Venders — the town's biggest industry — to donate $5,000 to the project.

Meantime, workers at the plant have pledged they will subscribe a further $3,500, said fund committee chairman Clarence Zieman.

When operating, the centre in winter is expected to provide recreation for 200-400 youngsters in Deseronto and district, said Mr. Zieman, Ideal Venders plant manager. Hopefully, it will also help prompt approval for Ontario Minor Hockey League participation by local hockey players. Until now, skating on an outdoor rink at the behest of "changing weather, local hockey has been restricted to house leagues.

The new centre will be raised on the site of the present outdoor rink launched three years ago and its clubhouse.

Present plans call for seating 800 and a total capacity of 1,200. Total cost is set at $185,000.

Town council which has purchased an adjoining lot for the facility, has applied for a $115,000 senior government winter works loan which is forgiveable if labor is used during the peak winter months of unemployment. So full forgiveness can be achieved, the project will be worked over two cold seasons for residents by winter 1975, said Mr. Zieman.

The provincial government also has approved a $16,000 community centres grant. This has been set aside until next year so it can be properly applied when the project nears conclusion, he said.

Clifford Hatch, native of Deseronto, now a distillery president, and his family earlier donated $5,000 to the fund, said Mr. Zieman.

To date, there's another — "$10,000 + $15,000" pledged by local citizens and sources, he estimated.

Tuesday's presentation was made on the work site by Ideal Venders' general manager Richard Moore. He called the arena a "tremendous asset" for town residents.

His company's pledge created a "wide open challenge" for other sources to "match or better" the donation.

Students' Feet Raise $1,600

MARMORA — Some 116 students from Marmora Senior School took part in the annual school walkathon Oct. 30 — and all completed the course.

Angus Bateman was first to complete the 13½ miles — in one hour and twenty-nine minutes.

Pledges made in support of the walkathon amounted to $1,608 with Laura Bean collecting the greatest number. Last year the total was $1,156. Donations go to local community and international humanitarian projects.

Crash Wrecks Car Near Tweed

TWEED — A single car crash wrecked a car driven by Issabel Amallan, 45 of Willowdale, south of here late Monday night.

Provincial Police at Madoc reported the Amallan vehicle was southbound on Highway 37, near the intersection of Chapman's Corners, when it hit a soft shoulder and rolled in the ditch around 11 p.m.

Police estimate damage to be in the vicinity of $3,000.

Test Waste Sites In Prince Edward

By NARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Test drillings were conducted Tuesday at several proposed waste disposal sites in Prince Edward County. Plans for a county-wide garbage disposal system have been underway for more than a year.

Picton reeve, Robert Boyce, chairman of county council's county government committee, said at a meeting last night that two sites have been proposed in Ameliasburgh and from five to six sites suggested in Sophiasburgh.

Canadian - British Engineering has studied the problem of locating a suitable site for unified waste disposal and will provide Hallowell township with information to assist in its garbage difficulties.

Reeve Boyce observed that the county study has been a prolonged one and said he feels council has stressed the urgency of the matter. The reeve remarked, that he anticipates prompt action at this phase of the study.

Before the November session of council reeve Boyce plans to call a meeting of all Prince Edward municipal councils to discuss the purchase and operation of a garbage site.

He said that today's test drillings should determine if there are proper site depths at any of the proposed locations for a county dump.

Reeve Is Critical Of Planning Progress

PICTON — Hallowell reeve Keith MacDonald says he is dissatisfied with progress made by the Prince Edward planning board toward an official county plan.

"I think we are giving the planning board in Prince Edward too much authority," reeve MacDonald told county councillors last night.

He asked when county municipalities would be advised of the planning board's proposals and was told by Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson, that there would be meetings in December. If the plan goes well it will be presented in May.

Reeve MacDonald said there should be a representative from each municipal council serving on the planning board. He was told by county clerk Thomas Walker that each municipality has the right to appoint whomever it wishes.

Reeve MacDonald commented that much repetitive discussion could result for the present system of appointment.

Wellington reeve Robert Boyce, chairman of the county government committee, said that the plan cannot be finalized until it has been presented to county council and approved. County council, therefore, retains control.

This observation was reinforced by county clerk Thomas Walker who noted that the planning board has no power and is incapable of legislation. It serves only as an advisory body to council.

Reeve Boyce said that possibly there had been a lack of communication between the planning board and county council.

Nixon Relents

The Watergate morass has become murkier — if such were possible — with the rolling of still more heads in Washington, including that of Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox.

Then there was yesterday's extraordinary about-face on the part of President Nixon, and his decision to release the controversial tapes.

The possibility of impeachment has been raised again, but to proceed with such a move might be to send the American administrative process into complete disarray, remembering that the country no longer has even a vice-president, let alone a confirmed successor to that office.

In less resilient countries, or those where authoritarianism is the word, such problems would long since have been resolved by force. Democracy still holds sway in the United States, although in recent days we have heard the word "fascism" used in connection with events in Washington. That too has to do with one-man or one-party rule and it may well be it is the greatest single threat to have arisen from this complex chain of events.

The final answer to whether everyone but Richard Nixon is out of step remains something for the future. But events are moving swiftly and that time may not be too far distant.

Girls In Sport

The Bayside girls were adjudged the top team in the province in competition with 27 other groups.

We hope local teams may be as successful in other spheres, for as we suggested recently cheerleading may become increasingly anachronistic in these days of Women's Lib.

Put away the cigarets girls and get down to some serious training in the sport of your choice.

Take your cue from former Olympic swimmer Marion Lay, who at 25 is the only woman technical adviser at Sport Canada, the federal Government agency that supervises 60 amateur sport organizations. She is hoping to concentrate on mothers in the 27-40 age group because "this is when they have a lot of influence over their girls and can say: "You can go into sports . . . it's really a beautiful experience to try to excel at something and measure that degree of excellence."

Miss Lay believes that because of prejudice and discrimination that keep them away from organized sport, "most women are robbed of feeling alive."

In an interview last July, the former Olympic bronze medallist went so far as to say also that "most physical education teachers are incompetent. Most have a grasp knowledge of sport, but they never have seen the value of excellence in this field."

Certainly there is plenty of scope for channelling more girls into sporting activity, and the word from basketball to field hockey, not to mention indoor games like table tennis.

Quiet Mornings

There are mornings when fog is hovering over the land and traffic is so light you wonder where everyone has gone. Pinnacle Street around 9.30 a.m. when it is not a Market day, is at times virtually empty to, reminding one of that final scene from On The Beach — the streets of downtown Melbourne completely deserted — Nevil Shute's tale of a nuclear war in the northern hemisphere and radiation drifting southward until it snuffs out all life "down under" as well. But of course Belleville is alive and well and busy behind the scenes at that time of day. And visitors still come from afar, as witness a small import in Market Square on that quiet morning of which we speak, registration California with in addition the legend, San Diego — Mission Bay.

Oil Cutbacks Could Backfire On The Arab Nations

By GEORGE KITCHEN

NEW YORK (CP) — The Arab world's new tactic of cutting oil production in an attempt to pressure the United States into easing its support for Israel can backfire.

If it does, the Arab world would be hit where it hurts most—right in the breadbasket.

The United States consumes approximately 17 million barrels of oil a day, of which about 1.1 million comes from Arab countries. While much of the total goes to fuel automobiles, industry and home oil furnaces, it is 75 little-known fact that agriculture is the biggest single user of oil.

Farm production absorbs 30 per cent of the 17 million barrels daily consumption, with the rest going into petroleum-based fertilizers, propane gas to dry grains for storage and shipment, and gasoline to run tractors and other farm equipment.

While U.S. needs for foreign oil to keep its industries going, the Arab world is equally dependent on imports of food, much of it bought from the U.S. to feed its people.

The U.S. produces one-half the world's wheat, nearly 88 per cent of its high-protein soybeans and 40 per cent of animal feed grain. The U.S. already is short of oil, and while the Arab action is not immediately expected to affect the supply situation, a long-term Arab oil supplier could affect food production and reduce the amount available for export.

The Arab nations, many of them often living on near-desert existence levels, have had to import 50 per cent of their edible oil imports to the U.S. Libya also halted oil to the U.S. Other moves were in response to a decision by Arab oil ministers meeting in Kuwait to reduce oil production by five per cent each month.

Neither move is expected to have a serious short-term effect on the U.S. since Arab oil makes up only six per cent of American imports. But the boycott could fall heavily on Canada, another major food exporting nation, which depends on the Middle East for one-half of its oil imports.

Western European countries also drew heavily on the Arab supply.

There is no indication at the moment whether Canada will be seriously affected. And Thursday's cutback announcement by the U.S. may also avoid serious disruption. But if total food production drops because of the Arabian action, the question of which countries will receive the restricted supplies may also involve the question whether the Middle East should get all the food it demands.

South African Economy

Blacks Well-off In Comparison With Some

In the following article Austin Ferrar of The South African Financial Gazette discusses the conditions and wages of black miners in the republic compared with the rest of the world.

It rather takes your breath away when you read straight from the horse's mouth — the World Bank — that 1-billion people in the developing world" earn less than R66 (66 South African Rand) a year.

In other words, if you deduct the aged and those too young to work, you must come to the inevitable conclusion that by far the majority of the teeming millions of Asia, Africa and parts of Latin America are earning considerably less in a year than the amount considered necessary in South Africa to sustain a Black family for a month.

But even this is an over-simplified estimate. For the World Bank goes on to state that of that poverty-stricken billion, some 300-million earn less than R 30 a year. At least one third of the entire population of the world must be living at starvation level.

Whatever one may think, therefore, of the inadequacy of the wages paid to the Blacks in South Africa, these figures do not stand up for comparison with most people on this earth, they live in an economic Utopia.

I do not for a moment suggest that because our Blacks are so relatively better off we can afford to sit back smugly and not continue to make every effort to diminish the gap between rich and poor.

But I do think the figures I have quoted should be taken more serious notice of by our critics overseas whose hypocrisy over the lack of democracy in this country we are splendidly revealed recently by the Johannesburg Sunday Express.

Two years ago I drew attention in The Gazette not only to the appallingly low incomes of workers in various parts of the world, but to the degree to which these low incomes were being exploited by, among others, British and American industrialists.

Among the figures I quoted were R 21 a year in which was then East Pakistan, India's daily average pay of Rs. Hazli's R1 a month, and the R 90 a year paid to Chinese villagers who worked seven days a week from sunrise to sunset with three days off a year.

Since then, there has been the British parliamentary subcommittee's inquiry into wages paid by British companies in South Africa. And now there is the visit of trade unionists from the United Kingdom to make an on the spot investigation of their own.

According to a recent report in The Star, the average wage of the worst-paid industrial workers in South Africa increased by more than 20 per cent between April 1972 and March 1973. The increase brought the average wage of the unit bulk of unskilled laborers to R13.46 a week. The few thousand Blacks classed as artisans received an average of R25.66 a week.

Now, while it is true, as The Star report points out, that the bulk of workers did receive low wages, these are low only by comparison with the wages paid to other races and particularly the Whites. They are by no means low when compared with the abysmal wages paid to the rest of Africa (with a few exceptions) and in Asia. Rhodesia's wage structure is roughly comparable with our own.

Even vastly better off our laboring class is in the Republic has been further emphasized by figures collated by U.S. News and World Report and reproduced in the Transvaler. In comparatively wealthy Northern Nigeria, for instance, factory workers earn R307 a year. These are presumably semi-skilled workers. Compare their lot, for instance, with the minimum starting rate for a beginner in General Motors S.A., in the lowest grade of unskilled work, which is assigned entirely from innumerable other fringe benefits.

This figure, which was quoted in The Gazette recently, is interesting, because it happens to be higher than that paid on average to a skilled worker in Russia, where the minimum wage laid down by law is R 58 a month. And according to the Bank of Optima, Black miners now earn up to R 4 a shift (six group 5), which is equivalent to more than R 100 a month.

The startling fact beginning to emerge is that on a global comparison Black workers in South Africa are not only better off than at least 95 per cent of workers anywhere in the developing world, but that they are better paid, better housed and generally better looked after than millions of Whites, even in some of the more highly industrialized countries. Only recently, for instance, it was revealed that 24-million workers in the United States have incomes below R100 a month. The U.S. has advised American investors to expect only a minimum to be paid to their employees in South Africa.

It may well turn out that in their vicious campaign to persuade South Africa to change its turn, our enemies overseas in both Press and politics may have overshot the mark. They may well be able to demonstrate what we already know — that the wages gap in South Africa is too wide — but by pinpointing the actual wages paid to Black workers and their conditions of work and play, they will find it difficult (or will they?) to avoid drawing aside the curtain on their own backyards.

Base Metals Join Ranks With Needs In Short Supply

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Expert

Thomsen News Service

Shortages of basic commodities have become the main isospias of supplies with a suddenness that is unprecedented in the world's economic history.

Grains and other food staples, so plentiful a few years ago that the problem was to get rid of them, have become relatively scarce and high-priced.

Petroleum, which was burned with careless abandon in the lonely low prices, is rapidly becoming expensive—and talk of rationing grows more and more serious.

Base metals, too, are beginning to be in short supply. Even though they are fundamental to our jobs and personal lives—from engine blocks to razor blades—we tend to take them for granted and turn our concerns to shortages of the more obvious commodities.

But a closer look at the mining industry shows disturbing signs of a chronic deficiency of lead, zinc, copper, nickel and other refined metals—and even clearer signs of substantial price escalation.

Here are some of the major factors in the current switch from abundance to shortages in base metals:

—Politics, ranging from Chile's confiscation of copper mines and subsequent coup d'etat to Libya's revocation of tax inducements to Canadian mining developers. Australia's doctrinaire Labor government, for example, thinks foreign investors can be pressured into lending money to develop mines, with no equity participation.

—The now familiar conflict between ecology and production. Mining companies are being required to protect their environmental sins of the past—and then some—at a speed that substantially reduces the funds available for expansion of their production facilities.

—Labor problems. Mining companies have had only limited success in maintaining a flow of recruits to the hard but well paid jobs in the mines. Worker mobility has always been limited (the U.S. goes to great trouble and expense to train unemployed Tyneside coal miners for other jobs, while Canadian mines devote just as much energy to an almost-fruitless search for new miners). Labor productivity has not shown even the modest gains of industry as a whole.

The outlook, then, is for fairly static production even at existing Mines, in the face of constantly escalating demand for metal from a booming industrial economy.

That inevitably means that a scarcity value will be reflected in more and more metal prices, and that producers won't encounter much market resistance when they boost prices.

As prices rise, it will become feasible for mining companies to open up orebodies that are more costly to operate. But don't look for any flood of new production to the market—from the time a mine is discovered, it usually takes five to 10 years to produce the resulting refined metal.

Citizens' Bureau Operations

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Not intending to do so at first, my friends demand a reply to Mr. Hockley's letter of September 29, 1973, in your paper. I do not agree with Mr. Hockley's bide or anybody elses.

Indeed I was in a better position than most to know about the operations of the Citizens' Bureau. I visited the bureau three times and read a progress report every week (signed by Mr. Hockley). These progress reports were sometimes discussed in caucus with a full attendance.

If Mr. Hockley, in the future, writes again, let him be sure to be as well informed.

The Citizens' Bureau has done many wonderful things. This was its job.

The public at large identifies the Citizens' Bureau with Mr. Hockley and vice versa. Some of these people whose private citizens Mr. Hockley expressed was abolished via the Citizens' Bureau.

To help people, without fanfare or thinking of other people, was the task of the Citizens' Bureau. To be the advocate of the citizen, mainly the underdog!

Citizen-advocacy does not imply being or trying to be 'somebody else's' benefactor.

Quinte Methodist School Can Backfire On The Canadian

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I write in reply to an article printed in the October 13 edition of The Intelligencer under the heading "Education Days" or "Indian Studies in the Way?"

I send this article on behalf of the Quinte Mohawk School Committee of which I am a member as well as myself, being the parent of two children in the reserve school system, and also a former member of the Quinte Mohawk teaching staff.

It is the opinion of many knowledgeable people living on Tyendinaga Reserve that Miss Marcie's statements are factually "offbeat". What bearing does "emphasis on Indian arts and crafts and native language" have on the standard of the education received by the pupils? Surely Miss Marcie does not believe that subject matter should be the basis of the learning situation. Has she closed her eyes to the fact that given proper instruction and guidance, children do learn to think and attain personal social behavior as long as the interest level is high? What could be more interesting and challenging than discovering ones own ancestry by seeing and doing? If she herself had participated in some of these classes on the reserve, perhaps this naive view would never have come into print.

Pupils in the Quinte Mohawk Schools do not string beads and since to Tom Toms all afternoon as suggested by this young lady. Each pupil makes a choice from various approaches which are worked in with regular programs. For example the physical education on some days may be Indian dancing or games. Not every child may enjoy the dancing nor would every child enjoy a workout on the parallel bars. History in one class may include a more intensive study of the Six Nations rather than an emphasis on the men that traded with these Indians but it would not neglect an over-all picture of Canadian history. Certainly follow-up activities for various topics are much more impressive on a child's mind if they are as concrete as a well-made piece of pottery rather than a note in a scribbler which will be discarded anyhow in June. If one uses the time to investigate it would be obvious that Indian Studies are not an "academic disadvantage" to the Tyendinaga pupils as suggested in the article.

Concerning her question of 60 years ago and of the culture I say, I did not live 60 years ago I'm a parent of today. I do care, and I do encourage the program that is presently growing in the Quinte Mohawk School system.

I honestly believe that our children can't help but improve socially if they are taught to be knowledgeable and proud of their ancestry.

A person, regardless of creed or color can only face the world with as much confidence as he has in himself. Indian Studies of the past and present are going to help remove a few of the shadows surrounding our Indian identity. I feel that only by knowing ourselves are we going to be able to meet others and this is a problem that can only partially be remedied by the school system through which we pass.

"It will be a serious effort. We're trying to involve as wide a range of experts as possible. That's one of our criticisms of governments — it hasn't adopted a multi-disciplinary approach to the issue."

Mr. Breghs said Canada's energy resources should be used now to develop an ex panded industrial base "to sup port us when we run out of re sources."

Tweed Seniors Help Out

Because the cost of ice rental at the Tweed Hungerford Community Centre has risen this year, the Club must find ways of reducing its expenditures.

The senior citizens have decided to man the booth during Club hours.

This free service will eliminate the fee ordinarily paid to a ticket-taker.

The senior citizens will manage the booth on Thursday and Saturdays during the times that the Skating Club gives lessons.

There are 150 children learning to figure skate, and many of them pay by the lesson, as they enter the arena.

Taking money won't be the only job of the person on duty, says Rachel Spencer, press reporter for the Senior Citizens' Club.

"There'll always be a few kiddies who need their skates done up," she says.

The instructors from Kingston give the children, ranging in age from four to teens, lessons which prepare them for the skating carnival late in the winter.

Quick Tricks For Halloween Treats

Just a week away, Hallowe'en brings with it a busy time for mothers.

After fastening your ghosts and goblins into their outfits, you'll be busy answering the door for other costumed callers.

In the middle of all this activity there's still supper to get and treats to make for the children to munch when they return cold and weary from their trick and treating. You may decide this is a good time to entertain a few friends after the witches and pirates are in bed.

Harvest Moon Eggs

Into a buttered pie plate pour enough milk to generously cover the bottom. Break as many eggs as you have family into the milk, being careful not to break the yolks. Over the eggs sprinkle grated cheddar, salt, pepper, parsley flakes and bread crumbs if you have some. A few dots of butter round the edges, and the dish is ready to bake an hour in a 350 deg. oven. With a knife, cut around each egg, and lift it to its waiting warm plate. With bread and salad, you'll have a nourishing supper.

Carved Cheese Dip

With a blender or rotary beater, gradually blend one can (11 ounces) of condensed cheddar cheese soup into one package (8 ounces) of softened cream cheese. Beat until smooth. Stir in one-half cup chopped ripe olives, three tablespoons chopped sweet pickle, and two teaspoons curry powder. Chill, and garnish with fresh parsley. Serve with crisp vegetables or chips.

Cauldon Chowder

6 slices bacon
½ lb. sliced mushrooms
1 cup chopped onion
½ tsp. thyme
1 large clove garlic, minced
1 can condensed tomato soup
2 soup cans of water
3 medium ears of corn, halved.
(If frozen, thaw.)
3 cups cubed cooked chicken
1½ large heavy pan, fry bacon till crisp. Remove, and crumble. Pour off all but three tablespoons of the drippings. Brown mushrooms and onions with thyme and garlic in drippings. Add remaining ingredients and cook over low heat for 15 minutes. Garnish with bacon. Makes about nine cups without corn.

Witches Beef 'n Berry Brew

2 cans condensed beef broth
2 soup cans cranberry juice
1 tablespoon honey
1 cinnamon stick
Orange slices

In a saucepan, combine all ingredients except orange. Simmer five minutes to blend flavors. Garnish with orange slices. Makes about five cups of warming, mellow punch.

Pan'kin Face Cookies

1 cup butter or margarine
three-quarters cup sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
2 and three-quarters cups sifted all-purpose flour three-quarters cup rolled oats
2½ cups icing sugar sifted
3 tbsp. orange juice
3 drops each of red and yellow food coloring

Beat butter and sugar together until creamy. Add egg and vanilla, and beat until fluffy. Add flour, blend thoroughly, then stir in oats. Cover and refrigerate for several hours. Roll out to one-eighth inch thickness on a board lightly sprinkled with icing sugar. Cut with a sugared three-inch round cookie cutter. Bake on ungreased cookie sheet for 10-12 minutes in a 350 degree oven. Cool on wire racks.

For frosting, beat together the icing sugar, orange juice and food coloring until spreading consistency. Frost the cooled cookies, and make faces with candy and/or string licorice. Makes about 40 cookies.

Great Goblin Bars

one-third cup butter or margarine
one-third cup shortening
¾ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup white sugar
1 egg
1 tsp. vanilla
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup rolled oats
½ cup butterscotch pieces
one-third cup chopped nuts

Heat oven to 350 degrees. Beat together butter, shortening and both sugars until creamy. Add vanilla and egg and beat until fluffy. Sift together flour and salt. Add to creamed mixture and blend well. Add remaining ingredients and spread in a lightly-greased 13 by nine inch pan. Bake for about 20 minutes. Cool, then cut into bars. Sprinkle with icing sugar. Yields about 36 bars.

TREATS made with healthful cereal: iced oatmeal cookies; butterscotch-nut bars; chocolate-raisin-marshmallow bars.

Grandmothers Honored by Marmora CWL

The grandmothers of the Marmora Catholic Women's League were entertained and honored Monday evening at the annual "Grandmothers' Night".

Ada Brady, Cultural Life Convener, in charge of the program, led in special musical selections in tribute to the women and gave a reading on the true meaning of grandmothers.

Mary Lavender was present to explain methods of preserving corsages, cascades and bridal bouquets, also giving helpful tips in preserving flower arrangements. Marilyn Maloney thanked Mrs. Lavender for her presentation. Jean Hanley won a basket of straw flowers and another basket will be presented to Marion Gawley. Other prize-winners were: Mrs. Charles Hulsman, Mrs. Bill Murphy, Mrs. Art Campion and Kay McCoy.

In her welcome to the grandmothers, the President, Leona Brady, said that the number of years lived do not necessarily designate growing old, but only by insertion of ideals do people age.

The women decided to hold a rummage sale in November in the parish hall date to be advertised later.

Vanier Volunteer Addresses Women

"Perhaps a group of people can grow together best by trying to be of service in some way."

This was the message left by Heather Hume for members of the Women's University Club at their October meeting in Carlton library.

Miss Hume spoke about the for half an hour in a 210 degree oven of former Governor-General Georges Vanier, and his friend Pere Thomas, of France, who have created a community of homes for mentally handicapped adults.

Their aim has been to provide a place of peace and security for men and women who are rejected by society because of their disabilities.

Miss Hume, with other young people from several countries, worked as an assistant in the community of Ambleteuse, France. The assistants live in homes with the residents, teaching them to live in society as much as possible.

Each day is spent in useful activity. Some help with housework, or gardening, while others work in pottery, woodworking, metalworking and sewing workshops, or in nearby factories.

Residents and assistants participate together in sports, music and in other activities which help the mentally handicapped establish secure friendships.

There are difficulties, but seeing the residents become happy, useful people is reward enough for the, workers, Miss Hume said.

The community has proven to be so sucessful that the Federation of L'Arche, founded by Jean Vanier, has expanded to nine homes in other parts of France, England, Sweden and India, and five in Canada.

All Is Forgiven

POOLE, England (CP) — Brian Sloman went to his girl's flat to patch up a quarrel. As he looked in through a window he saw her with her head in the gas oven. Panicked to think that Elaine Nelson, was gassing herself because of the spat, Sloman smashed through the window and yanked her away. Elaine had merely been drying her hair.

Successful Living

Common-law Complications

Dear Doris: Due to the way our divorce laws used to be, I was unable to marry a man I deeply loved. We lived together for almost 25 years, very happily. No one knew we weren't married. We had a wonderful life; lived in the best part of town and had fine friends.

Then he died suddenly. Does a woman in my position have any rights at all? He left property and some bonds without signing them over to me. My world is broken over the loss of him; never did I realize I would be left this way alone and almost penniless.

My life is so completely upset I don't know what to do, and I'm afraid that my secret will be known. — Any Hope?

Dear Any Hope: Only a woman legally married can make the claim of a widow for support, where there is no will. But there have been cases in which a person in your situation has made a claim as a housekeeper with an expectation to be paid for services.

This type of legal claim would require some evidence that it was the intent of the deceased to provide financially for the housekeeper. Evidence, perhaps from a third person who might have heard him say to you, "You'll be taken care of if I die", or some such indicative of intention.

This type of task can be tried on what they call a "quantum meruit" basis. A lawyer would help you present it properly.

However, this would bring your secret out into the open. The only other alternative is to confide in a skilled social worker, who can help you consider suitable work and find it; and can work through the rest of your dilemma with you.

Friends will not think it strange for a widow to move out of a big house; and many a lonely older woman has turned to work for satisfaction even when she didn't need the money.

Ann Landers

Wants Out of Wedding Asks 'Will Letter Do?'

Dear Ann Landers: I am writing this letter for my son Howard. He is 23 and engaged to be married around Christmas. But last week he decided he doesn't want to go through with it.

Brenda (not her right name) is two years older than Howard and she is very pushy and domineering. They dated steadily for three years and Brenda was his first serious girl friend. She is a nice person, but I'm sure she pressured Howard into giving her a ring. From the beginning I knew she was chasing him.

Howard asked me to write to you and inquire if it would be all right for him to write Brenda a letter breaking the engagement. He says it would be a lot easier on everybody. What do you say, Ann?—Concerned Mom

Dear Mom: Easier for him, maybe, but gutless to say the least. A fellow who takes three years of a girl's time should have the decency to say goodbye in person.

Dear Ann Landers: Please don't consider this a put-down. I just want to tell you that I think you are missing a good bet. A person of your influence should be bending every effort to get colleges to include some courses on what married life is all about. The high divorce rate in our country is a scandal, and getting worse. Why? Because Young people have no idea of what to expect. They can't learn anything from their parents' marriages because it's a different world today than it was 25 years ago. That crooning Beaudesert in the white pants doesn't always make the perfect husband.

Enlightened instruction on everyday living would open a great deal more than biochemistry, zoology or Russian history when the going gets rough. How about it, Ann?—D.C.B.

Dear D.C.B.: Sorry, I disagree. College is too late. I've been speaking in behalf of family living courses in high school for 18 years and am pleased to report that many high schools now have them.

I've also done a good bit of lecturing in high schools and I know what the kids want to know because of the questions they ask. They are eager to learn what makes a marriage work. Invariably someone asks, "I want to know how many times I've been married. When I tell them I'm still with the original model after 34 years, they usually cheer! It's funny, but it's sad, too, that a lasting marriage is such a novelty that it rates an accolade. . . .

POPS QUESTION

NOTTINGHAM, England (CP) — A radio reporter was interviewing Robert Holbrook and Carol Street and asked if the couple were married. Robert said he had been, too shy to ask, and then did it over the air. Carol said yes.

Women and Law Topic At B&P Meeting

Robert Temple, Belleville lawyer and former member of Parliament, addressed the October 15 meeting of Belleville's Business and Professional Women's Club.

Mr. Temple, who spoke on laws which affect women, described the changes in Canadian laws affecting women since the 1880s and talked about joint and common tenancies, partition of property in divorce, wills and the duties of an estate personal passing where the owner wished it to go.

He also discussed laws in other countries which affect women.

After his address, the women participated in a question period.

The MacDonalds were rushed to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance where they are reported to be in "satisfactory" condition. Mr. Cox was treated and released after having sustained cuts and bruises.

Kenneth MacDonald is reported to have sustained head injuries and has a fractured right shoulder. His father is reported to be suffering from abdominal pains and may have possible head injuries.

Church Work

Members of Front Road United Church are busily at work preparing for centennial of little congregation. Among them is Mrs. Beverley McMullen who had along daughter Lesley, 4, and Susan Shandraw, 2, while doing chores.

Small, Rural Church Thrives After Century

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The drift from the country — or formal worship — hasn't closed all small, rural churches in the Quinte area.

Size — or lack of it — may be a secret for survival in a centralizing society. As it seems to be for Front Road United Church east of Belleville.

Its congregation counts 26 families in the Point Anne - Highway 2 area.

Sundays, its attendance averages just more than two dozen people joining in with an eight - member choir. On its slim budget it can only afford a student minister to visit weekends from university.

Nonetheless, the little red-brick building fronting the highway toward the stacks of Canada Cement - LaFarge, where imminent shutdown faces it with leaner financial times, intends carrying on.

It is in the midst of preparing centennial celebrations for next Sunday.

"Many of the members have been here for years and we all know one another," says Mrs. Beverley McMullen, vice president of Front Road's women's organization. "We don't want to see it close — and we've been quite active."

Activity has increased to the building's benefit in this centennial year.

Despite a slim annual budget, running around $2,000 Mrs. McMullen estimates, the church has been repainted, panelled, carpeted and its chairs covered.

It's all the work of the congregation, which along with giving time and effort, has organized special projects to raise refurbishing funds.

The men had an auction and realized $800, says Mrs. McMullen. Now the women have organized a cookbook — and sold about 700 copies.

Originally Wesleyan Methodist, its denomination changed with church union in 1925. Front Road, in the United Church's Quinte Conference, is under the pastoral supervision of Tabernacle United Church in Belleville. For years, it has joined with Point Anne United Church for joint service alternating twice monthly. The arrangement saw Point Anne churchgoers pay part of the church budget. But with the cement plant closing, this resource may dwindle and Front Road's little community may have "to dig deeper" to offset the loss.

Yet, Mrs. McMullen turns down any likelihood the congregation would shut up church and join a city church.

"There's no move to centralization, nor does the congregation want it."

The church's Quinte Conference also seems to favor keeping the century - old centre of worship open, she adds.

People in size, the Front Road United community has produced an ordained minister, a lay minister and a woman missionary — the late Mabel Clarke, who spent years in the Far East.

Today, a Belleville musician comes out one night a week to rehearse the tiny choir of adults and youngsters. Dexter Dafoe, student minister from Kingston, visits the church community every weekend. Together they join in a Sunday morning service that draws 25-30 people, says Mrs. McMullen.

This Sunday there'll be two services — 11 a.m., 7 p.m. — in the church, built to seat 75-100. Speakers will include Rev. Harry Atkinson, Grace Carman United Church, Toronto, at night.

Market Facelift Proposed

The Belleville farmers' market should be made a focal point for the city and a place for congenial conversation as well as for trading.

This is the feeling of Alderman Joe Cox, who Monday told council that the city should do something to encourage more attendance at the market.

He noted that farmers' markets in Kingston and in centres in Western Ontario were an institution and suggested there was no reason why the same could not be done at Belleville.

The recent planting of trees on the market square to provide shade was a start in this direction. The addition of seats could make the market a pleasant place, he suggested.

City Manager Albert E. Elliott was directed to bring in a report on market development possibilities.

Committee Will Comb East End for Rink Site

With a winter capital projects fund loan of $100,000 for a new east end skating rink approved by the senior governments, the hunt is on in Belleville for a suitable site for the structure.

Tuesday at a special meeting held at the Pinnacle Street recreation centre, members of the Recreation and Arena Committee decided that a third city - owned ice surface was needed even though the Belleville Tyendinaga men proposed construction of a sports complex in the city's north end.

Committee members concurred in principle with a staff report on what facilities would be required in the proposed city - owned east end rink and recommended to city council that action be taken to retain an architect or consulting engineer to design the structure.

In the meantime, committee members will tour the city's east end next Tuesday to view possible land sites.

Some of the sites to be viewed by committee members are privately owned, while others are school or city - owned lands.

Staff recommendations call for a site of between two and three acres to allow for rink to have an ice surface of 85 by 185 feet with 12-month operational capability.

The site should be of sufficient size for parking and outdoor tennis courts with the structure large enough to provide space for storage and other indoor recreational activities in addition to the ice surface area.

One of the possible sites that committee members will look at is the Hartt bathing (bowling alley) on East Dundas Street.

The Hartt site has an area of approximately 4.5 acres with the bowling alley structure measuring 100 by 138 feet.

Staff preference for the rink site is part city - owned Sidney Park, west of Edgehill Road.

In a report to city council on Monday, City Manager Albert Elliott said that if the Winter Capital Projects Fund loan is handled properly, the entire $195,000 would become forgivable and thus could be considered to be the same as a grant.

In order to maximize the forgiveness portion of the loan, however, it would be necessary for all labor costs to be incurred between December 1 and May 31.

The city manager suggested that if the project was to be considered, it should be planned for construction commencing Dec. 1, 1974.

Three-car Pileup Tuesday

A three-car crash on Highway 2, just east of the Point Anne turnoff, sent two people to hospital and caused an estimated $1,750 damage yesterday morning.

Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that a car, driven by Edward Reddick, 66, of RR4, Belleville, was involved in a collision with a west - bound auto driven by Henry Burns, 36, of 110 Dundas East, at around 9:30 a.m.

Police said the Reddick vehicle was east-bound on Highway 2 and was making a left turn when the accident occurred.

The third car, driven by Donald Moriarity, 25, of 217 Bridge Street East, became involved in the accident when it was unable to stop and ran into the rear end of the Reddick car.

Both Mr. Reddick and Mr. McCarthy were taken to Belleville General Hospital by ambulance where they were treated and released.

Rehabilitation Week

Affluent Society Is Heart's Enemy

The human heart is an amazing organ. It's only the size of a closed fist, weighs about a pound and a half, has four separate compartments or chambers, and beats about 60 times a minute in the normal person.

And it might be added its failure to work, coupled with circulatory disease accounts for more than half of all deaths in Canada each year, about 35 per cent of these occurring among people 45 to 64 years of age.

Last night, in the second of a week-long series of public presentations making up Rehabilitation Week '73 at Belleville General Hospital, Dr. Cronk, a specialist heart boy they can reduce the risk of heart attack.

A film showing what the average person can do in saving someone who has had a cardiac arrest or experienced sudden unexpected failure of the heart to circulate blood helping out involve mouth-to-nose resuscitation and mouth-to-airway adjunct or bag and mask.

A demonstration by two nurses using a model followed the film.

Dr. L. B. Cronk, consultant in internal medicine at Belleville General Hospital told his audience of the four main risk factors which can bring on a heart attack.

These are: High blood pressure, high cholesterol count in the blood, high blood sugar, (diabetes) and cigarette smoking. In general, "living high on the hog . . . in our affluent society" brings on the above four factors and contributes greatly to bringing on a heart attack, said Dr. Cronk.

Dr. J. S. Loynes, also a consultant in internal medicine at Belleville General, told the audience that Canada is high among the countries having the highest incidence of coronary disease.

Finland has the highest rate of heart attack, followed by the United States, Scotland and Australia.

Dr. Cronk advised people who want to avoid the risk of having a coronary to practice the following diet properly cutting all high cholesterol foods, exercises, avoid worry and tension, quit smoking.

In answer to a question from the audience following his presentation, Dr. Cronk said a person who has survived a heart attack is in a better position to avoid another one than a person who has not had one.

"After a person has had a heart at ack, he is often in a good position to avoid the risk of another. He may drop his weight and quit smoking and start exercising to stimulate the heart," said Dr. Cronk.

"For every fatal heart attack there may be two or three non,fatal ones," he said.

Dr. Cronk added that with all things being equal, a person whose blood is high in cholesterol increases his chances two,or three-fold of having a heart attack.

"Also, a person who smokes a package of cigarettes a day, compared to a non-smoker, increases his chances two or three fold of having a cardiac arrest," said Dr. Cronk.

"Too many of us are content to sit back, watch television, travel everywhere by car and not do enough exercise" said Dr. Cronk. This is a high risk factor in bringing on a heart attack.

Ka hryn Morgan, a nurse in the intensive care unit at Belleville General said it is important to relieve the worry and anxiety a person suffering a cardiac arrest feels when brought to hospital.

"We have to cope with their fears and let them rest and relax. And we must be honest with them," she told the audience.

Plans Unveiled For Board Office

An architect Monday unveiled to Hastings County trustees the plans for revised version of Queen Alexandra School to a board office.

Grant Robertson of Cobourg brought along his sketches to the regular meeting held in the Queen Alex auditorium. The school has been closed since June.

Superintendent L. F. Reid introduced the plans by saying he was pleased to be making the first presentation to the board in Hastings county's new educational services building.

"I vote we leave it as it is," added trustee Donald Williams, a reference to the long fight put up by parents to save the school. It was closed because of declining enrolments in the central city area.

Conversion of the school into an educational services building will cost about $550,000. The auditorium will become a board room and instructional media centre, now in Trenton, will move into the two classrooms to the left of the auditorium. The auditorium platform will be lowered and turned into a lounge and kitchen.

On the top floor will be the office of the director of education, the superintendents, co-ordinators and financial functions of the educational services.

The first floor, until now considered the basement, but technically the above ground level, will contain the mail room, audio-visual repair department, and a classroom for custodial staff as well as boilers, air conditioning units and other engineering apparatus.

The industrial arts and home economics classrooms will continue to be used by senior elementary (grade 7 and 8) students from the area.

Mr. Robertson, the architect, said he had decided on a "diamond motif" for the structural parts of the building. This involves breaking up long corridors with triangular-shaped partitions to enclose waiting and seminar rooms and the like.

"We've got a diamond in the rough," quipped trustee Mary Jean Hutchinson of Trenton.

The high ceilings of the 62-year-old school will be lowered with suspended acoustical material and most rooms will be carpeted.

West Riverbank Park Okayed by Councillors

City council Monday approved the West Riverbank Development Plan and Report which earlier had received its okay from the city parks board.

The plan calls for long-range development of approximately 75 acres of property acquired for park purposes on the west bank of the Moira north of College Street.

The development plan was prepared by consultants Teron, Sims, Hubicki and Associates.

Alderman Dr. John Stock questioned the necessity of hiring planning consultants to do the development plan. He felt the work might have been done by parks staff.

But Alderman Paul Russell, chairman of the city parks board said his board anticipated considerable provincial monetary assistance for the proposed park development. One of the requirements for qualification for such grants was that a development plan by consultants be provided.

188 Years of Service

Here are five men with something to smile about. Among the five these is a total of 188 years service to Stephens-Adamson. Shaking hands, left, is the junior member of the group V. L. Lewis, president of the company. He is shaking hands with the senior member of this exclusive club, J. C. Young, second from right, vice-president. Mr. Lewis has been with the company 20 years while Mr. Young has been there 45 years. Looking on are Charles Anderson, 36 years, right, Arthur Calbury, 44 years, and Max Peoples, 43 years.

One Step at A Time

Rehabilitation Week '73, currently going on at Belleville General Hospital is an opportunity for the public to learn about the very important role rehabilitation plays in community health. Public presentations are held each evening this week at 8 in the Ed ucation Hall at the hospital. Here, chairman of the education committee, Ivan Wright, gives a helping hand to Nellie Williamson, in the hospital's physiotherapy department.

Commons Roundup

Railway Bill Battered

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition MPs continue to use the annual Canadian National Railway financing bill as a Commons club to better CN operations in nearly every corner of the country.

The bill would provide the Crown corporation with $225.5 million for capital spending this year and an additional $75 million next year, a total of $300.5 million. The bill also includes loans for Air Canada.

Tuesday was the fifth day of debate at second reading, which began April 13. The debate showed no real signs of ending as several MPs demanded a statement on the rail situation from Transport Minister Jean Marchand. The minister left the House early in the debate.

There were no new criticisms, just strengthening of old arguments, as MPs used the bill to criticize rail, air and marine transportation in their own regions. The heartiest embrace continued to be on service in the Prairie and the Atlantic provinces.

Jack Marshall (PC—Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) said it is high time for the government to recognize that "Newfoundlanders are just as much Canadians as those in the larger urban centres."

Newfoundland's west coast has unlimited potential for hardwood development, but the government has done nothing about it, he said, suggesting the departments of environment, transport, public works and regional economic expansion get their heads together and come up with some ideas.

His discussion from the main topic of CNR and Air Canada financing was typical of many speeches in the all three opposition parties.

Doug Rowland (NDP—Selkirk) blasted the logic of the Canadian transport commission, which has sanctioned the abandonment of many rural railway lines on the Prairies. It was the "epitome of madness" to eliminate railway service that the railways operated cost, have to replace with highways.

Many Prairie MPs have said railways provide an economic and social link, elimination of which has weakened the structure of the region.

New Brunswicker Fred McCain (PC—Carleton-Charlotte) said if the government is worried about "losing" on living costs, it should jump on the transport commission and the railways. Maritime distributors of perishable foods were being squeezed out of existence by discriminatory freight rates, an issue also raised by Prairie critics.

Roland Godin (SC—Portneuf) suggested the RCMP investigate the financial dealings of CN, especially the company's removal from its pension fund of $171 million in 1966, which he said apparently was meant to reduce or eliminate a long-term debt but failed to do so.

Vote Not Final Word

OTTAWA (CP) — Despite today's vote in the Commons on the capital punishment issue, it is up to the federal cabinet to say whether the gallows will be used again.

The last hanging was in 1962 when two police killers went to the gallows in Toronto's Don Jail.

Registration Cut Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government will not extend the period under which illegal immigrants may seek landed-immigrant status, Immigration Minister Robert Andras said Tuesday.

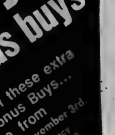
The special 60-day period when illegal immigrants could make application for landed status ended Oct. 15 but Mr. Andras received representations from inside and outside the Commons for an extension.

Pogey Drops

OTTAWA (CP) — Total unemployment insurance payments dropped in August to $145 million, down $10.3 million from July and $9 million below August, 1972, Statistics Canada reported Tuesday.

It was the third month this year in which the jobless pay total fell below levels of the corresponding months last year. The others two months were May and June.

Press Bill Gets Nowhere



OTTAWA (CP) — A private members bill designed to protect a journalist from being forced to disclose his information sources got nowhere in the Commons Tuesday.

No vote was taken on the bill, proposed by Arnold Peters (NDP—Timiskaming), during the hour set aside for private members business. It now goes to the bottom of the pile of private bills and probably will not be revived during this session.

Outdoor College Courses Taught by Rescue Expert

COURTENAY, B.C. (CP) — Wally Hacking loves to see other people enjoying the wilderness but the thought of the untrained hikers, canoeists, hunters and fishermen who go into the bush makes him shudder.

Mr. Hacking, 42, said people cause most of the accidents that are becoming all too common in the outdoors and with that in mind, he's been putting all his time and energy into the Comox Valley Outdoor College.

The college, established in March in this Vancouver Island community, enables Mr. Hacking to share his love of the outdoors and have the satisfaction of knowing that others, mainly young people, have been taught safety and survival techniques and are prepared for the unexpected incidents that may occur in the wilderness.

Mr. Hacking, founder and president of the outdoors college, received his survival training during 20 years in the armed forces, spending 11 of those years in search and rescue work. He also has a practical nurse's license.

Two courses are taught at the school.

The first is a hunters' training course, sponsored by local merchants and the provincial fish and wildlife branch. It is directed at persons aged 13 and over.

Mr. Hacking said he, along with seven other volunteers, offered to conduct the hunter training program because they felt the previous government-offered course "didn't go deep enough into hunting".

"People taking the course were taught all about the rifle or shotgun but never got to see or handle one," he said.

The tuition fee is $5, with students taking 24 hours of theory and 40 hours of basic survival training. Also included is 12 hours of shooting practice with a rifle and shotgun and six hours of theory on how to use the weapons.

The survival course is taught at the end of each session, when instructors take students on a 48-hour weekend camping trip on Vancouver Island, near Campbell River.

On the trip, students construct their own lean-tos for sleeping quarters and attempt to put their new knowledge to practical use. They are also taught how to build snares and traps for use in emergency situations.

Since March, 34 youths have taken the course. "Six failed because they didn't meet our standards," Mr. Hacking said.

The second course, offered is an advanced outdoors program aimed at youths between 13 and 18.

In this program, Mr. Hacking and other instructors take students into the woods for 10 days, teaching them camping, map reading, first aid, ecology, conservation and ethics.

Mr. Hacking describes ethics as knowing the proper handling and use of weapons, game and firearms laws, trespassing laws and the necessity for good relations between the hunter and landowner.

"We are teaching young people how to occupy their spare time through the use of a environment around them," Mr. Hacking said.

"I can actually see the kids mature in their outlook towards the environment and the community."

Helen Gagen explains How Single Item Pricing Helps Eliminate Shopping Confusion

What's a fifth of 69 cents — a third of 89 cents — half of 37 cents?

This is the quick decision that shoppers and cashiers must make when grocery or other products are multiple priced. And it is to avoid the need for mental arithmetic, and possible errors at the checkout, that Miracle Food Mart went to single item pricing back in February of this year.

At that time, items previously priced 2 for 37 were re-priced 18 cents each; 3 for 89-cent items became 29 cents each (the equivalent of 3 for 87); 5 for 69 became 13 cents each (5 for 65).

The policy of single item pricing continues, to eliminate shopping confusion. It prevents the need to strain your current food budget, overstock your kitchen, or risk spoilage, to take advantage of a "2-for" or "3-for" price. Single item pricing, along with Miracle Food Mart unit value pricing on some 3,000 items, also makes it easier to check competitive costs of different brands.

Part of Miracle Food Mart's Bill of Rights promise to keep you better informed, single item pricing has been well received by customers. I hope you'll find it useful, too.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

NEVER ON SUNDAY

The Canadian Automobile Association has announced total opposition to Sunday trucking anywhere in Canada. Robert B. Rob, CAA General Manager, stated his Association has filed an intervention on behalf of private motorists with the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa opposing applications for Sunday operations by two trucking companies.

Mr. Rob said the Canadian Automobile Association is opposed to Sunday trucking for four reasons:

1. If two companies were granted permission to operate on Sunday, they would enjoy an unfair competitive advantage and the same privileges would have to be extended to other commercial carriers. Viewed from this perspective, the present petitions represent an application for unlimited Sunday operations by the entire Canadian Trucking Industry.

2. Sunday normally has the highest traffic volume — especially during summer and fall weekends. The introduction of large trucks onto already congested highways will result in mammoth traffic tie - ups, particularly on highways leading to and from major cities.

3. Increased congestion caused by heavy trucks would impair the full use of recreational areas on weekends by Canadians. The traffic jams and greater travel time required would also have an adverse effect on tourism. These adverse effects would become even greater in the future with the increase of leisure time.

4. The inferior braking and handling characteristics of large trucks would present a major safety hazard on crowded Sunday highways. On two - lane roads, trucks cannot maintain steady speeds over hills.

Traffic piles up behind and drivers sometimes become impatient and take unnecessary risks attempting to overtake. In multi-lane expressways, the greater stopping distance of trucks can spell disaster.

The simple fact is that Canadian Motorists don't want trucks on public highways on Sunday. This is the one day of the week when motorists are not hindered by heavy trucks. As the private motorist is the largest user of public highways and pays the greatest proportion of their cost, his wishes must be respected.

GAS SHORTAGES WON'T IMPERIL VACATION TRAVEL

The American Automobile Association has advised motorists planning fall and winter travel that they needn't be intimidated by the reports of localized gasoline shortages. This advice is based on discussions with oil industry experts across the nation in response to inquiries about continuing gasoline distributions in some areas.

In fact, spokesmen for some major oil companies claim that most company dealers will have fuel supplies somewhat larger than they received last year, although occasional pinches may occur. This could mean, industry experts say, that some company dealers might feel the squeeze in this way:

A motorist used to dealing with a particular oil company may find one company dealer without fuel at a given moment, but another dealer a few blocks away will have a supply.

Basic Wage Blasted

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario should raise its minimum wage to at least $2 an hour by the end of the year, a Liberal MPP said Tuesday.

"People are entitled to at least a living wage and they are not getting it at $1.80 an hour," Pat Reid (Rainy River) said in the legislature.

Speaking during a debate on the spending estimates of Labor Minister Fernand Guindon, Mr. Reid said the minimum wage in the province should be elevated to $2.25 an hour by the end of March, 1974.

He added he is most concerned about those people who work in businesses which are not unionized and who are getting "the short end of the stick."

Mr. Reid added that the labor ministry's research department should also be looking into the effects of strikes on one-industry towns in Northern Ontario, instead of just reacting to situations.

He referred to a strike of Minnesota Pulp and Paper in his own area which has kept 700 people out of work since last July.

In reply to the minimum wage proposition, Mr. Guindon repeated statements made last week that "an announcement should be made fairly soon."

He again expressed concern that too much of a hike would drive some independent businessmen out of business.

"I would like to see the minimum wage at $2.50 or $2.75 an hour if I could, but I don't think it can be done," the labor minister said.

Bernt Gilbertson (PC—Algoma) said raising the minimum wage would have an adverse affect on many rural businesses.

"You have to look at both sides of the picture," he said. "It would have a very serious adverse affect if the minimum wage is increased to $2 an hour."

Sea Trials Start

Northern Students Granted Bonus

TORONTO (CP) — A $100,000 fund has been established for the current school year to help finance educational trips to Toronto by Northern Ontario students.

The program, called Ontario Youth Travellers, was announced in the legislature Tuesday by Education Minister Thomas Wells.

Students attending grades 7 and 8 in schools located north of a line running from Matawa through Callander, and along the French River, will qualify for subsidies in the first year of the program. The greater the distance to be travelled, the greater the subsidy.

Under the plan, a class of 32 pupils from Thunder Bay, accompanied by a teacher and two adult chaperones, would receive a subsidy of about $1,800 for the 1,700-mile return trip.

Mr. Wells said classes will be expected to raise their own funds to pay for accommodation, meals and admissions to various city attractions.

Toronto Gets Most Gravy

TORONTO (CP) — Opposition members of the legislature criticized the provincial government Tuesday for being Toronto-oriented in their approach to Ontario-bound immigrants.

Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa Centre) told the estimates committee studying spending of the ministry of community and social services that although Toronto gets only half of the immigrants to the province nearly all the money is spent there.

Sargent Lacked Support

TORONTO (CP) — Eddie Sargent withdrew from the Ontario Liberal party leadership race Tuesday because, he said, a survey last weekend indicated he does not have enough support to win.

"It is evident that my hard-line attack on corruption in government is not at this time approved by the Liberals or the press," said the legislature member for Grey-Bruce.

"My approach to honest ethics in government did not catch hold with the delegates or the press," he said in a written statement circulated by his office.

His secretary said he was not available to talk to reporters about the statement.

Mr. Sargent's withdrawal now leaves four contenders for the leadership at this weekend's party rally in Toronto.

They are Robert Nixon, the current leader; Donald Deacon, a Toronto investment broker and member of the legislature for Toronto—York Centre; Nicholas Caffi, member of Parliament for Ontario riding, and Clarkson businessman Michael Houlton, Ted Culp, a Toronto teacher, withdrew from the race last week.

Mr. Sargent's jokes and loud clothes had added a lively presence to the leadership scramble.

But his most vigorous attack was made against a fellow Liberal, Vernon Singer, member for Downsview, whom he criticized for having accepted a $25,000 legal retainer from developer Gerhard Mong, builder of Ontario Hydro's new downtown Toronto headquarters.

Mr. Sargent also criticized Mr. Nixon for not firing Mr. Singer as deputy leader when he learned of the retainer.

The squabble that resulted from Mr. Sargent's speech led to a slander suit by Mr. Singer. Mr. Sargent, 58, from Owen Sound, was making his second bid for the Liberal leadership. His first attempt was in 1964 when he was eliminated in an early ballot.

Mr. Nixon assumed the provincial party leadership unopposed in 1971.

School Bus Crashes In Fog

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Forty-seven children were injured, none seriously, when a school bus was in collision Tuesday with two other vehicles.

The accident, in an early morning fog that police said cut visibility to near zero, occurred about 20 miles east of downtown Windsor.

The children, all between the ages of six and nine, were taken to four Windsor hospitals and most were treated for cuts and bruises to the head. All were later released.

The bus, driven by Art St. Onge, 61, of Woodslee, was carrying 69 pupils to a school near Woodslee, southeast of here.

Ironically, the children all were to hear a bus safety program at their school today because it was Bus Safety Week.

Police said the school bus ran into the rear of a car which a few minutes before had been in collision with a garbage truck.

Mortgages Reduced In Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa residents eager to buy homes will soon be able to do it at reduced mortgage rates, Allan Grossman told a meeting of Ontario Housing authorities which ended Tuesday.

Mr. Grossman, provincial minister of revenue, said a special 8¼-per-cent mortgage rate will be available to people whose incomes do not exceed $12,500 and who wish to buy homes in Goulbourn Township, adjacent to Ottawa.

Contracts to develop the subdivision would go to builders willing to provide three, four and five bedroom accommodation under the provincial Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) program.

Homes in the area would sell for between $15,600 and $18,500 and would be built on lots leased for between $23.50 and $37 a month.

After five years, purchasers would have the option to buy the lot at market value or continue on their 36-year leases.

Streamlining Courts Aim of B.C. Judges

VANCOUVER (CP) — Provincial courts here are to get a new, streamlined system of handling cases to correct an "intolerable" situation, says a senior judge.

"We intend to institute a system new to provincial courts in Canada ... when one court-rooms open at the end of November," Acting District Judge Les Bewley said in an interview.

He said the new system at the $3-million, 18-courtroom provincial courthouse will be based on assigning each accused person to a single courtroom, where the case can be handled until its disposition.

The aim is to minimize delays caused by the antiquated court system, now costing city taxpayers $500,000 a year.

"They (the courts) will know what they can handle—something they do not know now," Judge Bewley said.

"Can you imagine a dentist with a full day of patients requesting each one to come in at 9:30 a.m., taking them in rotation and, when he has two left at 5 p.m., telling them to come back tomorrow or in a week.

"That is exactly what we've been doing in the provincial courts."

The judges decided that when the new building opens the time will be ripe to do something about what they have long considered an alarming waste of time and money.

"There are many preventable delays dealing with trials and it's the responsibility of judges to take the initiative and do something about it," said Judge Bewley.

The judge, citing statistics for more than two years, estimated that $25,000 a month—or an equal amount in days off—is lost on police witnesses alone because of trials which do not go on when scheduled.

"The figure does not include civilian witnesses' lost pay, subsidies and overhead."

He estimated that each day a trial is delayed costs the taxpayer $200.

The fees that clients pay to lawyers also increase, unless they have used legal aid, in which case the city taxpayer gets stung again.

"Under the old system—or the system we are now under—an accused person is sent to one of two chambers courts," said Judge Bewley.

One of the chamber courts handles nothing but drug offences. The other handles general offences, ranging from shoplifting to murder.

"One judge in each instance on the first appearance will adjourn the case in his court until the accused or his lawyer fixes a date for a hearing or a trial.

"Then the chamber judge sets the case for a trial or hearing in another court.

"The chamber judges must work at such a rapid pace it was found that they set more trials than the courts could handle in a single day.

"This, of course, meant delays."

The new system is designed to make delays minimal.

The chamber courts will deal only an accused only once, accepting a plea or setting bail. After that the accused will go to a designated courtroom.

The judge noted that while judges are concerned about money lost due to police overtime in court, they are even more concerned about civilian witnesses, whom the provincial courts are not allowed to pay for their time.

Ready to Roll

David Irvine-Halliday, his wife Jennifer and children Rachel, 4 and Gregor, 2, are planning to take a 30,000-mile trip circling North and South America, roads or no roads, in a camper truck. The Ottawa family expects to leave in November and be back in 18 months. (CP Photo)

Liquor Subject Of Study

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP) — A royal commission has begun hearings here into the country's liquor laws and what the people think of them.

And right from the start some radical changes have been proposed.

It was only in recent years that approval for hotels to stay open at night was received. Before then the hotels closed at 6 p.m. Now they stay open until 10.

But if early submissions to the royal commission are any indication the country is ready for a rapid liberalization of the laws.

Even the justice department has advocated changes such as reducing the drinking age from 20 to 18. It also advocates private clubs, theatres and cabarets being able to sell liquor on Sundays.

The department also proposes off-licence sales in supermarkets and grocery stores.

ew Zealanders still go to the polls every year to vote for continuance or prohibition. This goes back many years and the prohibitionists once nearly won the day. But mostly their vote has declined and a proposal now is that the poll be abolished.

Biologist Foresees More Vegetarians

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

A majority of the human race, because of the scarcity and rising cost of meat proteins, will become vegetarian in less than 100 years, many scientists believe.

Forecasting such future menu features as soybean "lobster" and test-tube steaks, Dr. James Bonner, a California biology professor, says: "But our vegetarian diet will be a wholly satisfactory one, nutritious, attractive and wholesome."

At present, it is estimated, 10,000 people throughout the world die each day from malnutrition, chiefly because of diets lacking in protein.

Ants are apparently afraid of muggers. They close up the entrance to their anthole and stay in their underground homes during the hours of darkness. With their legs curled up to their bodies, they sleep three or four hours at a stretch. When they wake up, they stretch and yawn, just as people do.

Published dense: Bobby Hill, featured in the Broadway show, Don't Bother Me, I Can't Cope, doesn't comb his hair before going on stage. He shines it. Bobby had to shave all his hair for his sexy role.

Limits to wheels: In Juneau, the capital of Alaska, a car is useful only for town driving. The city is connected with the outside world by its seaport and airport, but no land roads lead into or out of it.

Odd claims to fame: The unemployed bride of modern times was probably Theresa Vaughan of England. Within the space of five years in the 1800s, Theresa, while still married to her first husband, had tripped down the aisle with 61 other men from 39 different towns. At the age of 34, she had become a bigamous bride on the average of once every 30 days.

Obtaining Rare Birds Tough Task for Zoos

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The Auckland Zoo has six exotic birds for the Toronto Zoo—but has no way of getting them there.

The birds are a pair of bee-bird hens and two, pairs of scaup, a native water fowl.

They're a gift to the zoo from the Auckland city council and New Zealand Insurance Co.

A number of airlines have offered to transport the birds to Toronto, but no one has found a way to get permission to fly them through Hawaii.

This is an example of the difficulties zoos throughout the world in exchanging birds and animals.

Earlier this year another pair of kea were to be sent from Auckland to Britain. Zoo authorities thought they had all the papers needed and then some. The birds got as far as Hawaii and were then returned to New Zealand. They finally reached Britain after travelling through Japan and the Soviet Union.

Most zoos rely on exchanges of birds and animals rather than money to keep their stocks up.

The problem with the transfer of parrots is that authorities are concerned with psittacosis, a pneumonia-like disease that can affect humans.

The kea is a parrot and that's where the Toronto problem occurs.

But psittacosis is so rare that many countries sell parrots in shops. Even native birds exported from New Zealand, are considered clean as they have been at least three years in aviaries with the result it's highly unlikely they've picked up any disease in their native bush.

Auckland Zoo director Don Wood said the problems of exchanging birds and animals is complicated by remote and ill-defined laws which appear to come into effect at a vital moment, such as when the cargo is halfway to its destination.

"It's all very confusing," he said.

First Black Mayor in Mississippi Runs Into Opposition by Negroes

FAYETTE, Miss. (Reuter) — The man who established this first tiny enclave of negro administration in the most white-dominated state of Mississippi is running into opposition today from his own people.

Charles Evers, brother of assassinated civil rights leader Medgar Evers, was first elected mayor of this rural town of 2,000 in May, 1969. He was returned unopposed for a second term in May this year.

But a group of his black critics, saying they wanted to "put some curbs" on the dynamic and outspoken mayor, opposed and defeated two of Evers' slate of five aldermen.

A close friend of President John and Senator Robert Kennedy, Evers has been spearheading a campaign to get more black elected officials in Mississippi while retaining his small town. He recently ran for governor of the state, getting 2 per cent of the vote.

Back in 1969 Evers was swept into office as mayor of Fayette to wild negro rejoicing in what was seen as a victory of tremendous symbolic significance.

A self-confessed former racketeer and brothel owner from the black ghettoes of Chicago and Detroit, he returned to Fayette to invest his money in his native state and become a "respectable businessman."

Explaining why he has been so frank in his autobiography about his shady dealings of the past, Evers, 50, says:

"That was the only way a black man could make money in those days. I was taught to honor me for what I am. Nobody's going to blackmail me."

Evers' decision to return to Mississippi came after the assassination of his brother in 1963. The passage of the federal Voting Rights Act in 1965 paved the way for black voter drives and Evers running for office.

He picked Fayette where blacks outnumber whites by 79 per cent to 20 per cent. The town had had the same elderly white mayor, R. J. Allen, for 28 years.

Evers had already made himself a force in the town before the election by investing his money in a shopping centre, motel, restaurant and other businesses.

"White folks taught me 'economics and politics go hand in hand,'" he said in an interview.

"I believe that capitalism is the greatest way in the world to live, so I'm making all the money I can make, doing all the good I can for my folks and living as honestly as I can."

In his autobiography, the mayor puts it even more succinctly. "The only color that is important to me is green," he says.

But Evers had no sooner moved into the little brick town hall built in the last years of Allen's term than he began to run into what he called jealousy from his own people.

Evers is inclined to give scant attention to this opposition. He describes the blacks who head it as a "lot of fuddy-duddies."

In his first four years Evers succeeded in bringing to Fayette an Interracial Telephone and Telegraph subsidiary which makes circuits for anti-pollution devices in cars. He got the town a clinic, a day-care centre for children and a vocational training centre.

All of this created 500 new jobs in the tiny community.

Criticism of Evers mainly centres on his passion for strict law enforcement and over-zealousness among the newly recruited seven-man black police force.

Four of the original five-man white force walked off or treated them like dogs and the fifth later resigned.

"I'm a firm believer in a law and order man," Evers says. "I believe in strict observance of the law. I broke the law so many times in my time that I know what it's like."

Evers cracks down on guns in the town and deals sternly with drugs, drunks and unruly teen-agers.

Evers points out that under the old regime whites were rarely prosecuted and police largely ignored crimes blacks committed against blacks.

"But if a black broke the law against whites, boy, he had it. A black man was shot in 1965 right here in this town because he was supposed to have cursed a white woman."

Driver Missing

VANCOUVER (CP) — The driver of a heavy truck slipped ashore after pulling his vehicle aboard a CP ferry at Nanaimo, B.C., and the vessel sailed without him. Its return trip from Vancouver was delayed four hours before it appeared to claim his vehicle, permitting the remainder of the car deck to be unloaded.

Evers adds: "One thing you won't hear in this town is that 'law enforcement is a racial thing.' We live white folks, black folks, young folks, old folks the same treatment."

White owners of small gas stations, while delighted over the opposition Evers is getting from his own race, admit business has never been better.

Rogers King, a 24-year-old school teacher who opposed the Evers' aldermanic slate and was elected with more votes than any other candidate, says he admires much of what Evers has done but thinks he needs the sort of control provided by opposition.

Most of the criticism of Evers is directed against his police—shooting dogs not on leashes, alleged use of unnecessarily-brutal tactics.

Evers admits some of the criticism is justified and at the same time keeps a close watch on the actions of the police, particularly for any possible corruption.

"Over-zealous? Sure. My policemen are—no different from any other policemen. They get a little smart sometimes. When that happens I chop 'em right down."

Evers insisted that the police bring traffic offenders back to the police station to issue them traffic tickets so there will be, no temptation for them to accept a bribe out on the road. Many white drivers tend to panic when they are escorted back to the police station.

The mayor continues to devote a lot of his time to getelected in Mississippi which he says already has the third highest number of black officials in the nation.

Of his own successful attempt to run as state governor he says: "It's not important that I should have won. What was important was that I won the election, to make it possible for some young black, one day to become governor."

Ambitious Housing Project Launched by Indian Province

BOMBAY (CP) — The Communist-dominated government of the south Indian province of Kerala has launched an ambitious housing project for homeless villagers.

Chief Minister Achutha Menon and Housing Minister Govindan Nair, both stalwarts of the pro-Moscow Communist party of India (CPI), say the project "will be a model not only to other provinces in our country but to all underdeveloped countries in Asia, Africa and Latin America."

One hundred thousand houses will be constructed at government cost and given to deserving families almost free.

Each house, consisting of two rooms, a kitchen, a portico and a privy, will cost the government about $300. All that the family moving into it will have to pay is $14.

In Kerala officials say that in their knowledge, the project is the most imaginative welfare measure concerning housing outsideia full-fledged Communist state.

All over the lush coastal province construction work is going on round the clock on some 1,000 sites. These either belong to the government or have been purchased from farmers by village councils.

To dramatize the importance of the Kerala project for the nation's other provinces, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi flew to Trivandrum, the provincial capital, to inaugurate it. She called the venture "a brave and imaginative experiment."

Half of the 100,000 houses will be given to the lowest caste in Indian society. Known as Untouchables during British rule, these desperately poor people are now known as Harijans, which means children of God.

Chief Minister Menon and Nair have been on a whirlwind tour of the province urging all sections of the people to make donations towards the project.

"This is not just a housing scheme but a movement to improve the lot of Kerala's long-suffering farm workers," Nair told a peasant gathering near Trivandrum.

Since there are more than 300,000 claimants for the houses, a system of lots has been drawn up for their allotment.

Meanwhile, the project has run into some "teething troubles," as one senior housing ministry official put it.

Of the 24,000 houses already completed, nearly 400 have collapsed.

When the first dozen houses came down, Nair blamed the monsoon. But a government committee which went into the matter found that some officials and contractors used sub-standard materials. Their report said that large quantities of cement and timber meant for the project went into the black market.

The government has suspended several officials following the inquiry. Expressing his shock, Nair has appealed to the people not to overlook the greatness of the project because of "lapses here and there."

The CPI leadership is also concerned over the general indifference of the urban working class towards the housing projects. While handsome donations have come from the upper and middle classes, industrial workers have contributed little.

Nair told a Times of India News Service reporter that the working class should have been in the vanguard of a movement meant for the rural poor.

"The minister noted with despair that the textbook theory of Communist ideology has not helped him in building houses for the poor," the reporter said.

Some CPI workers are alleging that the pro-Peking Marxist Communist party is "sabotaging" the housing project by appealing to factory workers not to make donations.

Nair is planning visits to the Soviet Union and other Communist countries to obtain funds, building materials and expertise for expansion of the project.

Convent Converted

LINZ, Australia (AP) — A former Ursuline convent here will be converted into a major cultural centre at an estimated cost of more than $3 million.

Linz is the capital of the province of Upper Austria. The provincial government bought the building last year for roughly $2.3 million.

Plans include a studio stage for the Linz Provincial Theatre, a press centre and recording studio on the first floor and a small auditorium on the second floor. There also will be exhibition rooms for various artistic associations.

Eagles Still Unable to Get Untracked

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Belleville - Screaming Eagles of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A loop went down mercilessly at the hands of a flying Barrie Flyers last night as the visitors outscored the locals 9-1.

Both teams came out bustling in the opening frame as Belleville pinned the Flyers to their own end for the first five minutes. Barrie was quick to retaliate however, as they soon got their skates under them and began headmanning the puck.

Just minutes after the Flyers began their surge Doug Acomb stole the puck at the Belleville blue line as an Eagle defender fell. The Belleville boo-birds then threw his stick at the attacking Flyer player, who was in the clear, creating a position where Barrie was awarded a penalty shot.

Acomb was the man who moved in on Eagles goalie, Clyde Harris, for the free shot but, Harris came up with a reflex save to knock the puck away from the glove side of the net.

From that point on Barrie appeared to take control of the match.

Acomb wasn't to be denied after being foiled on the penalty shot attempt, as he fired home a pair of markers before the first period was over.

Both teams had trouble putting together effective offences in the first, as they tried vainly to force passes.

The middle period began much the same as the previous one with Belleville in control but, all that changed when Brian Curtis combined with Bob Baird and Pat Monahan at the 8:46 mark to make the score 3-0.

Just over five minutes later, at the 13:48 mark, Barrie was leading the "Eagles 5-0 on tallies by Monahan and Ian from Frank Hicks.

The Eagles goalie could not be blamed for the majority of the goals as he found himself screened by his own defence on several of them. Even though Belleville's defence backed in on Harris and failed to cover the man from in front of the net the Eagles could.

Larry Hughes, remarked that "the defence is much improved from their last game". "Belleville once again began the period aggressively as for the first 10 minutes of the third they pinned their opponents in their own end with persistent forechecking".

Greg Brabitt, a defenceman for the locals, demonstrated Belleville's aggression as twice in the final 20 minutes he received major penalties for fighting. The latter one leading to a game misconduct. Mark Smith turned the jabbies for the Flyers at the 12:33 mark when he fired home a shot on passes from Corby Adams and Acomb.

Four minutes later Adams,

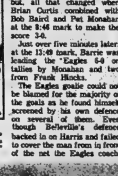
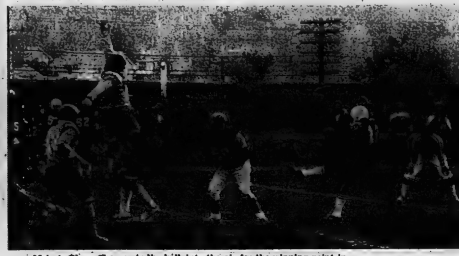
THS Tops Standings In Event at Picton

PICTON (Special) — Trenton High School athletes captured the team title in a cross-country meet held here Tuesday. The Trenton runners took team honors in all but one of the five events to compile a point total of 40.



Second places went to Bayside Secondary School with 22 points and Quinte Secondary School of Belleville was third with 18.

Colleen Shoniker's first place finish in the girls open two mile race helped boost Bayside to the top as a team in that event. Cokiel covered the distance in 12:44.



Another Bayside runner, Jamie Kennedy led the field in the bantam boys 2½-mile run in a time of 18:21.

Trenton runners took over to win the midget boys 2½-mile and junior boys 2½-mile races. Jeff Stacey led the midgets in a time of 17:38 while Mike Taylor was the first junior across the finish line in 19:23.

John Sheppard of Quinte Secondary outdistanced the pack in the senior boys 2½ mile race. He covered the distance in 19:36.

"I hope I get lucky here at the harness races. My wife keeps nagging me for a new corset!"

Moira's Glenn Shaw puts the ball into the air for the winning point in last night's game between Moira and the Quinte Saints. Shaw's punt sailed about 35 yards out of the end zone with less than a minute remaining in the game to give the Trojans the 8-7 victory over Quinte. It was Moira's fifth win against no losses this season, while Quinte's record is now two wins, four losses.

Saints Nipped By the Trojans

By ALAN TEBWORTH
Sports Staff

Despite being out - played for most of the game, the Moira Trojans kept their undefeated string alive in Bay of Quinte high school senior football last night, as they edged the Quinte Saints in the last minute of play, 8-7.

Moira opened the scoring in the first quarter, as Glenn Shaw booted a single on Moira's 1st series of offensive plays.

John Masterson scored Quinte's only touchdown in the second quarter, taking a pass from quarterback Ron McTaggart, and going bout 45 yards for the score. The convert attempt was missed.

Masterson added a single of his own also in the second period, to give Quinte a 7-1 lead at the half.

Moira started the comeback with only about four minutes left in the game, when they took the ball on their own 30-yard line after a Quinte punt.

Mark McKay was the big gainer in the drive, picking up pass receptions of 45, 20 and 10 yards.

Mike McClelland took the ball to the six-yard line with about three minutes left on the clock to set up a run to paydirt by Peter Stalkovich.

Stalkovich moved the ball three yards on successive carries for the major, to move the scoreboard to seven points apiece.

Shaw booted his second single of the game, a 30 yarder from about the 30 yard line for the game winning point.

Moira's running back Dave Rutherford was injured on the first series of plays for the Trojans and did not play the rest of the game.

He may be out for the remainder of the season, according to Moira coach Hugh Cooke.

In the junior game, the Junior Trojans came up with a 46 - 0 whitewash of the Trenton Tigers.

Rick North, Ralph Kollars, and Rob McIlveen added one touchdown each, while Mike Kirby racked up two two point conversions.

Roger Sprague and Mike Allison also contributed two point conversions to the win, Moira's fifth against no defeats this season.

TRYING FOR JENKINS

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Texas Ranger general manager Danny O'Brien said Tuesday the American League West cellar dwellers are trying to obtain Chicago Cub pitcher Ferguson Jenkins, but no deal has been completed. The Rangers seek outfielder Rico Carty and pitcher Mike Paul to the Cubs of the National League in August and the Cubs owe them something.

National League Places Seven On Dream Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Batting champion Pete Rose and Rod Carew, primarily singles hitters, and sluggers Willie Stargell and Reggie Jackson, leaders in home runs and runs batted in, were named today to the 1973 Major League All-Star team announced by The Associated Press.

National Leaguers dominated the voting, winning seven of 10 places on the squad selected by sports writers and broadcasters, but the NL champion New York Mets failed to land a player.

In balloting based on regular-season performances only, Rose, the National League batting champion for the third time with a .338 average, was the top vote collector. The hustling Cincinnati Reds outfielder received 351 votes, 20 more than runner-up Stargell.

Stargell, the husky Pittsburgh Pirates outfielder, first baseman who played mostly left field during 1973 and led the NL in home runs with 44 and in RBIs with 119, accumulated 331 votes.

Jackson, the pacesetter of the American League and World Series champion Oakland Athletics was the other outfield berth with 200 votes. He won the AL home run title with 32 and the RBI championship with 117.

Carew, Minnesota Twins' slick second baseman, led infielders with 336 votes, joining him in the infield were first baseman Tony Perez of Cincinnati Reds, shortstop Chris Speier of San Francisco Giants and third baseman Darrell Evans of Atlanta Braves.

Johnny Bench, Cincinnati's Jr. formidable catcher, was the only repeater from 1972.

Ron Bryant of the San Francisco Giants, the only National League pitcher with 20 or more victories—he had 24—was chosen as the All-Star left-handed hurler, and first-baling Nolan Ryan of the California Angels, who set a major league strikeout record with 383, was picked as the top right-hander.

McAuliffe To Red Sox

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox announced Tuesday they have acquired veteran infielder Dick McAuliffe from Detroit Tigers in exchange for Ben Oglivie.

During the 1973 season, McAuliffe hit .274 with 12 home runs and 47 runs batted in.

Oglivie hit .218 in 58 games for the Red Sox in his second full season with the team.

BEARS TRADE HOLMAN

CHICAGO (AP) — Chicago Bears Tuesday traded veteran defensive end Willie Holman to Washington Redskins for an undisclosed 1974 draft choice. Holman, 33, sidelined most of the 1973 National Football League season because of a leg injury, was a starter at defensive left end for the first six Bear games this season.

MacPhail Heads American League

CHICAGO (AP) — Lee MacPhail, a baseball man who prefers interleague play and a shorter season, has been named president of the American League, succeeding Joe Cronin, who has been the league president since 1959, will step down Jan. 1, 1974, and become chairman of the board. Cronin, 67, will preside over the league meetings in Houston in December.

MacPhail, 55, said Tuesday after being named to the post that he would spend the next two months winding up his duties as general manager of the New York Yankees.

MacPhail, the son of Larry MacPhail who introduced the major leagues to night baseball and owned Cincinnati Reds, New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers, formerly was the general manager of Baltimore Orioles.

MacPhail said he didn't contemplate any immediate changes. However, he said he is opposed to three leagues but favors interleague play and a shorter season.

A resident of New York, MacPhail said the league offices might be moved out of Boston.

"It has to change from being active or leaving the New York Yankees," he said. "I spent seven years in the commissioner's office and I don't like being neutral.

"But neither did I want to miss this opportunity."

One of his objectives when he takes over is to improve relationships with the National League.

Meanwhile, American League owners said they would make every effort to make the designated-hitter rule permanent. Presently it is on a three-year experimental basis.

Bob Short, owner of the Texas Rangers, was one of the stronger advocates.

"We want to be able to put the rule to use when we play in our home parks in exhibition games, the All-Star and World Series. We've used it for a year . . . we like it . . . and the fans like it."

Three Year Contract For Yogi

NEW YORK (AP) — Yogi Berra, who managed New York Mets to the 1973 National League pennant, Tuesday had his managerial contract renewed for three more years.

Berra will receive an estimated $75,000 a year.

"There was never any doubt of his returning as manager," Bob Scheffing, Mets' general manager, said after a meeting with the club's board of directors. "The evidence of that is a three-year contract."

Scheffing said the board of directors meeting was a mere formality to approve Berra's contract.

The contract equals the longest ever received a Mets' manager—the same received by the late Gil Hodges.

Berra had just finished a two-year contract after the Mets were beaten by the Oakland A's in the World Series.

Leafs Salvage A Tie To Hang in at Top

By RON SUDLOW
Canadian Press Writer

It may be late October but the Maple Leafs aren't falling yet.

The Leafs, who finished fifth in the National Hockey League's Division last season, are still in first place after getting them with a victory over New York Rangers Saturday night in Toronto.

Tuesday night they scrambled to a 3-3 tie with wickes Minnesota North Stars while Boston Bruins were beaten 3-2 by St. Louis Blues to remain a point back in a second-place tie with Buffalo Sabres.

In Vancouver, the Canucks crept into a fifth-place tie with Montreal Canadiens by downing Atlanta Flames 3-0 as Andre Boudrias scored twice.

In Toronto, rookie defenceman Bob Neely's blueline blast was deflected past North Star goalie Cesare Maniago with 2:35 remaining to allow the rookie-laden Leafs to salvage the tie.

The shot ticked the stick of North Star defenceman Dennis O'Brien and went into the net just under the crossbar, ruining a sensational night in goal for Maniago who handled 38 shots.

At St. Louis, all Wayne Merrick wanted to do was keep Bruins' Phil Esposito off the scoresheet. He held Esposito to a near-standstill and scored the winning goal with just over four minutes left.

A near-standstill means that Esposito only got assists on the goals scored by Ken Hodge on a power play and Bobby Orr eight seconds later. he came out of the penalty box.

"I was really scared going into the game," said Merrick, who held Esposito to five shots.

"He's a pretty good hockey player, probably the best I've ever seen. All I wanted to do was keep him from scoring."

The Blues took 1-0 and 2-1 leads on goals by Bob (Battleship) Kelly and Mike Lampman, a rookie leftwinger making his first start after being called up from Denver Spurs of the Western Hockey League.

Boston's loss, the second in a row over two seasons to the Blues, cost the Bruins the services of rookie centre Richie Laduc who crashed into the boards in the third period and broke a shoulder bone.

Esposito was also taken to hospital for x-rays after being jammed by his own stick when checked behind the St. Louis net.

ANDRE BOUDRIAS

This goal also removed a little bit of the pressure from the teeth in the NHL for Neely, who gave away the winning goal Sunday night in Buffalo to the Sabres' Gilbert Perreault.

"I was thinking about it the night before this game but I told myself I had to forget it and look ahead," said Neely, who saw Minnesota's second goal go in off his skate.

In the dressing room, Bill Goldsworthy, who scored his fifth of the season to give him sole title to first-period seed, said the loss was "part of the jinx we've had."

"Every damn game, something happens. The same thing happened to us in Buffalo, we ahead 4-2 and they ended up tying it off the face-off.

Denis Dupere's goal gave Minnesota a 2-0 edge in the second period before Ivan Hammarston scored his third of the season for the Leafs.

The North Stars get another chance tonight when they visit New York for a date with the Islanders, their other wis-less club in the league.

Detroit Red Wings play the Golden Seals at Oakland, Monday night.

Big Red Sharp In Trial

TORONTO (CP) — Secretariat must have been feeling one of those 36 bags of oats imported expressly for the superhorse's palate Tuesday.

One day after his arrival at Woodbine, Big Red galloped two miles over the Marshall Tutt Course at the Woodbine under rider George Davis and trainer Lucien Laurin.

Secretariat's handling of the course, site of Sunday's $125,000 added Canadian International Championship, was important because it calls for a horse to come off the turf and gallop over an 85-foot stretch of dirt before returning to the turf for the long stretch run.

"He galloped over it easily," said Davis. "There was no difference to him."

Davis, the three-year-old Triple Crown winner's regular exercise rider, was impressed by his mount.

"I've seldom seen him jog like he did. Usually he relaxes until he gets himself together but not this time. He seemed to go better than he does at Belmont."

But the decision on whether he'll run Sunday won't be made until jockey Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., works Saturday morning.

"As far as I'm concerned, I could almost give him the OK to run him in the race now," said Laurin. "But I don't ride him.

"Ronnie does and I'll consult with him Thursday morning after he works him and make a decision then."

Sunday's race over a mile and five-eighths is expected to be Secretariat's farewell to the track. On Nov. 15, he becomes the property of a syndicate that paids record $6,080,000 for him for stud duties.

LOSING GOOD FRIEND

"It'll be like losing a good friend when he retires," said Laurin, his Canadian-born trainer. "About all he can't do is talk.

"It's too bad I can't have another year on the grass with him. I think he's a better horse on the grass. He relaxes more on the grass than on the dirt."

Expected to oppose Secretariat are Roundhouse, Fun Co K., Lucky Lucky, Good Fun, Triangular, Big Spruce, Tico's Donna and Top Of The Day.

Big Spruce finished third, 13 lengths behind Secretariat, in the Man O' War Stakes and Triangular was fourth in the same race.

Secretariat, which has won 15 of 20 career races for $1,254,653, could increase his winnings to $1.3 million with a victory Sunday.

That would move him past Carry Back and Nashua into fourth place among all-time thoroughbred money-winners—behind Kelso, Round Table and Buckpasser.

Teams Stage Donnybrook

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Nepean Raiders battled their way to within one point of Rangers in the Central Junior Hockey League Tuesday night, defeating Rockland Nationals 14-5 in a brawl-filled game.

The two teams were assessed 379 minutes in penalties after a second-period brawl, which resulted in Rockland coach Marc Brunet and trainer Ray Lalonde being escorted from the ice by Nepean Township police.

The scrap-prone crowd of 1,200 saw Simon Underhill of Nepean and Jean-Pierre Menard of Rockland suspended for the remainder of the season after both benches emptied.

Underhill and Menard each received two five-minute majors and a game misconduct.

The brawl resulted in Rockland being assessed four game misconducts, four majors and five 10-minute misconduct penalties. Nepean also received four game misconducts, four majors and five misconducts. . .

Both goalies were ejected from the game.

The win gives Nepean 11 points, one fewer than Gloucester.

Lewis Lortie scored twice for Rockland with single goals going to Maurice Leger, Mel Bell and Randy Burman.

In another game, visiting Smiths Falls Bears downed Brockville Warriors 9-7.

Don Roberson scored twice with single goals going to Barry Kerfoot, Dave Nickel and Brian Johnson.

Rob Bingley scored three goals for Brockville. Dave Saunders, Jeff Scott, Bob Summers and Doug MacLean each scored one.

Cornwall Royals widened their lead atop the standings in the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League's West Division Tuesday night by defeating Shawinigan Dynamos 10-3.

Elsewhere: Hull Festivals nipped Drummondville Rangers 3-2 and Trois-Rivieres Draveurs dumped Sherbrooke Beavers 5-1.

At Cornwall, John Nazar's third goal of the game at 18:13 of the third period gave the Royals their win over Shawinigan. Garry MacGregor had a pair of goals for the winners with singles added by Doug Chase and Kev Trace.

Yvon Hamelin with two, Gaby Jourdain, Louis Lorange and Bernard Noreau scored for the Dynamos.

A goal by Gilles Berger at 17:34 of the second period lifted the Festivals to their win over Drummondville. Therry Fein and Scott Hunter scored the other goals for the Festivals, who now have a 3-7 won lost record.

In Trois-Rivieres, the Draveurs scored three times in the third period to down the Beavers.

Mario Levesque, Jean Beaudieu, Mario Sauvageau, Alain Lemieux and Mario Levesque scored for the Draveurs, with Theroux's effort at 14:50 of the final period giving the Draveurs a 4-3 lead.

Jean Gillis, Pierre St. Cyr and Denis Martel replied for Sherbrooke.

Hull visits Laval Nationals and Drummondville plays host to Cornwall in games Thursday.

Goalies Take Lumps As Oilers Top Toros

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The goalies couldn't quite face up to it Tuesday night in Edmonton as the Oilers whipped Toronto Toros 4-2 to move into a tie for first place in the World Hockey Association's West Division.

Both Jack Norris of Edmonton and Les Binkley were hit on the face mask by pucks and had to leave the game.

In the only other game of the night Los Angeles Sharks Ilcastly won one at home and handed Cleveland Crusaders a 4-3 defeat, their first loss of the season.

But replacement Chris Worthy blanked the Toros the rest of the way, stopping Simpson twice on third-period breakaways.

Toronto's Les Binkley, who faced most of Edmonton's 46-shot barrage, was hit on the mask by a Jim Harrison shot late in the game.

Binkley got a cut over the eye while Norris came out of it with a severe bruise.

Val Fonteyne gave Edmonton an early lead but Steve King tied it before the first period was over and Simpson put Toronto in front early in the second and stands. But that was it for the Toros.

Al Hamilton tied it for Edmonton and third-period goals

LES BINKLEY

by Rusty Patenaude and Ron Climie decided the issue.

The Oilers now have four victories in five starts to match the eight-point output of Winnipeg Jets.

The game featured a third-period brawl that resulted in five majors and two misconducts. Doug Barrie of the Oilers and Ron Schock of Toronto tangled in one bout that saw Barrie get a minor and a major while Schock drew two majors and a misconduct.

Oiler winger Tom Gilmore drew a double major and a game misconduct for pummeling Toronto rookie Wayne Dillon who didn't throw a punch.

"I guess my guys want to do young," said coach Terry Slater after his Sharks took a 2-0 lead, fell behind 3-2 then won with two third-period goals within a span of 28 seconds.

Bryan McDonald got his second and Gary Jarrett clicked for the game 3-3. Reg Thomas followed with his first professional goal with five minutes remaining.

Steve Sutherland opened the Sharks' scoring in the first period when Los Angeles fired 18 of its 36 shots on the Cleveland net.

"We should have scored eight goals in the first period," Slater said of his club's first home win in three tries. "We have had a frustrating time with them at home, though, so maybe we've broken it."

Cleveland scoring was confined to the second period when Jim Watson and Terry Hillman and Garry Jarrett clicked for Crusaders.

Tonight the Sharks play the Aeros at Houston, Minnesota Fighting Saints are followed Blades at New York and the Toros meet the Blazers at Vancouver.

St. Catharines Adds To Marlies' Miseries

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — St. Catharines Black Hawks added to Toronto Marlboros misery Tuesday night, defeating the defending Memorial Cup champions 11-8 in an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A game before 1,367 fans. It was the only scheduled game.

Both teams virtually ignored defensive hockey as the Hawks led 4-2 in the first period, 7-4 in the second and split eight goals in the final 20 minutes.

Wilf Paiement led St. Catherines with three goals, Bill Hamilton and Mark Dunsmill had two each and Rick Kessynowich, Kevin Kenney, Don Lahache and Greg Craig had single goals.

Mark Napier had a pair for Marlboros, with Jim Clarke, Bruce Boudreau, Brian Dillon, Jim Kirkpatrick, Kevin Devine and John Smrke scoring one each.

Porter's Effort Sparks Bullets

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Kevin Porter made good all seven of his fourth-quarter shots and finished with 27 points to lead Capital Bullets to a 101-94 win over New York Knicks in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

In Tuesday's other NBA games, Cleveland Cavaliers downed Portland Trail Blazers 103-86; Los Angeles Lakers defeated Houston Rockets 107-85 and Golden State Warriors topped Phoenix Suns 121-100.

San Antonio Spurs edged San Antonio Conquistadors 113-110 in the night's only professional basketball Association game.

Former Knick Mike Riordan scored 13 points for the Bullets in the third quarter, but New York stayed clear until Capital went on a 12-3 spree in the fourth quarter to open a 12-point lead.

Lenny Wilkins scored 20 points and Bobby Smith collected 24 points and 18 rebounds for the Cavaliers, who won for the first time this season after handing the Blazers their first loss.

The Lakers got 17 points from Gail Goodrich in the first quarter as they took a 31-24 lead.

McKenzie Will Stick To Playing

VANCOUVER (CP) — General manager Phil Watson took over as coach of Vancouver Blazers of the World Hockey Association Tuesday, replacing Johnny McKenzie, who stepped down as playing-coach to concentrate on playing his right wing position.

McKenzie, 35, former star with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League, stepped down Monday but said he made the decision last Friday in Edmonton where the Blazers defeated the Oilers 3-1.

He said he told Watson and club president Pat Trumbel "I couldn't coach and play at the same time and that I would like to specifically concentrate on playing."

Hit Yvan Cournoyer? First, You Catch Him

NEW YORK (CP) — Hits from the opposite side but he is so fast and tricky that he makes the heads of rival players spin.

Only a few can skate with Yvan Cournoyer, the pride of Montreal Canadiens.

"He must be one of the best skaters in hockey," says goalie Ed Giacomin of New York Rangers. "You can't take your eyes off him, he's so fast and tricky."

Although he will be 30 on Nov. 22, Cournoyer has the legs of a teen-ager.

"His speed and acceleration are amazing," Giacomin says. "Guys say you should try to hit him to slow him down. How can you hit him when you can't even catch him?"

Cournoyer set a playoff record last season when he scored 15 goals and 16 assists in helping the Canadiens to the Stanley Cup.

This season, he is off to one of his best starts since turning pro with the Canadiens 10 years ago.

Cournoyer has seven goals in five games. He got two past Giacomin in a 3-3 win Sunday night, barely missing a third.

The Canadiens beat only 10 games last season but it wasn't all that easy for the National Hockey League champions.

even with Ken Dryden in the nets.

Now Dryden is gone, working as a $130-a-week law clerk, and the Canadiens have dropped two of five games. They have three young goalies as a replacement, Coach Scotty Bowman says he will go with the guy who is the hottest.

COURNOYER

Michel Larocque wasn't sitting in the first four games of the season, allowing 13 goals as the Canadiens lost twice.

But Wayne Thomas was brilliant against the Rangers, stopping 29 shots.

Bowman knows how important Dryden was to the club last season. Discounting empty-net goals, Scotty figures the Canadiens played 42 games that were won or lost by one goal along with 16 ties.

Eight of their losses were by one goal.

But with Cournoyer and Thomas around, the Canadiens seem to have picked up the slack.

Cournoyer had 40 goals last season, and if he keeps up his present pace, he would have 108 for the season, an improbable streak by modern NHL standards. The high is 76 by Phil Esposito of Boston Bruins in 1970-71.

Cournoyer, a right winger with a left-hand shot, is only 5-7 and 165 pounds. But he has a great centre in Jacques Lemaire and a new left winger, Bob Gainey, considered the best skater in junior hockey last season.

Gainey, who still is looking for his first NHL point, replaced Rejean Houle, who jumped to Quebec Nordiques of the World Hockey Association.

Trucking Firm Seeks Sunday Law Exemption

TORONTO (CP) — Reimer Express Lines Ltd., a Winnipeg trucking firm which has operated on Sundays since 1952, formally asked the Canadian transport commission Tuesday for exemption from restrictions of the Lord's Day Act.

The company sought permission to transport goods over long distances on Sundays, normally banned by the 1906 act, although exceptions are permitted under some amendments.

A company official said Reimer Express had been involved in Sunday trucking since 1952 because the company believed such operations were legal under "economic necessity" provisions of the act and because no provincial authority had challenged its activity.

However, a Supreme Court of Canada ruling earlier this year in a case covering drivers of Hotorwaye Ltd., in Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., declared that trucking companies must get specific exemption from the Lord's Day Act to operate on Sunday.

Arguing that it faced unfair competition from water and rail transportation, Reimer Express asked the commission for permission to truck goods over distances of more than 1,000 miles. Its application sought Sunday driving on routes from Winnipeg to Montreal, Toronto and London, Ont.

Douglas Hindmarsh, assistant general manager of transportation for Reimer, told D. W. Bartlett, supporting for the Ontario government, that at most only 80 Reimer Express tractor-trailers would be on the highways east of Winnipeg on any given Sunday.

Transit to Put People First

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is undertaking a program of "people first" transit, designed to shift the emphasis from expressways to public transportation facilities and to make Canadian industry an international force in the transit field.

This was the essence of a government presentation Tuesday at the Canadian Transit Industrial Conference.

The conference included addresses by Premier William Davis, Claude Bennett, minister of industry and tourism, Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications and Kirk Fahey, general manager of the Ontario Transportation Development Corp. (OTDC).

Mr. Davis told the 375 delegates, many of whom represented firms supplying components for the transit industry, that the province must develop a wide range of transit solutions to meet the varying needs of Ontario communities.

The province's plans to meet these needs include the dial-a-bus system and GO Urban, an elevated magnetic transit system of which a prototype is expected to be operational at the Canadian National Exhibition by 1975.

The provincial government signed a contract May 1 with Krauss-Maffei A.G. of Munich, West Germany, for construction of the prototype line, giving the province exclusive Canadian technology rights and certain rights to foreign markets.

Mr. Davis emphasized that Ontario viewed the intermediate-capacity transit system, capable of moving 20,000 people an hour in each direction, as "a national challenge and a national opportunity."

His government originally focused on Ontario's transportation needs, but quickly saw in the situation "international significance for Canadian industry, for the economy of Canada and for the people of Canada."

Mr. Davis spoke of a need for "an industrial strategy for Canada" which he termed essential if the country was to remain competitive in world markets.

He said the OTDC had been formed to act as a "catalyst" to develop new transit products, to stimulate but not dominate the transit sector.

Canada-first Policy Applied to Energy

The meeting, held at Canada's request, was the first important round of talks between the two countries since Prime Minister Trudeau announced a series of major energy policy changes Sept. 6.

Mr. Macdonald told a news conference later there is no immediate reason to reduce the more than one million barrels of crude oil Canada exports to the United States daily, but Canada intends to place its own needs first.

Canada is developing long-range policies to cope with world energy shortages and dramatically-rising prices, he said. How much oil will be available for long-term export commitments remains unclear.

Mr. Love, who appeared with Mr. Macdonald at the news conference, said the U.S. has no "fundamental objection to the more restrictive Canadian attitude, but differences of opinion could be expected.

He mentioned the 40-cent-a-barrel crude oil export tax imposed by Canada Oct. 1. It is expected to generate $300 million annually on the basis of current exports to the U.S.

"Very frankly and honestly, we don't particularly like it," Mr. Love said.

Both men appeared anxious to play down rifts caused by changing Canadian policies. Mr. Macdonald said they agreed to disagree on the merits of the export tax.

Camels Guinea Pigs For Desert Project

BEERSHEBA, Israel (Reuter) — A friendly camel NAMED Golda and her two well-minded sisters Esther and Shoshanna are helping scientists here in their battle to tame the desert.

So far, says South African-born Dr. Reuben Yagil, they have disclosed plenty of secrets as to how the camel gained its reputation as ship of the desert but little or nothing of direct value to man.

Yagil and his three camels are among the inhabitants of the Arid Zone Research Institute, part of the University of the Negev.

Sited on the edge of the Negev Desert, the institute is devoted to expanding Israel's productive—as opposed to territorial—boundaries.

Projects under the general heading of "making the desert bloom" are their special concern.

While even the most casual tourist can see semi-arid regions which the Israelis have turned into lush farmland through irrigation and water conservation, there is little green to be seen this far south.

A fairly common complaint from scientists is that research and development projects are all very well but too often after an apparently successful research stage, the project disappears into limbo, shelved for lack of funds or some other reason.

For Yagil and his camels, the problem has not yet arisen. Finding out how the camel operates is, for the moment, a scientific end in itself.

Golda—joined his team a couple of years ago and proved an instant hit. He bought her at a market—at a high price, because the Bedouin have long since traded in most of their camels for trucks—and she turned out to be remarkably docile, almost friendly. But the later additions, Esther and Shoshanna, snap, kick and spit at anyone who approaches them in their makeshift pen behind the laboratories.

Behavior apart, these desiccatary camels—single-humped, compared with the double-humped Bactrian camels of India—have answered plenty of questions about their unique ability to survive for long periods without water in the scorching desert.

To dispel one popular belief, they do not store water in the hump.

It's their blood cells that make all the difference. A camel's red blood cells seem to swell if it is deprived of water, which means they can hold more fluid.

The camel cells last longer in summer than in winter, and longer still without drinking—the opposite of man and most other animals.

Experiments on Golda and her fellow-camels showed their red blood cells lasted 96 days in winter temperatures, 132 days in summer and 158 days if the beasts were deprived of water.

But when it does eventually drink—and the camel can go thirsty for three weeks or more—it makes up the lost body weight in record time. Golda, who is watered every 10 days, can lose a fifth of her 1,250-pound body weight compared with a human who dies after losing eight per cent body weight in water, and make up the deficit in just one minute at the trough.

"It sounds," says Yagil, "like a cross between a vacuum cleaner and a waterfall."

'Organ Summer Project

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP) — In the basement of a high school in this community near Hamilton, 12 students worked through the summer on 10 tons of pipes, air chests, relays and miles of electrical wiring.

They were reassembling one of the surviving theatre organs in Canada.

Built about 1928 by a Woodstock, Ont., organ company, the monster with 17 sets of pipes was rescued last year when the Capital Theatre in Hamilton was demolished.

The Ancaster high and vocational school students, aided by the Theatre Organ Society of Hamilton, took the organ out of the theatre bit by bit in 18 days.

A supply of spare parts came from a second organ in another Hamilton theatre which also was demolished.

Trial and error occasionally is the only way the students have in determining how to reassemble the instrument. It has more than 1,500 pipes, ranging in length from a few inches to 16 feet.

With the financial assistance of a $3,460 Opportunities for Youth federal grant, the students hope to have the organ ready for a concert by Christmas.

When finally installed in a renovated stage area, the Ancaster school probably will be the only public secondary school in Canada featuring a theatre organ.

'Dial the Island' New Tourism Bid

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — On radio stations throughout the Maritimes it was one of the calchiest commercials of the year.

Set to a country-and-western background, it told the prospective visitor in search of Prince Edward Island how to find the eight double-secs, five six five, seven four two one.

The call, toll-free in Nova Scotia or New Brunswick, connects Island residents with a tourist agency in Charlottetown where government employees can answer questions and make reservations within minutes for virtually anything that might interest him on the Island.

The "dial the Island" service, instituted during the summer, was P.E.I.'s bid to keep up in the highly competitive market for tourists in the Maritimes.

A visitor arriving at the Nova Scotia border, for instance, who has the choice of continuing on through the province, or driving to Cape Tormentine, N.B., to catch a ferry to P.E.I., can guarantee accommodation on the Island by calling the toll-free number.

A typical conversation with a young lady who answers the phone will include questions about the type, location and cost of accommodations.

Before, a tourist would have had to rely on information he gathered from former visitors to the Island, or from travel agencies.

The information office is staffed by five persons who have a giant board listing all the accommodations available in each of the province's nine tourist zones. They guarantee accommodations until 3 p.m. daily, after which remaining space is returned to the operator for distribution to visitors who did not make prior arrangements.

Calls averaged 200 to 300 daily during the peak period and the government is pleased with the new communications system. They say 95 per cent of requests were filled.

Computers Acting As Eyes for Blind

OTTAWA (CP) — Computers reading to the blind and talking to the deaf have been developed by two Carleton University researchers.

A clear voice will recite a small vocabulary to the blind while a voice paint will be produced on a TV screen for deaf persons.

Robert Morris, an engineer, and Jean-Pierre Paillet, a linguist, say the computer system will make books, newspapers and periodicals available to the blind and deaf faster and more cheaply.

The computer will have a working vocabulary of 1,500 common English words stored on a memory disc, with suffixes and prefixes.

The computer will spell words not on the memory disc. It will serve eight persons at a time, providing individual readings for each if so requested.

Linguists, engineers and psychologists are developing the system as part of a speech research program at Carleton University.

The project has received $86,000 in provincial grants since 1971 plus a 1973 National Research Council grant of $18,000.

Togetherness Is All

CHILTHORNE DOMER, England (CP) — The Historic Buildings Council allocated £125 ($330) to restore an outside toilet at a Somerset manor house. Described as early Georgian with bits of Tudor, the pyramid-roofed privy is a six-seater, two-person accommodating four adults and two children. "We think it is unique," says owner Mrs. Scilla Madden. "It's very matey."

Shrimp Pursuit Tedious Task

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pursuit of the Pacific shrimp is, at first glance, fulfillment of a l a z y gourmet's fondest dreams.

There is sunshine, a restful sea and a harvesttail pays off at a going rate of $1.80 a p o u n d plus taste-tingling fringe benefits.

The sturdy shrimper Iwa-K makes a series of slow-motion sweeps, a back-and-forth cruise of languid pleasure, only a few hundred yards off the Point Atkinson lighthouse.

But a landlubber's enthusiasm dies as the day wears on and it becomes apparent that shrimping is chancy and hard work. And the hours are atrocious.

Skipper Jim Kondo set out at 7:30 a.m. and arrives at a spot off Point Atkinson where his brothers, Frank and Hideo, are already on the prowl. They had set off at the real shrimper's hour of 4:30.

As Jim and his crew arrive a net is being brought in, winched up from the ocean floor.

Next the net's payload appears—gummy—so tightly packed in the pressure of the upward taul from a distance they seem to be one solid block.

"There's about 60 pounds in there," Jim estimates with an expert's speed.

As the net descends again, Jim, who only shrimps part-time now because of a shorebound job, has time to give a basic lesson on the economics of shrimping.

His brothers usually go out about 4:30 a.m., Jim says, adding the usual fishermen's proviso of "weather permitting."

Usually they make two sets—that is, the nets are put out twice for the approximately 3½-hour drags that precede the hauling up of the catch. By the time they get back to the wharf, it is about 1:30 p.m. And then there are the chores of handling the shrimp to the plant for the washing and cooking preliminaries to shelling. The 12-hour day is commonly the shrimper's lot.

The Kondo brothers are shrimpers supreme.

Fishing has been their life, as it was their father's, except for the panic wartime years when Japanese boats were confiscated and they were driven from the West Coast in the mass internment and relocation of Canadians of Japanese descent.

At 51, Vancouver-born Jim is the brother in the middle of the Kondo clan. He gives a professional shrimper's rundown of the things-that-can-go-wrong department.

These include loss of gear, a $300 to $400 outlay, through any manner of maritime misfortune. Undertow can twist a net into a useless tangle and an entire 2½-hour sweep can come up zero.

As for the $1.80 a pound, even it loses some of its quick-riches allure in Jim's telling. This price is for the marketable breat of the shrimp and three-quarters of this whiskered squirt consists of useless head, tail and shell.

A good day's catch is 200 pounds 150 pounds on an average day. So 150 pounds of shrimp caught at sea translates into maybe 45 pounds of shrimp meat. And out of his share, the fisherman has to pay the nimble-fingered clutch of women who shell the catch.

On this outing, Jim only nets a 30-pound catch. At some time while the Iwa-K was tied up at fisherman's wharf, rats had gnawed two gaping escape hatches in Jim's net.

But Frank and Hideo between them have a catch of approximately 600 pounds and that added up to a busy afternoon back at the Murray Fish Co. cooking and shucking room where the shrimp, after a three-minute boiling, are decapitated, de-tailed and husked naked in the wink of an eye.

As the shrimp are piled on the shelling table the task facing the women working there seems insurmountable, despite their dancing fingers. However, the seemingly impossible task will be completed and the dock will be cleared for another day.

Come morning, the Kondo brothers will be off again.

Weather permitting.

Cut Food Costs

VERMILION, Alta. (CP) — Walter Dirkis, regional livestock supervisor, says urban dwellers can cut food costs by turning their lawns into vegetable gardens. He says it would cost no more than the water, fertilizer and labor needed to keep the lawn green.

Cycles to School

HAMILTON (CP) — Every day, Jennifer Rowe makes a 25-mile round trip by bicycle to Stoney Creek where she is taking a clerk-typing course. She says she has taken off 25 pounds and often beats the traffic downtown.

Firm Fined

OTTAWA (CP) — "That's a lot of bananas," said provincial court Judge Thomas Swabey when the Crown asked him to impose the maximum $5,000 fine on a suburban Nepean township fruit market for opening on Sunday. He fined the firm $500 for contravening a township bylaw.

Study Group To Split Pie

EDMONTON (CP) — Federal, provincial and municipal governments took one step Tuesday toward settling their bitter struggle over the taxpayer's money.

They reached tentative agreement to set up a study group to determine the financial problems of each level of government. The study would be the first attempt to provide a common set of facts on government finances.

The memorandum agreement, proposed by Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford at the national tri-level conference, still must be approved by provincial and federal governments by Dec. 31 so the study group can be established.

The study group would report to the next national meeting in 1974.

There seemed little doubt at the end of the conference that the inquiry would be retold. Mr. Basford and Ontario Treasurer John White both said they could commit their governments to the study immediately.

Municipal leaders overwhelmingly support the plan. They sought a financial inquiry which would provide basic facts and propose new ways of sharing revenue.

Mr. Basford rejected the revenue-sharing proposal. He said provinces and municipalities together have enough money to meet their needs.

The municipal proposal meant draining federal money from federal programs for local and provincial efforts, he said.

"I am not prepared to accept cutting back on federal programs because I do not accept that they are of lower priority than the programs of other governments," he said.

Mr. White and Alberta Treasurer Gordon Miller supported the municipal request.

Mr. White said his government has greatly increased grants to municipalities but cannot dig deeper into its resources. It was up to Ottawa to funnel more money to local governments through the provinces.

Mr. Basford said later in an interview that if Ontario raised its income tax levels to the National average the province could hand over $300 million more annually to its municipalities.

IT'S A TREAT—With Halloween just around the corner, seven-year-old Chris Kirkness takes the measure of a pumpkin that Mike Krevisnik grew a few miles outside of Winnipeg. The pumpkin weighs 86 pounds — just about the same as Chris. (CP Wirephoto)

Confederation Profitable?

MONTREAL (CP) — A Premier Robert Bourassa leaked government document said Tuesday he will release used by the Parti Quebecois to other documents today showing prove the economic feasibility federalism is profitable for Quebec.

of Quebec independence fails only part of the story, says the provincial industry minister.

The document released by the Parti Quebecois says $38.7 billion of Quebecers' savings left the province between 1947 and 1971 and provided development capital in the United States and Ontario.

Guy Saint-Pierre said in an interview the document released earlier Tuesday by the Parti Quebecois is part of a provincial government study on the costs and benefits of Confederation to Quebec. But its figures conflict with another government study and will have to be checked.

It also says the federal government collected $2.864 billion more in taxes in Quebec than it spent in the province between 1961 and 1971.

The document was released by Rene Lemoyne. Parti Quebecois leader, who said the Quebec Liberals are lying when they say the province benefits from being in Canada.

Jacques Parizeau, the PQ economist, said the figures show Quebec had a positive balance of payments every year between 1947 and 1971, except for 1960. He said this verifies his recent budget for the first year of independence.

He told an election meeting the document was given to his party by a civil servant who was tired of hearing government officials "lie to the population about things done with public funds."

Party leaders campaigned in various parts of the province.

Premier Bourassa told about 300 persons in Mont Joli, 185 miles northeast of Quebec City, the Parti Quebecois is trying to turn attention away from its unrealistic doctrine by releasing tons of figures and statistics.

Arguments over the Parti Quebecois's proposal for an independent Quebec have dominated the campaign for the Oct. 29 provincial general election.

Film Fare Expanded

Members "at" the general public this year are again able to take advantage of the film nights offered every other week at the Belle Theatre, sponsored by the Student Association of Loyalist College.

In previous years, the film nights, which are alternated with the college's pub nights on Wednesdays, were held in the lecture hall of the school, which seats only about a hundred people. This year, however, the council is renting the downtown theatre to allow more people to take advantage of the film nights.

The Loyalist Film Society's members will this year be allowed into the movies at a reduced rate at $1.00, or $10.00 for a season pass. Students of the college pay 50 cents, while guests of students will be charged $1.50. The council will be taking suggestions from the Film Society about the types of movies that will be shown, which they will consider in their selection of films.

Entertainment co-ordinator for the college, Jan Zuchlinski, has arranged for a number of feature length films for future presentation, including Joe, Little Big Man, Dirty Harry and many others. In addition, he is planning to run several nights with a theme, such as Comedy Night, and Horror Night, which is to be held on October 31. The films planned for Horror night are The Omega Man, King Kong vs Godzilla, and one surprise picture.

The Students' Council is now having difficulties with the liquor licence for its pubs, and it is not yet known whether they will be able to continue with them.

Market Fees Increased

It is going to cost Belleville market vendors more money to display their produce on the market square.

City council Monday voted to increase the fees for market stalls to $30 a season from the present $20 and to $3 a day from the present $1.

A review by the city manager showed that the last change in market fees was in September, 1963.

At the same time council voted an increase of $400 in the remuneration to be received by the city market clerk. The increase is from $1,200 to $1,600 a year. There had been no salary change in the past six years.

The increase in fees for market stalls will go into effect January 1, 1974, while the increased remuneration for the market clerk will be retroactive to July 1 of this year.

Quinte Exhibition Awards Presented

It was honors and awards night Friday night for contributors to the 1973 Quinte Exhibition as the fair board annual banquet was held at the Oddfellows' Hall on Bay Street.

Exhibition president Douglas Rollins presided over the evening's dinner and dance program which saw approximately 179 persons in attendance. Twenty guests received diner prizes while 18 prizes were handed out for spot dances.

Entertainment included entertainer Billy Davis and his electronically controlled dummy. Dancing was to the Nelso Trio from Frankford.

Presentations to persons making outstanding contribution to the fair were as follows: Agriculture and Service Diploma — John R. Bush; Royal Bank Tray for meritorious service — Mrs. Maude Rollins; Ben Bleecker Herdsman Award — Gerald Tummon and Sons of Roslin; Bank of Montreal Award—Joe Bedford, RR1, Castleton; Quinte Soil and Crop Improvement Award — Tim Wellbanks, RR8, Picton; Kiwanis Award — Joe Bedford, Castleton; Masters Award — Andy Margetson, RR2, Consecon.

Hastings Farm Service awards went to Douglas Petty, RR1, Campbellford; Craig Murray, RR3, Campbellford and Stephen Clare, RR1, Corbyville.

The newlywed sword went to Roger and Sharon Elliott of Bloomfield.

Librarian's Report

The opening of the new extension on Saturday, Sept. 29, was a great moment in the history of the Corby Public Library. This addition has given the building a pleasing air of spaciousness. It is attractive and utilitarian.

There were moments when we felt that it would be impossible to have the building in order by the date of the opening. With the diligence of the staff, all obstacles were overcome. Mr. Wilson deserves special consideration for his efforts beyond the call of duty.

The general disorder and confusion of moving books to their new location was upsetting for the library members and resulted in a slight decline in circulation. The number of books loaned for the month is as follows:

Main Library, 17,695
East Branch, 2,987.

Of these totals boys and girls at the Corby Library borrowed 4,251 books and at the East Branch, 1,783.

The Reference Library suffered the greatest upheaval during the month but in spite of the crowded condition in the basement, (film library and reference library in the same location), there were few people made use of the reference materials. The vertical file was used to answer 85 requests for information. Microfilm was used by 12 borrowers.

There was a record number of new members registered in September mostly during the latter part of the month: 308 names were recorded with a local address and 53 non-residents.

In order to eliminate duplicate memberships both at the Main and East Branch libraries, a new system of registration was set up in September.

The Story Hour program has been resumed at the Main library and plans are under way for conducting a Story Hour at the East Branch.

Meetings were held in the building during the month inside of the confusion. These were a Regional Board meeting, the Quinte Field Naturalists, and the Library Reading Group. The Art Association Picture Rental service was held here too, and many film previews.

Snake Hips

DUNSCROFT, England (CP) — Benjamin, a six-foot-long boa constrictor, slipped into a cosy spot while the keeper, Jiminic Covell, was out. He chose a pipe behind the central-heating boiler, but the heat expanded him and he couldn't get out. It took an engineer four hours to release Benjamin, dismantling the entire heating system.

Needs Face-Lift

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto needs attractive street lights, signs, fire hydrants and bus shelters to brighten it up, says Alderman Colin Vaughan. The design of these fixtures is currently "unattractive," he said.

Faith May Ease Fear of Death

By G. C. THORTESON MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I have a mental problem, been in the hands of doctors and in four different psychiatrists. I have a good income to which I should send help! Nobody yet has been able to help me.—Mrs. H.H.

If four psychiatrists haven't been able to help you, maybe I can't either. But I'll offer a thought or two.

One suggestion: putting your faith in a religion (I'm not talking about any particular religion) may be your answer. It has been a source to millions. But they key word isn't religion; the key word is faith.

All around you are people spending their lives living rather than living. Have the faith that if they can, so can you.

Death is as natural as birth, and no more to be feared. It is natural for most young people to be afraid of death — if they stop to think of it at all. It is part of being human to wonder if how long you will live.

But I've come to an age at which I simply am not afraid of death. In fact, the one strong thought I have about it is that I don't want to die until I have done things that I ought to do. I want to provide for my family; there are debts of friendship that I want to pay; I want my affairs arranged so they won't be too much of a drag or mess for others to sort out when the time comes.

I want to do some things that I think are useful and needed by other people.

Quite possibly, in your preoccupation with fearing death, you have forgotten to use your time and energies doing things for other people. For your own friends, for your relatives. Even for strangers. Something you will be remembered for.

If you get busy enough, and realize that you can't waste time and get it all done, you don't have time left to worry. That's perhaps the secret of it all.

Should you take the time to analyse most of the world's ills, you will find that at root is the core of them, too. Spend your time doing needful, doing things that need doing. Whether they are big or small things don't matter.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Are there any drugs that can eliminate the epilepsy seizures, and is a physician's prescription necessary to obtain them?—P.E.H.

Yes, there are; but a doctor is more drugs for epilepsy, as some instances seizures are less severe, but in many cases patients with proper medications go for years without having a seizure. Regular, long course, on the severity of the seizures, is the key.

All these medications require a doctor's prescription. Among the reasons is the dosage has to be regulated properly, and in a number of cases a balanced mixture of drugs will help a given patient more than the use of a single drug.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: In diverticulosis, does food or any other small swallowed objects such as a piece of candy, cap get stuck in the pockets? Do they stay there indefinitely or for years until they gradually work their way out and pass out of the body?

I am very much disturbed by the possibility that I swallowed a small piece of a plastic toothcap.—Mrs. G.W.

For readers who don't know, I should explain that what the doctor is referring to are the pouches or "diverticula," that often develop on the wall of the intestine.

The tooth cap undoubtedly passed all the way through your system.

The pockets of diverticulosis are very small openings and only the tiniest objects, things such as small seeds, or bits of undigested nuts, are apt to get trapped. These would eventually disintegrate.

I really think you can stop worrying about it.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South

Pass	4♠	Pass	4♣

Pass	7♠	Pass	6♦

Opening lead — ten of spades. It is estimated that even the best players reach the ideal contract only about 50 per cent of the time.

Probably most bridge enthusiasts think the top players do better than that, but actually that is about the highest point of efficiency that can be expected to reach.

When you stop to consider that you and partner can be dealt

5,157,850,263,780,050,462,400 different combinations of cards to bid, you begin to realize that even the most practiced partnership will miss the best contract in at least a few billion of them.

The hand received in a match between Switzerland and Lebanon. It is remarkable that the Swiss North-South pair (Besse and Drouvenon) were able to reach a small contract at six diamonds in three spade bid.

Three notrumps by Duroveron had its natural meaning and showed willingness to play the hand right there if North was of the same mind.

Besse was faced with a difficult decision whether or not to pass — but finally elected to try for a slam in face of his suits. Accordingly he cuebid spades to force partner to choose the right suit.

Duroveron was of course happy to cooperate with this forward-going move, but he was not unduly reluctant to leap to six diamonds with a jack-high suit. He therefore responded with a further cuebid in spades to force North to select the suit.

But Besse, still in doubt as to which suit would serve best as trumps, again forced the choice on his partner by bidding five notrump. Duroveron thereupon bid six diamonds, which he easily made by taking two trump finesses.

Tomorrow: Delicate operation.

Diet Clamp

LONDON (CP) — Compulsive eater Christine Smith, 31, was told he would have to reduce his 32½ pounds and has chosen a food-proof method. Dental surgeon Norman Gilmour has agreed with steel and glue, permitting him to ingest only liquids. He lost 70 pounds in the first four weeks.

Nobel Series Over

STOCKHOLM (AP) — THE Swedish Royal Academy of Sciences ended the 1973 series of Nobel awards Tuesday by naming scientists from Britain, the United States, Japan and Germany winners in physics and chemistry.

A foreign-born American, a Japanese working in the United States and a young Briton shared the physics prize for their discoveries connected with the generation of power through superconductors. Their findings are practically applied in measurement and translator techniques.

Japanese Leo Esaki, 48, and Norwegian-born American Ivar Giaever, 44, shared half of the $130,000 prize for pioneering investigations into electronic phenomena called "tunneling," where runaway particles penetrate barriers like a ball passing through a wall without leaving a mark. The two researchers work in New York state for IBM and General Electric.

The academy gave the other half of the prize to 33-year-old Brian Josephson who, as a 22-year-old student at Cambridge's historic Cavendish Laboratory, predicted new and unexpected phenomena in supercurrents in a theory named the "Josephson effects."

The chemistry prize went to 53-year-old Prof. Geoffrey Wilkinson of London's Imperial College and 55-year-old Prof. Ernst Otto Fischer of Munich, Germany.

They shared the prize equally for pioneering independent basic research on the chemistry of "organometallic, so-called sandwich compounds." Their highly theoretical work on these complex structures, although described as chemistry for chemists' has led to important practical applications for industrial use, such as new lead-free, anti-knocking ingredients in gasoline and heat-resistant enamel paints.

Le Duc Tho Declines

TOKYO (AP) — Le Duc Tho, a member of the North Vietnamese politburo, rejected the 1973 Nobel Peace Prize on Tuesday but indicated he might accept it in the future when "peace is really restored" in South Vietnam, a Hanoi broadcast said.

The two was awarded the prize Oct. 16 jointly with U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger for their work in negotiating the Vietnam ceasefire agreement.

Krieghoff Auctioned For $22,000

TORONTO (CP) — Art dealers and private collectors paid a record $22,000 at an auction Tuesday for 147 paintings, drawings and watercolors by Canadian artists.

The auction, held by Sotheby and Co. (Canada) Ltd., drew a crowd of about 400.

The company's auction of Canadian works in May of this year brought $208,720.

A painting by Cornelious Krieghoff, entitled Indian Hunters Camping, was purchased by a Montreal art dealer for $22,000.

A oil by Paul Kane, entitled French River Rapids, went to a private collector in Toronto for $11,000.

G. Blair, a Toronto art dealer paid $10,000 for oil entitled Blanche by James Wilson Morrice.

Response to Soviet Note

U.S. Alerts Troops

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon today ordered a worldwide alert of United States military forces "for prudent, precautionary reasons "amid reports of possible unilateral intervention by the Soviet Union in the Middle East.

The White House also described the alert as precautionary.

A senior Democratic senator said the alert responded to what he called a brutal Soviet, warning that Russian forces would act to enforce a Middle East ceasefire if the United States failed to join a peacekeeping force.

Word of the alert came in the pre-dawn hours. The alert order was confirmed by Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim.

Friedheim declined to go into any details, except to say that the alert order was issued by Defence Secretary James. Schlesinger about midnight.

While the White House and congressional leaders who met with President Nixon stressed the precautionary nature of the move, Senator Henry M. Jackson (Dem., Wash.) told reporters it responded to a note "in brutal terminology" in which the Soviet Union threatened to act alone to police the ceasefire between Israel and her Arab enemies.

He said he understood the Russians dispatched a very small contingent of soldiers, numbering perhaps 2,000.But if the U.S. remains firm, he said, he does not believe that Russia will take unilateral action to send combat troops into the Middle East.

No Conference

WASHINGTON (Reuter) President Nixon cancelled a news conference scheduled for tonight because of the Middle East situation, the White House announced.

A presidential spokesman said the press conference would be held Friday.

Arabs Divert Canadian Oil

OTTAWA (CP) — Indications that Canada may yet feel the pinch of an Arab oil boycott of Israeli allies surfaced again Wednesday when Saudi Arabia diverted an oil shipment destined for Montreal.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said he has summoned the Ottawa ambassadors of the Arab nations in an attempt to clarify Canada's position in respect to their countries' recent change in oil policies.

The oil in question was bound for Portland, Me., by tanker and by pipeline to Montreal.

Mr. Sharp said outside the Commons it is unclear whether the diversion is part of the Arab anti-Israeli policy, or whether "there is some other explanation."

The announcement follows a charge Monday by Lorne Nystrom, NDP (Yorkton - Melville) that U.S. oil companies have diverted oil supplies bound for Canada from the Middle East to the United States.

The report prompted Energy Minister Donald Macdonald to issue a stiffly-worded telegram to major oil companies labelling such diversions "clearly against the interests of Canadians."

Mr. Nystrom renewed his charges Wednesday saying both Exxon Corp., Imperial Oil's U.S. parent company, and Texaco have sent confidential memos on diversion tactics to Canadian officials.

He said one company is ready to admit openly that diversions are taking place.

Mr. Macdonald said both companies have denied diverting oil.

Mr. Nystrom also charged that Exxon is purchasing Venezuelan oil on Canadian accounts and then shipping it to the U.S.

Oil for Quebec and the Maritime provinces is supplied mainly by Venezuela and the Middle East. Oil supplies for the rest of Canada come from western domestic sources.

Judge John Sirica

Nixon Faces Nation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A beleaguered President Nixon hopes to reverse his sagging fortunes at a news conference tonight. It was predicted he might soften his opposition to having a special Watergate prosecutor.

Having already reversed his weekend stand against surrendering White House tapes to U.S. District Judge John Sirica, Nixon is certain to face questioning at his 9 p.m. EDT television-radio news conference about the possible appointment of a new special prosecutor to succeed the ousted Archibald Cox.

Strong bipartisan support has developed in Congress for the naming of another prosecutor who would be independent of the executive branch. And Acting Attorney-General Robert Bork, who fired Cox at Nixon's order, told reporters Wednesday he thought "has crossed my mind" that he should consider making such a appointment.

Bork also told a news conference that he does not feel bound by Nixon's directive that Cox refrain from making any future court fights to obtain White House tapes or other evidence the president regards as confidential.

Bork said he would fight the White House in court if necessary, to obtain evidence deemed vital by the Watergate prosecution. His reputation was at stake, and he was "going to press hard" for a thorough investigation and prosecution of Watergate offenders. He suggested he would resign if he felt the White House was interfering.

Bork, who had been solicitor-general, became acting attorney-general, when Elliot Richardson resigned and his deputy, William Ruckelshaus, was fired. Both had refused to fire Cox.

Indians Behind Horses

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government was accused of mixing its priorities Wednesday when a New Democratic Party critic noted that the government spends as much money on racehorses as it does on Indian communities.

Jack Stokes (NDP—Thunder Bay) speaking during a committee study of the ministry of community and social services' estimates said there wasn't enough money being spent on the native people.

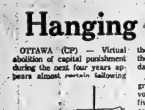
"The $2.7 million that has been allocated to the Indian communities branch is about equal to what we donate to the breeders of race horses," he said.

Mr. Stokes said the problems facing the Indian communities are so numerous that Rene Brunelle, the minister, would almost be justified if he spent the entire amount in his own riding of Cochrane North.

News Briefs

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — High school students protesting a teacher work-to-rule campaign in the counties of Northumberland and Durham returned to classes Wednesday except at the two schools here. About 200 students continued the walkout to protest the teachers' refusal to take part in non-academic activities. The teachers began the move Monday because the school board has refused to reduce the present student-teacher ratio in the area's 10 secondary schools, which they said averages 30 students in shops and 38 to 40 in academic classes.

Freighter Dumps Oil



VANCOUVER (CP) — The German freighter Westfalia was charged Wednesday with a violation of the Canada Shipping Act following a fuel oil spill that polluted sections of Vancouver's Stanley Park shoreline. The charge, which carries a maximum $100,000 fine, was laid by local justice department officials on behalf of the ministry of transport as crews kept up an estimated 24 tons of heavy oil from the beaches and harbor.

Coin Most Costly

ATLANTA, Georgia (Reuter) — A California collector has paid "in excess of $110,000" — claimed to be a world record for a single coin — for an 1804 U.S. silver dollar.

Hanging Virtually Abolished

OTTAWA (CP) — Virtual abolition of capital punishment during the next four years appears almost certain following the close Commons decision on the controversial issue Wednesday.

Abolitionists broke out in grins of relief after the House voted 110 to 105 to renew the five-year ban on hanging, except for killers of on-duty policemen and prison guards.

But among the ranks of the retentionists there was talk of the issue not being finished yet. There also were questions about whether the gallows ever again will be used, despite the new law.

The renewed ban replaces those enacted late in 1967 and which expired in December, 1972. It limits the death penalty to murderers of on-duty law enforcement officers and prison guards. All other murderers face life imprisonment.

However, there has not been a hanging in 11 years and some MPs say the government will continue to commute all death sentences.

The government bill renewing the limited ban now goes to the Senate which will debate it Tuesday night. Questions arose Wednesday about how the upper chamber might treat the bill, but based on history it was expected to get relatively swift passage.

Once Senate approval is given, the bill needs only routine royal assent to become law.

Observers who predict quick Senate passage point to 1967 when the first limited ban was approved 40 to 27 after one day of debate.

Southern Ontario Fog Plays Havoc with Cars

TORONTO (CP) — Heavy fog blanketed a large area of southern Ontario this morning, closing Toronto International Airport and slowing rush-hour traffic in Toronto.

A weather office spokesman said the fog blanketed the western end of Lake Ontario from the Niagara peninsula to Trenton in the east and as far northwest as Kitchener.

The spokesman said the fog, which has been building up in the area each morning since Sunday, would burn off by noon. A new weather system moving into the area might prevent it from returning Friday morning.

An airport spokesman said all inbound and outbound flights before 8 a.m. had been cancelled and later flights were being delayed.

The Halton County board of education took its buses off the road in the northern part of the county because of the fog, although schools in the area, north of Oakville, remained open.

School bus accidents in heavy fog earlier this week near Brantford and Windsor sent 65 children to hospital.

A bus carrying 60 pupils was in collision Tuesday with two other vehicles on a road near Woodslee, about 20 miles east of Windsor.

Forty-seven children were "injured, none seriously. None of the children on another school bus involved in an accident earlier that morning was injured.

The Weather

Synopsis: Fog in most areas of eastern Ontario will lift by noon. Cloud will spread across the south in the late afternoon and bring showers overnight. Gradual clearing from the west Friday. In the north, cloud cover will be accompanied by showers today, continuing Friday. Possibilities of snowflurries in the extreme north.

Accidents

Jam Turnpike

KEARNY, N.J. (AP) — New Jersey state police have been ordered to make a detailed investigation of a series of traffic crashes on the fog-and smoke-shrouded New Jersey Turnpike that left nine persons dead and more than 40 injured.

There were three major pileups and dozens of smaller, chain-reaction accidents on the route in the Kearny area early Wednesday when heavy smog and smoke reduced visibility to near-zero. The smoke came from a week-long swamp fire in the Hackensack meadowlands.

The pileups brought demands today that the state police explain why the superhighway was not closed when the fog rolled in.

Fog Shrouds Accident Scene

Provincial police cruisers and tow trucks encircle the scene of a two-car and transport truck accident on Highway 401 just west of the Loyalist-Wallbridge Rd. this morning. Belleville OPP received notification of the accident at 8.30 a.m. while heavy fog blanketed the Quinte area. Police reported that one car entered the westbound lane of the 401 from the exit ramp, was hit by the truck and spun into the eastbound lane where it was hit again by a vehicle travelling east. The first car came to rest in "the median. Story on page 3.

Rehabilitation Week

Attitude of Public Needs Rehabilitation

You — the general public — are the key factor in the work of rehabilitating the handicapped.

This doesn't sound very nice. But, basically, that was the message presented to the audience in Empress Hall at the Belleville General Hospital last night, when a group of concerned citizens and highly qualified specialists gathered to discuss the problems encountered by handicapped children.

The discussion, the third segment of the week-long series of public forums making up Rehabilitation '72, was not designed to cast aspersions on the character of the support the public has given to such organizations as the Society for Crippled Children.

Rather, it was designed to asses the great strides made to date in rehabilitating the handicapped and to help chart a course for future rehabilitation programs.

Through the use of a film, a panel discussion and a question-and-answer period, the hospital's education committee tried to convey to the audience the necessity for and the benefits of a group or team approach to the rehabilitation of the handicapped child.

The film, entitled Good News — Bad News, outlined the remarkable facilities and progress being made at the Ontario Crippled Children's Centre in Toronto.

The panel discussion, headed by Dr. Bruce Young, the centre's medical director, sought to give the public some idea of the variety of talents and specialists needed in rehabilitating the handicapped child.

Drawing upon the expertise and experience of its members, the panel outlined the means by which a handicapped youngster receives the medical attention and training necessary to provide him with a fruitful position in society.

The panel would have been a good example of the team concept for the absence of one member — the general public.

A recurrent theme of last night's program was the difficulties encountered when specialists encounter when trying to integrate the handicapped and the healthy.

Dr. Young told the audience that the three basic aims of any rehabilitation program are the provision of physical care and support, independence for the handicapped.

Along with other panelists he outlined the roles they play in the rehabilitation process and the role the public should be playing in that process.

Wendy Sunderland, a physiotherapist at Belleville General Hospital, outlined upon the parents of handicapped children to encourage their youngsters to use the skills they learn in treatment sessions to perform functional tasks such as putting on their socks.

"The success of physiotherapy depends almost entirely on the confidence and cooperation of the parents," she said. "Treatment shouldn't be confined to a half-hour physiotherapy session but should be a daily function. The children must relate the physiotherapy exercises to functional exercises in home."

Margaret Lewis, a registered General Hospital, called upon the public to give the handicapped an opportunity to perform worthwhile tasks in society.

"Every success and rehabilitation program depends upon what has happened to a child as he grows up," she said. "We have a terrible tendency to deprive the handicapped of meaningful life experiences."

Citing numerous examples of job discrimination, where employers refused to hire handicapped persons for jobs they could more than adequately perform, she said that in most situations a handicapped person is better off without a job.

Most jobs offered to the handicapped are totally routine," she said. "They are probably better off on a disability pension which does not provide enough for a full life. They just scrape by."

In discussing sheltered workshops, Miss Lewis said: "they suit some people but are pitfalls for others. The shelter routine is usually less than satisfying. What we need are better employment opportunities and programs that will encourage the handicapped to develop their whole personality. We need help from the community to do that."

In summarizing the panel discussion, Dr. Young called for the elimination of the public's attitude towards the handicapped if the team approach was going to be effective.

"It is essential that there be a total change in attitudes before rehabilitation of the handicapped can take place," he said. "We've come a long way over the past 30 years. But, we still have a long way to go. Basically, of the community is essential for the participation. To achieve this we must provide them with adequate employment opportunities, must make the school system accessible to the handicapped child and we must change the public conception of the handicapped. They have a lot to offer society."

Teachers' Negotiations Collapse

Salary negotiations have broken down between the ministry of colleges and universities and more than 3,000 community college teachers in Ontario.

The end of five months of negotiation and mediation was announced today by Rae Rachar, Fanshawe College teacher and chairman of the teachers' negotiating team. No one from Loyalist College or Quinte Community College teacher, has been involved in the negotiations.

The 1972-73 contract, achieved after arbitration, expired Aug. 31, but teachers are continuing to be paid under its terms.

A press release from the teachers' negotiating team, members of the Civil Service Association of Ontario, and government negotiators have made "absolutely no new offer." No offers have been made on sick leave, fringe benefits, pensions, job security and physical working conditions, the release says.

The release says the ministry also accuse the ministry of refusing to recognize the principle of overtime pay, a concession granted to other ministry employees.

No spokesman for the ministry of colleges's negotiating team could be reached in Toronto.

Teacher - ministry negotiations broke down last year, and Judge J.C. Anderson of Belleville was called in as arbitrator. Judge Anderson was forced to resign from his seat on Loyalist College's board of governors to take over the arbitration.

Mishaps, Injuries

Worst Day Yet As Fog Holds On

Dense fog shrouded the Belleville-Trenton area again today, causing traffic pileups, injuries and cancelling school buses.

It was the worst sequel to three successive mornings of heavy fog and brought a weather caution the same hazard could be repeated Friday.

As visibility dropped drastically — in spots reported down to 10 feet — traffic slowed and accidents multiplied.

West of Belleville, at Avondough Road and Sidney township's second concession, up to nine cars were involved in a chain-reaction, rear-end crash. Several people received minor injuries.

On Highway 401 at the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road overpass, two cars and a car transport were involved in a mishap that sent two people to hospital.

Near Ivanhoe, on Highway 62, the passenger in an automobile was in jured when the vehicle collided with a truck.

On Highway 33, three miles south of Trenton, four cars collided. No one was hurt.

The fog moved in with a vengeance Wednesday evening halting air traffic at Canadian Forces Base Trenton.

The CFB weather forecaster today said conditions producing the fog had grown more complicated making predictions difficult. But there may be some fog Friday morning.

There were contrasts in conditions today. It took an hour to drive 25 miles between Belleville and Tweed. At Brighton the sun was shining. But within a 1.5-mile radius visibility was down to 10-15 feet, police said.

Hastings County public school authorities reported nine school buses had been cancelled off their routes — mostly in the Madoc-Belleville area.

John Bancroft, county school transportation officer, said it was the first time buses had been halted by fog. After yesterday's poor visibility the decision to operate was left up to individual drivers.

Voyageur Colonial Ltd. reported its Kingston-Toronto morning bus only five minutes behind at its Belleville halt.

Man Hurt In Crash

A North Marysburgh Township man was taken to Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital last night following a one-car collision near Lake-of-the Mountain.

Injured was Hugh Frizell of RR 4, Picton, who was treated for broken ribs. Damage to his car was estimated at $2,000.

Busy Workshop

Industry for Retarded Has Orders Backlog

PICTON — Prince Edward County's workshop for the adult retarded, ARC Industries, now reports a backlog in orders for furniture re-finishing.

Trainees, guided by workshop supervisor Mike Donohue and volunteer William Condie of Waupoos, strip layers of paint and old varnish from a variety of furniture pieces. Customers bring their "finds" to the workshop for estimates and a large collection of these pieces has been left for refinishing.

Mr. Condie observed that it is important for trainees to enjoy a variety of projects and said that caning and weaving have been introduced.

The workshop has a large treadle loom and a smaller loom without foot pedals. One trainee, Dorothy Lloyd, has orders for 42 placemats to be woven on the loom.

Mike Miller enjoys caning and under the tuition of Mrs. Gladys Hawker of Picton he has learned to make seats for stools and chairs.

ARC Industries now has ten trainees from Prince Edward County who attend the Bridge Street workshop daily.

Deseronto Plant in U.S. Market

DESERONTO — Soft-drink vending machines and coolers made here are headed for a strong United States market breakin.

Entry into the big U.S. sales scene has been a move long contemplated by Ideal Venders, this town's biggest industry, which is still seeking to reinforce its plant workforce.

Ideal, in production here 28 years and the biggest Canadian manufacturer in its field, has now launched a U.S. subsidiary, with warehouse facilities at Buffalo, N.Y.

It's a first step onto world markets for Ideal — a division of Eddy Match — which has been watching the international business scene and foreign market potential in recent years, general manager Richard Moore said Tuesday.

"This is a first step into world markets," he added.

Earlier this year the company embarked on a plant expansion program, increasing production and storage space more than 50 per cent.

Its workforce now numbers about 135 but Ideal, at present, still is seeking additional employees "every day in the production plant," said Mr. Moore.

Its work teams include a key group of technologists charged with evolving new designs and developing for products produced here.

Fire Prevention

Belleville has been without a major outbreak of fire for some time now and this should be a spur to both home and store owners to ensure this happy situation is maintained.

Fire prevention is something that should be on everyone's mind, meaning avoidance of concentrations of paper, checking wiring and heating systems and so on.

We read of one particularly cruel tragedy in the United States recently where a family of eight children died in a trailer fire which apparently broke out among cleaning fuel, and just as the parents were on their way home from janitorial duties at a nearby college.

Meanwhile, in addition to their routine watchfulness, the firemen keep busy in a variety of ways that benefit the community. Probably they are already preparing toys, for example, for Christmas distribution. A firemen's work is really never done. Rescue work is one of their chores, as witness the incident in Toronto the other day when they were called upon to free a teenager trapped and critically injured while riding an elevator top.

A salute then to our firemen everywhere.

And while we are on the subject, a piece of news that came up as this was being written: Belleville is pioneering legislation calling for sprinkler systems in all new residential buildings with a floor area of 4,000 square feet or with a height of five storeys and over, meaning everything from hotels and nursing homes to high-rise apartment buildings.

The legislation reflects commendable foresight on the part of council and gives a lead to the rest of the province. With the trend to multi-unit housing, precautions such as this are all the more necessary. Especially with memories of a recent fire in a New Orleans office block in mind when fire ladders were unable to reach people trapped on upper floors.

Child Neglect

That there are parents who do their children less than justice, reflecting their own lack of values and their own immaturity, is an unhappy fact of life.

When we observe children who look uncared for, as often as not it is the home background that is at fault. When we are told that this country enjoys one of the highest standards of living in the world, let's not forget there are children in what we look upon as "poor" countries who receive more love and material comfort than do many of ours.

Staff reporter Lenny Williamson outlined the problems of youngsters in such a predicament recently; children whose development is hampered alternately by parental neglect and abuse, adults whose sense of values is conspicuous by its absence. It is a situation moreover that is fraught with peculiar moral and legal difficulties so far as extending help to the child victims is concerned.

Yet it is a problem that must be faced, for the good each one of these children but of the community. By whom specifically? By the parents themselves, by teachers and by those charged with law enforcement; not to mention the United Community Services whose campaign is now under way and which we urge everyone to support.

Another sign of our too often slack and undisciplined times is the fear in some minds — and it has some justification — that once harmless child pleasures like Hallowe'en now have their element of danger. Hence the plans of a women's group at St. Michael's church to hold an indoor fun night at Nicholson Catholic College gym.

We are not sure that the streets of Belleville at night are all that great a menace as yet, but there is the ever-recurring problem of dangerous objects being thrown among the youngsters' trick-or-treat goodies and this alone is sufficient reason for the church won-t's concern. Besides, the party idea sounds so much more fun.

World Energy Picture Changing

Libya Seeks Oil Deal with France and W. Germany

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — Libya's decision to press for direct oil supply agreements with the French and West German governments, outstanding Western producing companies, may foreshadow profound changes in the entire world energy situation.

If such a deal is completed, it may have ramifications for consumers in North America as well as in Europe and for the huge independent oil conglomerates as well as their governments.

Libyan Prime Minister Abdessalem Jalloud announced his attack as will be pressing his plans to French President Georges Pompidou and West German Chancellor Willy Brandt before the end of the year.

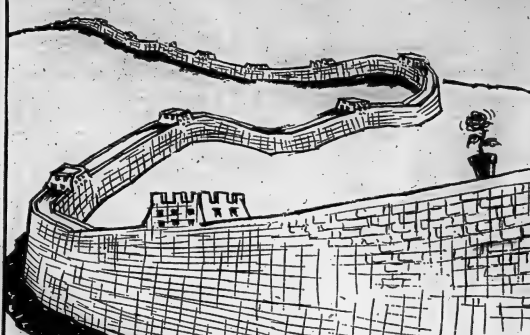
It was one of the first times that a government had formally proposed an all-encompassing supply deal, with other states involved.

Leading research groups have been predicting that the days of the independent oil companies as major suppliers of international markets were limited. Most emphasis of those was a report by the Institute for Strategic Studies in London.

Jalloud's comments also coincided with the expiry date set by Libya for Western oil companies to comply with the 51 per cent nationalization decree set by the North African country a month ago.

The drastic action followed the expiry date, but experts expect a similar government move within weeks. The companies involved include: Exxon, Texaco, Standard Oil of California, Shell and Atlantic Richfield.

Reports from Paris and Bonn indicate that both France and West Germany are generally in favor of direct oil deals but are reluctant to get involved until the nationalization controversy is settled.



Spokesmen in the two countries say their governments believe the current instability and threatened shortages in markets have lessened leadership and that the oil companies themselves no longer have sufficient power to bargain effectively with the producing nations.

Only long-term agreements among government regulating future supplies at prices will be acceptable to consumers, they say, and the companies will have to accept a greatly reduced role in the process.

The last few years have seen the oil companies' ability to act as buffers between producer and consumer steadily eroded.

In addition, the last year has seen a whole range of questions thrown up which only the consuming governments can deal with. These include the role of oil in the Arab-Israeli dispute, producer governments' ambitions to invest in refining and marketing and the disposal of oil producers' hugh cash surpluses within the international monetary system.

If governments now readily decide to create a direct flow of activity in the purchase of foreign oil supplies, experts believe, world energy problems in the future may begin to look far less intractable.

U.S. Senate Approves Reduction of Armed Forces

By JOHN D. HARBRON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The U.S. Senate voted recently on a major forces' reduction in the $79,000 American army, navy and air force units serving around the world. About 23,000 of these are serving in naval ships and the largest number of men on shore or on land are attached to NATO units in Western Europe.

In addition to 300,000 troops still in Europe, the presence of the Seventh or Mediterranean fleet is still a major sea deterrent to Russian sea power there in spite of the overall detente between the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. which is under way.

The largest single air weapon available to NATO in Europe is at the second Gordon strength of the Eurowegen members but the 450 F-4 Phantom jet fighters of the U.S. Air Force plus about 75 of its F-111 general duty bombers.

In a recent reversal of a vote to reduce these worldwide forces by about 25 per cent, the U.S. Senate first voted in favor of major reductions by 49 to 46, then against any reduction by a second vote of 51 to 44.

The reason for the curious change of mind had to do with the make-up of amendments for arms and troops reduction and to what extent these might affect the so-called "Nixon Doctrine." The basic premise is that land forces can be withdrawn substantially as long as naval forces tactical as well as strategic, are there in enough strength to take necessary action in all European defence emergencies.

Senator Mike Mansfield's fallback amendment would have included naval forces. But a plan by Democratic Senator Alan Cranston of California called for a 30-per cent reduction in overseas forces by mid-1975 but to omit the navy.

What the Senate has done — closer to, in spite of the vote reversal, was implement that the 1949 formula for maintaining so many troops in Europe might no longer apply almost 25 years later.

That formula on which was based the long-lived make-up of U.S. forces in Western Europe, said the American military presence was needed to ensure a hard core of conventional armies among the European states recovering from the war, yet faced with a new cold war and to have a major U.S. deterrent against Army Soviet nuclear attack.

Other major U.S. forces distributed around the world included troops in Spain, never a member of NATO, about 25,000 of the three forces in Canada, Cuba (the Guantanamo naval base), Panama Canal Zone and Puerto Rico and still large forces in the Far East.

These include numbers varying from about 43,000 each in Thailand, South Korea and Okinawa, now a part of Japan proper, about 18,000 in Japan proper, smaller numbers on Guam, the Philippines and Taiwan.

Their commitments are different from the NATO ones, though related ultimately to protection of strategic countries from Communist aggression.

The South Korean numbers could presumably be reduced with that country in the midst of a record boom and ruled by a tough army general with a powerful establishment bound for a good fight anytime. And the Thailand military commitment presently represents the continued winding-down from the U.S. bombings of Cambodia, now terminated and of the also-concluded Vietnam war.

All in all the half-million U.S. men, sailors and airmen abroad also represent a major commitment and cost to a U.S. with great balance of payments problems as well.

Kawarthas Recreation Scene

Peterborough Examiner

Anyone who has fought the crowded tourist traffic or tried to find a quiet bit of lakeshore on a fine summer day would probably assume that the Kawarthas are a significant resort area.

And with the talk of a highway bypass to channel the flow of cars from urban areas and government plans to control ownership of Ontario's recreation land, one might also assume someone elsewhere was keen to expect a future of development for the area.

Considering the number of lakes and solid chunks of cottages in Peterborough, Victoria and Haliburton counties, the assumptions seem reasonable enough.

They are supported by the Kawartha Tourist Association's April estimate that tourism brought $41 million to the area last year. The tourist inquiries came in from across Canada and the United States.

But Claude Bennett, Ontario's minister of industry and tourism and the man who recently passed through the area in his travelling office, apparently doesn't share these assumptions.

The board of directors he named for the new Eastern Ontario Development Corporation Thursday has no representatives from Peterborough, Victoria or Haliburton counties. The nearest municipality represented is Bancroft. And this is the board that will be adjudicating applications for development loans.

It seems fair to assume that if the Kawarthas were considered likely to be sharing much of the funding, or were considered to be of significant importance to the development of the eastern part of the province, some knowledgeable representation would have been required.

Bible Digest

by H. B. DEAN

"I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me." Philippians 4:13.

If we remember where our strength comes from, there is no limit to how much God or we can have.

The directors come from the Kingston, Trenton, Cornwall and Ottawa areas with Bancroft businessman John Brown as the spokesman from the interior.

Its not just a matter of wanting to feel important. The makeup of the board reflects a further curiosity in Mr. Bennett's attitude towards tourism. The only representative of the tourist industry among the board of businessmen is a Hawkesbury hotel operator.

But then development has almost always meant industry to Mr. Bennett's colleagues, and tourism has seldom existed in industry to them.

And with that attitude, the Kawartha area doesn't seem a nice place to have a cottage.

Xaviera's Visit To Cornwall

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Xaviera Hollander, author of such sensually explicit offerings as the Happy Hooker, has left our midst . . . but not without sending some pretty strong vibrations through the community.

Belleville telephone calls and letters to the editor it has been made abundantly clear to us that many city and district residents considered—that be-ing Miss Hollander here for speaking engagements was not in the public interest.

Others even suggested in some quarters that this newspaper had erred in covering the story. This concept we cannot accept. Whether one approves of the events that have a broad base of interest. And whether our critics like it or not, Miss Hollander is the type of controversial person who stimulates the curiosity of many people. Had we not covered her visit to this city we would have been less than a newspaper.

Canada is a free country. The people who brought the author here had every legal right to do so. But whether their decision was in good taste is quite another matter. We have much to be ashamed of in the pronouncement of those involved.

Weeds Menace Boaters

Brockville Recorda and Times

The weed problem in the St. Lawrence river assumed fad to the death of a Toronto fisherman recently. His motor, fouled by the mass of weeds, he was attempting to clear the board. He didn't drown but his plight again draws attention to this growing weed menace in the rivers.

Unlike the back lakes, much of the river bottom is not muck but weeds and grow prolifically. Sunshine and moderate depths provide shallow and even bays which have been free of weeds for years, started to fill in this past summer.

Speaking in Elgin last week at a Rideau Action Association meeting, Glen Owens, regional biologist for ministry of the environment, said the best method of getting rid of weeds is through the use of chemicals.But people who want to control the growth of weeds in this fashion must obtain a provincial permit, government permit to use chemicals. The permit allows the department of the environment to control the amount and type of chemical. Owen said use of chemicals is the most common and effective way of controlling aquatic weed growth but abuse can destroy marine life.

Mr. Owen, speaking about the Rideau system, said while weeds are essential to the aquatic ecosystem, having a check of them was essential. An abundance of aquatic weeds reduces the quality of water.

That is what is happening to the quality of the water in the St. Lawrence river. The Brockville water supply used water that is pure, almost beyond from the river - off Orchard street, at a depth of about 90 feet. But the water from the weed infested section of the river is the fare of the islands, close to the shipping channel. The quality of the water is not as good as it was and this has made it necessary for the Brockville Utilities Commission to explain that the algae growth is the cause of the unusual taste.

Would the removal of weeds, help or will it require a costly chemical spray to control the weed? Will the water quality be worse if the quality city used to enjoy all year-round before the pumping station and intake were relocated?

Apparently that wont be possible until there is a cleanup of the pollution of such as the river. And in this regard, the Water Quality Agreement signed by Prime Minister Trudeau and President Nixon April 15, 1972, has created the International Joint Commission to take heart. One report after a few months after the signing date, the IJC has been able to report that the quality is edging up ever so slightly for the better. It has been slow for years,it's a long way to go but the report is hopeful that sewage treatment programs will be carried out on both sides of the border and industrial wastes controlled. The members say there is hope in the momentum that has far achieved isn't lost. Our grandchildren may get pure water.

Trucking Firms Support Sunday Bid

TORONTO (CP) — Companies using trucks to transport their goods over long distances lined up Wednesday in support of a Winnipeg firm's bid before the Canadian transport commission to have commercial trucking allowed on Sunday.

The question of necessity has become a main point in two days of public hearings before the three-man commission, considering applications from two Winnipeg highway carriers for exemption from a Lord's Day Act prohibition of Sunday trucking.

Reimer Express Lines Ltd. and Imperial Roadways Ltd. have applied for permission to transport goods on Sundays between Winnipeg in the west and Toronto and Montreal in the east.

Harry Kuziw, traffic manager for T. Eaton Co. Ltd. in Winnipeg, said that as part of the service industry his company depended on speedy delivery of merchandise to Western Canada outlets.

Only five per cent was transported by truck, he said, adding that it was not necessary to have such merchandise moved on Sunday. The remainder was shipped by railways which operate on Sundays.

D. W. Barnick, council for the Ontario government, asked how Mr. Kuziw reconciled his support of the Sunday trucking applications with Eaton's longstanding ban on Sunday commercial activities.

"We do not, have not and quite likely will not open our stores carrying goods on Sundays," Mr. Kuziw said.

But he and other witnesses referred to Reimer Express testimony that over-the-road freight costs might have to be increased by 25 per cent if Sunday truck driving is denied, preventing uninterrupted seven-day scheduling.

Edward Chapman, head of traffic for Canadian Ingersoll-Rand Ltd., Sherbrooke, Que., said it takes up to three days longer to get pipeline compressor equipment to the company's Calgary assembly plant using "piggyback rail" rather than road transport.

His preference was supported by James McGee, traffic manager of Michelin Tires (Canada) Ltd. of Montreal, basically a distribution operation. Truck service was quicker and more assured, he said.

However, Laval Fortier, commission chairman, managed to draw out the fact that it was only on a rare occasion that a tire order might be lost because of no Sunday trucking.

The hearing continues today.

Leger Keeps Working

BRUSSELS (CP) — Jules Leger, Canadas next governor-general plans to continue his current work as ambassador to Belgium and Luxembourg virtually until the eve of assuming his next duties in Ottawa Jan. 15, officials here say.

Leger is reported to feel that he still has vital work to do in his ambassadorial role over the next two months.

This includes his role in Ottawa's efforts to safeguard Canada's future relations with member states of the European Common Market, to which Belgium and Luxembourg belong.

The four among some Canadian officials is that Canada might find itself politically and commercially isolated if the United States and the Common Market agree on a new Atlantic charter.

Also on Leger's agenda is participation in a coming meeting of a Canadian-Belgian mixed commite on science.

In addition, the embassy is settling into new quarters in a modern downtown building as part of a general reorganization of Canadian diplomatic activities here.

Leger may return in Canada on at least one private trip—"incognito", one side put it—before his planned final departure is mid-January.

This would probably give him the chance to make personal arrangements for assumption of duties carried out by Governor-General Roland Michener.

In December, Leger will be saying formal good-byes to the royal courts of Belgium and Luxembourg.

Mrs. Leger" is expected to stay in Brussels with her husband until the January departure time—though both will be taking a holiday at an undisclosed vacation place between Christmas and New Year's day.

Sheep Saved

LONDON (AP) — Shortly after police found a sheep wandering in north London and turned it over to the animal protective society, a local man complained that the sheep was his. He told reporters he belonged to a group that is recreating ancient Greek rituals and had planned to sacrifice the animal to the sun god Helios.

Labor Protests

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Labor Congress said Wednesday it deplores a decision by the Ontario government to send a trade mission to the Republic of South Africa.

Joe Morris, executive vice-president of the 1.8 million-member organization, said in a news release that Ontario should be seeking ways to stop importation of South African goods.

There should be no increase in trade until South Africa respects the basic human rights of its non-white majority of citizens, the congress said.

New Crown Corporation

Hydro Makeup To Be Altered

TORONTO (CP) — There will be some "significant changes" in the structure of Ontario Hydro when it becomes a Crown corporation at the end of the year, Premier William Davis said Wednesday.

But he would not say whether Chairman George Gathercole or any of the other commissioners would have a role when the change comes. Hydro will come under more direct government control when it changes to a Crown corporation from a commission.

The premier was asked at a news conference about the report of the select legislative committee which investigated Hydro's $44.5-million deal with developer Gerhard Moog to build a new Hydro headquarters.

In its report, the committee found Hydro commissioners abdicated their responsibilities when the deal was conducted.

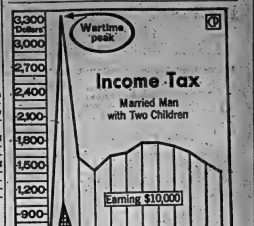
The premier said he was "surprised" that the 11-member committee decided that governments and their institutions should not be precluded from using the developer proposal method in awarding contracts.

(This developer proposal method is where proposals from selected developers are invited rather than putting the contract out for public tender. In Hydro's case, four developers were invited to submit bids and the Moog company was selected.)

Mr. Davis said that even if the government accepted the committee's recommendation that guidelines be set down for the proposal method, that wouldn't eliminate potential problems.

"It's almost impossible to draw up specifications . . . where judgments are not part of the process," he said.

He added that as long as judgment was part of the process, certain doubts could be raised in the minds of the public.



The government went along with the committee's recommendation that no further action be taken against Mr. Moog or his lawyer, George Finlayson, for contempt of the legislature when Mr. Moog temporarily refused to testify, the premier said.

Exports Climbing

OTTAWA (CP) — Exports continued climbing in August bring the total for the first eight months of this year to $13.5 billion, up $3.1 billion from the corresponding period of 1972, Statistics Canada reports Wednesday.

August exports totalled nearly $1.8 billion, up $258 million from July, the report said.

The largest part of the increase so far this year was in exports to the United States, up nearly $2 billion from last year, it said.

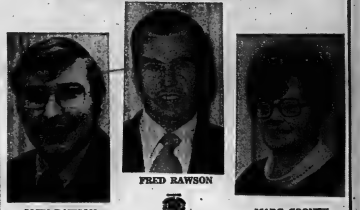
Personal Taxes Decline

Finance Minister John Turner announced in Ottawa reduced income taxes for all Canadians in 1974. The graph shows income taxes paid by a married man with two children on a salary of $10,000 a year since 1939, and for a married man in the $5,000-a-year bracket. (CP Newsmap)

Potter 'Disappointed' By Doctors' Approach

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Health Minister Richard Potter said Wednesday he was "bitterly disappointed" at the actions taken by some doctors recently that challenge the basic tenets of the province's health program.

Dr. Potter told the Kitchener-Waterloo Academy of Medicine that some local doctors have proposed "short-circuiting" the health-care system.



He accused them of rejecting the parts of the program they disliked and keeping the parts they found advantageous.

Directing his comments to those doctors, the minister said the health plan "is not there for you to help yourself to the bits you like."

"If certain doctors want to go back to the horse-and-buggy era, we may have to let them go—but they can't have it both ways," he said.

The minister also said part of the responsibility of the doctors was to "see to it that the people aren't the financial victims of our health care system."

Life in Belfast

Troubled Times In Northern Ireland

By Isabel Haggan

"Yes, I was often frightened."

Ruth Overy, a young Canadian who has lived for three years in Belfast, was talking about her life in Northern Ireland.

"For much of our time there we lived off the Shankill Road where there was sometimes trouble.

"Even when we moved to a safe neutral area, we could still hear the bombs. And about six months ago, three supermarkets where I shopped were blow up in as many weeks.

"It really is a pleasure to shop in Belleville."

Ruth and Bob Overy, last week addressed Bob Harris's current events class at Quinte Secondary School.

The students, who have studied Northern Ireland in detail, had a chance to ask questions and to hear what life was like for the Canadian and her English husband.

An ex-editor of the British paper Peace News, Mr. Overy first went to Belfast to write about the civil rights movement.

A pacifist, he was especially interested in the non-violent methods the Irish were using the late '60s to deal civil conflicts.

The civil rights movement began with Roman Catholics protesting lack of jobs, good housing and political power, he said.

The Belfast university students started demonstrating in sympathy.

The break-up of one such civil rights march in Londonderry five years ago was one of the first markers in the tide of violence that has since swept the country, Mr. Overy said.

From that time on, non-violent demonstrations often became violent, as police seeking to stop them met with persistent stone-throwing.

Some Protestants rapidly lost the sympathy they originally held for the movement. They began to refer to Catholics as rebels and troublemakers.

Protestants protested when their parliament, under pressure from Britain, conceded rights to Catholics.

By August 1969, there were full-scale battles between civil rights protesters and the Protestants.

British forces were called, to intervene and protect the Catholics, he said.

Mr. Overy said that although he was sympathetic to the motives of the civil rights people, he felt that their methods were provocative.

He and his wife went to live in a Protestant working class area at this time, hoping to bridge the gap in a non-provocative way.

The house in which they lived was one of many scheduled for demolition. Typical of all inner-city row housing, their home consisted of two 11 foot, by 20 foot rooms with an outdoor toilet. Their rent was equal to about eight dollars a month.

Mr. and Mrs. Overy explained to the students how the housing problems in Belfast have contributed to the violence in that city.

Protestant workers have been living in the Shankill area since they forefathers' first left the farms and came to work in the mills. Families have lived in the same house for more than five generations.

Consequently there is a strong sense of community. Any outside changes are regarded as a threat.

The present method of destroying these decaying houses and moving the occupants to new areas has caused great social distinctance, he said. The razed areas are breeding grounds for rats, and children cause mayhem in the derelict buildings.

The problems of raising children in the strife-torn city interested the Overys even before their daughter Kasa was born. They were active in a volunteer organization which aimed to provide proper playgrounds for children.

"Off the Shankill, there were playgrounds," said Ruth Overy. "But they were staffed with paid workers who were there from nine to four. When school got out and there was a need for supervised play, the playgrounds were locked.

"Naturally, the children quickly learn to live on the streets. And who wants to play on swings after the fun of stoning British soldiers?"

Involving parents in the creation of new playgrounds was one of Mrs. Overy's primary concerns.

Along with several others, she was also successful in organizing summer country camps for city children bringing in volunteers from 20 countries to help.

Bringing Protestant and Catholic children together was one of the aims of the summer camps. But as bitterness and fear have grown, even this has become a dangerous activity.

They never feared directly for their own well-being, but they felt a growing pessimism about the two sides working together.

"There is a great need for non-sectarian politics in Northern Ireland," Bob Overy said. "But the moderate party, which has sought to find a middle road, is not successful in the working class areas."

He explained to the Quinte students that cultural differences between the Catholics and Protestants have a lot to do with the political problems.

Those who want a united Irish Republic, are battling against British institutions, and most often bomb public buildings. Those who want to maintain ties with Britain, are struggling against a revolting people, and tend to bomb civilian areas such as pubs.

On both these sides, the men who are bombing are in the minority.

Mrs. Overy pointed out that these men are not necessarily naturally violent or evil, but simply feel that they have no alternatives but direct action.

"Once they're involved, they're totally committed," she said. "That is especially true of young people, who have taken up the struggle on both sides.

"Kids your age are hearing guns, spying, and training in secret armies," she told the class. "If you were in Belfast, chances are you would be, too."

However, both Mr. and Mrs. Overy made clear that their life in Belfast has been a good experience. They made close friends because of the intensity of their daily living conditions.

They found political and religious prejudice to be a group phenomenon, not a personal one.

"In a war-like situation," Bob Overy said, "one ceases to be an individual affair and becomes a joint business which tends to bring out the best in people."

Any local groups interested in hearing about the Overy's experiences may contact them at 968-7585.

Bob and Ruth Overy talked to current events classes at Quinte Secondary School recently, explaining the sources of conflict in Northern Ireland, and talking about their three years spent in Belfast doing community work.

Ambulance Service Topic

Members of Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary were given a comprehensive look at the workings of ambulance service in Belleville and across Canada at their meeting on Tuesday afternoon.

Robert Howell, vice-president of City Ambulance Service was guest speaker. He outlined the many changes which have taken place since the service was taken over from the undertaking profession in 1963.

He said all ambulance operators must have at least a first aid certificate but most now also take part in a training program course in casualty care, anatomy, and physiology.

Continued training is given both at the company and by doctors at the hospital.

He told the women personnel must obey all traffic laws and abide by safety rules. Unnecessary speed and loud blowing of sirens are a thing of the past and the care and safety of the patient is considered at all times.

Computers are used to quickly record the patient's history, he said. Radio communication between the ambulance and hospital is maintained at all times during the transportation of the patient.

He said ambulance operators are vital members of the medical team and, if the proper procedures are carried out at soon as the patient is contacted, it may mean the difference between life and death.

The business portion of the meeting was chaired by president Mrs. C. D. Ashley and included reports of the various committees and projects. A special Gift Cart will be used during November and December to aid patients with their Christmas shopping, it was reported.

A cheque for $1,800 was turned over to the Auxiliary for its hospital work from the Opportunity Shop. A substantial amount of funds will be invested by the group to be used in future plans for the hospital.

Careers Day at the Hospital will be held on October 27th.

Nurses Form Union

By JEAN SHARP
BP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario nurses have formed a province-wide union for collective bargaining, an official said Wednesday.

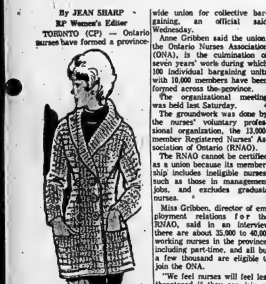
Anne Gribben said the union, the Ontario Nurses Association (ONA), is the culmination of seven years' work during which 100 individual bargaining units with 10,000 members have been formed across the province.

The organization meeting was held last Saturday.

The groundwork was done by the nurses' voluntary professional organization, the 13,000-member Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario (RNAO).

The RNAO cannot be certified as a union because its membership includes ineligible nurses, such as those in management jobs, and excludes graduate nurses.

Miss Gribben, director of employment relations for the RNAO, said in an interview there are about 35,000 to 40,000 working nurses in the province, including part-time, and all but a few thousand are eligible to join the ONA.



"We feel nurses will feel less threatened if they can join an overall union, if they don't have to form their own independent union," Miss Gribben said. "Many of them have felt it points to individual employers when they set it up locally, though there hasn't been any harrassment by employers."

Miss Gribben said one of the hopes nurses will have public opinion on their side. The nurses in hospitals, nursing homes and old age homes are prohibited by law from going on strike.

Miss Gribben said nurses hope to take bargaining beyond the negotiation of salaries, hours and benefits.

"We hope to utilize bargaining rights toward quality of care, controls of nursing staff and use of their time.

She felt it would be a while before all negotiations could be handled centrally because hospitals and the government were not geared for it.

Plumptre: She's Satisfied, Critics Aren't

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservatives and New Democrats feel her fired. She has no 'place later to protect her from regular criticism in the Commons. Commoners often blame her for letting food prices go unchecked. Her travel, meeting and speaking schedule would make many seasoned campaigners balk.

Yet at 64, Beryl Alyce Plumptre enters her fifth month as chairman of the federal food prices review board with vigor.

Her comments on food prices are forged from cold economic facts; by 6 years in the field of economics and not by popular, politically safe cliches.

"Although some prices have weakened, I don't see food prices in general coming down," she said in an interview.

Mrs. Plumptre says she is not overly bothered by the criticism and politics which haunt her latest assignment. But she adds a wish that the attacks be more constructive.

Since the board reports to the government, and not a particular minister, "we're naked of protection."

But Mrs. Plumptre says she and her staff of 35—still in the process of setting up offices—intend to finish the job they've been given: To study and report on food price increases; to make recommendations for action; to examine the way food companies price individual foodstuffs.

She says she is satisfied with progress to date. Two reports have been presented, another is due. A special study on price controls in the United Kingdom has been published and a similar report, unconditional in the United States is imminent.

The board is planning detailed economic studies of regional differences in food prices and factors influencing the price of specific commodities, particularly staple foods like bread, eggs, beef, hamburger and other products that make up the basic diet of lower-income people.

About 20 studies are going on, she says, "but it takes time if we're really to find out what's going on."

People reacted ill the board's first quarterly report—which said food prices were not out of control, that no segment of the food chain was getting more than it should, that farmers were making more money—by saying they knew all that.

"The point was that they didn't know it. If they had known they wouldn't have been saying the things they'd been saying."

Some blamed supermarkets for high food costs, others blamed manufacturers or farmers.

"It's none of them really. It's all of them. It's all of us. We're all caught up in this cos way or the other."

Mrs. Plumptre emphasizes that her organization is a review board, and not a control board. People are wrong to think that it has the power to lower prices.

What it can do, however, is point out areas for action, like an agriculture policy that "tries to get away from this cyclical business" where farm incomes and prices bounce-up and down according to international supply and demand factors.

Farmers must be assured of a steady, adequate income if they are to provide for increasing populations and demand.

She is impressed by the desire of provincial premiers—she has visited all but three—to improve the lot of people on low or fixed incomes and says the board is working to develop a system that would tie increases for needy pensioners to an index that reflects the 30 or 40 per cent of income they spend on food. Pension increases for such people should not be merely linked to rises in the cost of living.

A native of Melbourne, Australia, Mrs. Plumptre first became involved in the consumer movement in 1959. She worked for the Canadian Association of Consumers, later the Consumers' Association of Canada (CAC). She was association president for five years beginning in 1963.

For the future, Mrs. Plumptre sees the board looking at long term effects on food prices. She refuses to predict whether the board will last beyond its three ending in December, 1974.

His (Holiness) Meets Ms.

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul received Betty Friedan, a leader of the United States women's liberation movement, in a brief audience Wednesday.

It was the first such audience the Pope has granted.

Ms. Friedan said she told the Pope: "I have come with the hope and expectation that the Catholic Church will come to profound new theological terms with the personhood of women, and in so doing I hope that the Holy Christian Tradition which in the past have denied women equality will become a force in the liberation of women and will lead to further, new dignity for women."

Ms. Friedan prefers the designation Ms. to Miss or Mrs.

The 53-year-old women's leader, who is divorced, said she gave the Pope a medal symbolizing female-male equality.

She said she met with the Pope for about five minutes.

"I was very surprised by it all," she said later. "The Pope seemed to know exactly who I was."

Expiry Dates on Foods Criticized by Grocers

TORONTO (CP) — The proposed labelling of perishable foods, indicating their expiry date, was criticized Tuesday at the annual meeting of the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers.

H. W. Wagner of the federal department of consumer and corporate affairs told delegates to expect government regulations requiring such labels on foods that have a shelf life of less than 90 days.

However some delegates disagreed with his statement that the government "is committed to a program of more informative labelling."

William Hill, newly-elected president of the group and president of Lakeside Marketeria Ltd. of Oakville, said a policy of "goods satisfactory or money refunded" covers all cases of consumer dissatisfaction.

Inclusion of an expiry date will "just involve another cost and another piece of government machinery that will add to my taxes," he said.

Another delegate said if complaints about food quality are so numerous, health officials should be regulating the products.

But Mr. Wagner countered:

"When you have to rely on your health authority to judge meat, then all is not well in the marketplace."

Mayvor Brechin, president of the Canadian Consumers Association, said the association found in a recent survey that some vacuum-packed meats had been in stores for more than seven months. . .

Profits Down Grocers Claim

TORONTO (CP) — Despite high food prices, the profits of grocery store operators are at the lowest point in history and for many it has been a struggle to survive," says the president of the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers.

Speaking to more than 250 delegates attending the federation's three-day conference, Harold Pfeffer, manager of a Kitchener supermarket, was critical of consumers who demand "best-and-eat" convenience foods which push supermarket operation costs up.

"The consumer in effect wants to barter for food while buying and paying for other luxuries with little or no complaint."

Future 'Grim' for Small Grocers

By JEAN SHARP
CP Women's Editor

TORONTO (CP) — Chains of supermarkets and convenience stores will continue to grow in Canada and the future for smaller independent grocer stores looks grim, the Canadian Federation of Retail Grocers was told Monday.

V. T. Robbins, vice-president of A. C. Nielsen Co. of Canada Ltd., said grocery stores other than those in corporate chains sold $4,641,294,000 worth of food this year in Canada, up to Aug. 1.

But in Ontario large independent and chain stores account for 45 per cent of total grocery sales.

Mr. Robbins said that in Canada independent stores that do more than $500,000 worth of business annually had 28 per cent of grocery sales while smaller stores had only nine per cent.

By 1979 there were 38,500 small grocery stores in Canada and by 1981 this will drop to 36,000, he said.

Meanwhile the number of stores in traditional chains will increase to 2,500 from 1,800 while convenience chains, such as milk stores, are expected to double to 1,530 by 1981.

He said health and beauty aids and "add-and-heat dinners" are the fastest growing categories in supermarkets.

Harold Johnston, vice-president of Leo Burnett Canada Ltd., described nine categories of women identified in research by his advertising agency.

He said advertising can be aimed directly at such categories.

One group is young, energetic married women. Mr. Johnston said they are a new category of consumer willing to try any new products, not materialistic, adjusting to change easily partly because they are creating the change.

Another is the blue-collar mother with several children. She buys brand-name products because she has no time to think about them but can be swayed by ads.

Categories also include the old fashioned homebody. She is not interested in convenience products and not worried about cholesterol levels, said Mr. Johnston.

H. W. Hayne, public relations director for Zehr's Markets Ltd. of Kitchener, Ont., told another session of the conference that about 38 per cent of all women consumers shop wherever the price is lowest and 27 per cent emphasize convenience.

About 35 per cent shop unimaginatively, routinely and provide limited menus to their families, he said. About 18 per cent care about every aspect of what they are buying and are willing to pay for quality.

"Then why do we continue to beat each other to death with newspaper advertising based on low prices alone?" he asked.

Mr. Hayne defended food prices.

"The leading factors in our country's inflation are wage increases that exceed productivity gains and excessive government expansion that we cannot afford," he said. "Temporarily, food price increases are third in actual importance."

First Health Unit Nurse Retires

CORNWALL, Ont. (CP) — A member of Ontario's original public health unit has retired after 27 years with the unit.

Ola Dancouse, 65, joined the unit in Alexandria in 1946, two years after it was formed. Considered an experimental unit at first, it was where public health nursing began in Ontario.

Miss Dancouse graduated from Ottawa Civic Hospital in 1933.

"There was little private-duty nursing, except among the wealthy and hospitals didn't need the staff of trained nurses they do today, which made it difficult to organize your life."

Miss Dancouse lived in Apple Hill, near Alexandria, and knew of the new unit. She decided to enrol in the public health nursing program at the University of Western Ontario in London.

She says there have been many changes since 1936 and she considers them good.

She recalls sterilizing needles for school clinics in sterile tobacco cans on a little iron frame built for her by a blacksmith. She cleaned and sharpened the needles at home at night.

She says the concept of the public health nurse has also changed.

"People used to feel you knew more than you actually did. Today people are more educated."

But people in rural areas have reason to remember the public health nurses with gratitude.

Miss Dancouse recalls applying starch poultices, with the help of neighbors, on a baby covered with impetigo and expected to die. The baby lived.

There was a man with a brain tumor whom she got to the railroad station on a low sleigh converted into an ambulance and towed by her cutter. He had an emergency operation in Ottawa.

Ola Dancouse says now: "In looking back, I imagine God put us here for a purpose. I feel I had this purpose in life."

Ceasefire Casualty

Warn Asthma Victims

CALGARY (CP) — A drug used by asthmatics to treat a potential killer is being sold without prescription across Canada and the Calgary Medical Society wants the federal government to restrict its sale.

Dr. Marty Atkinson, president of the medical society, said Tuesday he has urged the Canadian Medical Association to press the federal government to restrict to prescription the sale of isoproterenol hydrochloride or isoprenaline.

The drug, blamed for the death of 3,500 asthmatics over a six-year period in Britain, is recommended by doctors in aerosol spray inhalers for asthmatics, often children.

Bus Crashes In Fog

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — A total of 19 high school students were injured Wednesday when a school bus and a truck loaded with dressed chickens collided at a fog-shrouded intersection about 15 miles southwest of here.

Eight of those injured were admitted to hospital. The others were treated and released. The most serious injury was a broken back.

The bus was carrying 23 students from the Norwich district high school on a field trip to near Toronto.

Damage to the bus was estimated at $2,500 and $14,000 to the refrigerated truck.

the dosage and too much of the drug can cause irregularity in heartbeat and eventually heart attacks and death, Dr. Atkinson said in an interview.

"I am convinced that people have died from abusing this. It is amazing that a drug like that should be available without restriction in a country like Canada where drug laws are so strict."

In Ecuador, Dr. Christopher Varvis, chairman of the pulmonary committee of the Royal Alexandra Hospital, said Wednesday the asthmatic inhaler—Isuprel—is not prescribing the serious threat to life here that a similar product did in England.

Responding to the report that the product—a brand name of the drug isoproterenol hydrochloride—is a potential killer, Dr. Varvis said it is an excellent asthma reliever if used properly.

He agreed it can cause death if used excessively, especially by people with coronary problems, but said doctors warn their patients of the danger of overdoses.

Meanwhile in Toronto, the therapeutics committee of the provincial ministry of health recommended Wednesday that the drug be restricted to prescription by a doctor.

The move followed a study ordered several months ago by Ontario Health Minister Richard Potter.

Children's VD Too Often Ignored

OTTAWA (CP) — Gonorrhea or infection," among children has been ignored by medical specialists because the issue is too controversial, a United States doctor said Wednesday.

Some doctors "would rather not know about these things; they prefer to ignore the issue, as the battered-child syndrome has been ignored in the past," said Dr. Robert C. Rendtorff of the University of Tennessee College of Medicine at Memphis.

"[the] Tin. not salve . . . I know how they become infected," he told the government-sponsored International Symposium on Gonorrhea.

At a Memphis venereal disease clinic, about 10 children each year were detected with gonorrhea. But in the last three months alone, about 10 cases were found, he said.

In an interview, Dr. Rendtorff said some infants, when born, can contact gonorrhea bacteria from an infected mother. But while the incidence of this is quite low, older children apparently are picking up the disease from sexual contact with elders, either when sexually molested or in other ways, he said.

As children get older, the disease might be spread by sexual play among them. Many young teen-age delinquents have the

Beef Tariff Up in Air

OTTAWA (CP) — The government expects to make a decision soon on imposing temporary import tariffs on beef, Finance Minister John Turner said Wednesday.

Walter Dinsdorh (PC—Kent-Essex) had asked in the Commons whether Mr. Turner or Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan had been asked by the Canadian Cattlemen's Association to impose the tariffs to control the "chaotic condition" of the beef market.

Witness Claims Favors

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A former Collins Bay penitentiary prisoner told a murder trial Wednesday that prisoners were nenies who agreed to testify for the Crown were promised "special consideration."

The man, whose name cannot be published because of a court order, said the promise was made because of the possible danger faced by prisoners who co-operated with the prosecution.

Curtis Agawa, 23, and Leo Mallett, 34, are charged with the March slaying of fellow convict Terrence Lashley, 27, of Sarnia, Ont., whose body was found wrapped in a blanket under the bed in Agawa's cell.

The charges against the two men had been dropped at the end of a preliminary hearing. Ontario Attorney-General Clinton Bales ordered in August that charges again be laid.

The witness Wednesday said the special consideration, which was not detailed, "depended on our testimony. That's what the parole man said."

A second meeting took place at Kingston penitentiary last week, he said, at which time he was given a letter from the office of the commissioner of penitentiaries in Ottawa. He said he destroyed the letter.

Ontario Supreme Court Justice Mr. Abraham Lieff would not permit the witness to give the 12-member jury details of the letter because, he said it would be hearsay.

Court was told the witness was released from Collins Bay last week but remains under "mandatory supervision."

The witness said that on the night of the murder he was with five other prisoners in a cell two doors away from that of Agawa. He heard a noise, went to Agawa's cell and peered through the peephole in the door.

A man was lying on his back on a bed with Mallett astride him, said the witness.

A shiny object arched through the air and after it disappeared from view he heard a grunt and the loud exhaling of breath, he testified.

"Then I had to leave." He was warned he would be next if he stayed at the window, said the witness.

It is powered strictly by muscle power provided by one or more occupants. (CP Photo)

Second Body Found

MALDEN CENTRE, Ont. (CP) — Three teen-agers chasing a raccoon near here discovered a partially-covered body Wednesday, about 500 yards from where the body of Collins Bay penitentiary escapee Victor George Martin, 41, was found Oct. 17.

Police said the body was being sent to the forensic science centre in Toronto for identification. Malden Centre is about 10 miles south of Windsor.

Parole Records Improve

OTTAWA (CP) — Convicts on parole and mandatory supervision are doing better for themselves this year than last, the National Parole Board said Wednesday.

The board said in a news release the convicts have had significant increases in employment and earnings.

Prisoners may serve the last third of their sentence outside prison on mandatory supervision. The privilege is awarded for good behavior.

Of 2,003 prisoners on parole last June, 61 per cent had jobs, an increase of four per cent over 1972, the board said.

About 61 per cent of convicts out under supervision held jobs, an increase of 11 per cent.

Average earnings also were up 11 per cent, to $545 a month compared to the 1972 average of $483.

This year, there were 201 persons out of prison under supervision, up from 143 in 1972.

Their earnings last June were $20 a month more than 1972, averaging $427.

Rat Triumphs

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Take advice from David F. Johnson and don't try to club a rat with a rifle. Authorities said Johnson, 21, spotted the rat in his suburban home, picked up a .22-calibre rifle and tried to swat the rat with it. The gun discharged and a bullet struck his thumb.

One-woman Tour de Force On Road for 14,000 Miles

OTTAWA (CP) — When Mia Anderson reaches St. John's, Nfld., early next month in her current 14,000-mile tour criss-crossing Canada, she will be three months from the end of her trip in Victoria, B.C., via Inuvik, N.W.T.

With her one-woman show, Ten Women, Two Men and a Moose, a self-cost bill in Toronto and Ottawa, she is the first Canadian performer to go on the road under the auspices of the Canada Council's new touring office.

It engaged her for the tour, made all the travel arrangements, hired local theatre bookings, and helped with the creation of a portable stage set suitable for use in high school gymnasiums or properly equipped arts centres.

Miss Anderson's show, which she compiled from the writings of Canadian authors, is a one-woman tour de force of drama and comedy that she originated in Toronto. Now it has been playing in such places as Campbellton, N.B., Truro, N.S., and Corner Brook, Nfld.

Along with the main cities of Canada, it is booked into Churchill, Man.; Nelson, B.C. and possibly Oshawa, Ont., Yorkton, Sask., Medicine Hat, Alta., and Inuvik. The last is a difficult one, because of travel cost and time, and it may be necessary to fly her to go there without her stage set.

The touring office opened officially last April and now is working on several tours for individual artists and major companies far into 1974.

About 75 per cent of its $1 million-a-year budget will go to subsidize the travel expenses of performing artists.

Miss Anderson is thrilled that she and her show should be the first to be booked by the touring office. If the venture is successful it could mean opening great new markets for Canadian talent outside the big cities.

The tour permits her a Christmas break, but now over, and she will use that time to record a new version of Ten Women for radio, to be broadcast in January. She did a television version of it earlier.

The touring office sent out a publicist first to prepare the way for Miss Anderson's tour and report back to the office on any technical difficulties that might be encountered.

On the tour itself, Miss Anderson is accompanied by a tour manager, stage manager and lighting man, all wrapped up in one person, David Loyal, formerly production manager of the Charlottetown Festival. There is also a truck driver to transport the sets, lights, and wardrobe.

Walter Massey of Montreal—one of the theatre family of Masseys, related also to the late governor-general, Vincent Massey—directed the new travelling production and accompanied it for its first week on the road.

John Crimpton, manager of the touring office, regards Ten Women as the Canada Council's pilot project in touring. The office intends not to compete directly with private impresarios, but to support private booking agencies by engaging their artists.

The office will act as a clearing house for information about engagements, to try to avoid situations in which, say, two major ballet companies appear in one city at the same time. It will also encourage local groups to arrange seasons of music and theatrical events.

It will serve, too, as the booking agent for shows brought to Canada by the several affairs department under international cultural agreements.

One such is the Comedie Francaise of Paris, to come to Canada next May. Normally it would play only in Quebec City, Montreal, Ottawa and perhaps Toronto. The touring office is arranging to send it also to St. John's and to Winnipeg, a venture that no private entrepreneur would undertake.

Mr. Crimpton, who came to the touring office from the Dalhousie Arts Centre in Halifax and was formerly with the Guelph (Ont.) Spring Festival, says the time was overripe for the government to get into the business of directly booking performances.

Private booking offices in Canada worked only on a regional or local basis, but United States agencies—including Columbia Artists—were selling shows across Canada.

The Americas were also selling Canadian talent to Canadians, even without a contract with the performers. They simply would sell the show and tell the performer afterwards: "There's your engagement; give us our 10 per cent."

Some of them charged as much as 20 per cent.

In the case of the Canada Council touring office, the payment will be the other way, to the artist, or at least to subsidize his travel expense. This, Mr. Crimpton said in an interview, is necessary in this country because of the great distances between one audience centre and another.

Cyclists Changing Image

VANCOUVER (CP) — The evil image of motorcycles as vehicles leading boys down the road to lawless, hell-raising juvenile delinquency is getting a face-lift in suburban Richmond.

The Richmond YMCA and Rotary Club have joined forces to form the Y-Riders.

The pilot group of mini-bikers includes six boys aged 11 to 15 who have gained local reputations as troublemakers with residents and law-enforcement officers.

Each Y-Rider gets his own pint-sized motorcycle and use of a 3.5-acre track near a farm in south Richmond.

Off-duty RCMP officers and Y youth worker Mike Poulin supervise a training program for the boys.

"In the short time we have been in operation, it's amazing to see the change of attitude among the boys, says RCMP executive director Grahame Watt.

"Since the RCMP volunteers started working with them they are beginning to see policemen as fellow human beings rather than as furs out to beat them."

Mr. Watt hopes to expand the project to include 30 boys.

Judging from its success so far, the Y-Riders won't have any trouble recruiting them, he said.

Business Swamps Shoemaker

CLARESHOLM, Alta. (CP) — It now costs Joe Sletcher more to fix your shoes and chances are you couldn't get him to make you a pair at any price.

Joe, who runs a shoe repair store in this small southern Alberta community, says he used to charge $1.75 for half-soles and heels.

"But now I pay from $2.50 to $2.60 a pound for shoe leather I used to get for about $1," he says.

The result is that he must charge $3 "to break even."

Joe arrived in Canada in 1928 from Bowral in southern Norway. He has not lost the knack of making custom shoes from scratch—but he has only made a few pairs in the last 20 years.

"Making shoes takes too much time and I can't charge enough to make it worthwhile," he says.

Since he is the only man in the community who will sew canvas, he usually is swamped with lent and sewing repairs before the camping season. His wife, who accepts the canvas business because she doesn't have the heart to turn customers away, helps Joe when h falls behind in his work.

Trenton Plans Santa Claus Parade

TRENTON — Plans are well under way for this community's 1974 version of the Santa Claus pageant Nov. 24.

For the past six weeks, chairman Bob Bell and a four-member committee acting for the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce has been organizing the more than 50 entrants into the parade.

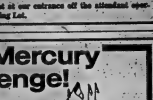
This year's Santa Spectacular will begin at 1 p.m. in Centennial Park, head north on Campbell Street in Dundas, then down Bond the town centre where the judges will be located and finish near St. Peter's Church.

Mr. Bell said plans are off to a good start for the parade which should take about an hour to pass any one point.

Many local businesses have shown an interest in participating in this year's parade, including a wide number of service groups, churches and schools.

An expected highlight of this year's pageant will be an international presentation on horseback.

Some 13 young people last year, each representing a different nation, rode in the parade in ethnic cress. Mr. Bell anticipates these people will return this year.



No parade is complete without music.

Five bands are expected to participate.

Following the parade the 12 judges will tabulate scoring for presentation of a wide assortment of trophies prizes.

Rebuilding Bombed City Slow Process in Vietnam

HUE, South Vietnam (Reuters) — It is more than five years since the graceful old imperial city of Vietnam was battered and bloodied as American and South Vietnamese soldiers fought to clear Communist troops out of the city.

The long, slow process of rebuilding the city and trying to forget the slaughter of the 1968 Communist offensive is at last beginning to show results.

There are still buildings riddled with bullet holes, pockmarked by shrapnel and bearing dangerously where shells and rockets and bombs landed.

But the government is clearing away the wreckage and new buildings are going up.

In September, the city put on its best clothes and flags flew everywhere as President Nguyen Van Thieu took part in ceremonies to commemorate another name synonymous with destruction in Vietnam's war—Quang Tri, which lies about 37 miles further north.

But where Quang Tri was reduced to rubble in the fight to retake it from the Communists, Hue was luckier.

The citadel, perhaps Hue's most famous landmark, dominates the southern bank of the Perfumed River, which swirls gently through the centre of the city from the mountain borough to the South China Sea.

Now a large yellow and red flag of Vietcongese flag flies over the battered rust-colored battlements that sketch along the river.

The flag went up in February, 1968, replacing the red and blue Viet Cong flag that had flown over the citadel for 25 days.

The citadel itself, a vast area of palaces and lakes modelled on Peking's Forbidden City, still shows signs of the grim struggle of Tet, 1968.

Bullet holes scar doorways and arches and several buildings still lie in ruins.

The throne-room, where Vietnam's emperors held court, is untouched. Empty and dusty, the room still has the throne mounted in the centre.

But the air of decay and neglect that hangs over the citadel is not true of the rest of Hue.

There is a peaceful, friendly atmosphere that is lacking in the present capital of Saigon, along the banks of the river in their traditional dresses are a poignant reminder of the city's aristocratic past.

But while the quiet gentle grace of the Perfume River—its actually a dark, muddy color—typifies the way of life in the city, the nearby mountains provide a constant reminder of what happened in 1968.

The rumble of artillery can often be heard in the city as government troops exchange salvoes with the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong units in the area.

Edmonton Householder Taxis Up to Door

EDMONTON (CP) — The housing development of Twin Island is almost indistinguishable from the wheat fields surrounding it—until a householder arrives from the sky and taxis up to the front door of his home.

While highways surrounding Edmonton are clogged with home-bound traffic, residents fly in and park their airplanes in front of their garages.

"This is the only airpark of its kind in Canada," says Ronald Senger, who got the idea from a housing airport development in California.

There is another housing development in Ontario with its own airstrip, he said, but it has no extra space. "We have a 60-acre lake for canoeing in the summer and skating or snowmobiling in the winter."

Mr. Senger bought 180 acres about 25 miles east of the city in 1970, when the site was approved by the department of transport be built a 2,700-foot grass airstrip, a two-year project that cost $18,000.

The development's 11 three-acre lots sold for $9,000 each and each of the prospective homeowners agreed to contribute $150 a year for maintenance of the runway.

Mr. Senger has put $80,000 into the development, and recovered some of his investment in land sales, but says making a profit isn't his major concern.

"I would be able to taxi my aircraft up to my front door," he said. "There isn't that much good flying time available. By the time you drive to the airport, you could have been up for a flight and back again.

"It costs me $100 a month to park my airplane inside (at Edmonton's Industrial Airport). But here I can build my own hangar and pay for it in six months with the money I save in rent."

Mr. Senger enjoys being able to share his interest in aviation with others.

"When flyers get together they talk for hours," agrees Les Skapansky, who is building all but one of the homes in the development. Hired by Mr. Senger to supervise construction, Mr. Skapansky decided to move his own family to Twin Island Air Park.

Buses pick up his three children each morning and take them to one of two schools, five miles away.

Mr. Skapansky says he finds it easy to fly into Edmonton almost every day, buying a case of beer from the Edmonton Inn adjacent to the industrial Airport.

Two of Twin Island lots sold to Pacific Western Airlines pilots. One flies his Tiger Moth to work at the airport, park his plane in a few steps from the front door. Electra he flies for a living.

Pensioners Seek Tax Exemption

A delegation representing Pensioners Concerned (Canada) Inc., a group working to upgrade the standard of living for the elderly, presented a brief to Premier William Davis and minister of social and community services, Ross Brunelle, in Toronto last week.

The brief calls for the reduction or elimination of the provincial education tax for persons over 65. Leading support to the Toronto branch as to the number of people above 65 run to 1,500.

Already pensioners' dollars are caught in a losing battle between the decreasing purchasing power of their savings and incomes, and the rapid increase in prices over the past two decades, states the brief. Education taxes hike further into fixed incomes and thus are "misinterpretation of simple justice". It continues:

"Now retired, their incomes (the pensioners) are half or less than what they were. It seems a miscarriage of justice that they should be taxed at the same rate as those whose earnings increase annually, or that those deprived of educational opportunities should be required to pay a high tax to educate more than one generation."

Charging that "there is a grave danger that older people may be taxed to the poverty line," the brief proposes the following alternatives:

— Education levies be made when income taxes are collected, that payment would be in accordance to the ability to pay, not as the value of land owned.

— Provide a $50 education tax credit for each $1,000 of taxable income up to $7,000.

— Apply a 25 per cent Retirement Credit on the provincial income tax.

Viennese Coffee Houses Now Few and Far Between

VIENNA (AP) — The Viennese coffee house manages to survive all these centuries catering to a clientele that really doesn't come in for a cup of coffee. Not that there's anything wrong with the coffee—it's probably as good as any in the world.

But most patrons come to sit in the comfortable old armchairs, read the free newspapers and magazines, argue art and politics, and enjoy the quaint custom of a fresh glass of water every half-hour from the charming waiter even if five hours later, they are still dawdling over their first demi-tasse.

"It's a leisurely way of life, the real gemuetlichkeit," explained Leopold Hawelka, proprietor of Cafe Hawelka up the street from St. Stephen's Cathedral and almost as famous a landmark.

"Henry Miller spent four days here in moody silence, Leonard Bernstein likes to unwind here after conducting at the Opera House.

"The secret is the waiters must be charming. And patient."

As Hawelka dawdled over his own morning coffee, his waiter, in black bow-tie and spotless white apron, was serving the half-hourly round of water to old men playing chess at a table in the window.

Behind them, a bearded lawyer sucking on a church-warden pipe was scribbling notes for a legal brief onto a long yellow pad.

At a corner table, a girl student worked at her thesis on medieval pulpit carving. The high-backed upholstered chairs along the walls were occupied by businessmen giving over the morning papers, distended from wooden frames and take from the large rack near the door. The centre of the room was given over to tourists writing postcards.

The high - ceilinged old room, with its heavy draperies and long windows, suggested a university library gloriously awash with the aroma of buchtel, Vienna's famous plum coffee cake, drifting from the kitchen. A cathedral calm prevailed, save when the savanis grew disputatious or called for the Danube Gunga Din.

In similar surroundings, Franz Schubert wrote his symphonies and, like Beranin 150 years later, watched the critics dash off their reviews and waited for the papers to come up to read them.

Hawelka subscribes to 30 daily newspapers, in a dozen languages, and some 40 magazines and journals.

He offers a dozen different kinds of coffee, including the classic cup of gold, which is a touch more milk than coffee; mocca brown, which is a touch more coffee than milk, and his masterpiece, melange mit schlag, which is coffee, milk and great globs of whipped cream.

"You can have coffee mit-out schlag, but not mit-out newspapers," he laughs. "One must keep up the old traditions."

In the golden days of empire Vienna boasted more than 15,000 coffee houses. Now only a handful survive.

Town Hall Elevator Ready Soon

TRENTON — Councillors sat back easily in their chairs this week after hearing the elevator which has been delaying completion of the new municipal offices has been delivered.

Aside from placement of furniture and odd touch-up jobs, the elevator was the last major piece of work to be done on the new offices. Council, though pressed to get into new quarters, refused to move without an elevator.

Aside from municipal staff having to cart paraphanalia up flights of stairs, council felt it would be a great inconvenience to the public not having an elevator to reach third - floor offices.

According to one municipal employee it should take some five weeks for installation and council should be in its new home Dec. 17. The Bell Telephone Company has told council it will have its installations completed by Dec. 15.

DOWN THE TRACK — Spectators and steam locomotive enthusiasts take pictures and record sound of Oct. No. 1057 as it puffs its way between Toronto and Orangeville. Steam Attracts Spectators

ORANGEVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Oct. No. 1057 puffed its way from Toronto to Orangeville, attracting clusters of spectators and 250 steam locomotive enthusiasts on the all-day excursion.

The vintage locomotive, operated by a non-profit organization with the co-operation of CP Rail, pulled four tuscan red coaches along the approximately 40 - mile route.

"There is some attraction to steam that just isn't there with a diesel," said Harold Spence, a conductor with CP Rail for 32 years, aboard the train operated by the Ontario Rail Association.

The organization plans to re-establish a steam railway on unused CNR tracks north of Georgetown and has already signed an agreement with Chinguacousy Township to operate out of a township park.

Negotiations with the CNR for track rights and coach renovations are continuing in an effort to recreate the atmosphere of 1930 rail travel.

Hungerford Hikes Pay

TWEED — Hungerford township council has approved a new schedule of annual pay for council.

The new honorarium rates pay $700 to the reeve, $400 to the deputy-reeve and $350 to members of council.

Polar Jet Flights Harm Atmosphere

TORONTO (CP) — A York University professor says jet flights on the Canadian polar route may be causing serious damage to the earth's atmosphere and that the Canadian government is reluctant to study the problem.

H. I. Schiff, a chemical physicist, said in an interview that he and other scientists have been urging the government for about a year to start a research program to determine what will happen when jets fly in the stratosphere.

He said that the stratosphere contains a layer of ozone, the earth's only shield against lethal ultra-violet radiation from the sun, while nitric oxide, one of the gases contained in exhaust from jet engines, is a gas which destroys ozone.

Jets usually fly below the stratosphere but in northern latitudes the stratosphere is lower and an estimated 20 per cent of Canadian jet flights traverse the layer on polar flights.

Prof. Schiff and B. A. Ridley, another York professor, are measuring the amount of nitric oxide in the stratosphere as part of a $50-million research program in the United States.

Prof. Schiff said it is important to find out how much of the gas is already there. If the amount is much larger than the amount jet engines contribute, then the problem is not serious.

But first tests indicate a smaller amount of nitric oxide in the stratosphere than scientists had predicted, Prof. Schiff said, and this would mean that supersonic jet flights represent "a bigger threat than we had thought."

Despite the treat, Prof. Schiff said there is no research being done in Canada.

Dr. W. L. Godson of the federal environment ministry's atmospheric environment service said a "rather elaborate" research program into the effects of supersonic flights has been approved by the Treasury Board.

However he said no additional money is being made available so he will have to be financed out of the existing budget.

"This will greatly slow down the program but we're hoping that a crash program will provide some good answers in three or four years", said Dr. Godson.

Hidden Patients Sought

CHICAGO (NP) — A program to seek out "hidden patients," who are unlikely to seek medical assistance, has been launched by St. Vincent's Hospital and Medical Centre in New York.

Dr. Vincent Brickner, director of St. Vincent's, writes in the Journal of the American Medical Association that many elderly residents of urban areas live alone in single rooms and welfare accommodations.

The St. Vincent's program sends physicians, nurses and social workers into the surrounding area to serve such patients, referred to them by churches, settlement houses and police.

Weekend Decisive For Ontario Grits

TORONTO (CP) — This is the weekend of decision for the Ontario Liberal Party.

Beginning Friday, delegates across the province will gather here for two days of political manoeuvring and speech-making to culminate Sunday when 2,000 of them will decide to accept or reject the leadership of Robert Nixon.

It has been an interesting campaign for Mr. Nixon and his chief opponents—MPP Donald Deacon and MP Norman Cafik, a late-comer.

A fourth candidate, Michael Houlton, 34, appears to have no chance of winning. And Eddie Sargent, the flamboyant hotelier from Owen Sound, dropped out of the race Tuesday when he decided he too had no chance of winning.

For Mr. Nixon, who took over the job of opposition leader unopposed in 1967, a mere victory isn't good enough. He needs to win decisively in order to entrench his leadership and pull together the party after an unexpectedly bitter campaign.

The Liberal leader's former deputy, Vernon Singer, is using Mr. Sargent for defamation of character involving statements the Grey-Bruce MPP made about Mr. Singer's $25,000-a-year retainer from developer Gerhard Mosg.

And Donald Deacon, who was a candidate last spring—months before Mr. Nixon reversed an earlier decision not to seek another term—came out swinging—challenging that St. George farmer Nixon was a two-time loser, who allowed the caucus in the legislature to disintegrate and didn't pay enough attention to provincial organization.

Mr. Cafik, who entered the race less than a month ago, says the party needs a more "people-oriented leader."

A solid orator, the 44-year-old Cafik senses a dissatisfaction with Mr. Nixon among Liberals

Sargent Supports Deacon

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Eddie Sargent, who withdrew from the Ontario Liberal leadership race Tuesday, will support candidate Donald Deacon.

The newspaper says Mr. Sargent's campaign chairman, Scott Hall, and other workers already have joined Mr. Deacon's organization.

The withdrawal of Mr. Sargent, Liberal member of the legislature for Grey-Bruce, leaves four candidates contesting the leadership, which will be decided at a convention here this weekend.

They are incumbent Robert Nixon; Mr. Deacon, member for Toronto York Centre; Norman Cafik, member of Parliament for Ontario riding; and Clarkson businessman Michael Houlton.

Candidates File Papers

TORONTO (CP) — As expected, four candidates for the leadership of the Ontario Liberal party filed nomination papers Wednesday in preparation for Sunday's ballot.

They are Opposition Leader Robert Nixon; MPP Donald Deacon; Norman Cafik, a federal MP; and Michael Houlton, a 34-year-old economic nationalist from Mississauga.

The convention starts Friday and the candidates will be vying for the votes of almost 2,000 delegates, who will be asked to choose the man to lead them in the next provincial election expected in 1975.

There has been some last-minute juggling of the weekend agenda with the speeches of the candidates moved from 8 p.m. Saturday to about 5 p.m. in order to accommodate live television coverage.

Quinte Members Agree On Vote

Quinte district members of parliament were unanimous Wednesday in their opposition to the federal government bill to ban capital punishment except for killers of on-duty policemen and prison guards.

Voting against the bill were Jack Ellis, Hastings; Douglas Altenbrand, Prince Edward-Lennox and Addington and Allan Lawrence, Northumberland - Durham.

George Hees, member for Prince Edward-Hastings, is in Turkey on a NATO assignment.

Hastings member Jack Ellis earlier said he had changed his mind and joined opponents of the government bill because government fumbling had both populated public safety and failed penal reform. Mr. Ellis voted for the government bill at its first two readings.

But, he said, the government has "blindly and blithely" ignored a major demand for reforming parole legislation and its penal system.

Athlete Safety

Dr. Dennis Warwick, director of new preventive dental program in Hastings and Prince Edward counties explains one benefit of service — mouthguards for school athletes at cost prices — to health board Wednesday. Among his listeners as the director and board met for the first time, were Leola Easterbrook, public health nursing director, and Alderman Jean Smith.

Man Shot Hunting

A Belleville man is reported to be in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital, after having been shot in the face while pheasant hunting in Tyendinaga Township yesterday.

Miles Pringle, 39, of Moira Street, received the full blast of a 12-gauge shotgun in the left side of his face, neck and shoulder while he was out hunting with Steven Copeland, 17, of 15 Cedar Street.

The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police reported that the two men were hunting on opposite sides of a fence on Lot 4 Concession 4 in Tyendinaga Township around 10 a.m. yesterday when Pringle was accidently shot by Copeland.

Police said the men were hunting in extremely foggy weather conditions at the time of the accident.

The two men were reported to be 20 feet apart at the time of the accident.

At 11 a.m. this morning hospital officials in Kingston reported Pringle's condition to be "conscious and stable".

Fluoride Treatments For Students Available

Fluoride treatment for Quinte district school students will be first introduced into areas where community supplies are not fluoridated, Hastings and Prince Edward counties' health board was told Wednesday.

The topical fluoride program will be part of the board's new preventive dental scheme, outlined Thursday by its director, Dr. Dennis Warwick.

Dr. Warwick, who directs similar programs in four other counties — Northumberland, Durham, Victoria and Haliburton — met the board for the first time since he was appointed to organize the program in mid-summer.

Already the dental care and promotion program has taken its initial steps in Prince Edward public schools and separate schools, said Dr. Warwick. Appointment of a full-time hygienist, expected next spring, will round off the various projects making up the organization.

Among them will be mouthguard fittings — for school athletes and priced about $4 apiece to "cover production costs — and fluoride.

Fluoridation in the schools will be a matter of consent. If parental approval isn't signified on an official form, there's no fluoridation of the individual student.

Such approval often appears linked with public education, Dr. Warwick indicated.

Recently in Brighton there was 100 per cent consent.

By contrast, an area of Victoria where there appeared much "misunderstanding among the public", consent was only 50 per cent.

Dr. Warwick drew praise from board members for his swift organization of the program.

Pollution, Said Not from Source

Two incidents of alleged pollution of the Bay of Quinte at Belleville involved water run-off cost contaminants at its sources, Hastings and Prince Edward counties health board was told Wednesday.

Dr. C. R. Lenk, health officer, said samples of local water draining into the Bay from Belleville General Hospital and the nearby Mead Johnson plant had been investigated.

The water was clear at both sources, although it picked up ground residues while filtering into the Bay. At BGH the water is coming from refrigeration.

"There's alarms that the bodies contaminates the Bay are completely devoid of any scientific evidence," said Dr. Lenk.

Oil seepage from an adjacent tank was among waste in the runoff, Dr. Lenk said later. While the tank had been repaired and steps taken to filter out the oil, there still was a residue in the ground.

His officers also investigated a complaint that the Moira River was being polluted as well as Belleville Creek by the runoff of local industry.

Stereo Stolen

Belleville police are investigating a break at the Beaver Lumber store on South Church Street which last night netted thieves a stereo set valued at approximate ly $200.

Deputy Police Chief Harold Reid reported that someone broke into the store someplace between the time the manager left, around 5:30 p.m. and the time the cleaners arrived around 6:40 p.m.

He said that the thief gained entry to the building by breaking a window in the manager's office.

Nine Vehicles In Rear-enders

A series of nine rear-end collisions along a fog-shrouded stretch of West Moira Street, across the Humane Society's animal shelter, caused an estimated $5,000 damage and sent one person to hospital around 8.30 this morning.

PC D. J. McDermott of the Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police, the investigating officer, reported that the series of collisions began when a car driven by Margaret Charles, of RR 5 Belleville was struck from behind while waiting for a school bus in the eastbound lane. The vehicle that struck the Charles car was a transport truck, driven by Russell Herrington of Robertson Drive, Belleville.

After the initial accident, occurred, two cars in the westbound lane were involved in a rear-end collision as they tried to avoid the first accident.

The third series of rear-end collisions involved two cars and a pickup truck and it was this accident that Mary Draker, 37, of 368A Sidney Street was injured. She is being treated at Belleville General Hospital for possible whiplash.

Following the third set of accidents, two more westbound cars collided while trying to avoid the line of cars already stopped.

PC McDermott explained that visibility was "almost nil" at the time of the accident.

Labor Talk

Representatives of Belleville and Trenton municipal councils were given a first-hand look at the problem of strike breaking in Ontario last night. Terry Meagher, left, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Federation of Labor, CLC, discusses the problem with Mayor Robin Jeffrey and Doug Sword, president of the Quinte and District Labor Council.

Aristocracy of Dogdom Coming to Frankford

By LYNN ELLIOTT

Once again, Belleville's loss is Frankford's gain.

This weekend, 1,686 dogs and their owners arrive in that town, 15 miles west of here, for the Belleville and District Kennel Club's International All Breed Dog Shows and Obedience Trials.

This is the third year the event has been held at the Frankford Community Centre, although it has been suggested that Belleville could offer more — in the way of facilities and audience — to a show of that size.

The city could benefit, too, by playing host to the many people involved as participants and spectators in the annual competition.

Kennel Club president Les Barks estimates that $85,000 was spent in the area by visitors in the first day of the dog shows, held at the Ben Bleiler Auditorium in 1970.

He also estimates that $250,000, including the money used by the club to run the event, will be spent this year during the three-day show.

Alex Manjuris, a spokesman for the Kennel Club, maintains it has become of budget limitations, the rental of suitably large quarters in the Belleville area would require aid from the city. He had been quoted approximate rental fees of $2,000-$5,000 for three-day use of a building in the city.

"But," he says, "the city has not been too co-operative, although economically the event could pump a quarter million dollars into the area".

"For that reason alone," he adds, "they should be interested."

According to Mr. Manjuris, the five motels advertised in the Kennel Club's advance program are all completely booked at the present time.

Perhaps next year it will be local businesses that benefit by this event which is sponsored, after all, by a local organization, Mr. Manjuris said.

For those who can make it to Frankford this weekend, the Kennel Club's fourth annual Dog Show has much to offer.

Entries are attracted from all parts of Canada and the United States; contenders in the past have come from as far away as the Barbados. Even this year's six judges have made a special journey to take part in the show — from as far east as Maryland, and as far west as Vancouver.

Judging starts at 8 a.m. on Friday, and at 9 a.m. on Saturday and Sunday, with judging continues from that time through the day to about 9 p.m.

As it has in previous years, the Kennel Club is playing host to busloads of school children from the primary grades. Of special interest to these youngsters are the Jim Showmanship competition, which take place on Sunday and invites boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 18 years.

The entire show is open to the public; there is an entrance fee of $1 for spectators.

Schools Seek Medical Aid From Province

Need for a regular medical aid presence in Quinte-area secondary schools will be viewed by local and provincial health officials and education authorities.

Such discussion is needed to finally resolve an issue that has been pending — without help solution for some years, Hastings and Prince Edward counties health board decided Wednesday.

The issue was reopened by Hastings public education administrator Jim Runcorn, who wrote that his board had found it necessary to keep "medical attendants" on standby duty in four county high schools.

This had relieved pressure on public health nurses — permitting them to pay more attention to students in Prince Edward and separate schools, Mr. Runacres indicated.

But the move has cost the Hastings' school board about $20,000 and — under current budgetary pressures, there's a "distinct possibility" the service may be curtailed, Mr. Runacres indicated.

Hastings Health Unit said it was "ridiculous" such a service was not provided by health authorities instead of the school board and that provincial government should be queried on subsidization.

But board member Georgs Foster said there's been a local effort going back "several years", striving for provincial attention to the problem.

The board voted for a meeting with boards and separate school representatives in both counties, and the health ministry's regional officer.

Belle For Sale - - Again

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Belleville's downtown area continues to be plagued by problems as a theatre district.

Over the years the city's downtown area has boasted of numerous moving picture theatres and at least one opera house, ranging all the way from small houses costing a nickel or a dime admission to the more posh Belle and McCarthy Theatres above upper Front Street.

But if plans of Famous Players Inc., owners of five movie houses inside the city are realized, there will be only one theatre — The Park — left on Front Street.

Several years ago the McCarthy theatre closed its doors and both the Belle and McCarthy theatres were offered for sale.

Some months ago the McCarthy was sold and was renovated as a commercial establishment by Stephen Licence sports goods and now the Belle Theatre has been listed with another real estate firm.

The theatre is now being offered for sale by Fraser and O'Neil.

"It boils down to a matter of economics," said Stan Albert, agent for Fraser and O'Neil. "There is just no way Belleville can support four theatres."

He said Famous Players will retain the Park Theatre on lower Front Street.

Terms of any sale for the Belle would preclude the building's use as a theatre for a specified number of years, the name "Belle" could not be used for any purpose.

Mr. Albert said the Belle property, which includes parking space for the community of cars on Pinnacle Street, would lend itself to commercial possibilities.

He said a local culture group has expressed interest in the theatre.

Mrs. Stella Culhane, former manager of the Belle and now manager of the two Famous Players theatres at the Quinte Mall in Belleville, has been listed with another real estate firm.

"Both the Belle and McCarthy at one time had been for sale for many years," she said.

Mrs. Culhane said famous Players spent considerable property in the city, including the Belleville Drive-In west of the Belleville fairgrounds.

Many of the city's older residents can remember when Belleville had its own opera house just east of the downtown district at the corner of Bridge and Church Streets.

Once known as the Carmall Opera House, travelling road shows and operatic groups regularly played there. Later the opera house was renamed the Griffin Theatre. It was torn down in the early 1930s.

Another early theatre was the Regent, which later was converted to a Front Street retail establishment.

The Belle Theatre was constructed in 1926 by the late J. D. McCarthy, who also built the Trent Theatre in Trenton. Later Mr. McCarthy constructed the McCarthy Theatre in Belleville which he operated for many years.

Health Unit Moving to BGH

The Hastings Prince Edward Counties Health Unit will move to Belleville General Hospital next year.

The counties' health board Wednesday agreed to negotiate a lease with the hospital for space in the Edith Cavell-building — built as a regional nursing school but made inoperative when community colleges were assigned nursing education this year.

The new lease would start next January. The unit's current quarters at the east end Belleville area is not up until April and the board has learned there can be no modifications in its terms.

Among alternatives contemplated was the now-vacated federal Research Institute on Dundas Street East. However, a letter from Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, told the board any offer by the government building is not available.

Collision In the Fog

A two-car and transport truck accident on highway 401 slowed traffic to a crawl for two hours this morning as police and tow trucks cleared debris from the median and eastbound lane.

A vehicle, driven by Isidore Cooperman, 80, of 288 Sidney St., entered the westbound lanes of the 401 from the exit ramp from Loyalist Sideroad 18.

Entering the roadway just west of the underpass — against the traffic — the car was hit by a transport truck, spinning the vehicle into the eastbound lane.

It was subsequently hit by a vehicle driven by John McDonald, 30, of Hamilton. The Cooperman vehicle came to rest in the median.

Neither Mr. McDonald nor the transport driver were injured. Mr. Cooperman was admitted to Belleville General Hospital with head, shoulder and chest injuries. He remains in "satisfactory" condition.

Police said damage to the truck and Mr. McDonald's car was minor. Mr. Cooperman's vehicle was called a writeoff.

Improved Map Now Available

A new "best ever" Canada highway maps, featuring the world's most modern topographical design has been published by the Canadian Government Travel Bureau.

The map, available in English, French and German, is being distributed through Canada's provincial travel bureau offices in eight countries and is now available for writing directly to the Canadian Government Travel Bureau, 150 Kent Street, Ottawa, KIA OH6.

The topographical design gives a three dimensional effect to the map and the new 1973 edition is 25 per cent larger than the previous 43 m.le to the inch, allowing for more accuracy and greater detail.

The new map is divided into two separate sheets, eastern and western, and has a chart of North America indicating distances between major cities for the first time Newfoundland and Labrador are shown in the same contexter rather than as inserts, while the Territories and the Canada Bay region has also been emphasized.

Pensions Increased

Public service employees covered by OMERS (Ontario Municipal Employees Retirement) will have a further increase to their basic pensions, according to a chart received at city hall.

The board of council signed by J.M. McLeish, chairman of OMERS board, said that as a result of the continued satisfactory experience of the OMERS fund and especially the improved investment yield, basic pensions at Dec. 31, 1973, would be increased by five per cent.

This is the third successive year that it has been possible to increase members' pensions. The previous increases were 10 per cent, Dec. 31, 1970 and five per cent Dec. 31, 1972.

Food Inspections Still Lagging

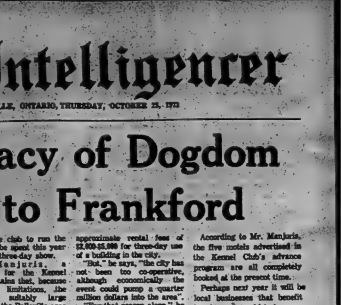
Public health food inspections continue to lag far behind in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

Chief health inspector Lloyd Ellenton told the counties' health board Wednesday that his staff so far this month has only been able to make 25 per cent of its inspection quota.

The situation — which has been reported several times by the chief inspector — is caused notably by the spiral in home building and construction.

Inspections of private waste disposal systems, approval of land severances continue to increase, putting more pressure on the board's inspectors.

Food inspections — including restaurants, factories and other premises where food is handled for public consumption — totalled only 43 for the first two weeks of October, Mr. Ellenton told the board the total should have been about 140.



Up with People Here on Weekend

Now he's emcee of the show's cast which plays Belleville next Sunday and Monday.

For the past three years he has been the talented link in the production, staging young people and contemporary music before international audiences.

Knowles was recently featured on a CBS television special on which he sang

The 35-member cast of young people will stay with families in the Belleville-Trenton area while their show is presented at Centennial Secondary School Sunday and Monday at 8 p.m. Tickets, on sale at CSS, Shopette at the Quinte Mall, Bata Shoes and Gourmet World, Front St., are $3 for adults $2 for students.

According to Mr. Manjuris, the five motels advertised in the Kennel Club's advance program are all completely booked at the present time.

Perhaps next year it will be local businesses that benefit by this event which is sponsored, after all, by a local organization, Mr. Manjuris said.

Moira Finishes In First Place

In the Eastern Conference of the high school soccer grouping, Moira Secondary School Juniors scored five consecutive goals to down Belleville Collegiate Institute 5-2 in a sudden death game to decide first place, Wednesday.

The Moira explosion was sandwiched between the BCI goals and sends the winners into the playoffs against Trenton High School. BCI will meet Centennial Secondary School.

The losers opened the scoring in the first minute. Rod Manos centered the ball to Rangano Mistewsky who in turn relayed to Gordie Van Vliet. Van Vliet made no mistake on the play.

At the 13 minute mark, Moira took a corner kick and the ball sailed through the BCI defence to a waiting John Thibaudeau who put it home.

Then, Tom Britton went in work. He potted three Moira goals and John Smit added another before BCI's Van Vliet completed the scoring in the game with his second goal.

Senior playoffs open today with BCI meeting Trenton at Zwicks Island at 3.30 p.m. while Madoc visits Bayside Secondary School for a 4 p.m. game.

In the junior section, Trenton plays Moira at 2.30 p.m. Friday with Centennial meeting BCI at 4 p.m. Both games will be played at Centennial.

Junior and senior finals are scheduled for October 31.

Short-handed BCI Subdued by Tigers

TRENTON — Belleville Collegiate Institute and Trenton High School senior football teams closed out their Day of Quinte Football League schedule here Wednesday and as the game were on, it was no contest.

The Trenton Tigers brought their season record to four wins and two losses by taking a 44-9 win. BCI lost all six starts.

Bill Miller's Belleville squad might have been well and of it by the time the final whistle called a halt to proceedings but the score does not indicate the gutty performance turned in by the losers.

BCI had fewer reserves on the bench than the team had cheerleaders. An expulsion and injuries left coach Miller with barely enough players to complete the game. But complete it they did and without a sign of giving up. They simply ran out of gas.

Twenty-four of the Tigers' points came in the fourth quarter when the visitors had little left with which to put up an argument.

BCI stayed with the home team for half the game. It was scoreless with play well into the second quarter, thanks to an inspired goal line stand produced by the Belleville team in the early going.

Tigers finally broke through with about six minutes to play in the half. Jacques Belanger gathered in a 39-yard pass from quarterback Dave Lewis for the major. Joe Norman added the convert and THS was on its way.

Trenton added to its total with a pair of touchdowns each from Steve Beecroft and Don Armstrong, and one by Pat Kilpatrick. Norman rounded out the Tigers' scoring with a 30-yard field goal and he was good on five of six convert attempts.

The regular schedule winds up this week. One game remains in the Senior A division, Centennial Secondary School is at undefeated Moira Trojans Friday.

In junior, BCI visits Quinte Saints today and Moira is at Madoc for a game with Centre Hastings Secondary School, Friday.

Senior B division play has Albert College at Prince Edward Collegiate today and Napanee visiting Bayside Secondary School, Friday.

Kinsmen Lose To Kingston

The Belleville Kinsmen Bantam Majors went down to defeat at the hands of the Kingston Rotary Bantams last night in a game played in Kingston, by a score of 5-2.

Mike Bennett and Andy Lamoureux scored for Belleville, while Bruce Hamilton played an outstanding game in the net, despite allowing the five goals.

The new 1974 Alouette Super Brute.

Never before has so much worked so well.

In designing the Super Brute, our idea was simply to make a machine that would perform better; and that would go on performing better, longer.

So we put in power. A front-mounted Sachs engine. A new transmission, with heavy-duty chain and a double-sprocket free-wheeling track drive, for minimum power loss.

Balance, with new wide-stance Ski-Sorbet™ suspension.

Comfort, with a slide suspension adjustable for your weight and snow conditions, and a posture-contoured foam seat.

We devised a track tunnel that's self-cleaning, not clogging.

We added a completely new concept in the control module. It includes a headlight that swivels to show you where you're going, on a curve. And is integral with a high-rise, wrap-around windshield that doesn't leave your head or hands out in the cold.

And looked so good.

Ask engineers for performance, reliability, accessibility, long life, etcetera, and you don't necessarily expect the greatest looking machine you ever saw. But that's just what we got in the Super Brute.

Get around to your Alouette dealer soon, and see if you don't agree. But be sure to take a good look inside, as well as outside. Then you'll see why we're able to say "Alouette delivers".

More Strength For Bobcats

Belleville Bobcats coach Moe Hunter is looking for two who in his team's games this weekend and has made some minor lineup changes for the contests, one at home to Etobicoke Friday night, and the other against the Toronto Nats Saturday night in Toronto.

Mark Coates and Andy Ricketts will not dress for the game, with Coates on the first game of a two game suspension he received for picking up a game misconduct in last Sunday night's game at St. Mike's.

Ricketts will be out of the lineup due to graduation exercises at RCI.

But the Cats will have two new players dressed and have signed another that has been playing under an affiliated player card.

Al Garrison, a forward from Nepanee has been signed by the team, and will centre a line between Bob Sargeant and Wally Dalzard.

Garrison played for the Loyalist Lancers last season, as well as performing for the Juveniles, where he racked up 37 goals and 48 assists.

Defined in the other "new" face in the lineup this weekend, as the six game suspension he drew in last year's playoffs has expired. He will be playing at right wing.

Goaltender Bruce Clarke has also been signed by the Cats.

Clarke had been playing as an affiliated player, and had impressed Hunter with his sharp play in the Belleville net.

Game time Friday for the match-up with Etobicoke, in which Hunter is looking to avenge an earlier season 10-5 loss, is 9 p.m. at the Memorial Arena.

7 TVHL Teams Set for Play

TWEED (Special) — The seven - team Trent Valley Hockey League will open the 1972-74 season November 17.

Teams from Bancroft, Brighton, Campbellford, Havelock, Tamworth, Tweed and Wellington will play a 30-game schedule.

At a recent meeting held at the Legion Hall here, club representatives decided the top five teams during the regular season would qualify for playoffs.

In the playoffs, the first place team will have the right to choose its opponent in first round play while the remaining three teams book up in a round robin set.

Centennial Juniors Win

The Centennial Junior Chargers ended their season on a winning note last night as they defeated Bayside Juniors 13-8 in a game played at Centennial.

Bob Thompson and Dennis Kennada each scored a touchdown for the winners, while Dave Long caught the Bayside quarterback in the end zone for a single.

The Chargers finished the season with a record of four wins, one loss, and a tie, good enough to clinch at least second place in the league.

Bayside ended their season at two wins, three losses, and one tie.

By GERRY SUTTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Esposito May Play Tonight

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Bruins said Wednesday x-rays disclosed that high-scoring centre Phil Esposito suffered only a severely bruised chest in a National Hockey League game with St. Louis Blues Tuesday night.

Esposito, who leads the NHL with 16 points on eight goals and eight assists, in just six games, may be able to play against Buffalo Sabres tonight at Boston Garden.

"We'll know better Thursday morning, but Phil has great recuperative powers, and there's a good chance he'll be able to play," Bruins trainer Frank Kenney said.

Esposito, the NHL scoring champion in four of the last five seasons, underwent knee surgery last April after suffering the first major injury of his career. He has made a remarkable comeback, amazing even club doctors.

Richie Leduc, a young centre, wasn't as fortunate in getting hurt in the 3-3 loss at St. Louis. The Bruins reported he suffered a broken collarbone and will be lost six to eight weeks.

Nightingale Carries Torch

CALGARY (CP) — Jean Scott of Britain is considered the favorite in the women's division of Skate Canada which begins officially here today, but spectators will be concentrating on the efforts of young Canadian Lynn Nightingale.

Miss Nightingale carries the torch left by Karen Magnussen, world champion who resigned from amateur competition to earn her fortune as a touring professional.

The women's competition will be one of the highlights of the invitational event, which developed as a result of the success of the 1972 world championships here.

Representatives of 10 countries have spent the better part of two days working out in any of three arenas. The primary sections of the competitions will be staged in the Stampede corral, where the 1972 championships were held, but smaller arenas also will be used for preliminaries and practice.

To face the Canadians, led by 17-year-old Miss Nightingale of Ottawa, free-skating specialists Toller Cranston and the pairs team of Barry and Louise Soper, competitors have come from Great Britain, Czechoslovakia, the United States, France, Angola, Japan, Russia, West Germany and Italy.

Lund Leads Houston Over Sharks

Centre Larry Lund scored his first two goals of the season to lead the Houston Aeros to a convincing 6-3 win before 4,139 fans down from a NHA west division game last night.

Toronto Toros defeated Vancouver Blazers 7-3 and New York Golden Blades surprised Minnesota Fighting Saints 5-2 in other WHA games Wednesday.

New England Whalers still lead the East Division with 11 points, two more than Cleveland Crusaders, and three ahead of Quebec Nordiques. New York and Toronto each has six points, one ahead of Chicago Cougars.

In the West, Edmonton Oilers and Winnipeg Jets share first place with eight points each. Minnesota has seven, one ahead of Houston and Vancouver, and three in front of Los Angeles.

"That's over with," said goalie Jim McLeod, who stopped 40 shots. "It doesn't bother me at all."

Camille Henry, coach of the team which is weathering its second financial crisis in as many years, said: "I guess the guys who were here last year are getting used to this kind of thing."

For a team that entered the game with one victory in eight contests, the Golden Blades scored first-period goals just 18 seconds apart, and forced the Fighting Saints into numerous errors while cruising to their decisive victory.

There was one sour note in the Blades' best showing of the young season. Goalie Gene Peacock, who scored 27 goals and 40 assists last year, said he wants to be "traded, released sold, or anything else that will get me away from this team."

"I know I'm not playing the way I can, but I'm discouraged," the long-haired forward said.

His contract was to have been renegotiated after last season, but when the new owners bought the team to end the first financial crisis, Peacock's contract was pushed aside. The standoff came to head Wednesday night when Peacock skated in the pre-game warmup but didn't play a minute during the game.

Jerry Toms, the club's general manager, acknowledged Peacock's wish to be traded, but added: "The man's got a contract."

"If he was nearly as valuable as he thinks he is, we'd have made a trade for him long ago."

Intercollegiate Championship

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union (CIAU) and the United States National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) announced Wednesday formation of an annual North American intercollegiate hockey championship.

CIAU President Keith Harris said the first championship will be held in Canada sometime around the end of March, 1974.

The CIAU ortimer and NCAA champion will meet in a sudden-death game for bragging town of the CIAU winner to decide the North American champion.

Chief Organizer Of Hockey Series, Charles Hay Dead

TORONTO (CP) — Charles C. Hay, 71, first president of Hockey Canada and retired president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd., died Wednesday following a sudden illness.

Born in Kingston, Ont., he was the father of Bill Hay, a former centre with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League.

While attending the University of Saskatchewan, Mr. Hay played hockey and football, but after graduating in engineering he went into construction and later the oil business.

He was one of the founders of Hi-Way Refineries Ltd., which operated in Alberta and Saskatchewan. The firm was bought in 1954 by Royalite Co. Ltd. of which Mr. Hay became president in 1958.

British American Oil acquired control of Royalite in 1963.

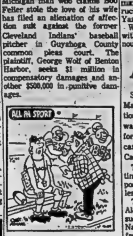
In 1964 he was named president of B-A, now Gulf Oil Canada, and when he retired in 1969 he was appointed president of Hockey Canada.

In Ottawa, Gordon Juckes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, said Wednesday that Mr. Hay was the "driving force behind Hockey Canada."

Last year, because of illness, Mr. Hay resigned as president but he remained a member of Hockey Canada's executive.

A director of Gulf Oil and several other companies, Mr. Hay also had served on the senate and board of governors of the University of Saskatchewan.

Mr. Hay was one of the original directors of the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada and served as president of the organization in 1961 and 1962. In 1963 and 1964, he was chairman of the Canadian Petroleum Association after previously serving as chairman of the association's Saskatchewan division.



In 1965 the University of Saskatchewan presented him with an honorary degree in in recognition of his contribution to Canada's petroleum industry.

Mr. Hay is survived by his wife, Florence, sons Bill of Calgary, and Jim of Sarnia, Ont., and daughter, Mrs. Robert (Linda) Dimon.

CLAIMS WIFE STOLEN

CLEVELAND (AP) — Michigan man who claims Bob Feller stole the love of his wife has filed an alienation of affection suit against the former Cleveland Indians' baseball pitcher in Guyahoga County common pleas court. The plaintiff, George Wolf of Benton Harbor, seeks $1 million in compensatory damages and another $500,000 in punitive damages.

"Just say — with this year's team, I expect to be traded between halves of the first game!"

Finley Won't Let Go Without Compensation

CHICAGO (AP) — Charlie Finley did it again.

The controversial owner of Oakland Athletics says he won't let go of his manager Dick Williams without a fight—in court, if necessary.

"If I do, Williams or I'll have to be compensated. And compensated handsomely."

He said Wednesday he has no intention now of giving Williams a free hand to negotiate with another club.

By threatening legal action, Finley who nearly stole the show at the World Series with the firing of his second baseman, may have started another ruckus involving New York Yankees and Detroit Tigers.

Williams, who has a contract with Finley through 1975, announced his resignation Sunday just after the Athletics won the Series over New York Mets.

He was reported to be headed to the Yankees to replace Ralph Houk, on his way to Detroit as manager.

"I'm surprised," said Williams from his home in Rivera Beach, Fla. "I have high regard for Mr. Finley. He never went back on his word before."

Williams said he has not talked with the Yankees nor have the Yankees approached him.

Finley said he "stunned" Yankee officials at an American League meeting in Chicago Tuesday when he denied them permission to talk to Williams about succeeding Houk.

The practice of seeking permission to talk contract with a prospective manager is usually a mere formality among club owners.

"I said 'absolutely no,'" Finley recalled a conversation with George Steinbrenner, Yankee board chairman, and Gabe Paul, Yankee president.

"This wasn't quite a row-row between the Yankee and Tiger officials after I made it plain I didn't want to let Williams go for nothing," Finley said.

"I wasn't in on the conversation but Steinbrenner told me the Tigers never did ask permission to talk with Houk, who also had two years to go on his contract with the Yankees. Steinbrenner said he was going to the Detroit people and demanded compensation himself.

"Don't be surprised if these things wind up in court."

In New York, the Yankees said Houk technically still was their manager.

Paul said the club has not given Houk the standard release form on the rest of his contract or promulgated it through the league office as of yet.

In Detroit, general manager Jim Campbell of the Tigers said Finley's claim that the Yankees will seek compensation for Houk is unfounded.

Campbell said Houk "resigned on . . . the last day of the season and on the following Sunday morning I called him. In all good faith, as a free agent and offered him our job which he accepted about three days later."

Houk said the Yankees "accepted my resignation with no conditions and wished me well in a public press conference."

Matty Alou Sold

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Matty Alou, who led the National League in batting in 1966, was sold to San Diego Padres for an undisclosed amount of cash Wednesday, the St. Louis Cardinals said.

The action marked the second time the Cardinals have disposed of the 34-year-old Alou in less than 1½ years.

The Cardinals reacquired Alou last month during their unsuccessful stretch drive for the National League East crown from the New York Yankees for a player to be named later.

He was traded to Oakland Athletics in August, 1972, and Oakland traded him to the Yankees at the end of the 1972 season.

Alou batted .272 in 31 times at bat with the Cardinals in September and .286 for the Yankees earlier in the season.

Ron Turcotte May Be Missing

TORONTO (CP) — The appearance of Secretariat and his jockey in the Canadian International Championship Stakes is a pretty iffy thing.

If Ron Turcotte rides Secretariat—and there is some doubt about his status—it will be his seventh time in the race, a $125,000-added event at 1¼ miles over the Marshall turf course.

Turcotte, native of Grand Falls, N.B., may have lost the mount on Secretariat when he was disqualified Wednesday for interference in the stretch with Speak Easy, which finished first in a feature race at New York's Aqueduct Park.

Aqueduct stewards were to rule today on whether to suspend Turcotte. A suspension in New York usually starts the day after the judgment.

If Secretariat runs, and if he wins, the big red would be the first three year old to win the championship in 20 years. Navy Page, owned by E. P. Taylor of Toronto, won it as a three year old in 1953.

Lucien Laurin, native of St. Paul de Joliette, Que., said the decision on whether to use Secretariat—syndicated as a two year old for $6,000,000—will be made after a five-furlong workout today, under the direction of Turcotte.

"I'm pretty sure he will find the course in good shape and we will be in the race Sunday," said Laurin, who was a 70-pound jockey in 1939 but quit in 1942 because of a weight problem after 161 wins from 1,445 mounts.

"But there is always the possibility it will be rainy and muddy for the race . . . we'd be a doubtful starter if we had heavy rain, making the turf soggy."

The race, for three year olds and up, is expected to be Secretariat's last before he retires to stud at Claiborne Farms in Kentucky.

If he wins the race, he will increase his earnings to $1.2 million which would move him past Carry Back and Nashua into fourth place among thoroughbred money winners—behind Kelso, Round Table and Buckpasser.

The Triple Crown champion, which has won 15 of 28 career races, could give Turcotte his third win in the championship.

Turcotte finished first with Quill Rule in 1964 and one with One For All in 1971.

It's expected that 13 horses will be named to face Secretariat, which will carry 117 pounds as a three year old compared with 126 pounds for older horses.

Three more United States invaders are expected today—Big Spruce and Triangular from New York and Golden Don from Kentucky.

Other possible entries are Kennedy Road, Fabe Count, Twice Lucky, Freehold, Top of the Day, Tico's Donna, Good Port and Roundnose—all regulars on the Ontario Jockey Club circuit.

Asked about the three U.S. horses, Laurin said: "I

Hulick Takes Trophy

WASHINGTON (CP) — James Hulick of Sterling, Mass., captured the Ringmaster Challenge Trophy jumping competition Wednesday night at the Washington International horse show where Canadians fared poorly.

David Broome of the British equestrian team was second aboard Sportsman and teammate Derek Ricketts on Beau Supreme and Bernie Traurig of New Jersey were disqualified for third.

All had clean rounds but Hulick, riding Willy Wonderful, had the shortest time of 48.7 seconds over the 15-jump course. Broome was clocked in 47.2 seconds while Traurig and Ricketts were another half second behind.

John Simpson of Calgary riding Texas and Jim Day of Hornby, Ont., on Out of Sight each had four penalty points from one knockdown.

5-0 Lead Not Enough

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It isn't often that a team can win a hockey game after falling behind 5-0 in the first period.

But Providence Reds scored the last eight goals of the game Wednesday night at Springfield to down the Kings 10-6.

The result kept the Reds two points ahead atop the North Division of the American Hockey League standings as New Haven Nighthawks edged the visiting Boston Braves 6-4 to move into second place.

The Kings, who had given up only three goals in winning their first two home games, got their first three goals from Wayne Chernecki and singles from Byron Baltimore and Norm Park before the Reds woke up.

Larry Sacharuk, the league's leading scorer and Pierre Laganiere started the Providence comeback but rookie Reg Kluch stalled it with his first pro goal.

Doug Horbul and Dan Berger soon brought the Reds to within two goals before the second period ended and John Bednarski and Bert Wilson scored 24 seconds apart early in the third to tie the contest.

Sacharuk and Laganiere got their second goals of the night while Andre Peloffy and Norm Dennis wrapped up the rest of the Providence scoring.

At New Haven, Rod Norrish's hatchhand drive proved to be the winner with seven minutes left as the clubs skated to 1-1 and 4-4 ties after the first and second periods.

Charlie Burns with two, Terry Holbrook, Steve West and Jerry Byers were the other Nighthawks marksmen while Bill Corkery scored twice for Boston whose other snipers were Dave Hynes and Craig Sarner.

Nova Scotia Voyageurs get a chance to move into a second-place tie in the North when they entertain Jacksonville Barons.

PHILLIES MOVE FARM

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia Phillies have moved their Triple-A baseball farm club from Eugene, Ore., of the Pacific Coast League to Toledo, Ohio, of the International League, the National League team announced Wednesday. The Phillies had been in Eugene for 11 years.

Rockets A Road Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

What's this about a home court advantage in basketball? If it's true, Houston Rockets haven't heard about it.

At this early stage of the National Basketball Association season, the Rockets are doing much better on the road than at home—and Wednesday night clobbered Boston Celtics 132-117.

The victory was the fourth in five starts on the road this season. Incidentally, the Rockets are 0-3 at home.

In other games, Philadelphia 76ers drubbed Portland Trail Blazers 132-110; Milwaukee Bucks routed Buffalo Braves 130-113; Los Angeles Lakers nudged Kansas City-Omaha Kings 92-91; Atlanta Hawks whipped Seattle SuperSonics 131-106 and Detroit Pistons trimmed Phoenix Suns 115-99.

American Basketball Association scores were: Kentucky Colonels 109, New York Nets 98; Carolina Cougars 134, San Antonio Spurs 92; and Indiana Pacers 98, Denver Rockets 88.

Rudy Tomjanovich and Mike Newlin led Houston through a big second period as the Rockets hit 74 per cent of their floor shots to take a 78-66 lead over the Celtics at half-time. Tomjanovich had 20 points and Newlin 18 in the first half and finished with 34 and 32, respectively.

Steve Mix, Fred Carter and LeRoy Ellis combined for 51 points to lead Philadelphia to victory. Mix scored 13 of his game-leading 38 points in the final period.

Ellis had 21 points and Carter scored 22.

Kareem Abdul Jabbar scored 31 points and Bob Dandridge 27 to power Milwaukee past Buffalo.

Jerry West scored two free throws with four seconds left to spark Los Angeles.

Pete Maravich got 15 of his 36 points in the third period to lead Atlanta.

Detroit held Phoenix to 14 points in the third quarter and went on for its 115-99 triumph.

Wendell Ladner held Julius Erving to 20 points—13 under his average—and scored 18 himself to lead the Colonels. Dan Issel was high scorer for the Colonels with 22 points. Jim Chones paced Carolina to victory with 22 points, while Freddie Lewis and Mel Daniels each scored 17 to power Indiana.

Narrow Victories In Cup Games

By REUTER

Holders Ajax Amsterdam and West German champions Bayern Munich were both in danger of elimination from the European Cup after scrambling to narrow home victories in first leg second-round matches Wednesday night.

Ajax, European champions for the last three seasons, entered this season's competition for the first time after receiving a bye in the first round.

They faced Cska Sofia of Bulgaria, when they had beaten 6-1 on aggregate in the same round last season. But all Ajax could manage Wednesday was a 1-0 victory, made possible by Jan Mulder's 16th-minute goal. They now face a tough return leg in Sofia Nov. 24.

Bayern, whose entry into the second round was achieved when they won their first round match against Sweden's Astvidaberg on penalty kicks, matched a 4-3 victory against East German rivals Dynamo Dresden, who led 2-1 at half time.

Scotland's Celtic, 1967 European champions, were held to a goalless draw by Denmark's Vejle BK, first-round upset winners over French champions Nantes.

Celtic needed three goals to reach 100 in European competition, but even one was beyond them despite relentless pressure, and they now face a tricky return match in Denmark.

English champions Liverpool kept alive their European Cup hopes when a late goal by defender Chris Lawler left them only 2-1 down after the first leg against Red Star Belgrade, whose goals came from Jankovic and Bogicevic.

Stratford Plans Two Revivals

STRATFORD (CP) — The Stratford Festival will revive two Shakespeare plays last done here in the early 1950s for its 1974 season opening June 3, artistic director Jean Gascon has announced.

King John, last done in 1960, and Love's Labor's Lost, last performed in 1962, will be new productions. This year's Pericles, will run over into the new season, and Moliere's The Imaginary Invalid, being prepared for the company's spring tour of Australia, will round out the program.

Mr. Gascon, who retires from the Stratford company at the end of the new season, is directing the Moliere play, for which rehearsals begin in January, after the Australian tour. It will probably have to be re-staged to fit the Festival Theatre here.

Mr. Gascon also directed Pericles, which opened at mid-season this year. Last may run for the full season next year.

Michael Bawtree, an associate director of the Stratford Festival, will direct Love's Labor's Lost. Peter Dews, former artistic director of the Birmingham Repertory Theatre in England making his Stratford debut, will direct King John.

The latter play will open at mid-season, in July 7-8. Stratford's custom to add a new production about mid-July, and this is frequently carried over into the following season.

Casting for the 1974 season is to be announced later.

William Hutt, star of this season's 'King' Lear, which the company took on its European tour last spring, will play the lead role in Moliere's Invalid.

Set-building Bee Job for Weekend

Decades ago, a barn raising bee, provided neighbors with the opportunity to come together over a common task, a common table, and work toward a common goal — the final nail driven into the final board. However, such bees are no longer the fashion.

The Belleville Theatre Guild aims to change that fashion this weekend. It won't be a barn the Guild will be raising, however, but a set for the second production of its season, Peter Coke's Comedy of Midsummer Mink.

Guild president, Verna Patterson, extends an invitation to those interested in theatre to come down to the Pinnacle Playhouse Saturday at 9 a.m. to lend their backs and skills to the set raising.

Besides the hot meal, the only reward will be the satisfaction of seeing a set rise from the floor of the Green Room, the work room in the basement of the Playhouse.

Further reward comes in meeting the play's director, Peter Kitcher, and working with a professional set designer, Jeffrey Sisco, who will provide a model of the set.

"I'd like to generate a lot of enthusiasm," said Mrs. Patterson, "I'd like it to be an event."

Speaking of the Montreal-based designer, she says: He's young, he's keen, and I think he's going to be really good for the job.

He has some interesting ideas on how he can turn that black hole of a stage into an elegant set. Because we've had a lot of trouble getting good looking sets, we're using the Theatre Ontario grant to pay for his services."

Mr. Sisco will also work on the set for the Guild's third production, Bill Macilwraith's The Anniversary. Originally from New York where he trained in architecture and interior design at the Pratt Institute, he has spent three years in theatre design, most recently having worked as production designer for the Noel Coward Festival in North Hatley P.Q.

Those interested in working on the Guild's set should call either Doreen Kitcher (968-8329) or the Playhouse (967-1442). Workers will be divided into crews to look after various aspects of the set's construction — i.e. property makers, painters, lighting and set dressers. Sunday will be begun Saturday will be completed if possible, and if not, then final construction and painting will be done the following weekend.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actress Gale Sondergaard finally has received her Oscar statuette, 37 years after she was named best supporting actress for her role in Anthony Adverse.

Miss Sondergaard, named best supporting actress when the award was inaugurated in 1936, received the Oscar in a surprise presentation Tuesday.

She was given a plaque in 1936, and in recent years the National Academy has from time to time replaced such plaques with the statuettes.

Miss Sondergaard, widely known for roles in horror pictures, also appeared in such films as The Life of Emile Zola, Anna and the King of Siam and East Side, West Side.

LONDON (Reuter) — Duke Ellington, 74-year-old doyen of the jazz world, is to play for Queen Elizabeth at next month's royal variety show, it was announced Wednesday.

Ellington gave a concert for the United Nations Association at Westminster Abbey Wednesday night and was watched by Princess Margaret and Prime Minister Edward Heath.

It was the first time jazz had been played in the abbey.

Later, he was entertained at the prime minister's residence.

Stacy's female companion was killed Sept. 28 when an auto collided with Stacy's motorcycle.

The suit, filed Tuesday in Superior Court, names the driver of the auto, Carter Sayre Gordon, and 1,000 "John Does." The John Does pertain to anyone who might be responsible for the accident, Stacy's lawyer said.

D and C Known For Women of 70

By G. C THORESON MD

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Fourteen years after cessation of menstruation, I noticed a slight reason for "spotting" a few days each month. Would you advise a D and C at this age? Would this stop the spotting?—Mrs. MC.

Such "spotting" serves probably should say demanded investigation, "not because it necessarily means anything serious, but because sometimes it does. If anything serious is happening, then the sooner it is identified and treated, the better.

Indeed, any abnormal bleeding, regardless of age, should be investigated promptly.

Actually there are many causes of spotting after menopause. The one we fear most, of course, is cancer. But there are others. Women taking estrogen (female hormone), as many of them do, may require a slight adjustment in the dosage to stop the bleeding.

Such bleeding also can occur with the presence of infection, some cervical or miscellaneous sources of irritation.

In my opinion, a D. and C. (dilation and curettage) is the proper part of an examination for this. Investigation usually will stop after the D. and C. It won't if cancer is the cause—but the examination would detect cancer.

No, 79 is not too old to have a D. and C.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: Would you explain bulitus-type emphysema. What is it and what can be done for it. My wife has it, and is told there is no chance for surgical excision.—G.McC.

Emphysema, as you doubtless know, is a loss of elasticity in the lungs. The tiny air sacs in the lungs break down and the lungs lose their sponge-like texture. They can't expel, as much air and this can't draw in as much fresh air.

In some cases considerable numbers of the little air sacs break down, leaving a single cavity which is called a bulla. What is the so-called bullous type—the large cavity will show up in an X-ray.

Sometimes these large bullae can be decompressed surgically and sometimes they cannot. But there is no other means of preventing or treating the bullae.

Dear Dr. Thoreson: What causes me to see wide rings of color around the moon on a clear night, or around the light of an approaching car? Others with supposedly normal eyes do not see these colors when I do. I had my eyes tested for glaucoma with negative results six months ago.—S.L.O.

These halos around lights can be a sign of glaucoma, so you were right to have the back of other conditions, such as cataracts beginning to form, also can cause the same phenomenon. When you had the glaucoma test, was any mention made of any other eye problem?

Dear Dr. Thoreson: My granddaughter, 13, believes in washing her hair in the morning before going to school and it is wet when she goes outside with no hat or scarf. She has forever a sore throat and head colds. But you know grandma is old-fashioned. Sure, in summer it's different but not in winter, spring, or fall. Please give me a reply on this.—Mrs. W.A.

I usually agree with grandma but I can't in this instance. I would for other reasons favor cold than the wet hair. Seems to me the wet head would be uncomfortable but apparently it doesn't bother her. As to the colds and sore throat I'd suspect such things as faulty eating, inadequate rest, infected tonsils.

Opening lead — king of clubs.

The welcome of many hands depends on declarer's success in keeping a particular defender out of the lead. It is certainly not unusual for one defender to oppose much more of a threat than the other, and declarer's skill in dealing with this threat may influence the final result.

Here is a typical example of an avoidance play. West holds a club and declarer notes that there is a possibility of two losing a heart and two diamonds.

South's best chance of making the contract lies in trying to establish dummy's hearts, but there is grave danger that if he goes about his business in the usual fashion — by leading the AK and another heart—East may wind up on lead and play a diamond through the king.

So South shapes his play to try to keep East from taking the lead. He ruffs the king of clubs in dummy, cashes the K-Q of spades, and plays the seven of hearts. He plans to duck, if East follows low, and lose a heart trick to West, who can do him no harm.

If East ducks the seven, West wins with the ten and is powerless. Dummy's remaining hearts become tricks after South cashes the A-K, and declarer eventually discards two diamonds on the 9-8 of hearts.

Nor does it help East to cover the seven with the jack. Declarer takes the king, ruffs a club, and plays the eight of hearts.

The same East cannot afford to cover and is obliged to follow low. Declarer also ducks and West wins with the ten. Whatever he returns, South ultimately emerges triumphant as a result of his avoidance play.

Tomorrow: Combinations.

School Counsellors Get Industry, Labor Views

Fluency and accuracy in written and oral communication was another requirement of industry. Some speakers called for compulsory English in every high school year. On the other hand, teachers pointed out that English is taught in every class throughout the school day.

People from labor and industry agreed that continuing education in adulthood is a desirable concept but impractical. Young people with short - term goals get locked into low - paying jobs and soon have too many responsibilities to be able to afford quitting work and going back to school.

Some industrialists quarrelled with vocational training in high schools. They asked schools to give instruction in the basics, and leave job skill training to industry.

Finally, the counsellors were told schools are trying to do too many things in the course of educating children.

"Don't dance with my kid," was the way one representative put it.

And teachers should do a better job of selling their product.

"They told us we aren't doing enough public relations," said Sid Allcorn of Centennial, who was chairman of the conference.

There was no "real" understanding or empathy" between teachers and industry before the conference, said Mr. Allcorn. But with a better understanding of industry's needs, guidance counsellors intend to follow up the conference with a blueprint for standardized course coding. The counsellors are also investigating a uniform method of preparing students' records for employers.

School is a cloistered world, divorced from the "real" world of work outside the classroom.

That's the message industry and labor took to the third annual conference of Hastings county guidance counsellors last weekend near Bancroft.

Some of the counsellors disputed the contention that schools are unreal, but they are exploring ways of giving their students work experience during their school careers.

Representatives of the Quinte District Labor Council, the Quinte Management Institute, ministry of education, Loyalist College trustees and school administration attended the conference.

Representatives of industry suggested that teachers and workers change places for a week or two a year. The teachers would find out about the production line, while workers took over their classes and gave students "a sense of job."

Employers asked for uniform code numbers designating courses offered in schools. At present, each school in the county has its own system of designating courses.

School reports on prospective employees should also be standardized, employers said. They want to know the courses the student took in school, with a description of course content indicating whether each course was taught on a practical, general or theoretical level.

They were most interested in comments on the student's attendance, punctuality, diligence in his studies and the relationship of his achievement to the effort he put into school work.

The method of securing this information was agreed upon. The schools will not hand it over to the employer, but will give it to the student to deliver himself.

Representatives of labor had their own beefs. They want more practical instruction in the classroom on the history of the labor movement, on unions, social security, and more on the meaning of terms like conciliation and arbitration.

Labor asked for a course in the schools on filling applications, writing resumes and conducting job interviews.

Labor representatives also suggested that teachers placing students in work-experience jobs consult the workers first — not just management.

Peace Force From Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Troops of three countries under the United Nations banner were preparing today to fly from Cyprus to the Middle East as the vanguard of a United Nations military force to police the Israeli-Arab ceasefire.

The Security Council approved a resolution Thursday calling for formation of a new UN Emergency Force and specifying that, like other such peacekeeping forces, it would not include ones from the United States, the Soviet Union or the other three permanent members of the council, Britain, China and France.

The UN action came only hours after the United States had placed its military bases around the world under a precautionary alert. Nixon administration sources had said they feared Moscow planned to exploit the fragile Mideast truce by sending in its own peacekeeping force.

As Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim canvassed other UN members for men for the new force, the council authorized him to get troops moving by sending to Cairo 897 men from the 3,144-man UN peacekeeping force stationed on Cyprus since 1964. They are from Finland, Austria and Sweden.

Canada has men in the Cyprus force but the Canadians will stay on the Mediterranean island.

The council's resolution did not specify the size of the Middle East force, which will replace UN peace observers, including 20 Canadians, now manning truce observation posts in the Middle East.

But the first UN emergency force, set up following the 1956 Arab-Israeli conflict, totalled 6,000 officers and men, including about 1,200 Canadians, at its peak. The force dwindled to 3,400 before it was withdrawn at the request of Egypt at the onset of the 1967 war. The final commander of that force was Canadian Maj.-Gen. E. L. M. Burns.

Canada and Panama announced Thursday they are ready to contribute troops to the new Middle East force.

Canadian Defence Minister James Richardson said in Ottawa that Canada has 900 men available and "if our services are required, we are ready."

Panama's ambassador is the UN said his government is ready to contribute 200 men to the new force. Sweden said it is considering a UN request for troops.

Canadian Help Being Ignored?

OTTAWA (CP) — Is Canada being ignored when peacekeeping troops are being sent to the Middle East?

Government spokesmen could not answer that question Thursday night.

The question was put to them after United Nations Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim announced the dispatch of 900 UN troops in Cyprus to the Middle East. No Canadian troops were included, although there are 550 on the island.

Based on Canada's past performances in peacekeeping, including the fact that the late prime minister Lester Pearson was an originator of UN peacekeeping forces, observers are wondering why Canada has not been invited to join the latest Mideast peace force.

The 900 troops are from Austria, Finland and Sweden. No one has been sent from the 550-man Royal Canadian Regiment which arrived on the island only recently.

"Cease... FIRE!"

Israeli Oil Tanker Hit at Suez Entrance

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Israel charged Egypt with new violations of the ceasefire today as United Nations officials began assembling a new UN military force to try to enforce the Security Council's call for a truce between Israel and Egypt.

The Israeli military command reported that Egyptian artillery fire disabled an oil tanker at the southern entrance to the Gulf of Suez and that Egyptian tanks attacked Israeli positions on the west bank of the Suez canal north of Suez.

But an Egyptian military spokesman in Cairo indicated the tanker had been disabled by rifles rather than artillery fire, and denied that Egyptian tanks were attacking Israeli forces on the west bank of the Suez canal.

Quinte Cleanup

Quinte Secondary School students turned out in force Thursday on a giant fall cleanup campaign to raise funds for their Student Parliament and other school activities. Jackie Cowan and Yolinda Smith tackled the bed of a creek on city property adjacent to the school and dredged up a collection of car mufflers and tires. The students raised about $1,800 from the project.

New Prosecutor To Replace Cox

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon will hold a televised news conference at 7 p.m. EDT today amid growing signs he is considering naming a new special Watergate prosecutor.

The prediction, by White House aide Melvin Laird was made at a news conference in Chicago Thursday as it became evident that Congress will not settle for a justice department investigation of the scandal.

The president, who cancelled a broadcast address Wednesday and news conference Thursday, was expected to meet with supporters at the White House today.

Laird said he would prefer to keep the Watergate investigation in the justice department, where it was placed after Cox was fired last week. But he conceded that "because it's a question of great public concern" a new prosecutor probably will be appointed.

Vice-President-designate Gerald Ford, Republican leader in the House of Representatives, and John Anderson of Illinois, House Republican conference chairman, said they asked Wright to tell the president that a majority of their colleagues support a proposal that Nixon name a special prosecutor.

But in the Senate, there was a movement particularly among Democrats to get a prosecutor with immunity from presidential dismissal.

PQ Gains Ground

MONTREAL (CP) — A poll of voter intentions released Thursday shows the governing Liberals carrying a 14-percent lead over the Parti Quebecois as Monday's Quebec general election draws closer.

The poll of 1,050 persons by the Centre de Recherches sur l'Opinion Publique (CROP) between Oct. 18 and Oct. 22 showed the Liberals' lead over the Parti Quebecois down 4.7 per cent, from the margin they held in an Oct. 5 poll.

Of the persons interviewed, 35.3 per cent indicated support for the Liberals, with 21.1 per cent backing the Parti Quebecois and 23.3 per cent undecided or refusing to state a preference.

The Parti Creditiste and the Union Nationale, official Opposition party in the Quebec national assembly, were well behind with 9.8 per cent and four per cent, respectively.

In the Oct. 5 CROP poll, the Liberals received the support of 37.3 per cent of those interviewed, the Parti Quebecois 18.7 per cent, the Creditistes 8.6 per cent and the Union Nationale 4.6 per cent with 24.8 per cent undecided or unwilling to state a choice.

Soviets Sent Force

BULLETIN

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union has "already sent representatives" to the Middle East war zone at the request of Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, Leonid Brezhnev announced today.

The Soviet Communist party chief did not say whether the men dispatched by the battle front are military forces.

The Soviet move followed an Egyptian request Wednesday that Soviet and American troops be sent to the Middle East to help enforce the demobilized United Nations ceasefire call of Oct. 22.

Forces Remain Alerted

WASHINGTON (CP) — United States armed forces around the world remained on alert today, long after the Soviet Union had apparently defused a big-power crisis by agreeing not to send troops into the Middle East.

President Nixon ordered the "precautionary alert" Thursday and warned the Russians not to send in a force to police the Arab-Israeli ceasefire. Within hours, the Soviet Union voted at the United Nations Security Council for a UN peacekeeping force, excluding the big powers.

U.S. State Secretary Henry Kissinger and State light on the nature of the Russian moves that led Nixon to call the alert, which included nuclear bomber and missile crews.

He told a news conference: "We became aware of the alerting of certain Soviet units and were puzzled by the behavior of some Soviet representatives in the international task took place."

But New York Times columnist James Reston says the United States had solid information of Soviet military moves that seven Soviet airborne divisions had been placed on "high alert" and that big transports that had been flying war material from the Soviet Union to Egypt were suddenly withdrawn and diverted to the Soviet Union, close to the airborne divisions.

Nearly all of the 2.2 million U.S. military men and women were put on some degree of combat readiness.

Stanley Structures Agreement Signed

Strike action has been averted by a two-year collective agreement settlement reached at Stanley Structures Limited.

"This marks the first time in many years that both parties have reached agreement prior to the end of the contract," said James Clarke, vice-president and general manager of the company, formerly known as Wilson Concrete.

The renewal agreement for the hourly rated employees of United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, Local Union No. 634 became effective October 30 and expires October 19, 1975.

Wage adjustments call for a 40 cent general across-the-board increase effective October 30 of this year. Effective October 29, 1974 there will be a 35 cent general across - the - board increase.

Paid holidays remain the same, at 11, while paid vacations are changed to three weeks after 6 years instead of 7 years. There will now be four weeks holidays after 16 years, instead of 17 years.

The afternoon shift premium differential has increased from 19 cents to 20 cents, and from 23 cents to 25 cents for the night shift premium crew.

Life insurance benefits will now be $7,500, up from $5,000. Accidental death and disability benefits will be $7,500 for 24-hour coverage. Prior to the agreement, it was $5,000.

Weekly indemnity pays from the first day of accident and fourth day of illness for a total of 26 weeks at $75 a week, up from $60 a week.

Mr. Clarke said he was pleased with the settlement. "It's always a mark of mutual understanding if both parties involved can reach settlement before finishing the contract.

"We feel it is a reasonable settlement for both sides, which will enable us to carry on working. The employees feel that it is reasonable or they wouldn't have accepted it," said Mr. Clarke.

Art Stapley, union president representing the approximately 150 hourly rated employees at Stanley Structures, said the thought the negotiations were handled very well.

"The union seems to think it is a good contract. The relationship between the two parties is better this year than it has been in other years," said Mr. Stapley.

He said that the collective agreement was accepted by union members October 10.

"This is the first time I recall that we never had to go into conciliation, that we never had to go right to the deadline before settling. It's quite a change for the better," he said.

He said there was some compromise between the two parties before settlement was reached but added generally parties quite satisfied with the results.

Mr. Stapley said that the question of voluntary overtime has been solved with a worker now having the right to refuse overtime.

The hourly base of pay now is $3.70 with a base of $4.60 for maintenance and mechanics effective October 29.

Tea for a Century

The women of Holloway Street United Church held their annual Friendship Tea and Bazar in the church hall Wednesday. The event is rapidly becoming a tradition as the church approached it's centennial next year. To help the congregation get into the festive mood, three lovely church members, Arnold Campbell, Mrs. R. Coulter and Mrs. Pearl Holmes, posed in front of a 1928 Durant as the bazar got under way.

CFB Employees Protest Treasury Board Offer

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — Local members of the Union of National Defence Employees from CFB Trenton charged the federal treasury board with "bargaining in bad faith" last night and called for the right to strike.

There are some 25,000 members in the protesting union who in turn are affiliated with the 200,000-member parent union — Public Servants Alliance of Canada.

Top ranking union officials told members they had voted away their right to strike five years ago when they opted for arbitration rather than conciliation in dealing with contract disputes. Public servants have had the right to bargain collectively since 1966.

The call for a strike came following the treasury board's offer of pay raises scheduled as three per cent increase this year, and two per cent increases for the following two years.

Union officials last night pointed out, "that means seven per cent increase over three years when Statistics Canada has already reported an 8.3 per cent increase in cost of living for this year alone."

The matter has since been sent to a board of arbitration where a subsequent treasury board proposal outlined five and five per cent over two years, still unsatisfactory to the union. The union is asking for 13 per cent the first year — followed by an automatic three per cent at the beginning of the second year, followed by another increase in line with Canada's cost of living index." Other outstanding issues left to the arbitrator's discretion include vacation and fringe benefits.

Members were told they could not strike over the current agreement, but if they desired, a national vote could be taken to change the bargaining machinery to conciliation next time.

A national vote was unanimously approved and a further resolution was unanimously passed protesting the actions of the treasury board.

Noble Young, local president, said "we want a peaceful protest", He felt a reluctant government was ready to listen and if enough to the cabinet board, they might call upon the judge "to sweeten the pot a little."

Peaceful protest will include meetings such as last night's and letters sent to members of parliament but the members following the meeting had no reason to be hopeful.

They were told "when a judge is working on an arbitration such as this he becomes the savior of the public purse."

"Within the law all we can do is accept the offer and say thank you," said Dick Morrison. UNDE director of negotiations, referring to the national vote which could lead the way to conciliation, he said remember, "there will be a next time."

Mr. Morrison said, "I would hope if in two years the issue came to a strike situation, we would have the support of our 200,000-member union.

"I would think something could be worked out," he said.

Doug Sweet, president of the Quinte Labor Council, drew the first applause from the group when he said, "don't call yourselves civil servants but trade unionists. Jump in with both feet.

"It is about time we stopped getting hosed."

Pensioners Use Grant For Bulletin

Harold Varty, chairman of a Napanee-based senior citizens' group, has received notification of a New Horizons grant of $2,299 from the office of Marc Lalonde, Minister of National Health and Welfare this week.

Funds granted to the recently formed South Eastern Ontario Senior Citizens' Advisory Council will be used to publish a news bulletin, and to reimburse council members transportation costs. The salary for secretary, help needed for the bulletin will come from the grant, expected to meet council needs for 18 months.

"The executive of the council will tie it down," said Mr. Varty, a Tweed resident, "but I hope the bulletin will contain helpful hints for meetings, activities, as well as entertainment and program suggestions for each club.

Bear, Car Collide

TWEED (Special) — To the driving hazards imposed on the Quinte district by fog in the last few days, Centre Hastings has added its own unique hotch — bears.

A car driven by Morgan Jaques Pope, 25, of Belleville received $200 damage to its left front when a large black bear ran into it on Highway 7 Thursday.

The bear rolled over several times after hitting the car and finally ambled off into the bush. The accident occurred at 7:40 p.m. Thursday and ministry of natural resources officials have mounted a search this morning for the animal. They suspect the bear was seriously injured in the collision.

Principal Henry Schaly Supervises Study

Least Known School Thrives

The least known school in Hastings county lies between Belleville and Foxboro on Highway 14. And it exists for a special purpose — to offer Christian elementary education.

This week the school is marking Christian Education Week, in conjunction with 68 other Christian schools in Ontario. The object is to make the public aware of the non-denominational, independent nature of the Christian schools scattered across Eastern America.

The school is open to anyone — the notion it is a Dutch or Christian Reform school creates a barrier in people's minds," says principal Henry Schaly.

Began in 1957, the three-room school has an enrolment of 78 — a figure that seldom fluctuates from year to year.

The principal, two other teachers and one part-time French teacher make up the staff.

Christian schools operate on the principle that "fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge" and offer daily Bible classes.

"Training for the Christian way of life and the training in school on the basis of the humanist way of life od not mix," says a brochure on the school "It confuses the child, leading him to isolate faith from the affairs of his daily life."

The school is now conducting a campaign among local businessmen to help meet its expenses. Because it is classed as a private school, it receives no government grants and parents of the pupils assume most of the cost.

The annual budget is $35,000 and each family with children enrolled in the school pays an annual fee of $200. Thirty-two families now have children attending the Christian school. In addition, parents and children run a series of fund-raising events throughout the year to support the school.

CHSS Student Top Scholar

A Centre Hastings Secondary School student has won the top Carter Scholarship in Hastings county.

Rita Spearhafer was awarded $150 from the bequest of the late J. I. Carter of Sarnia who established the Carter awards in 1914. To be eligible for the Carter Scholarships, students must obtain at least six credits, two of them in math and English, in grade 12.

Other Hastings county winners are Charles Geen of BCI and Reginald Dunham and John Tokarewicz, both from Centre Hastings, who tied for third place.

Quebec Election

With the Quebec election campaign almost over predictions point once again to a Liberal victory under Premier Bourassa.

Bourassa is safe, middle-of-the-road, and if he has not captured the imaginations of all Quebecers by any means he has given the province a measure of stability and prosperity and confidence in its identity that lands it in good stead.

One Quebec observer has said the main confrontation in an almost issue-less campaign has been between federalism and separatism, rather than between the politics of left and right.

For one reason or another Opposition candidates have not been the threat that was anticipated, with its possible exception of Parti Quebecois leader Rene Levesque.

The Creditistes' Yvon Dupuis has been full of Gallic fire and brimstone but he has failed to evoke any answering fervor from Union Nationale, which ruled the province for those long 23 years or so before the "quiet revolution" is seen to be in a rapid and inexorable decline which its leader Daniel Johnson is powerless to halt. Consequently it represents no challenge in this election.

Only Rene Levesque, suave, chain-smoking and undeniably charismatic, seems likely to weaken the Liberal hold on Quebec to any extent. It is a new Rene Levesque that took to the hustings this time around. Gone the old firebrand figure, no tough within and all small appearance that here, we might be convinced, was the classic triumph of the spirit over any physical impairment. Gone the near-megalomaniacal oratory. In its place Rene Levesque, still the old smoothie when he wants and mellowed by a new restraint and reasonableness. No hurry, he says, on the subject of separatism — independence can come, in time, if the people want it. But meantime, in a reversal of the last time around, and in his colorful if irreverent English he is saying, "who wants to scare the voters for . . . sake!"

But barring some entirely unexpected developments it is Robert Bourassa the federalist, the man who wants Quebec to grow and prosper as part of Canada, who is expected to win. And this, while Rene Levesque remains the man to watch as voters go to the polls.

Cable Shortage

Everybody suffers during a strike — the workers involved, the public at large and of course the economy.

A recent issue of Bell News explains the consequences of the ten-week strike at Northern Electric plants in Belleville and elsewhere.

Cable, says the Bell publication, is in short supply. The shortage is described as "severe" and there is a growing inability to provide basic service on demand in new housing developments and in some new business locations.

Despite round-the-clock operations at both Bell and Northern located likely will be early in 1974 before conditions are back to normal.

All of which may have human as well as economic implications. For years Canadians have been dependent on the pebbliest of people where use of the telephone is concerned. Once or twice some other nation inched into top spot, but by and large it seems Canadians are right up there. What will this temporary shortage do to our chances now?

Still, there is a plus factor for Belleville in all this. The Northern plant here is planning on expansion of its operations and the old Amplifone building on Dundas Street has been chosen as the site.

Girls and Sport

Girls playing soccer? Yes, just as we had been urging. We felt sure it would become more involved in various sports we read of an exhibition game between Belleville Collegiate and Bayside with the prospect of other schools competing also if there is sufficient interest.

Meanwhile, up in Peterborough, we see Trent University girls have had a number of field hockey matches with local high schools and other youngsters in their mid-teens were participating in the Kawartha girls' cross 'country run. One of them, Darlene Schick of Brighton won the midget division.

Keep it up girls.

Middle East Conflict

Another Costly War That Has Brought No Solutions

By JOHN HARRISON
Foreign Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The fourth Middle East War, which the Israelis will probably call the Yom-Kippur War because the Egyptians and Syrians began it on that religious holiday, has proven to be the same as the three earlier ones, no solution to the Middle East crisis.

The Arab Jewish conflict, unlike all the others in the post-1945 era which has been plagued with wars, has never been resolved. Even Vietnam the most wasteful and most monstrous of the conventional wars of the 1950s through the 1970s came to a formal and after months of negotiation.

This fourth conflict between Israel and the Arabs has produced two new factors, one anticipated and the other not. As I remarked, the Arabs stated "truth hurts" and they have decided to implement their oil weapon as a weapon against user nations supporting Israel chiefly the United States.

The unanticipated was the toughening up of Arab military establishment's and the appearance of new Arab commanders just as General Patton stated "out of the bones" of the Israelis, to use Moshe Dayan's phrase about the Arabs, as the Israelis prepared to do with Egyptians, Syrians and Iraqis.

Another unanticipated factor in this latest Middle East War was the entry in strength of other Arab nations, Iran Israel's immediate geographic neighbors to supply troops, aircraft and funds to help in the struggle.

Hence Iraqi troops and tanks are backing up the Syrians, And Libyan cash and probably aircraft are backing up the Egyptians. The initial Egyptian thrust across the Suez canal bank, which has been, maintained, was followed by bitter Egyptian resistance in the form of their tank warfare to Israeli armored retaliation. This too was new.

Israel's pique at not sweeping all before her this time is clear, to see. Massive military ownership of all stories emanating from Tel Aviv as well as the immediate battlefronts, is the kind of reaction which Israel accused the losing Arab powers of using during the 1967 war. And there is a subtle admonition for the Arabs out to win for a change by the top-dog, once-trodden members in the Middle East, conflict. Israel's incessant world propaganda on behalf of her self-proclaimed righteous cause hasn't had the global effect of previous wars.

The result of this and of Arab confidence in their new Soviet weapons has been a more blunt bitter and ruthless determination on both sides not to give in. A United Nations ceasefire will not soften an even harder political position which Israel has ascus. Baghdad and Cairo on the one side, Tel Aviv on the other.

And yet there has to come a time when the rest of us become not only fed up with this crisis, but start to worry that our own welfare will be destroyed, perhaps irrevocably, by the failure to resolve it and the growing bitterness on each side.

Before the war is over, the big industrial powers knew so much about it as the fans the kind of state in the Arab Jewish conflict.

Canada's Oil Policy May Be Compromised

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

When the Russian bear dipped its paw into the black money of Arab oil, it started a chain of events that could bring profound changes to Canada's energy policies.

It was six years ago, just after the Six-day Arab-Israeli war that the Kremlin intensified its efforts to spread its influence among the Arab states. Its ultimate target was not Israel but Western oil and economic interests.

That policy is now payin off in the Arab oil ministers' decision to cut production and to halt shipments to those countries vaguely described as friends of Israel.

Whether or not the Arabs put Canada in that category isn't clear. Given the pressures by many overseas countries to lump us in with the Americans, they probably do.

But in any case we face new difficulties in maintaining the flow of crude-oil imports to Eastern Canada, and we can be sure of still more price increases on petroleum products as well.

It has become blindingly clear over the last two or three years that the Arab-dominated cartel, the Organization of Petroleum Exporting countries, is committed to a program of successive increases in the international price of crude oil with the sky the limit.

The reversal of the Middle Eastern war has accelerated that trend, and introduced a new but related weapon—the total embargo on the sale of Middle Eastern oil to the United States.

At an earlier time, that might have been sufficient cause for a big-scale war. But the temper of the times demands other types of response.

In Canada's case, the response may have to be a preemptory revision of our national oil policy—bid the bullet, pay the price, try to become self sufficient in oil, and intensify efforts to develop alternative energy sources.

The Trudeau government is already leaning in that direction, for reasons of domestic politics. Just last month the prime minister indicated that the government might halt the practice of importing crude oil to serve Eastern Canada, and instead transferred Western Canadian crude into the area east of the Ottawa Valley.

The cost of shipping oil over the ground from Alberta to the East Coast could be staggering. It has always been much cheaper for Eastern Canada to buy most of its crude oil from Venezuela—and, in recent years, some of it from the Middle East.

That price differential is becoming the victim of the controversial cut of the super powers. While the Soviets have apparently succeeded in cutting the United States off from its supplies of Arab oil, the innocent bystanders such as Canada are bound to be hit by shortages and high prices.

That part of Canada that uses Western Canadian oil—Ontario and the four western provinces—may have to learn to share their supplies with Eastern Canada.

But Alberta and its oil producers must resist the temptation to gouge energy users—and let's hope that we don't become too blind to the interests of established U.S. users of Canadian oil and gas that we precipitate a trade war with the Americans.

Optimism in Ulster As Violence Slackens

By KEVIN DOYLE

LONDON (CP) — For the first time in nearly four years of turmoil, a genuine sense of optimism seems to be slowly replacing the chronic gloom and despondency of Northern Ireland.

Violence has declined to its lowest ebb for months. There are fast indications that rival, warring factions in Ulster may at last be moving to take part in a new constitutional Assembly and British troops are even making small reductions in their strength in a few key centres.

While bitter experience has hardened the North's political leaders against any quick promises or hopes of peace, even they are showing some signs of a new sense of urgency in cooperating to find solutions to their vast array of problems.

Veteran commentators agree that the most promising development during the 17-1 months is the recent surprising improvement in relations among the main factions in the Assembly

The parties involved — the mainly Roman Catholic Social Democratic and Labor Party (SDLP), Protestant Loyalists led by Rev. Ian Paisley and Unionists led by former premier Brian Faulkner—still have not been able to agree on the establishment of a new power-sharing executive. But the invective and bitterness of earlier confrontings recently has given way to far more constructive forms of discussion.

Whether the decline in violence is a cause of the improvement in political relations or a result of it is not entirely certain.

But there has been a sharp decrease in the numbers of shooting and bombings throughout the area, particularly in Belfast, the main theatre activity in the current conflict.

As usual, the British army claims credit for the lull by reminding that it has recently made severe inroads into the outlawed Irish Republican Army and arrested most of the top leadership.

However a more plausible explanations seems to be that the minority Catholics have eased pressure on the I.R.A. to ease up in its terrorist campaign in order to give the assembly a chance to work.

Military casualties are at the lowest level since the army and army strength has been reduced to 15,000 men from 20,000 a year ago.

The Loyalist Party appears to some observers to have become the greatest threat to political stability in the province. Its aim is to refuse to take part in any form of government short of one which will give the power of the old Stormont parliament involved by the British in 1972. The Loyalists are pledged to maintain the Protestant majorities of the province and follow students.

But Paisley, after making a shambles of the first few Assembly sessions, now has adopted a low-key attitude and has suggested a compromise might be found which would allow him to sit on the executive if it included some Catholics as well.

Most observers believe he is afraid of a coalition forming between the SDLP and the Unionists which would freeze his Loyalists out of power completely and leave them a relatively small, isolated "trunk" group on the fringes of the establishment.

A major question, however, is the intentions of the IRA. The organization has not abandoned violence entirely and recent bombings in London as well as several explosions at trains in Northern Ireland show it can never be discounted entirely.

Some Ulster leaders appear to entertain a vague hope that if politicians can solve the initiative for prompting reform and for giving Catholics a far greater share in civil power, they might just have a chance. Sadly, all leaving the I.R.A. with out a convincing cause to promote.

This would only take place if a large Catholic representation on the executive was able to hold out to its supporters the possibility of a future re-union with the Irish Republic and on that particular issue there is as yet no sign of compromise.

Driver's View Of Busing And Kids

Editor,
The Intelligencer

A short while ago this line to CHOW Mu Call program was hot on the subject of school buses and the shortcomings of school bus drivers.

The main complaint of the mothers involved seemed to be that each insisted that the bus should stop at her door to the interest of her own children's safety.

Never once did I hear mentioned that these stops were picked at a safe distance apart in order that the traffic accelerating to pass when the lights go off to serve a chance to go by. They should not have to make a stop or set on an interval of the law by a bus stopping again on such short notice. This creates a very dangerous situation and especially for the bus driver who has to load the buses.

These stops are also picked to avoid braking near blind corners or at the crest or part way up a hill. These are very dangerous situations particularly in slippery or icy conditions.

The bus or car may not be able to start ahead again or stop for the bus.

In 1963 I attended a safety seminar including the Safe Scarborough Board of Education's school bus operators. The instructor was a high ranking man from the United States and we had the benefit of his course from our own pocket. One of the points this instructor emphasized was the importance to be given to the several groups involved in school busing.

1. THE PUPILS — These come first and are the sole purpose for the whole show. Rural pupils usually ride school buses from Kindergarten to Grade 12 or 13. During this span a lot of character is formed in the attitudes of the drivers and fellow students.

2. THE PARENTS — They supply the students to fill the buses. They are the ones whose concern it is to see that they are properly trained, disciplined and out in time to catch the bus.

They also instruct them in good manners and courtesy to their drivers and teachers and considerateness of others.

They also pay the taxes which go toward school expenses. You would think that their home life is like by the child's behavior on the bus.

3. THE DRIVERS — The drivers and the teachers are much in the same category. They need to be proficient, pass strict tests and be of good character off duty as well as on duty need to like children and have a lot of patience.

The bus drivers have the greatest responsibility and are subjected to the most criticism.

4. THE PUBLIC — Those trying to get to work on time or on business in the city. They may or may not believe in school busing but they all get impatient if delayed unnecessarily.

Several other groups are more or less involved but it is all tied up this. In the very important business of school busing, no one should point the finger at anyone without knowing all the facts and giving thanks that it gets as well as it does.

Car Fitness Debated

TORONTO (CP) — The provincial government currently is studying ways to tighten regulations on motor vehicle fitness certificates which also would impose tougher penalties on lawbreakers, Gordon Carton, minister of transportation and communications, said Thursday.

Mr. Carton's statement followed questioning in the legislature by Opposition Leader Robert Nixon, who suggested many of the automobiles that received fitness certificates last year may be on the province's roads illegally.

Mr. Nixon said these certificates are "available on a black market for a direct charge."

The minister replied that only about 800,000 vehicles were certified last year and "perhaps five per cent" of those are illegal.

Albert Roy (L—Ottawa East) disputed the five-per-cent estimate, saying a survey in Ottawa indicated one out of six certificates for vehicle fitness "is in fact a fraud and a sham."

He said one certificate was issued for a car that had no motor.

In an interview, Mr. Carton said the government hopes to bring a bill dealing with motor vehicle fitness before the legislature during the current session.

At present, mechanics "really have nothing to lose," in that all they face is a fine which often amounts to only $10, Mr. Carton said.

He said the government will require the signature of the car dealer or service station owner on the certificate as well as that of the mechanic, thereby making both parties jointly responsible for circumvention of the legislation.

"We could lift their (the owner's) licence" for the purpose of vehicle inspection, he added.

Trade Mission Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis asked the government Thursday to reconsider its proposed trade mission to South Africa on Oct. 31, which is "obviously offensive" to many national and international organizations.

Mr. Lewis requested that the province review its plans in light of a joint proposal by the United Church of Canada, the Anglican Church of Canada and the YWCA, calling for the suspension of the trade mission.

Claude Bennett, minister of trade and tourism, told the legislature that Ontario will proceed with its plans on the weight of information supplied by the ministry's researchers, which indicated the mission would "improve the quality of life" in both South Africa and Ontario.

Mr. Bennett said the eight firms participating in the mission all deal in non-military commodities.

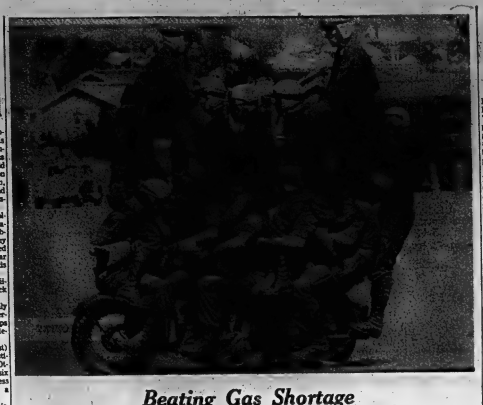
Shoreline Flooding Possible

TORONTO (CP) — Residents on the Great Lakes shoreline in southwestern Ontario may face serious problems from storms again this fall, a natural resources ministry official said Thursday.

Walter Giles, assistant deputy minister, said the levels of Lakes Erie and Huron have not dropped as much as hoped since serious flooding last spring.

He told the legislative committee studying budget estimates of the ministry that area co-ordinators have almost completed contingency plans should there be flooding.

But very little can be done in terms of long-term protection while water levels remain high, said Mr. Giles.



"Perhaps we will be lucky and storms this fall won't be severe.

The committee was told that the only major man-made controls for lake levels are at the outlets of Lake Superior and Lady Ontario into the St. Lawrence River.

Otherwise evaporation is a greater factor, particularly in Lakes Erie and Huron, in controlling lake levels than artificial means.

A co-operative study of areas of the Great Lakes most vulnerable to flooding and the possible means of protection was begun by the ministries of natural resources and the environment following last spring's flooding.

Mr. Giles said the study report was expected to be completed by June 1974.

Media Said Deluded on Housing

TORONTO (CP) — New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis has accused Ontario's news media of being deluded by government handouts on housing.

Speaking Thursday during a housing debate in the legislature, Mr. Lewis said he finds it difficult to fathom how the news media has been manipulated by government.

"Nowhere has the media of Ontario been more uncritical, unthinking and easily deluded than in the swallowing, hook-line-and-sinker, bolus-bokus of every housing trifle that comes by way of an announcement," said Mr. Lewis.

The debate, centred around a government bill to provide a new ministry of housing, ranged over the entire spectrum of housing needs in Ontario.

The NDP leader singled out the press for special criticism.

Every housing announcement he said, is put into inflated headlines without ever being questioned.

As an example, he cited a news conference during which Premier William Davis said Ontario will build one million housing units over the next 10 years.

He said newspapers latched on to the million units as a catch-phrase without questioning it. What was missed was that Ontario built a million units in the next 10 years it would be failing below present annual production.

Turning to the government's Home Ownership Made Easy (H.O.M.E.) plan—a device by which housing costs are reduced by using leased land—the NDP leader said that when the program was announced in 1967 the government said it would put 20,000 lots on the market in the first year.

Warranty Hearings Planned

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement' Ontario minister of consumer and commercial relations, told the legislature Thursday that a series of public hearings are to be held next month to discuss the government's policy on consumer product warranties.

Mr. Clement said the hearings will allow the public an opportunity to present the government with briefs and submissions prior to the formulation of warranty legislation.

The hearings begin Nov. 15 in Thunder Bay and convene the following day in Sault Ste. Marie.

However, the government has marketed only 13,000 lots since 1967.

Michael Cassidy (NDP—Ottawa Centre) said there is a direct link between development interests and the Conservative party.

Government policy he charged, often forced people to resort to sleeping in cars because they couldn't afford housing.

The legislation was finally given approval in principle and third reading after a lengthy debate that forced the members of the legislature to extend their regular sitting hours past the usual 10:30 p.m. deadline.

Replying to opposition criticism, Revenue Minister Allan Grossman, in charge of housing, said the bill was designed to give priority to housing by creating a minister whose responsibility would be solely to housing.

Lewis Claims 'Discrimination' Hurts Kingston Land Purchase

TORONTO (CP) — New Democrat Leader Stephen Lewis Thursday described as "discrimination against the people of eastern Ontario" the government's decision against aiding purchase of a property by the Kingston area for public park.

In 1968, the 337-acre Le Moines Point property on Lake Ontario in Kingston Township could have been purchased for $1,500 an acre, Mr Lewis said.

Now the total price is $1.5 million but it still was "a magnificent opportunity for parkland," he said during legislature committee consideration of the budget estimates of the natural resources ministry.

Natural Resources Minister Leo Bernier, who told the legislature in June the government no longer is interested in the property, said his ministry had again considered it within recent weeks.

The government is willing to pay half the appraised price of the property but not the difference between the appraised price and the "inflated" price, Mr. Bernier said.

Le Moines Point was valued by two appraisers at between $300,000 and $400,000 in 1970, and in 1971 Kingston Township agreed to a purchase price of $600,000, Mr. Lewis said.

But the Ontario municipal board refused to approve a township application to borrow $600,000 toward the purchase because of the difference between the appraised and the asking price.

In April, 1972, the Cataraqui Conservation Authority sought permission to buy the property for $500,000, but it also was turned down, Mr. Lewis said.

"I don't know if the price is inflated," said the NDP leader, but the province could go to the land compensation board to get a fair price for the property.

He said the province is contributing $4.3 million toward the $18.5 million purchase of Texas O'Shanter golf course being purchased as park land in Metropolitan Toronto.

The province is also discussing with Lake Ontario Cement Ltd. compensation for expropriation of the unique dunes area on Lake Ontario east of Toronto, Mr. Lewis said.

The government neglects parts of the province and it has "a moral obligation" to assist Kingston township in acquiring Le Moines Point as a park.

WEDDINGS

MR. AND MRS. ALAN SMITH

Smith — Russell

St. Michael's the Archangel Church was the setting for the wedding of Karen Marie Russell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Russell, and Alan Arnold Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith.

Escorted down the aisle by her father, the bride wore a white silk shantung gown made by her mother. The short sleeves, stand-up collar, empire waist and front of the gown were trimmed with butterfly motif lace. Her mantilla-style veil of double white tulle fell into a long train, and was also trimmed with lace. Her bouquet was three yellow long-stemmed roses.

The bride's sister, Wendy Russell, was maid of honor in a peasant-style dress of green and white gingham with an empire waist and short puffed sleeves. She wore a ring of green daisies in her hair and carried long-stemmed yellow daisies.

The bridesmaids, Mary Theresa Russell, sister of the bride, Patricia Smith, sister of the groom, and Virginia Jonah, the groom's cousin, and the flower girl Leslie Russell, the bride's sister, were dressed identical to the maid of honor but in yellow and white gingham with a ring of yellow daisies in their hair. They each carried long-stemmed white daisies.

Carl Clarke was the best man. Serving as ushers were Michael Smith, Peter Jones and Fred Stickle.

MUSEUM NEWS AND NOTES

* * *

A memorable occasion this year of 1973 in our city is the opening of Glanmore House, Bridge Street East, by the Hasting's County Historical Society.

This is cause for much rejoicing, for museums are becoming a way of life. To illustrate, here are some "Did you knows" mined from some research-digging, namely:

—That in the United States and Canada there are some 6,650 museums.

—That five new ones open each week.

—That over 7,000,000 visitors are attracted annually.

—That it would take a determined museumgoer 18 years just to visit all the museums visiting one per day. This is really not feasible for by the time the 18 years have passed — there will be at least over 4,380 new museums — or another 13 years' worth. Thus the gap could be narrowed but never closed.

—That museums are no longer places to go "on a rainy day", but are becoming places for action and participation. They provide education, services, children's departments and present a variety of cultural presentations.

And why?

Because of our rising proportion of young people in the population, more of whom are attending college and receiving higher education. They are a generation that perceives in a new and different way from our previous generations. Besides, all groups, young and old, have been exposed to television, which stimulates intellectual interest.

—Presentation is changing, such as the technique of bringing together in one display a group of objects to capture the culture of a region or era. For example, a so-called "period room" brings into focus the various aspects of culture; the materials used, the crafts, the artifacts of a life style.

—More participation is involved. At our $30 million Ontario Science Centre in Toronto, "you can step into an exhibit and feel your hair stand on end as 800,000 volts of static and harmless, electricity pass over your body." There are 450 displays which may be touched, listened to, operated, simulated, more than just "looking at" them.

What is more the whole program is unguided. The visitors explore and discover scientific principles for themselves. Also fun is provided with a purpose — to foster "understanding of the technological revolution".

Said one 15-year-old student: "this place frees us from captivity."

"If museums are to meet the needs of the man of today and tomorrow, they must involve themselves in every aspect of human existence."

MR. AND MRS. JACQUES BAULIANNE

Boulianne — Lawson

Trinity Anglican Church in Frankford was the setting for the October wedding of Deborah Elizabeth Lawson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawson of Frankford, and Jacques Keith Boulianne, son of Jean Guy Boulianne of Kapuskasing and Margaret Boulianne of Glenora.

Rev. Charles Staples performed the ceremony, and communion service.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of sheer over taffeta with a lace yoke, stand-up collar, sheer sleeves with ruffle trim, and a gathered skirt ending in a long train. Her shoulder-length veil fell from a beaded headpiece, and her bouquet was orange and yellow carnations with baby's breath.

Maid of honor, Anne Sadler, wore a printed gown of salmon colors over an orange lining, in peasant style with long sheer sleeves. She wore an orange velvet bow in her hair, and carried yellow, orange and green carnations with white streamers.

The attendants were gowns the same as the maid of honor but with underlinings of yellow, and wore yellow velvet bow headpieces. Serving as bridesmaids, were Mary Anne Lawson, the bride's sister-in-law and Denyse Boulianne of Toronto, the groom's sister. The junior bridesmaid was Valerie Burak. They all carried yellow, orange and green carnations, with white streamers.

The ushers were the bride's brothers Christopher Lawson of Glen Miller, and Philip Lawson of Frankford, and the groom's brother Guy Boulianne of London.

After the reception at the Trinity Parish Hall, and the dance at Frankford Octoberfest, Mr. and Mrs. Boulianne travelled to Halifax N.S. They now live in Belleville.

Marriage—It's More Than Friendship

By DORIS CLARK

We say that a newly developed friendship is a good basis for marriage.

But marriage is more than friendship, isn't it? Friends can meet on common ground, enjoy time spent together and then part. When they meet again they have something new to say to each other. They see each other at their best.

In marriage, it seems, they are stuck with each other. No partings now: adjusting to the likes and habits of another human being all day and all night long takes some doing. Let's look at some of the things which make it possible to share life, a home, children:

Common courtesy; (labeled in terms of "we"; contributing manners); mutual awareness of each other's needs; the expression of love; and psychological balance. Here are a few important components for a permanent enjoyment of the One and Only. Watch this column for my commentary on each of them one at a time, in the weeks to come.

Dear Doris: Would you please send me your leaflet "How to Study" for which I am enclosing 25 cents in coin. Could you please let me know where I could purchase the book "Learning to Learn"?

Our daughter is 13 and going into grade nine. She contends: "Could do better if she worked harder."

Her mark fluctuate up and down a great deal in the school year! Instead of showing steady slow progress, sometimes I feel her attention span is not long, as in kindergarten days! We have sets of encyclopedias and other books she can use for reference material at home and we try to emphasize the joy of learning and reading.

She is not an avid reader but we still encourage her, even at this age, to read aloud. Thank you for your interesting replies to letters. They have often helped me.

Mrs. Answer To Study.

Dear How To: The sooner your girl gets some system into her studying, the better. Both my leaflet and the book "Learning to Learn" can help. The book explains in down to earth terms how to go about packing in the knowledge effectively; how students — of any age — can work best on their own, handle assignments, and use different methods of study for different subjects.

I'm sending the leaflet "How To Study" and a sheet which tells how to order "Learning To Learn".

Stimulate her interest in reading by having discussions about what's going on in the world: politics, fashion, movies, books, football games. Ask for her opinion; and listen while she expresses herself.

Dear Doris: I agree with Early Sizzles that you or no one else can understand how lonely we are without our partners. Children and friends try how they will, cannot fill the gap. I lost my wife after 42 years, have a large family all married and I live alone.

I get on fine to make friends I still have my family but after all we have to come back to an empty house, no one to talk to, eat meals with and waking up and knowing no one with you! When I travel by bus, train or jet, I carry those couples, with me sitting alone! When we were together we never thought of such things, took them for granted.

Early Sorrow.

Dear Early: Could you make one friend? Even in your TV you can reach out. You have doubtless done difficult things in your past! This time you will get a reward for it.

If you envy married couples, join a tour and travel with others. If you have a skill to share, let local Y know about it. Reach out — and if you are ready to say "yes" to something the right thing will present itself.

Thinking it over helps. Write to Doris in care of this newspaper.

Ann Landers

Too Late for 'Honey'

Dear Ann Landers: I just came from a funeral. It was a sad one. She was only 31 years old. The husband kissed and kissed his wife's casket and whispered, "Goodbye, honey." It was very touching—but it touched me more than those present who didn't know the couple well.

They had lived next door to us for 15 years. He called her plenty of names, but "honey" wasn't one of them. You couldn't print the ones he called her most often. And she really didn't deserve the abuse. Also, She was a wonderful woman.

How many husbands who read this column are going to wait until their wives die before they call them "honey?" Why not start tonight, when she can still hear you?—End Of A Tragic Day

Dear Friend: Your letter is bound to have special meaning to certain readers. In behalf of them, I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: I was married to a wonderful home where I learned that marriage is forever. I have tried to live it. Recent life and have been waiting for the right man to come along.

Several months ago I met the man I was sure was the answer to my prayers. He is kind, intelligent wonderful company, and has a thriving business. He said he had been waiting all his life for a girl like me.

We set the wedding date and I bought my honeymoon luggage and wardrobe. We agreed to buy a house mid-way between his business and my job, which, incidentally, I love. Last week he informed me that the house deal was off, that his mother had rented a home for us and furnished it. (The house is closer to her baby yard.)

I told him I didn't want to live there. It looks terrible from the outside. (I have not been allowed to go in because his mother hasn't finished furnishing it.) I'd have to drive 60 miles a day if we lived in that house and the thought of it exhausts me.

My future mother-in-law doesn't care for me and I know it. Her other son's wife doesn't speak to her. She seems to have trouble with everyone. I love this man and I don't know what to do. Please hurry your advice.—Embattled in Missouri

Dear E.: If you love this bottle you've lost the war. Tell your future husband that unless he is willing to honor the original house agreement—is/ture just passed. I be lets you go, you never really had him.

Courses for Elderly

WINNIPEG (CP) — Courses for the elderly are offered five days a week by the newly established Institute for Continuous Learning at the Age and Opportunity Centre. A French conversation course was fully booked before the institute opened.

Unsafe in Mother's Arms

CHICAGO (AP) — Mothers' arms are not the safest place for babies in automobiles, says a group of doctors concerned with automotive safety.

Each year more than 300 infants under the age of one die in the United States because of passenger car accidents, they said Tuesday at the annual meeting of the American Academy of Pediatrics.

The group, Physicians for Automotive Safety, is sponsoring an exhibit on automotive safety for children.

"The most neglected infants are the newborns "because 99 per cent of the more than three million hospital-born infants travel home in mothers' arms without proper car-seat protection," the group said in a statement.

"None of the agencies of the federal government, public health and safety organizations, or the medical profession, nor hospital administrations have taken the initiative to change the prevailing practice, . . ."

Dr. Seymour Charles of Irvington, N.J., president of the group, told reporters many child restraints being marketed are inadequate.

He described the restraint best for infants as a sturdy carrier with harness, strapped into the car with seat belts so that the baby is facing the back of the car.

Complain of Bias

TORONTO (CP) — Many women in non-academic jobs at the University of Toronto feel they are being discriminated against, says university vice-president Jill Conway. The women complain of inequities in appointments, promotions and salaries. An inquiry is to be made.

Experiments in The Kitchen

OTTAWA.— Recently an innovative, young woman put a pound of onions in her soybean sauce over a plate of freezer; then she made lentil soup, and later poured Sound like a busy household.

Sound like an busy homemaker?

No; she's a home economist with Agriculture Canada's Food Advisory Services, working in the department's test kitchen for the average Canadian household.

Marie Shoar, head of the experimental unit, says one of the section's goals is to develop new ways of using foods for low-cost main dishes — recipes which extend or replace meat.

"Such things as beans, peas and lentils, when mixed with dairy products or bread, are good meat substitutes. Baked beans and bread or even a peanut butter sandwich and milk are good protein meals," says Mrs. Shoar.

Home economists in the experimental kitchen are also working to develop better and more economical ways of preparing food.

"In a recent study we compared two internal temperatures for cooking pork roasts and found that while lower temperatures produced juicy roasts, the consumer preference was for pork cooked at the higher temperature. These roasts were more tender."

The test kitchen unit, made up of four home economists and four technicians, has been experimenting with the use of soybarger and has recently conducted studies comparing soybarger and ground beef in dishes such as meat loaf and meat sauces.

"One thing we did find is that with soybarger it is more difficult to assess the degree of doneness. This is primarily because the meat is not as red initially," she says.

The group is involved in a variety of other activities including checking extreme cooking loss in products such as bacon and sausages, and developing new products to be sure labels are representative of package contents.

"Another area of concern is the relationship between eating quality and grades established for foods. These grades are usually set by visual criteria, but we have found that B grade turkeys, while not equal in appearance to A turkeys, may be as good eating quality," she says.

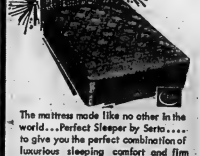
Other experiments have been done on the effects of freezing on different products.

"Many foods are better when baked fresh and then frozen than frozen uncooked. For example, cakes are better when baked before freezing while fruit pies and pumpkin pie are better frozen unbaked.

"We are also trying to determine maximum freezing periods for certain foods and conducting taste tests on foods such as raw onions to see if they lose flavor or become more flavorful during frozen storage."

Taste tests sometimes use panels of up to 250 members who judge different foods prepared in the experimental kitchen.

On other occasions small panels trained in recognizing good quality in food products — "We use equipment to measure things such as meat tenderness, but it is the consumer reaction that interests us most.



"Our experiments here are often time-consuming. We must be sure of our findings before we can make recommendations to consumers," says Mrs. Shoar.

"In addition to our work with food and food "products" we are evaluating cooking aids such as roasting bags and soon will be looking into the acceptability of food cooked in microwave ovens."

Athabasca Sands:

Macdonald Seeks Oil Co-operation

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal and Alberta governments should work together to develop the rich and virtually-untouched Athabasca oil sands, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald suggested Thursday.

He told the Commons "a lot of public money" must be spent if the oil sands, the country's largest single energy reserve, are to be developed for long-term energy needs.

One of the least desirable development approaches would be to let private enterprise take it over entirely, and limit public involvement to research and development grants, he said.

He suggested an approach similar to the role played by Eldorado Nuclear Ltd. and Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. in developing the national uranium industry. Both companies are federally-controlled.

A similar corporation to exploit the northern Alberta oil sands could be set up and it should operate "in conjunction with a similar corporation on the provincial side," he said.

He called his proposal "a fundamental approach" to developing their very important area of endeavor in utilizing national petroleum resources.

He spoke on a New Democratic Party motion that said the oil sands should be developed by a single federal-provincial corporation.

The motion, which served only as a peg for debate and did not come to a vote, also called for establishment of a national petroleum corporation to supervise all marketing and supplies, and extension of the interprovincial oil pipeline from Toronto to Montreal.

NDP energy critic T. C. Douglas (Nanaimo-Cowichan-The Islands) said he still "fight to the death" to prevent unilateral Canadian action in charge of oil sands development.

The oil sands, with potential reserves of 300 billion barrels, can supply the country for long the provincial side," he said.

Accused, he said, Total proven reserves from all other sources total less than 10 billion barrels.

Syncrude Canada Ltd., a foreign-controlled consortium, is planning the first major oil sands project, an $800-million development scheduled to begin production late in the 1970s.

Mr. Macdonald reacted coolly to the NDP request for a national petroleum corporation, but said the proposal is worthy consideration by the government.

Tory MPs Tangle On Mortgage Plan

OTTAWA — (CP) — Conservative MPs locked horns with Urban Affairs Minister Ron Basford Thursday over details for information about plans for the proposed Federal Mortgage Exchange Corp. (FMEC).

Sinclair Stevens (PC—York-Simcoe) suggested the Commons finance committee delay consideration of a substantial portion of the residential mortgage financing bill until the minister has supplied the information.

Mr. Basford said projections of corporation activities would be meaningless until appointment of a president who would make his own plans. The president would not be appointed until the legislation was approved.

Ed. Broadbent, (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby) expressed exasperation with persistent Conservative questioning on the FMEC. He suggested that if the Conservatives object to the bill they should vote against it as the NDP will.

The legislation is designed to encourage the flow of mortgage money for home purchasers.

It would establish the FMEC to buy and sell residential mortgages and banks from private mortgages. It also would allow formation of special companies to help individuals and organizations to invest in mortgages.

Mr. Stevens and other Conservatives said they support the bill. Mr. Broadbent has said his party opposes the bill because it does not feel it will affect high mortgage interest rates.

Thomson Adds Paper

The Fifth Canadian member of the Thomson Newspaper chain was acquired last week with the addition of the Niagara Falls Review.

The Review had been owned by the F. H. Leslie Ltd. company since 1904.

There are 85 employees at the newspaper which has a circulation of about 39,000 to the Niagara Falls-Fort Erie area.

The take-over by Thomson Newspapers Ltd., was effective Oct. 17 after months of negotiations.

College Enrolment Up Across the Board

TORONTO (CP) — Full-time enrolment at Ontario's colleges of applied arts and technology rose by up 40 per cent this year and by university enrolment up three per cent, Jack McNie, minister of colleges and universities, reported Thursday.

In addition, 7,688 diploma nursing students across the province have been transferred to the colleges this year from hospital schools of nursing.

Total full-time, post-secondary enrolment at the colleges, including nursing students, is 37,534 or 36 per cent above last year's 38,863.

Full-time enrolment at universities has increased by 3,815 this year for an estimated total of 128,345. This is an increase of three per cent compared with last year's increase of one per cent. Undergraduate enrolment is up 3,728 to 119,940, and the number of graduate students rose by 177 to 13,205.

Last year's total was only a 1.5 per cent increase over the previous year's, Mr. McNie said. The small increase last year precipitated financial crises for many universities which had drawn up their budgets in anticipation of much greater enrolment.

He said that as a result of last year's financial squeeze a number of universities and colleges have entered co-operative programs to share facilities and ensure there is no overlap in programs.

Pipeline Could Do More

OTTAWA (CP) — The interprovincial oil pipeline from the West could deliver 250,000 barrels of oil daily to Montreal with "no substantial additional construction" west of Sarnia, Ont., Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Thursday.

Mr. Macdonald told the Commons the pipeline would have to be enlarged to deliver more than 250,000 barrels a day.

The pipeline now stops in southern Ontario because Quebec and the Atlantic provinces use mostly imported crude oil.

Jean-Jacques Blais (L—Nipissing) said the pipeline should be brought through Northern Ontario and down to Montreal. It now runs from the Alberta oil fields through northern U.S. states to southern Ontario.

Mr. Macdonald said the government will consider the suggestion, but the higher cost of running the line through rugged Northern Ontario might not be warranted.

Jail Terms For Assault On Hewitt

BRECHIN, Ont. (CP) — A 64-year-old man and his son were sentenced Thursday to jail terms on charges resulting from an attack on hockey announcer Foster Hewitt.

Frederick Millar of Sunderland, Ont., was sentenced to 15 days in jail and fined $200. His son, George, who is on probation for possession of stolen property, was sentenced to 30 days.

Mr. Hewitt, 69, testified that he was punched and kicked by the two men July 6 when he flagged them down to caution them about excessive speed on a road which passes his cottage on the northeastern tip of Lake Simcoe.

Shotgun Attempt Costly

TORONTO (CP) — Ian James Paterson, 21, of Toronto was sentenced Thursday to seven years in prison for attempting to kill a policeman with a shotgun.

Constable James Burridge received several shotgun pellets in his neck and shoulder while being driven home in a car by Constable Frank Smith the night of Feb. 3.

Constable Burridge was not seriously injured.

"I didn't aim," he said. "I didn't notice any cars."

Paterson said he was depressed because he was unable to find employment.

The Toronto man was found with the lower part of his face blown away minutes after the shooting when his car ran into a pole. He testified he had tried to kill himself.

His face was rebuilt by plastic surgery.

Students Come Back

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — A protest by area high school students against the withdrawal of voluntary services by teachers ended Thursday, at least temporarily.

About 200 students in two Cobourg schools and one in nearby Port Hope, who stayed out of class Wednesday, returned Thursday.

Bottle Cap Manufacturer To Build Plant Here

A new bottle cap manufacturing industry will locate in Belleville in the spring.

Mundet Crowns Ltd. will put up a $1.5-million building on the city's industrial park, locating on University Ave. across from Standard Paper Box. The plant will be 40,000 square feet in size.

The metal lithography firm will make caps for soft drink and beer bottles. It has been granted $500,000 from the Ontario Development Corporation to build and equip the factory.

The plant will begin production with 25 employees.

The Toronto-based firm is not expected to break ground for the factory until next spring.

Bruce Nickson, chairman of the city's industrial commission says the plant is a "clean industry", with no pollution problems.

Fred Bemis, industrial commissioner, said the new industry will stabilize the economy of the city and increase the diversification of industrial plants in the northeast industrial park.

Foursome Plan For Selling

Alderman Stu Meeks Strikes Last Blow

Five Hundred Feet of Docks Represent a Summer of Work

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

The days of old fashioned barn raising bees may be gone, but volunteer labour for a worthy cause still has its attraction.

At least it has for Belleville Alderman Stu Meeks and a number of other part-time volunteers who have combined their efforts to construct 500 feet of floating docks for the Belleville harbor.

Supermarket, the occasional supermarket employee and a few retired people have turned out to help Alderman Meeks in the assembly project.

The dock construction is being carried out by the Belleville Harbor Improvement Committee of which Alderman Meeks is chairman. The city has voted $3,000 toward the project, but much of the material going into the construction has either been "scrounged" or purchased at less than going retail rates.

$800 Damage

IVANHOE (Special) — A car-truck accident on Highway 62 a quarter mile north of Ivanhoe at 8.15 Thursday morning caused a total of $800 damage.

A half-ton truck driven by Ross Rollins, 51, of Madoc stopped behind a school bus and was hit from behind by a car driven by David Sellers, 28, of Belleville. Dudley Miller, a passenger in the Sellers car, suffered head cuts. He was treated and released from Belleville General Hospital.

Queensboro

Queensboro — Rev. Douglas Heard of Madoc had charge of services in Queensboro United Church while Rev. W. Sedgewick was guest speaker at White Lake, Madoc.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baldwin and daughter, Mrs. Lottie Baldwin and Don of Essex spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Declair.

Mrs. Cora Helm of Hamilton is spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Holmes.

At full retail value, it is estimated that materials used would cost a minimum of $15,000 and if the project had been tendered the tab would have been between $25,000 and $30,000.

There are 40 floating dock sections each 12 feet in length.

Four of the sections tied together by hinge joints and buoyed up by air filled steel drums will be used in form a 56-foot docks or 16 docks in all with accommodation for up to 40 boats.

Originally it was expected that the docks would be completed in time for use during the past summer but material lack delayed construction.

Assembly of the dock sections is now almost completed but installation of hinge joints and placing concrete shore abutments still has to be done.

Said Alderman Meeks: "I'm confident that the job will be completed this fall with the docks ready for installation in the spring. The floating aspect of the dock construction will allow them to rise and fall with the water level.

In the spring the docks will be placed in the river mouth west of Victoria Park. Each fall they will be removed and stored on shore for the winter to prevent damage from ice.

How much work is involved in the construction of the floating docks, each 50 feet long and five feet in width?

After several weeks on the assembly line Alderman Meeks and his helpers have no doubt.

First there was close to 9,000 feet of six-inch white pine planks which had to be sawed into the appropriate lengths; angle irons for the dock corners had to be cut and bored; hinge joints installed, weighted by assembly.

Holding the 40 dock sections together are 3,200 bolts and more than a ton of five-inch spikes.

Mental Health Group Seeks Volunteers

Yesterday was mental health day in Belleville and the public was once again reminded of the need for their co-operation in promoting

While The Rehabilitation '73 programmes designed to support mental health program at Belleville General Hospital drew the public's attention to specific aspects of the fight against mental illness, the Canadian Mental Health Association manned a display that show people how they could help in their own non-specialized ways.

Billing itself as an organization dedicated to improving public attitudes toward mental illness and the mentally ill, the association has just recently launched a membership drive in the Belleville area.

Seeking volunteers to work with ex-patients; to provide transportation for people who are taking treatment and to participate in various education programs, the association has asked all interested persons to phone or visit the association's office at 25 Highland Avenue.

Rehabilitation Week

Independent Attitude Indicator to Success

The stress, the strain and the conflict inherent in modern life exacts a heavy toll from Canadians.

According to the Canadian Mental Health Association, mental illness thwarts the lives of more than 300,000 Canadians and, sooner or later, it will touch the lives of one sixth of the children who are born this year.

In the light of those frightening statistics, it almost goes without saying that there are many, highly qualified people who are taking an active interest in the rehabilitation of the mentally ill.

Yesterday, the fourth day of Rehabilitation '73 at Belleville General Hospital, the public was treated to a very thorough discussion of some aspects of the treatment of the mentally ill.

In a lecture-discussion program, members of the hospital's staff fielded questions from the public and tried to provide the residents of Belleville with an understanding of the problems encountered in fighting mental illness.

Last night's program was delivered by Dr. E. B. Conn, the head of the hospital's psychiatry department, on the role of dependency in the neurotic depressive.

In his lecture, Dr. Conn stressed "the importance of the independent-dependency balance in the development of the individual from infancy through to his adult life and the manner in which this balance could influence a person's mental health."

The striking of an acceptable balance between personal independence and dependence on others is a major factor contributing to mental health, Dr. Conn argued.

To support his argument he drew upon the results of a study conducted by an American psychologist on "the self-esteem" of a group of young boys.

He concluded that, "youngsters with a high degree of self-esteem are active, expressive individuals who tend to be successful both academically and socially.

"In contrast, boys with low self-esteem presented a picture of discouragement and depression," he said. "They felt isolated, unlovable, incapable of expressing or defending themselves and too weak to overcome their deficiencies."

By contrasting the factors that led to the development of the personality traits listed for the high and low self-esteem boys, Dr. Conn underlined his point of the importance of the independent-dependent balance.

"It appeared that the development of independence and self-reliance is fostered by a well-structured demanding environment, rather than by a largely unlimited permissiveness and freedom to explore in an unfocussed way," he said.

After laying the groundwork for his theory of the role of dependence in mental health, Dr. Conn then went on to discuss in detail the implications of dependence in the psycho-therapy of the depressives.

Rehabilitation '73 continues through until Saturday with a public forum on the care of the aged on Friday and a Careers Day on Saturday.

Loader In Lake

BANCROFT (Special) — Officers of the Bancroft detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police are puzzling today about how to extract a 23 ton front-end loader from the water in L'Amable Lake.

The loader went out of control and plunged into the lake at 8:25 p.m. Thursday, while Allan Gilpen of Toronto was using it to remove wrecked cars from the area. The loader was operating on Highway 62 about four miles south of Bancroft at the time of the accident. It plunged into 26 feet of water and the driver, who suffered cuts and bruises, was forced to swim to shore.

Pacific Mobile Corp. Open in Two Weeks

The newest addition to the growing family of new industries in Belleville is a sales and distributing centre of mobile homes and travel trailers.

Pacific Mobile Corporation, based in Drummondville, Quebec, the largest producer of recreational travel trailers and mobile homes in Quebec. This move to Belleville marks the first inroads the plant has made into Ontario.

The centre will occupy 15 acres of land in Sidney township, close to the 401 and the Northwest Industrial park.

Cornerston Builders of Belleville are doing the construction work on the site. At present a drilling machine is checking the water reservoir level in the area.

When the site opens in about two weeks, there is expected to be about 20 mobile homes and about 36 travel trailers. A sales office and eventually a warehouse to store parts will be constructed.

Yvon Laliberte will be divisional manager for Ontario. At first there is expected to be about six or seven employees he said. However, some of these will be working on the road.

The first of the trailers and mobile homes is expected next Thursday. Mr. Laliberte said he would like to get as many as possible here quickly but because of their length, the first arrivals will be three mobile homes and 10 or 12 travel trailers.

Mr. Laliberte said that within two or three years the company would like to start manufacturing in Belleville. They hope to build modules or prefabricated units for apartments, offices, etc.

The mobile homes are 12 to 14 feet in length. The market for them, besides Quebec, is in the Maritimes and New England.

The Drummondville plant consists of two factories, one putting out mobile homes and the other travel trailers. There are 350 employees there and the president is Rejean Houle.

Mr. Laliberte said that in February or March he expects to have about 200 travel trailers at the centre in Belleville. The number of mobile homes will stay the same at around 20 or 30.

The project has been developed over several months with the Belleville Industrial Commission and Fred Bemis of Bemis and the company, as well as township officials.

Mr. Bemis' efforts recently assisted in expansion of the Northern Electric plant on Sidney Street to the former Anglofibre plant on Dunark Street. And as far as Belleville's newest addition to its growing family of industries is concerned: "We'll be ready to do business in less than two weeks," said Mr. Laliberte.

Cleanup Goes Over the Top

Quinte Secondary's Fall Cleanup '72, a one-day project in which students hired themselves out for odd jobs in Belleville has been a smashing success.

Kevin Joudwa, Student Parliament co-ordinator for the "hire a student" project, reported a total of $1800 had been collected by 600 students who were given the day off school.

"If everything goes successfully," said Mr. Joudwa, "the total should be over $2,000." The objective of the campaign was $500, monies which would have been applied towards school clubs, sports and field trips.

Now, says Mr. Joudwa, the Student Parliament will have the option to put the money into a student activities and relieve the parents of the burden. "It always came back to mom or dad who had to fork over the $5 or $10 a student needed."

Although getting publicity for the Fall Cleanup '73 was difficult, the students did a great deal of the canvassing before the official working day dawned, said Mr. Joudwa. Some 450 students already had jobs lined up for yesterday's labor. Students received $3 to $15 for each job — the fee was dependent upon the employer.

Bogus Bill Deposited

City police report that a counterfeit $5 bill turned up at the Toronto Dominion Bank, 202 Front Street, yesterday.

Bearing the serial number V X 233795, the bill was deposited in the bank along with the day's receipts.

Train Hits Back-hoe

A Belleville construction worker had to jump for his life yesterday to avoid being hit by a train, while he worked under the Sidney Street overpass.

Wayne White, 29, of 124 North Park St., was moving back-fill into the south-side ditch under the overpass, when the back-hoe he was operating became stuck.

In an effort to move the machine out of the ditch, he placed the bucket over the railway line.

While in that position, the machine was struck by an eastbound train, CNR's number 60, on a regular passenger run to Montreal.

Police report the train crew saw the back-hoe straddling the tracks and pulled the emergency brake but were unable to stop in time.

White, warned by his fellow workers of the train's approach, jumped clear of his machine just as the train bounced into it.

CNR officials reported today that the train sustained damage to the right hand side of several cars but were unable to give a damage estimate. They said that the bucket of the back-hoe punctured a three foot square hole in the front unit but did not do enough damage to stop the train's trip to Montreal.

The accident delayed the regular passenger run for 10 minutes.

Choir Master Rehearses for Hymn Sing

Motioning to draw richer tones from the Bridge St. United Church choir last night, conductor Robert Redd leads the 30-member group during a rehearsal for the second annual Hymn Sing to be held at the church at 7.30 p.m. Nov. 4. The evening's program is extended to give people in Belleville the opportunity to sing old gospel hymns that aren't normally sung during Sunday services, said Mr. Redd. The choirmaster will turn his back to his singers and lead the congregation during the program to be accompanied by organist S. Alec Gordon.

If Phil Esposito Is Ailing, He's Not About to Show It

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

There was nothing unusual Thursday night about the performance of centre Phil Esposito, although he was nursing a chest injury.

He scored two goals—his ninth and 39th of the year—and picked up an assist as Boston Bruins whipped Buffalo Sabres 6-4 in one of three National Hockey League games.

It was a little different for Andre Lacroix, 20-year-old centre—Boston's first pick in the amateur draft last summer—who scored 67 goals and had 94 assists last year with Quebec Remparts of the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League.

"It's nice to score goals, but you have to keep the other guy from scoring, too," said Savard, who along with linemates Don Marcotte and Chris Oddleifson drew the tough assignment against Buffalo.

They were sent out to stop the French Connection line of Gil Perreault, Rick Martin and Rene Robert. The Buffalo line had 31 shots on the net, but Martin managed the only goal, an unassisted tally in the second period.

In other games, Montreal Canadiens won their third straight with a 4-0 decision over Philadelphia Flyers and New York Islanders battled to a 1-1 tie with Minnesota North Stars.

"We tried to check them tight and not let them get started," Savard said of his line's assignment. "The best thing to do with guys like that is forecheck—you can't leave them alone."

Savard has only one goal for the Bruins, who moved into a first-place tie with Toronto Maple Leafs and the Sabres in the East Division. Bob Marcotte scored the first of the night and Oddelifson got two with Savard getting a pair of assists in the romp over the Sabres.

"The Savard line did a hell of a job in checking the Perreault line," said Boston coach Bep Guidolin. "Savard played an outstanding game. He must have got loads of confidence doing that kind of job against Perreault."

Esposito suffered a chest bruise in a 4-3 loss Tuesday night to St. Louis Blues, but bounced back by scoring his ninth goal on a power play, then getting his 30th with teammate Gary Doak in the penalty box.

The Bruins led 3-1 after the first period and broke the game open with four goals in the second to Buffalo's one.

Centre Bobby Clarke, the NHL's most valuable player last year, knows what is wrong with the Flyers.

"Last year, when somebody was in a slump, somebody else would come along and pick him up. Nobody's doing that for us now."

Clarke should know. He hasn't scored a goal yet, after scoring 37 last season.

In fact, the Flyers haven't scored a goal in the last 161 minutes and 21 seconds. The last time they did was in the first period of a game Oct. 19 against Vancouver Canucks.

Whalers Use Blades To Pad Their Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New England Whalers can be excused if they're more concerned with financial problems of New York Golden Blades.

It's just that the Whalers would be lost without the Blades, at least ahead, to come to picking up points in the World Hockey Association.

The Connecticut loob advantage of New York's generosity again Thursday night as the 8-2 win which increased the Whalers' first-place lead in the East Division to four points over idle Cleveland Crusaders.

It was the third successive win for the Whalers over the Blades in league play this year and their 10th in regular-season games against their stumbling rival.

The Whalers and Blades were tied 1-1 after the first period, but numerous defensive errors by New York helped New England take a 4-3 lead into the final stanza.

Hugh Harris got two goals—his first and fifth of the season—for the Whalers, while Tom Webster picked up a goal and two assists.

Tommy Williams of the Whalers got three assists to give him 31 points, including three goals, this season which moved him into a third-place tie in the WHA scoring race.

At yet, no financial solution has been found for the Blades, who were plunged into crisis last week when a $250,000 cheque bounced. The league is apparently looking at other ways which also had financial problems last year, until the current owners can prove they can look after the Blades.

The Blades couldn't even take advantage of a penalty shot awarded to centre Andre Lacroix when he was pulled down from behind on a breakaway by defenceman Rick Ley. Goalie Al Smith made an easy stop when Lacroix fired a 30-foot shot.

"I don't know what Lacroix was thinking," said Smith. "I expected him to try to fake me into going down, but instead he just took a slap shot from 20 feet."

It was the second unsuccessful penalty shot of the year for Lacroix.

In Quebec before 8,605 fans, the Nordiques were tied 2-2 with the Cougars until Bob Whitlock scored at 8:20 of the second period followed by Paiement's second goal at 19:45.

The Cougars now are in fourth place in the East with seven points, one behind Quebec, and one ahead of Toronto Toros and New York.

One of the high spots for Quebec was Serge Bernier's seventh goal of the year which increased his points total to 13—best in the league.

HOOPSTERS IN SCANDAL

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union's national basketball team, which won a stunning and controversial upset over the United States in the Munich Olympics, is embroiled in a national scandal. Its team and coaches have been accused in the government press of letting the Olympic gold medal go to their heads and becoming lazy. The press also charged that players have tried to smuggle Western goods into Russia upon their return from foreign tours.

Lupenette Finds Mark

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hull Festivals walked into Laval's Civic Arena Thursday night looking for their fourth Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League victory.

When they skated off with a 4-1 lead at the end of the first period, it appeared the first-year Festivals were in a good position to get it.

But Laval Nationals blitzed the Hull net with 38 shots in the second period, scoring on six of them, and went on to register an 8-6 win over the Festivals in one of two scheduled games for the other, goaltender Mario Viens blocked 27 shots to record a shutout as Cornwall Royals blanked Drummondville Rangers 4-0.

Awards Mean More Than Money—Jackson

NEW YORK (AP) — "There's money to be made in the game of baseball," said Oakland Athletics' outfielder Reggie Jackson. "but I want the intangibles that go with it — leader, professional—winner, man."
